Facing the N

Before this issue reaches our readers, the year 1935 will have taken its departure and the year 1936 will have made its arrival. The year 1935 is now history and cannot be changed. What has been written has passed out of our hands. However poorly our work has been done, it is done and must remain so. But while the work of the past year cannot be changed, there is hope for all of us in that another year is ahead of us. In this year, if God lets us live to see much of it, we can start all over again to do our work.

Many people, doubtless, would like to know what the new year holds in store for them. A good many people go to the fortune-teller to try to find out about the future. We do not have any faith in this method, but there is a way by which we can judge the incoming year to some extent, and that is by the past. We know what has happened and we are sure that similar things are going to happen. While it is true that not all people are called upon to endure just the same kind of things, yet these things are in the world and will find somebody. It is not at all to be expected that all sickness and sadness and death will be banished from the earth in the year 1936. But the thing that brings hope is that some things are being banished from time to time, and if by a small gain here and a small one there the world can be made better, it will be worth the effort. If by some forethought we can prepare ourselves to meet whatever comes to us in the new year, then when these things do come to us they will not seem quite so severe. What, then, shall we prepare ourselves for?

Almost everybody will have some sickness in the year 1936. It is possible that some may escape, but the most of the people can expect some physical infirmities. Dr. Rankin of the Duke Foundation made the statement a few years ago that one person out of forty, on an average, is sick in bed all the time. Some, of course, are in for only a few days, while others are in for a long period.

Another thing which we may expect during the coming year is some financial reverses. In this respect some will fare worse than others. While we sincerely trust we are on the road to recovery, and that the worst of the depression is over, still some people will not be able to pull themselves through the year without some losses. This may not be a very rosy picture, and some people might prefer that we wait and let them find this out for themselves. In this we are not trying to discourage anyone but we are trying to fortify people against surprises.

To all who try to do much for the betterment of the human race we will say that some disappointments will come to you. There will be a great deal of indifference on the part for help. This has always been true. It was true when our Lord was here on the earth, it was true in the days of the early church, and it, perhaps, will be true so long as we are in the flesh. This indifference on the part of people makes the work more difficult and requires a greater courage on the part of the workers.

), as well as on the part of

Having looked briefly at some of the difficulties that will come to us, let us now see what we shall need to enable us to meet these difficulties. In the first place we shall need faith. People do not get far without faith. It is that which keeps the world moving. It is that which holds society together. It is that which makes business life possible. It is, perhaps, the greatest asset people can possibly have. When the depression was at its worst the thing that was most evident was the lack of faith. People had lost faith in institutions and did not know which way to turn. It is a terrible thing to lose faith either in individuals or in society as a whole. And while humanity at its best is far from perfect, there is enough good in it to warrant some faith on the part of all people. In fact, if we do not have faith we shall be miserable creatures. It is better to have faith in people and in institutions even though we do get disappointed occasionally than not to have faith.

Still another thing that we shall need as we face the new year is courage. The world is no place for the faint heart. We need not expect all sunshine. The shadows will come sometimes and we really enjoy the sunshine more after the cloudy day. If life were the same all the time it would become very monotonous. We have very little sympathy with the sentiment of the popular tune which says, "and the skies are not cloudy all day." The clouds and the rain are just as important in God's plan as are the sunshine and favorable winds.

While there are many things that we shall need to take with us into the new year, there is one idea that is indispensable, namely, the importance of doing our best on all occasions. Prayer is very necessary if we want to get things done. Faith is indispensable for the best results. Courage keys us up for the task, but none of these things will bring the best results unless we resolve to do something. Work is a glorious thing. God works and He expects man to work also. We pity the person who does not like to work. He is in the wrong place. Really he is out of touch with things. He is out of touch with God and is out of touch with this universe in so far as we understand it. God has done His work well and the universe sings His praises. He has set in motion great principles that will help us on to higher and better things, but unless we fall in line and try to do something we will miss our reward. A great many individuals need to learn this lesson. A great many churches are languishing because they have not learned to do things as a church. Too many churches are satisfied to sit and sing themselves away to everlasting bliss when they ought to be going out after folks. In these days when the Annual Conference and all of the institutions of the church are needing money so badly to carry on the work, what an opportunity we do have to start ourselves out on a healthy growth by getting down to some real good work.

As we face the new year we crave for you the best in everything. May this be a good year for every life!

"A MOTHER'S VISION AND INFLUENCE"

The International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, January 5, 1936

By Rev. J. Elwood Carroll

Scripture Lesson—Luke 1 (Printed 1:46-58).

Golden Text—"My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour."—Luke 1:46, 47.

During the year 1936 we shall spend our entire time in studying the New Testament. For the first six months, January through June, we shall study the life and teachings of Jesus as recorded in the Gospel according to Luke. The latter half of the year we shall continue with our study of the New Testament by considering the Acts, Epistles, and Revelation.

The two longest books of the New Testament, the Gospel according to Luke and the Acts of the Apostles, are by the pen of Luke the Physician. Despite the fact that he is the author of these two masterpieces, little is known of his private life. No certain facts are known of his native city, when and where he was converted, nor the cause, place, or time of his death. He is mentioned by name only three times: (1) Paul refers to him as "the beloved physician" in Colossians 4:14; (2) Also designates him as a "fellow-worker" in his letter to Philemon (verse 24); and (3) Finally adds that "only Luke is with me" in Rome near the hour of his martyrdom (II Tim. 4:11). Much is known of Luke, however, from these two works of his pen. He can be definitely followed by the use of the pronouns in the writings. Remember that Luke is the author and then notice his use of "they" and "we" for your cue as to the movements of Luke.

Luke wrote his Gospel after the gospels of Matthew and Mark had appeared, but before that of John. It was written some time after 67 A.D. and before 90, most likely about 80.

Introduction to the Gospel of Luke (vs. 1-4). This is the only personal introduction to a book in the entire Bible except the one found in Acts by the same author. Both books are addressed to the same person, Theophilus. The name of the person to whom these books are addressed is found no other place in the Bible except in these introductions.

In this one sentence—for such is the entire passage found in the first four verses—five fundamental facts are clearly perceived. First, there were certain definitely established truths about Christ which had been accepted and held by the Christians prior to the time Luke set forth his gospel. Secondly, many persons had attempted to set down in writing these truths originally transmitted orally. There is no hint here that the previous writings by others were valueless, false, or forgeries. They were merely incomplete. Thirdly, the earlier writers "were eye witnesses" to the things which they wrote. Luke makes no such claim, for he had not known Jesus in the flesh. Fourth, in the light of these prior writings, Luke attempts to trace more fully the life and teachings of Jesus. Mark had begun with the baptism of Jesus, but Luke takes us back to the annunciation of his coming birth. And fifth, Luke wanted to write to Theophilus in order that the latter might know with certainty the things in which he had been orally instructed.

The Prediction of the Birth of John the Baptist (1:5-25). Here we have the focus point of the ages in the meeting of the Old and New Testaments. Read the last verse of the Old Testament (Malachi 4:6) right on into Luke 1:17.

Annunciation to Mary (1:26-38). So just five months later the Lord reveals the news to Mary that she too is to bear a child.

The Meeting of Mary and Elisabeth (1:39-45). Common interests tend to make for closer relationships and understanding. Mary and Elisabeth bore the same great anticipated joy. They arranged to meet. The story of their meeting is here told. Mary's joy broke forth into a song of praise to God.

The Magnificat (1:46-56). Mary's song is called "The Magnificat" because that is the first word of the hymn in the Latin Vulgate version of the Bible, beginning, "Magnificat anima mea Dominum." Her hymn falls into four divisions, or strophes: vs. 46-48; 49, 50; 51-53, and 54, 55.

v. 46—"My soul" is used to express the deeper, true nature of one's feeling. It is not just what I think, nor wish, nor enjoy, but what moves me to the very depth of my being.

1. 47—"Rejoiced" means to burst forth in vocalized expression of happiness. Mary breathes forth a song of composed rapture while Elisabeth tries to calm her nervous fears. Quite a contrast.

v. 48—"Low estate" signifying the absence of wealth and social standing. This is the same expression used by David in reference to his mother (Ps. 86:16). And Mary has been called "blessed" and so she is, but not divine as the Catholic church has made her.

v. 49—The first strophe spoke of Mary, but now the focus shifts to God. "Mighty" and "holy" are two fundamental attributes of God. He not only has all power (omnipotent), but He is entirely holy. When any person comes to a full realization that the God of the universe is fully powerful and entirely holy, that person has gone a long way in his conception of God.

v. 50—And such a God keeps his mighty power under the control of moral law because He is good. His mercy flows as a result of these two qualities.

vs. 51-53—But His holiness does not control his power in dealing with the wicked. "He hath scattered the proud." He has meted out his reward according to the moral quality of the recipient—the evil prince has been brought low, the humble soul has been exalted. Likewise He has so dealt with the rich and poor.

vs. 54, 55—And Mary confidently puts herself in the hands of such a God, patiently awaiting His blessings to her as a descendant of Abraham.

To complete the chapter, notice the three further divisions: The Birth of John the Baptist, vs. 57-66; the Benedictus of Zacharias, 67-79; and the Childhood of John the Baptist, v. 80.

THE LIQUOR SITUATION SIXTY YEARS AGO

The writer of this article tonight is in some kind of a reminiscent mood, and wants to tell the boys and young men of today what we boys of 60 years ago were up against. Young men and boys of today, you really ought to thank God that it is so well with you; someone to pray for you now, someone to teach you, churches of your own choice to go to, Y. M. C. A., Sunday schools and prayer meetings to go to, nice cars to ride in to the churches, bikes, roller skates to roll you to church. Now you can ride to school in nice buses and cars; you have good clothes to wear, large school houses well heated, radios, phonographs to entertain you, and many other noble things that I could mention. All things I have mentioned are in your favor today. I trust every one of you boys and young men will help me to fight back the demon that cursed us boys of 60 years ago,—liquor, wine, and beer. How I hate them! Young people, remember this: "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." (Daniel 12:3.)

Now I have shown you boys where you stand. Now I want to show you where I stood 60 years ago. The first preacher I ever heard preach was in an old log school house and church, deeded to both, I think. It was near where Bethel church now stands, in Randolph county. (Now I seem to hear somebody say, he sure is from a rough place.) Rough and tough was right 60 years ago. It is much better down in Randolph now, I know (because Brother Bates has been boosting it).

In our immediate settlement I think there must have been 50 illegal distilleries in a space of four miles square. Hogs drinking still slop, men drinking liquor, fighting, swearing; revenue officers' horses being shot from under them; innocent dogs lying about wanting some sweet mash; men throwing iron wedges and rocks at them. I remember one father asking his son if he were not going to a certain shindig that night and the boy told him he didn't think he would go, and his father told him to get him some liquor and go on to the party and try to be like somebody. Young men, your fathers would not tell you that now. But if liquor comes back as it was then it will be bad indeed. I have seen several cases of delirium tremens. I hope you never may. Young men and women, let's keep the Old North State dry, or get it dryer than it is. So let us work and do all we can and pray as Elisha did and say, "Lord, open the eyes of these men that they may see; and the Lord opened their eyes and they saw." Lord, open the eyes of our Congressmen that they may see.

THE ELECT LADIES

Nobody knows who the elect lady was of whom John wrote in his second Epistle. But he said he loved her. I don't suppose the elect ladies of whom I am writing will object if I call them dearly beloved. Some of them have hidden their names in a circle. They belong to Circle No. 3 of Grace church. And they sent me $5.00 as their contribution to the McCulloch Fund. This, of course, will be a credit on the apportionment to Grace church. Another of the elect ladies I know by name although I have never met her. She is Mrs. J. W. Hulin, widow of our brother in the gospel. Out of her "deep poverty," as the Apostle Paul put it, she sends two dollars by the hand of Brother Pritchard. And so I write as did the Beloved Disciple: "The Elder unto the elect ladies . . . . whom I love in the truth; and not I only, but also all they that have known the truth." Yes, we all who are interested in seeing this just obligation met, love you for your thoughtfulness and generosity. You might have done a good many other things with this money. That you choose to give it to this fund is praiseworthy. "The elder unto the elect ladies . . . . whom I love."

Seven dollars isn't much. But it does put us down below the $800 mark for the amount still to be raised. And every dollar sent in reduces the amount just that much more. How soon will it reach the vanishing point? Well, that depends altogether upon the earnestness and willingness of those who have not yet met this obligation. If you will get busy we can get it out of the way in thirty days or less. If you delay or dally, it may be next Conference time before it is reached. But reach it we must and will. And here's how we stand:

Previously reported	$2,529.09
Circle No. 3, Grace Church	5.00
Mrs. J. W. Hulin (Lovejoy Church) ..	2.00
Total to date	$2,536.09

I wonder if the pastors of those churches and charges which have not yet raised their apportionment will help me to help them by sending me on a postal card the name and address of some member at each church who they think will help put this over? It takes some time to write each pastor for such a list of names—time that I do not have to spare. So, brethren, save me that much by sending me the names. But please do it promptly so we can get started on winding up this fund.

C. W. BATES, Chairman.

The Spencers Are Visiting

Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Spencer, the former being pastor of the Granville charge, came through Greensboro last week on their way to Asheville and Weaverville, where they were to visit relatives.

J. H. ALLEN, Treasurer.

Secretary's Note.—This report was audited and found correct by Brothers E. L. Somers and C. J. Roberts, members of our Reidsville church.

It is due Brother Allen to explain why the report did not get in the Journal. As the note says there (MM) Page 69: "The report was delayed until too late for insertion in this year's Journal." The printers waited almost two weeks for the report to come, and then, in order that the Journal might get in the mails ahead of the Christmas rush, at my direction the forms were closed and the Journal put on the press. But the delay is not to be charged to Brother Allen; but rather to those who gave checks that could not be cleared. (And these checks, so I am informed, were in no case preachers' checks.) But Brother Allen either had to send in an incomplete report, which he did not want to do, or wait for the checks to be made good. You will note that he does list some of these "bad" checks.

I suggest that those of you who are interested cut out this report and paste it in your Conference Journal.

C. W. BATES, Secretary.

A NEW ISSUE FOR 1936

Undertakings begun with hope and fervor may after a time seem to become stale. The supply of faith with which we started has dwindled, but because we have publicly pledged ourselves, the task remains. So we carry on the tasks from which the spontaneity is gone, simply because we cannot afford to lay them down.

The world waited long for the coming of the Messiah. "Late in time behold him come." God had been patiently working through the centuries, and the angel song breaks through the skies with all the freshness of a new undertaking.

It is proper that a new year should closely follow Christmas. Christmas introduces new things, a new vision, new hope for new life, and shows us a heavenly world interested in our own.

"For lo! the days are hastening on
By prophet bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes round the age of gold."

"And now abideth faith"—a daily necessity. For our tasks we must depend upon fresh issues of faith. We can no more run our enterprises on the faith we had than we can run a car through 1936 on the gas we put into it in 1935. We must change new faith for the old, based upon new and more elevated grounds as our vision improves and lifts. For those who serve in places of high responsibility, in the gospel ministry, as teachers, for those who have established homes, who are rearing children, for those who have accepted responsibility of any kind, the message of Christmas is a hand beckoning to greater attainments, to higher levels, to a renewal of faith and hope, and to a self-denial which is not self-denial but a striving for the best in sight.

"And ye, beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way
With painful steps and slow,
Look now! for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing:
O rest beside the weary road,
And hear the angels sing." JOANNA BELL.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Our Annual Conference Journal

A casual study of our Conference Journal reveals some interesting facts which we shall leave others to mention. There are some vital statistics which ought to concern us that we want to present in this paragraph.

Of the total of $218,000 raised for all purposes last year, $9,621 was raised for Annual Conference claims, $7,707 was raised for World Service, while the rest went for purely local interests. Or to state it differently, about 4 per cent went to Annual Conference claims and about 3 per cent to World Service. So if any of my readers have been greatly concerned that we give too much to these two budgets and too little to our local interests, they certainly should be comforted by a study of these facts. If the raising of this money were a game of ball, then those who batted for A. C. budgets and those who batted for W. S. budgets never got off the home base. Not much playing; those who never make the first base have a distressingly low batting average. While I thoroughly agree that we must maintain the home base, it would be a mighty poor game that had only a home base. Of course we must keep our church buildings in good repair, we must pay our pastors (None that I know received more than they should receive), we must keep our Sunday schools going the year round, and we surely must support our Children's Home; but if we expect to exist as a denomination we must also support our theological seminary, our missionaries in both the home and the foreign fields, all our general benevolences must be supported, and it is both a privilege and a duty we should share with members of our denomination in other conferences. We must not be content with so small per cent for our Annual Conference and General Conference claims this year.

Charges Which Lose Instead of Gaining Numerically

There are nineteen pastoral charges which report fewer members at the close of last year than was reported the year previous. We know that they represent more than that many churches and we also know some of these losses were not the actual loss sustained last year; many are cumulative. Some pastors simply do not get this part of their report right. Our membershsip statistics is certainly not in a good condition. It must be improved. I seriously doubt that our membership list has been correct in years. But there are churches which do not report a conversion in a year, sometimes in two or three years. That indicates a serious condition; either the church is spiritually dead or there is no chance for membership increase through profession of faith. Where the latter is true, it certainly represents a serious condition, but we do not fault the pastor or people for it. But it is inexcusable for some pastoral charges to go for twelve months and not have a single accession through profession of faith. It just ought not to happen. And we sincerely hope it will not happen this year.

Reporting the Money Raised

I have observed that there is quite a discrepancy between the report in the financial sheet and the report to the Conference Treasurer sometimes. When money is raised for a particular interest it should be sent to the Treasurer, stating it was raised for that particular interest. It is not right to lump the money raised, for instance, for various Annual Conference claims (unless it was raised in a lump), and divide it among the five claims. Our plan is to present one claim at a time, send the money thus raised to the treasurer just as soon as it is raised, and tell him what it was raised for. By this means we can have pastors' reports tally with the Treasurer's report, and no other way.

January-February, Annual Conference Expenses

During these months all churches are to raise this item in the Annual Conference budget. Look up the amount your charge is to raise and divide it among the churches, if you have more than one, and raise the entire amount so there will be no need to refer to this claim again this year. When it is raised send it at once to the Conference Treasurer. This is an order of the Annual Conference; no church has the right to refuse or fail to carry this order out. The conference adopted this plan with the expectation that all our pastors and all our churches would accept the entire amount and raise it 100 per cent in the period it is called for.

The following churches report this claim raised already: Mt. Pleasant church, by Pastor J. W. Braxton; Henderson church, by Pastor Medlin. Who is third in this list?

The following additional pastors report that their churches took Thanksgiving offering for the Home: J. O. Fry, O. C. Loy, G. L. Reynolds, J. D. Cranford, and Aubrey Smith.

Tabernacle Charge, Rev. E. A. Lamb, Pastor

The first quarterly conference of this charge was held at Tabernacle church December 17. There was very good representation of the official membership present. The budgets were accepted as by the churches last year. There was a good attitude towards the work. The pastor is making a good impression and we are expecting a good year on Tabernacle charge.

Mrs. Harris Redding Passes

Mrs. Harris Redding, for many years one of the leading women of Charlotte church on the Richland charge, passed away December 23 from the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Wright, in Greensboro, at the age of seventy-five years. Mrs. Redding is survived by a large family of children, the most of whom, if not all, are active in the work of the church. Her husband, who also was a leading member of Charlotte church, passed to his reward several years ago.

THE INEXHAUSTIBLE RICHES

By Rev. W. A. Ledford

As I ponder the inexhaustible riches of Christ, a feeling comes over me, somewhat like came over the angels, who desire to look into the salvation our Lord Jesus Christ brought to this fallen world. Evidently the angels know enough about that salvation to make them want to know more. Most Christians have learned enough about the riches of Christ to make them hunger and thirst to know more. The best Christians feel somewhat as did Sir Isaac Newton when he exclaimed, "I am but a little child, standing on the shore beyond which is the vast ocean of truth."

All too often, I fear, the poverty and weakness of Christ has been emphasized rather than His riches and strength. Yes, I know He said, "The foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." Preachers have stressed his manger, cross, and tomb, all of which were borrowed, without adding that by these He was making the world infinitely wealthier. As "the Lion of the Tribe of Judah" and "the Strong Son of God," He endured the cross, despising the shame, for the joy that was set before Him. The Scriptures reveal that He was rich in power, goodness, grace, mercy, love and glory, yet was meek and lowly. Our poverty is inescapable but His was voluntary and self-imposed, to make the world rich thereby.

"Imperishable Money" was the title of a pamphlet placed in my hands recently. Immediately I examined it carefully, as it appeared to tell of something new. The kind I had known, if it did not perish between the porch and the altar, disappeared in some other places. Recently the Associated Press quoted one of the leading financiers of the world as saying, "If the present taxes . . . in America are not modified within thirty years there will not be a rich man in America." I am neither pleading for a continuation of the present capitalistic system, nor for Socalism, or any other "ism," but pointing to riches that are both imperishable and inexhaustible. I haven't any ways near reached perfection, but have gone far enough to know that the riches of my Saviour are boundless and unlimited.

A comparison of the various translations of this amazingly rich statement by the Apostle Paul may help us. It will enable us to see how many of the great Bible scholars of the ages have striven to bring out the meaning of Paul. The Authorized and American Standard versions both translate "unsearchable." Moffatt, perhaps, seeing the meaning of inaccessibility in the word "unsearchable," used a nautical figure and translated "fathomless," which seems a poor substitute for unsearchable. You cannot outline one, nor get to the bottom of the other. Personally, I like Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed's translation best, as it seems to bring out better the rich meaning of Paul, who had in mind the "inexhaustible" fullness of the riches of Christ.

It is comforting, consoling, and assuring to know that this inexhaustible wealth is for all mankind. Peter was a long time in getting to where he could see that God was no respecter of persons. The "alls," "whosoevers," "world," "uttermost parts of the earth," all teach this gracious truth; namely, that the Gospel of Christ is for all. The longer I meditate on the wideness of God's mercy, the more I am convinced that the heart of the Eternal is most wonderfully kind. The goodness of God should lead all to repentance.

The responsibility, obligation of preaching the inexhaustible riches of Christ to the Gentile world was sobering and humbling on Paul. It took all the Pharisaism out of him. Rather than boasting of his dignity and achievements, he thought of himself as "the least of the apostles," "less than the least of the saints," and "the chief of sinners." This was quite a contrast to the "more holy than thou" attitude of the other Pharisees. Paul saw that his preaching of the Cross was a stumblingblock to the Jews and foolishness unto the Greeks,—was death unto death to some, and life unto life to others. He exclaimed, "Who is sufficient for these things?" The task of bringing the unsaved to Christ may be baffling, sobering, and bring us in humility before God often, but that is the supreme duty of both ministers and laity.

This encouraging word may be added, namely, that the riches of Christ are inexhaustible, and have never failed to win when given opportunity. I see before me the shipwrecks of faith, closed churches, and men and women who once drank deeply from the fountains of life, who are now feeding on the husks that the world feeds on, when any are given them. The sight reminds me of a good story. A certain minister arose in a certain annual conference of a certain denomination (I use "certain" lest I be misunderstood), and announced in a dramatic way that he was withdrawing from the ministry and membership of that denomination because it was a failure. A giant of that conference, rich in faith and good works, interrupted the eloquent and dramatic brother by saying, "The church is not a failure, but the brother has been a failure in it." Preachers and churches have failed in their handling of the Gospel; but the Gospel, which is synonymous with the inexhaustible riches of Christ, has never failed. Any minister and any church can get sinners to Christ anywhere, if the price is paid.

The question is being asked again and again, "Can Methodism repeat?" Meaning repeat her evangelistic victories of other days, and regain her passion for lost souls. I heard one of the leading evangelistic preachers of all Methodism say last Monday, December 2, "Methodism must repeat, or take defeat." When Methodism humbles herself before God, and the flames of Aldersgate burn again in their souls and on her altars, she will repeat. Not alone repeat, but do greater works in bringing in the Kingdom of God.

Calvary Church Has Splendid New Year's Sermon

Those who braved the snowstorm and came to Calvary church last Sunday morning had the privilege of hearing a splendid sermon by our young brother William Kesmodel, of Baltimore, a student at our Theological Seminary at Westminster, Maryland.

Mrs. Braswell Claimed by Death

Our church has lost another staunch friend in the person of Mrs. Mamie Braswell in Whitakers, whose funeral was held on last Saturday. Mrs. Braswell belonged to a family who for many years have been strong supporters of our church in the eastern part of the state.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

SIGNS OF GROWING BROTHERHOOD

Christian Endeavor Topic For Sunday, January 12, 1936

By MRS. EUGENE A. LAMB

Scripture Lesson: 1 John 2:9-11; 3:17, 18.

Call to Worship: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard. That went timent upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's head: That went down to the skirts of his garments; as the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: For there the Lord commanded the blessings, even life for evermore."

Prayer or Sentence Prayers: Thank God (1) for the Christ who came to establish a human brotherhood; (2) for God, who is our Father; (3) for every step of progress in the building of a world-wide brotherhood of man. Ask God (1) to help us to rid the church of those things which hinder the unity of God's people; (2) to help us to manifest the fruit of the Spirit in our daily lives; (3) to grant that Christ's prayer for the unity of His followers might be realized in our generation.

Leader's Talk: Our lesson is taken tonight from the book of John, who is said to be preeminently the apostle of love. It is fitting that our lesson on Christian brotherhood should be taken from one of his letters. John declares that the professing Christian who sees his brother in need and does not help to the extent of his ability is a stranger to the love of God. That is strong language. He implies that every Christian becomes a temple for the indwelling love of God. I am sure that all of us will agree that if the love of God really dwells in our hearts, it will be manifest to the needy, to the worldling and to our brethren in Christ.

Discussing the Topic.

1. Does unbelief play any part in building the growth of Christian brotherhood?

There is no question but what unbelief is one of the major hindrances in the way of Christian unity. Can two walk together except they be agreed? Can there ever be unity of spirit unless there first be unity of faith? Christ's entire public ministry is summed up in the words of John's Gospel: "Many other signs therefore did Jesus in the presence of the disciples, which are not written in this book: but these are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye may have life in his name." There can be no real Christian unity without faith in Jesus Christ as the only begotten Son of God and our Saviour.

2. Have pride and jealousy played any part in hindering the growth of Christian brotherhood?

This has been true in the growth of vast ecclesiastical organizations, where pomp, power and ceremony have helped to turn the heads of men. But it is equally true in local congregations of our churches today, to our sorrow. A jealous individual can almost wreck the work of the local congregation. All love for self needs to be replaced by a wholehearted, self-giving love for Christ. The highest and most distinctive feature of the divine personality is self-giving love. If our chief objective as Christians is to become like the Heavenly Father, there dare be no self-love, self-pride or jealousy in our hearts. Disunity and unbrotherliness are caused by our turning away from this supreme objective for Christians.

3. Do you regard the prevailing desire for unity as a good indication?

There are some definite indications of progress toward Christian unity. One of these, most evident, is the growing desire for unity among Christ's followers. Remember that Christian unity is a spiritual fellowship of believers.

4. A story is told of a dingy sign on the other side of the bridge that spans the Ohio at Cincinnati. It says: "Processions in crossing this bridge, must break step." That was all, but it was imperative and it was a law! The procession must break step. The power of concerted action is immense. Every bit of power at command can so be brought to bear at one point with a force beyond any words to express.

A LETTER THAT IS GREATLY APPRECIATED

(This letter is so greatly appreciated by us that we are passing it on to our readers. We certainly thank our good brother for his generous comments as well as the gift. For the sake of keeping history straight we would say that the Editor does not receive any salary at all for his services, the amount appropriated by the Conference being only for expenses.—Ed. Comments.)

Dear Bro. Pritchard:

As I read the Methodist Protestant Herald from week to week I can only note the high plane of the paper, especially of the editorials, they are so timely and interesting. So instructive, and so written that I feel that those of our readers that have not had the school advantages that others of us have had can read and understand.

We usually neglect to say those words of appreciation which should be said. So I take this time to thank you for your efforts to help make possible a paper for our conference. It looked to me as if our paper would be only a leaflet if even that much, before you came to the rescue. I, again say thank you, and enclosed you will find check for $2.00 as a personal donation to add to your small salary that you receive from the paper.

With best wishes to you and Mrs. Pritchard, I am,

Sincerely yours,
SEYMOUR R. STAFFORD.

WHY WE DO NOT LIKE TO DESTROY CHURCH REPORTS

This week we have had some requests to cancel reports that were crowded out in our last issue. But it costs money to set type and it is a pity to destroy it simply because a few things are out of date.

FROM THOMASVILLE TO CLEVELAND

Moving was a new experience for us. But they tell me that it is a part of the preacher's life, so we might as well adapt ourselves to it and learn the art.

We spent five and one-half happy and, I trust, successful years with the people of First church, Thomasville. It was a pleasure to work with the good people there and I have never worked with a people who treated me more kindly. There will always be a warm place in my heart for them, and I am praying for them a successful year with their new pastor.

On Monday evening before we moved, the Woman's Auxiliary of First church sponsored a miscellaneous shower which brought in wearing apparel for the whole family as well as dishes and other useful articles. We sincerely appreciate the value of all these gifts, but more than that we appreciate the spirit which prompted the giving.

On Tuesday, November 19, Mr. J. M. Deviney and Mr. P. P. Richards moved Brother Troxler to Glen Raven and came back by Thomasville and moved us up here. Due to the fact that it was so late when the truck was loaded, we decided that it would be better for the family to wait until Wednesday to come. I have learned that we missed a big supper and a warm reception which awaited us Tuesday night. I was sorry to miss that, but when we arrived late Wednesday evening a large number of people came in and helped us get "set up" and the women cooked supper again.

Now we are favorably located and have been very kindly received. The parsonage is splendid, and all the furniture needed which we did not have the people have supplied. When we came we found milk, butter, flour, meal, sugar, and fresh meat. And one man handed me a $5 bill! From that time the people have not ceased to bring us useful things for the family. It would take too much space to mention all the names of those who gave, but we are very grateful to all of them.

I have been around to all of the churches and found encouraging congregations. The first quarterly conference was held Saturday, December 7, at 2 o'clock. All of the churches were represented and reports indicated a good beginning for the conference year. Especially was I impressed with the financial beginning. I have been here two and one-half weeks and I have received almost one month's salary, lacking only $12.99.

T. G. MADISON.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

Mrs. W. E. Grove's S. S. Class, South Zanesville, Ohio, individual Christmas packages.

There are just a few more items that must be left over till next week. Our comments in the main must also be omitted because of the length of this report.

We had a most wonderful Christmas with plenty of fruits, candies and cakes. The children were all happy and it seems to last. We wish all of you who helped with this Christmas could have seen them around the Christmas tree on Christmas Eve. More next week.

We thank you with all our hearts. The dear Lord bless every one of you.

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mt. Hermon Church.—Our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, filled his regular appointment Sunday, December 15, at 11 o'clock. The Scripture reading was taken from Luke 2:9-20. He had a special service for the children. The topic was, "Christmas Is the Time for Friendliness." After the service for the children he brought a very inspiring message on the topic, "What Should Christmas Mean in 1935?"

Our pastor has sent to every member on the Mt. Hermon charge his personal greetings at this season of the year. In this letter he also sent a statement of the budget for the conference year 1935-36 with a financial pledge card.

Special young people's services will be observed at Mt. Hermon on the third Sunday in January and there will be services every night following the third Sunday in connection with Young People's Day.

We are planning to have a Christmas program and tree for Sunday school December 24, which is Christmas eve.

Our superintendent, Mr. L. P. Holt, has sponsored a special drive to get new members for Sunday school. We are glad to note that our attendance is increasing.

On the last Friday in November the county Christian Endeavor Union met at Mt. Hermon. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll was the speaker for the evening. Every one enjoyed the message that he brought to us. There were around two or there hundred members of Christian Endeavor present, with around ten churches represented. REPORTER.

Friendship Church, Fallston Charge.—At our regular church services Sunday morning we had a very good crowd present in spite of bad weather and the fact that our services are being held in the schoolhouse during the construction of our new church. Brother Fogleman delivered a hope-inspiring sermon on the subject, "The Fullness of Time." At this service two new members, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wright, were received by letter. We welcome these into our church.

The Woman's Auxiliary met Monday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. F. B. Long. A Christmas program was led by Mrs. J. R. Lackey. The women are collecting canned fruit and coupons to be sent to the Children's Home.

Work is progressing rapidly on our new church and we are hoping to have our next third Sunday service in the new building.

Two members of our church have recently passed to their reward, Mrs. Minnie Parker, of Maiden, who was the only sister of Mr. Clarence Stamey, and the other was Mr. James Gladden, of Flay. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved families.

Mrs. Dennis Wright, of near Lincolnton, is spending some time in this community visiting relatives. Although Mrs. Wright has been in bed helpless with rheumatism for a decade or longer, she has retained such a cheerful disposition that a visit with her is a true inspiration.

Among our young people returning for the holidays are Miss Jessie Baxter, of Rutherford College; Miss Cerelda Lackey and Furman Wright, of High Point College; Misses Vatha Wright and Doyle Martin, of Cecil's Business College; and Misses Clara and Alma Wright, of Asheville Normal.

Mr. Loy Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wright, has just completed a course in the Spencer Jewelry Shop and has opened a repair shop here in Fallston.

Mrs. Cletus Huss and daughter, Coleen, of near Lincolnton, visited relatives here last week. NATHALEE LACKEY, Reporter.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We are very busy now with our Christmas program. We have succeeded in getting the Christmas spirit stirred up, inasmuch as we will have our program Tuesday night, December 24. Our program consists of recitations, small exercises, a playlet, a hymn pantomime. The Sunday school will be treated. We hope to have our pastor with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Devett Bailey's home was blessed by the arrival of a little son December 1.

Merry Christmas to you all and a grand, successful New Year.

BERTHA BOGER, Reporter.

Efland, Orange Charge.—As a member remarked Sunday morning, Bro. Williams' message gave us the real Christmas spirit. After reading a part of the Christmas story, he brought out in a very impressive way that a Savior was born for each one of us. After hearing a message like this, it causes us to think more of Him who gave His life for us and causes us to want to give more for Him.

"The Christmas Vision," the cantata sung by a group of people of the Hawfields Presbyterian church and the churches of Efland, was greatly enjoyed on Sunday evening. Rev. N. N. Flemming, pastor of the Hawfields and the Efland Presbyterian churches, presented the group. The soloists were Mrs. N. N. Flemming, soprano; Miss Maxine Efland and Mrs. R. B. Studiebaker, alto; Mr. John Bradley, tenor; and Mr. Linwood Albright, bass. This group of about 30 voices will sing at the Hawfields church on the fourth Sunday evening. "Oh, Holy Night" was played as a violin solo by Miss Madge Hobgood. Mrs. Flemming directed the cantata and Miss Margaret Efland played the piano accompaniment.

On Sunday, the 22nd, the young ladies' and young men's classes will visit the county home, taking gifts for each member of the home and will sing for them. This has become an annual custom sponsored by Mrs. J. M. Dunn, teacher of the young ladies' class. As evidence of Santa Claus' pre-Christmas visit, our pastor is driving a new V-8 Ford.

Mrs. Rebecca Pratt and Mr. E. D. Thompson, two of our older members, have been right sick but are thought to be improving. We hope if it be consistent with His will that they soon recover.

Cards have been received here announcing the birth of a daughter, Patsy Battle, to Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Battle Moore, of Whitakers, N. C. Mrs. Moore was formerly Miss Bertie D. Crutchfield, of this place, and still holds her membership here.

Circle No. 3 entertained at the home of Miss Mable Sykes on the evening of the 12th honoring Mrs. Parker Hall, who before her marriage on December 5 was Miss Margaret Brown, daughter of Mrs. E. S. Brown, of Efland.

Friendship Station.—We are happy to be back with this good people for another year. This is the beginning of our eighth year of service in their midst. And with the beginning of this year we find renewed evidence of their appreciation as expressed in a "bumptous" pounding just administered to us.

One very striking evidence of progress is that factions that once existed have disappeared and peace and harmony prevail. After all these years of acquaintance, we wonder if there is a better people anywhere.

Our first quarterly conference is now history and we are looking foryard to a good year.

We are delighted to have by us our good brother, C. G. Isley, who is making wonderful progress already at our Albemarle church. We are told that congregations are more than doubled since his pastorate began.

W. D. REED.

Midland, Midland Charge.—We sure were glad to get our pastor back again. He has done great work both in our church and community. Mrs. Trolinger has helped the Ladies' Aid Society. We could hardly give her up. She helps us plan what we can do to raise money. The Ladies' Aid has done a great deal of good. They have their meeting on Monday night after the second Sunday. They also gave an oyster supper Friday night, December 13, at Midland schoolhouse. They made good. We had Rev. D. I. Garner, of Concord, and Rev. Earl A. Cook, of Roberta, eat oysters with us. We sure did enjoy having them. We also have a Midland prayer band. On Wednesday night we have it at the church, and Friday night we have it in the homes around in our community. We have wonderful meetings. Come and be with us.

Moriah.—We have planned an interesting musical program to be given in our church on Sunday night, December 22, this program to include our recently organized Junior Choir. It is with great pleasure that we look forward to the expected visit of our pastor, the Rev. Mr. Howard, during the coming holidays, and we sincerely appreciate the good work that the Rev. Mr. Strickland is doing among us in Mr. Howard's absence.

Our first quarterly conference was held at the church Sunday afternoon, December 8. The Woman's Auxiliary will hold its regular meeting on the first Thursday of the new year with Mrs. B. H. Kimrey at her home. At the Thanksgiving we had a pie supper. The two classes participating cleared $25, which is to be used to help paint the church. The Young People's Bible Class is planning a Christmas party on Monday of Christmas week and their monthly class meeting date is the first Thursday night in January.

Mr. Dwain Moser, one of our young members, met with a painful auto accident early Sunday morning. No bones were broken, he was badly cut and bruised about the head and shoulders. He was taken to the Clinic hospital in Greensboro where he was resting fairly well Sunday evening. Join us in hoping and praying for his speedy recovery.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. L. Grant, filled his first appointment here the second Sunday at 11 o'clock. We enjoyed his sermon very much, his text being "For the people had a mind to work," taken from the fourth chapter of Nehemiah and part of the sixth verse.

We are glad to report that our Sunday school and Christian Endeavor are moving along nicely. We are planning to have a Christmas tree and program Christmas eve.

One of our members, Mrs. Lula Owen, passed away at her home December 10 after a brief illness of pneumonia. She is survived by her husband and six small children. Funeral services were conducted by Revs. C. L. Grant and E. A. Bingham, and Revs. Pickler and Huff, of the Baptist church. Burial took place at Taylor's Grove Baptist church.

We extend to the family our sympathy in this time of sorrow.

Matthew's Chapel, Greensville Charge.—Everything is moving on nicely here. We are looking forward to a prosperous year with our new pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan.

Pastor Morgan is not a stranger to our folks, since he has served this charge once before for four years. Everyone is pleased with him, as this is shown by the large number that have been attending our services since his arrival. We must thank Dr. Andrews for sending him to us. He knew exactly the man we needed.

Rev. Eugene Lamb was our pastor last year. We enjoyed having him with us and we regret his leaving, but our best wishes go with him to his new field of labor.

Pastor Morgan has filled all appointments here and the congregations were very highly pleased with his messages.

The first quarterly conference was held at the parsonage. Business was transacted in a fine spirit of co-operation. We enjoyed the evening with pastor and family.

Our auxiliary is doing fine work. The monthly meetings have been held regularly since its organization, and much interest is being shown.

We have given an oyster supper and minstrel which was a success. We are planning to remodel our church sometime in the future, which will add much to the appearance and convenience of our church and Sunday school. We trust our plans can be worked cut.

We are planning a Christmas tree and program for the evening of December 25 at 7:30 o'clock. Folks, come!

Sunday school is doing very well. We feel we have no right to complain, but we would feel much better about it if every man, woman, and child in our community would come out on Sunday morning for Sunday school. What a wonderful school we would have. How can we interest them? is the question. LOTTIE EDWARDS, Reporter.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey, held his regular appointment at Clark's Chapel on the second Sunday night and gave us a splendid sermon, as usual.

The first quarterly meeting on this charge was held at Mt. Zion on November 29 with a good representation from all the churches.

On last Wednesday afternoon the regular monthly meeting of our Ladies' Aid Society was held at Clark's Chapel, with the ladies of the Weaverville auxiliary meeting with us. A social hour was enjoyed at the close of the program. We all enjoyed having these ladies meet with us, and appreciate the fellowship and co-operation between these churches.

We are now preparing our Christmas program, which will be given during Christmas week. The exact date hasn't been decided on yet. But we are rehearsing a play for the little folks and a pageant for the larger ones. We are also preparing to have a Christmas tree and treat. Everybody is cordially invited.

Oak Grove, Cleveland.—First I will give a few details of Rev. R. S. Troxler's work the two years he was on this charge. When Rev. Mr. Troxler came to this work three of the churches were in bad condition, needing a lot of repairing done. After talking with the members of Pleasant Hill and Kistlers, it was decided to put these two churches together. The people worked hard and pulled together until they had a new brick veneered church on a public highway between Lawndale and Caesar. Rev. Mr. Troxler engineered this work well. In a few months Oak Grove caught afire, then the insurance company condemned the flue, this being in February. No more fire could be had for services, which made it very unpleasant. Besides, the roof of the church was ready to blow down if a storm happened that way. A meeting was called to vote for a new church at this place and carried. Then pledges were secured and from this a new church was started almost on the old site. It is of brick veneer type, neat in appearance, and something we should all feel proud of. While on this work Rev. Mr. Troxler added a good number of members to the various churches. A few of the new members are very active workers. The Sunday school increased about 50 per cent. A real live Christian Endeavor Society was organized also three woman's auxiliaries on this work. This was the first missionary work ever done by the women of these churches. They are really enjoying the work and accomplishing a great deal on different phases of the work.

The fourth quarterly conference met at Oak Grove the fourth Sunday in October. A good number of the official members was present. All churches paid out on pastor's salary, some on all other claims. Rev. Mr. Troxler resigned at this meeting. He was succeeded by Rev. T. G. Madison, who came to us highly recommended. Rev. Mr. Troxler really did four years' work in two. We regretted very much to lose these good people from our midst. We trust they have more pleasant work in their new field.

Our first quarterly conference met at Kistlers Union on Saturday, December 7. A good number of official members was present, much interest was shown. Around $100 had been paid on pastor's salary. Fifty-one dollars' worth of furniture was added to the parsonage at the beginning of the new conference year.

Rev. Mr. Madison has brought us two very inspiring sermons since coming to our work.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. T. G. Madison Thursday of this week.

Oak Grove Sunday school will have a Christmas tree and a short program on next Monday night, December 23.

Ebenezer, Greensville Charge.—It was with regret we gave up our pastor, Rev. Eugene Lamb. Although his stay with us was brief. he had endeared himself to this people. We hope for him a pleasant year in his new field of labor.

Surely conference was so good to us in sending one of our former pastors, Rev. J. M. Morgan, to us. It is a real joy to welcome him and family in our midst. He has filled every appointment and has brought us very helpful and inspiring messages. We trust that the people will co-operate and work with him to make this year one of the most successful ever known on Greensville charge. Our Sunday school is moving on, but is not what we would like for it to be. We are working on our Christmas program which will be given December 28 if no other announcement is made.

Wishing every reader of the Herald a very happy Christmas, and remember us when you pray. MRS. F. A. PEARSON.

Alamance Charge.—Each church on this charge is planning to observe Christmas with special services. Sapling Ridge and Center will hold their services in connection with the Sunday school next Sunday. Bethel and Rock Creek will hold theirs on Monday and Tuesday evenings, December 23 and 24, at 7 o'clock.

The Woman's Auxiliary has not been functioning at Center for a number of years. Just recently it was reorganized with Mrs. Leanna Braxton president. We are expecting this organization to do a splendid work during this conference year with the leadership of Mrs. Braxton. At the other three churches the women hold the meetings regularly.

Our first quarterly conference was well attended, all churches being represented except Rock Creek. The main address was made by Miss Marcie Foust, delegate to the last Annual Conference. This talented young lady delivered a very inspiring address, stressing the importance of evangelism and adopting a plan for raising the finances.

A custom which has prevailed on this charge for many years was broken when the quarterly conference, on motion by Brother C. C. Richardson, voted to continue the afternoon worship services during the winter months. Brother J. W. Whitehead was elected secretary unanimously for the 43rd successive year. A fine record for this splendid Christian man.

Mr. Frank Shaw recently put five gallons of gasoline in the pastor's Ford. He has our thanks.

Lola Margaret Perry, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danner Perry, is very ill in a Greensboro hospital where she was operated on for appendicitis. Others of our number are sick in their homes. We hope they will soon be better.

Canaan, North Davidson Charge.—The new pastor, Mr. Neese, and family have been in our community for about three weeks, moving on Wednesday before Thanksgiving. The members here feel they have a man of great ability, both in religious work and sociality. He filled his appointment here the first Sunday at 11 o'clock with a good crowd present, also third Sunday night, making two appointments since being here. Everybody seems to be thrilled to know that the future looks prosperous as they enter in another year's work, both spiritually and financially. Let's pray that this be one of our best years' work.

The folks here are looking forward to a Christmas entertainment on Wednesday night, December 25. Hope to have all other churches come join us on this occasion.

The Ladies' Aid met with Mrs. Harvey Berrier this month with 13 members present. Still working on old project, no new business coming up. Hope to complete this work in near future so the way will be clear for other work in store for us.

We are sorry to learn that Miss Berta Pitts is in the hospital at this time. Hope she will soon be back at home with her father and friends. May the Lord bless and comfort His children in time of distress.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—When the conference reported our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, was leaving us, it saddened our hearts very much. He is gone but not forgotten. We pray for him much success in his new field.

We welcome our new pastor, Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D. He has filled two appointments at our church. If we co-operate with him there will be much done in the year of 1936 for the uplift of the Kingdom of God.

Mr. E. B. Pair, the class leader, held prayer service first Sunday morning, reading from I Corinthians 13, making an inspiring talk on "Faith, Hope, and Charity." Miss Virginia Hawkins presided over the service Sunday morning. Misses Bettie Mae Shaw, Dorothy Green, and Maragrette Pittard had splendid papers written on "The Invitation of the Church." We were glad to have worship at this service Rev. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. B. Thompson and Mr. Carisles.

Rev. Mr. Leo Pittard, we might say "our boy" because he went out from our church, was with us not so long ago. He said he wanted us to sing "Smiles" and smile. We are now smiling in a big way. We are planning to put Sunday school rooms on our church.

We were sorry to lose our vice president, Mrs. R. L. Vickery, of the Woman's Auxiliary. Hoping her much success in her new field and labor.

We are planning for a Christmas program and tree.

Early on Thursday morning, December 12, 1935, an angel took little Barbara Ann Hawkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Hawkins, age three years, 12 days, to her heavenly flight. When the world was wrapped in darkness her little soul was wrapped in light 'Tis sad for father, mother, sisters and brothers not to hear her little voice singing. "Yes, Jesus loves me, for the Bible tells me so." Not only did Jesus love her, for the many and beautiful floral offerings shows she was greatly loved here on earth. But she is "Safe in the arms of Jesus,

Safe on His gentle breast;
There by His love o'ershadowed,
Sweetly her little soul shall rest."

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—The Christmas season is rapidly approaching. I suppose that all churches are making preparations for services for the occasion. Let us remember the true meaning of this holy day, which is the anniversary of the birth of our Savior; and may each one who bears the name of Christ be careful to keep Christ in Christmas.

The services for Christmas will be held at Shiloh next Sunday night at 7 o'clock. The program this year will be given by the Primary department of the Sunday school Every member of the Sunday school is to receive a treat next Sunday at the Sunday school hour.

Although the weather was rather unfavorable last Sunday, our attendance was 232. Our pastor filled his regular appointment and preached a very forceful sermon from the text, Luke 1:78, 79.

The regular monthly prayer meeting will be conducted next Sunday at 11 o'clock by Mrs. N. L. Evans, Mrs. Ray Leatherman, and Miss Mabel Berrier.

Since there will not be a paper printed Christmas week, let me take this opportunity to wish all of the Herald readers a very merry Christmas, one that will be worthwhile to someone who needs help or encouragement or cheer. But, above all, keep Christ in Christmas.

Welch Memorial, High Point.—For the past few weeks the Baraca Class has been in the headlines but now the Christian Endeavor Society has come to the front. We have a most active society at Welch, as you can see from the following statements.

Last week the city union held its mass meeting at Rankin Memorial church. The Welch society had between 30 and 40 members present. They won the award shield for the third consecutive time, making it a permanent trophy. The society led its nearest competitor by almost 500 points. This shield is the second one that Welch has won permanently in the past two years.

Thursday night the society will hold its regular monthly prayer service at the Guilford County Sanitarium. Sunday afternoon, December 22, at 2:30 p. m., the society will hold its regular monthly service at the Sandy Ridge convict camp. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Vuncannon will be the leaders.

The society's annual Christmas program will be given Sunday evening, December 22, at 7:30 p. m., in the church auditorium. This year the program will be in the form of a short Christmas play depicting the nativity.

Monday evening, December 23, at 7:03 p. m., the children of the Sunday school will give a short program which will be followed by the distribution of presents off the Christmas tree. But best of all for the kiddies, Santa Claus will be there in person to supervise the giving out of the presents.

North Davidson Charge.—On November 26 we bade good-bye to our many friends on Spring Church charge and turned our eyes toward Canaan, North Davidson, our new home. It is hard to say good-bye to friends one has known and worked with for four years, friends who have proved themselves to be friends in deed and in truth. There will always be a warm spot in our hearts for you folks down there. It was a pleasure for this writer to work with the ladies in their auxiliary activities, and we will watch the paper with interest to keep up with the good work we are expecting you folks to carry on under the leadership of Rev. and Mrs. Curry.

I said it was hard to say good-bye to old friends and now since we had to say good-bye to them we are happy to have the privilege of making new ones up here on North Davidson charge. We arrived here about 11 o'clock on Wednesday, November 27, after spending the previous night in Haw River. Upon arriving at the parsonage we were invited out to Mrs. Clara Smith's nearby where a warm, sumptuous dinner awaited us. Those of you who have gone to a new place and met with an experience like this know just how much we appreciated Mrs. Smith's kindness. At this time we met Mrs. Mack Smith, president of Canaan's Aid Society. Mr. Bailey, thinking it might be cold weather when we reached the parsonage, had brought us a load of wood, and Mr. Clodfelter, not wanting Mr. Bailey to get ahead of him, brought us another load in a few days. Mr. Carl Clodfelter and Mr. Butner helped Mr. Neese with the heavy work of "setting up housekeeping" which was very much appreciated. Different members have given provisions that have been very helpful. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clodfelter have remembered us more than once with good eats. Mr. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Venable, Mrs. W. D. Payne, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. Herman Haynes have helped to cut our grocery bill. I am going to wait and let Mr. Neese report the big thing that happened yesterday. The Canaan Ladies' Aid gave us five window shades last week for the living room. The charge placed a nice new Peggy Washington range in the kitchen. The men took the initiative in buying the range. Men, we thank you for your thoughtfulness. They realized a stove was needed if there was any cooking and eating to be done. Now just a few words about the work of the ladies and young people. On inquiry we found that we have on this charge three Ladies' Aids, one auxiliary, one Sunshine circle, four Sunday schools, and three of the churches have C. E. societies. Our West End church in Thomasville has three C. E. societies, so that makes five for the work. We hope in the near future to organize one here at Canaan.

We have met with the Canaan and Spring Hill ladies in their Aid meetings and have found at both places a band of interested women working and planning how to better improve their churches and further the work of the Kingdom here on earth.

This week we expect to meet with the Mt. Pleasant ladies in their auxiliary meeting and also the West End ladies in their Christmas aid meeting. We are hoping and praying that this may be a great year on this charge. We hope we may be able to help the ladies in their great undertakings.

Three of the churches are preparing for a Christmas program and tree. We have found the people here to be kind and appreciative and anxious to be of service. We know we are going to like here just fine. In fact we already begin to feel at home.

Chapel Hill, Davidson Charge.—Rev. C. L. Grant preached a good sermon yesterday on the subject of prayer. Everyone seemed to enjoy it very much. On account of bad roads there were not so many present. But we look for our pastor whether the roads are bad or not, so let the people come out to hear the gospel regardless of the weather.

We have Sunday school at 10 o'clock. Brother Grant made a good talk on the Sunday school lesson.

May this be a year when many souls may be saved and when church members may get on a higher plane of Christian living. We have prayer meeting the first Sunday in each month. Let everybody come out, for it will do them good.

We were indeed sorry to give up Rev. E. A. Bingham and his family. It was always a pleasure to have them in our homes as well as the church. We welcome them back any time.

We also welcome Brother Grant and hope he may have great success. We were glad to have them for dinner last Sunday.

Graham.—We have started the new conference year with a fine spirit of co-operation which we are hoping will continue and accomplish much this year.

Our pastor is bringing some fine messages. Last Sunday morning he spoke on "The Bible."

Mr. and Mrs. Don Holt entertained the teachers and officers of the Sunday school last Thursday evening at "Mammy's Coffee Shop." A delicious course dinner was served the 21 teachers and officers and our pastor, Rev. H. F. Surratt. After the dinner a few minutes were taken to plan a Christmas party.

On Friday evening, December 20, there will be a Christmas party at the hut. Mrs. S. S. Holt is in charge of the program. An evening of fun for all ages is being planned. Each Sunday school class will put on a stunt.

A Christmas cantata, "The Christmas Vision," will be given by the choir next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Surratt is feeling much better.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Pugh were welcomed into our membership last Sunday. We are happy to have them in the church.

Best Christmas wishes to all our pastors and people. REPORTER.

Lincolnton.—With the usual Christmas rush coming on we are very busy at Lincolnton. Mrs. J. R. Anderson, Mrs. Cass Leonard, and Mrs. O. G. Carpenter are directing a beautiful Christmas pageant to be presented Christmas night. Mrs. Gordon has charge of the children. The program they have planned is filled with the true Christmas spirit and we are sure that it will be well worth our time.

Our Sunday school is still following our motto, "Onward and Upward." Our attendance and offering is exceptionally good. We have set our goal at 200 and are working toward it. Our Sunday school superintendent and pastor and their wives have promised us a special song when we get 200 in Sunday school. We are all very anxious for this treat.

Our Ladies' Aid Society is still working. They have changed the time of meeting to Saturday afternoon so more of the ladies can attend.

There is still a good interest in both the Junior and Senior Christian Endeavor. The young people are glad that our pastor, Mr. Anderson, can meet with them every Sunday night now since Lincolnton has been made a station. We are planning to buy a piano for the C. E. room.

May we all think more of Christ during His birthday season and work more for Him in the new year.

Asheville. — A Happy New Year to All. Christmas has come and gone for another year and before us all lies 365 brand new days. We may make of them what we will. God grant that we live each of them as if Christ were right beside us. If we take this thought with us we will do everything we have to do a little better; we will be more careful of what we say and at the end of the year we will truly be able to say that it has been the best year we have ever had.

Christmas day brought a note of sadness to the members of the Asheville church. Mrs. J. W. Boling, who has been ill for only a short while, passed on Christmas night. Rev. J. S. Williams and Rev. Homer Casto conducted the funeral on Friday morning. She is survived by her husband, one son and one daughter. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to this family in their great sorrow.

We have had quite a lot of colds among our members. Mrs. H. L. Hanner has been pretty sick with the flu. Miss Betty Marlowe is still on the sick list. Mr. J. O. Barrett was ill Christmas week. Mrs. C. C. McNeill was reported not so well last week. We pray God's blessings on all, that they may speedily be restored to health.

I was unable to attend the Christmas program and tree, but understand it was a huge success. The program, under the direction of Mrs. Robey Wilson, Mrs. E. A. Bolick and the Misses Floye Barrett and Hilda Brownlow was good, considering that a number of the children could not attend because of illness.

Our attendance has not been as good as usual lately because of weather conditions and illness among our members. We shall be glad when all are able to return. M. L. B.

Siler City Church.—The happy Christmas holidays are a thing of the past. The cold wave and snow has kept the most of us sitting by our fireside, but we trust every Herald reader has had an enjoyable Christmas with nothing to mar their happiness.

Our pastor has filled all appointments but one and has delivered some splendid messages. He has also been attending our midweek prayer services most of the time. The first quarterly conference was held in the Siler City church on Wednesday night, December 11 with a large delegation from each church present. Dr. Andrews was present and held the audience spellbound with another one of his good sermons. He also presided over the conference. Mrs. E. D. Woody was reelected secretary, she having served for several years in this capacity. Each church had a very good report for the first conference and seemed enthusiastic over the year's work just in front of them. Anyway, it will be just what each of us makes it. We were very glad Dr. Andrews could be with us in this conference. We look forward to his yearly visit.

Our Christmas exercise was held the fourth Sunday night. The snow and severe cold weather kept many away that otherwise would have been there. The program consisted of Christmas carols and recitations, a Christmas story told by Miss Maxine Dark, a pantomime, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," by seven girls, and a tableau of the shepherds. Miss Sallie Smith and Mrs. I. H. Ellington deserve much credit for this splendid program. We are sorry our pastor could not be present owing to the inclement weather.

Our Auxiliary met in the Philathea room just after Sunday school the fourth Sunday morning, with ten members present. The president, Mrs. T. L. Smith, presided. Circle No. 1, Mrs. B. E. Fox, chairman, had charge of the program for this meeting, and an interesting Christmas program was presented. An outstanding feature of the program was a very impressive Christmas story read by Mrs. "Rusty" Williams, a visitor. Other stories were read telling how Christmas is spent in our foreign fields and at Dillonvale. Circle No. 2 will have charge of the program for the January meeting.

Circle No. 1 met with Mrs. W. H. Ross at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. L. Smith, for the December meeting. Ten members and two visitors, Mrs. Will Hanner of Liberty, and Mrs. "Rusty" Williams, "City," were present. A delicious three-course dinner was served, after which "Joy to the World" was sung with Mrs. Williams at the piano. The story of the Christ-child was read by the chairman, and prayer offered by Mrs. Emma B. Siler. Old and new business was transacted. An auction sale was held which gave much merriment and netted a neat sum. The Question Box, of the Missionary Record, was discussed, then each member exchanged gifts from the names drawn at the November meeting. These gifts were delivered to us from a beautifully decorated tree. This is a yearly event of the circle, and one of the best meetings of the year. After a "Merry Christmas" to all, we adjourned, to meet with Mrs. Hattie Stout and Mrs. Williams as joint hostesses at our January meeting. Circle No. 2 met with Miss Clata F. Andrew for the December meeting. We do not have the data for this meeting, but are convinced it was a good meeting.

Mrs. J. B. Turner and children, of Lexington, N. C., are spending some time with her sister, Miss Clata F. Andrew.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wright and children spent Christmas with relatives in Charlotte.

With many good wishes for a happy and prosperous new year to all Herald readers.

Mebane.—A real Christmas celebration was enjoyed at Mebane church by the pastor and his wife, as well as the people.

The church itself received a Christmas gift of 105 new Methodist Hymnals, paid for in cash. They were used for the first time Christmas Sunday morning. Resident and out-of-town members responded liberally to the appeal for the purchase of books in memory or honor of loved ones. Book plates inside of the front covers will indicate the donors as well as the donees. Their names will also be recorded as a permanent record on the back pages of the church register.

The occupants of the parsonage were the recipients of almost innumerable gifts. This giving began after prayer meeeting on December 11, when a heavily laden cardboard carton of edibles was presented to the pastor after the service. It was a heavy load for two men to carry from the church to the parsonage. Other good things were added by those unable to be present at the appointed time, including a load of wood.

Many of the Sunday school workers and pupils were made happy by the decision to have an old-fashioned Christmas tree and treat for the younger children. This occurred on Monday night of Christmas week, following a simple White Gift for the King service. Scores of gifts were tied to a large and beautiful pine tree, already attractively decorated with electric lights and other trimmings. At the opportune time, old Santa Claus appeared and made the acquaintance of many of the children, and then proceeded to distribute these presents. Bags of fruit and candy were subsequently given to the smaller ones, including little(?) Johnny Nicholson, Jackie Smith, Billy Thompson, Charlie Smith, and others. The pastor and his wife shared splendidly in this general exchange also.

As the result of the White Gift feature of the program, the superannuated ministers, the Children's Home, the poor in the community, all were remembered by gifts of money, foodstuffs, etc. Giving was certainly popular this Christmas at Mebane church.

It would be a serious oversight to neglect to mention the effective Vesper Service of Christmas carols from around the world, sung by the church choir and a chorus of carolers from among the young folks of the Sunday school. The numerous candles and evergreen decorations lent themselves well to the spirit of the occasion, and the singers rendered their parts commendably.

Since the church has an efficient reporter, the pastor is not given to writing to the Herald often, but he does want to take this opportunity of expressing his appreciation of the good people of this church. In more ways than he has time or space to enumerate, they have proven themselves genuine. During the recent illness of the pastor's wife, many of them displayed a deep concern and rendered substantial assistance. Besides their generosity, they manifest a willing and cooperative spirit almost unexceptionally. Their loyal devotion to their Chirst, their church, and their pastor is commonplace. With firm faith in God, and a deep desire to please Him, we expect a most successful year.

E. LESTER BALLARD, Pastor.

Philadelphia, Greensville Circuit.—We are all glad to welcome Rev. J. M. Morgan as our pastor for the new year. Although we were sorry to lose Rev. Eugene Lamb, we are very thankful and feel that we are fortunate indeed in getting Rev. Mr. Morgan to take his place and extend to him and his family a hearty welcome.

Mr. Morgan served as our pastor about 16 years ago, and since first knowing him he has always held a warm place in our hearts, and it is with great pleasure that we greet him again. We feel sure that he will do everything possible to help make this 1936 the best year for both pastor and people if we work, pray, and co-operate with him.

All church and Sunday school officers have been elected for the new year, and we trust that each one will take their part willingly and pray that we will be able to do all that the Lord would have us do.

Our Sunday school attendance is not as good as we wish it, but hope it will be better when the weather is not so bad.

May I wish the editor and all the Herald readers a happy and prosperous new year.

Canaan, North Davidson Charge. — Christmas has just passed and new year is right here. Guess everybody had a nice time. I am sure we cannot say it was an ugly Christmas, as the Lord saw fit to decorate the earth with a coat of white snow. It has been bad for traveling and going places.

The entertainments have been very good. Canaan had theirs Wednesday night, December 25, with quite a large crowd present. Everyody seemed to enjoy the program rendered. We thank all who visited this place and invite you back any time you wish to come.

The pastor has no time for calls or conversations this week, as he is too busy chewing on his long string of peanuts he received from the Christmas tree. Well, now, he did take time to visit some of us fifth Sunday. The family took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hines. Then in the evening when the snow got deeper he went to the writer's home for supper. We have found out they are not afraid of bad weather, and we were glad to have them with us.

We think the work here is going to be prosperous another year. Let us all pray to that end.

It looks now like our building proposition will be delayed for a while owing to the bad weather. Hope it won't be long until we can get this project off of hand, as we need the room very badly.

The Ladies Aid meets this month with Mrs. Minnie Berrier. Hope every member will be present.

We are glad to learn that Miss Bertie Pitts, who is in the hospital at Winston-Salem, is improving nicely. Hope she will soon be at home with her father and friends.

May the spirit of hope abide with us all.

Hickory Grove, Guilford Charge.—With the beginning of our new conference year as well as our new year, we are trying to make ourselves believe we have a new preacher. It seems that if the news gets out that we are going to have a new preacher, people will come to see the new pastor. However, we are glad to have our pastor back with us and believe, with the co-operation of all, we will have a good year.

The Sunday school attendance is very good considering the snowy weather. There is one thing sure, you can tell pretty well who wants to go to church these days, because on last preaching day, the fourth Sunday, we had some members to walk three miles through the snow to attend church. How many of us will do this?

On December 23rd we held our Christmas program and Christmas tree. Santa was not with us, however, but everyone seemed to enjoy the program. We believe, though, that Brother Williams and Brother Jones enjoyed it as much, if not more, than any of our smaller boys and girls.

After the treat was distributed among the smaller classees, there were a number of older people remembered with a treat that lived in the community that could not attend church.

Our next preaching service will be on the second Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock.

Best wishes for a bright and prosperous new year.

North Davidson Charge.—Our first quarterly conference was held at Spring Hill church with a good representation present. The conference was held at night and the weather was very unfavorable. West End was represented with a large delegation and was gladly received into North Davidson charge.

The usual business of the first quarterly conference was attended to as good will and harmony prevailed. This is now a four-point charge and the salary is $1,025. Each church gets two appointments each month.

A Christmas service was held at Spring Hill, West End, and Canaan churches. Each service was excellent, and well attended.

We were pounded at Spring Hill and at West End. At the Canaan service we were the recipients of various gifts including wearing apparel presented by the Sunday school through the superintendent, Mr. Harvey Berrier. Mt. Pleasant has also made donations by various members.

The most appreciated gift, may I say, was a lot of good wood given by Mr. Pert Bailey and hauled by him and his son Lawrence, and Mr. Carl Clodfelter. These three brethren sawed the wood ready for use. After writing the above, Mr. Clodfelter came over with a load of dry stove wood ready to burn. Words to express my appreciation fail me.

North Davidson is a fine field, rich with youth, children, young people and older ones. Wonderful possibilities are apparent on every hand in each church. I crave to meet the needs of this most excellent and deserving people.

Haw River Church, Glen Raven Charge.—Our pastor, Brother Troxler, was with us last Sunday, and brought us a good message at the 11 o'clock hour. The Sunday night hour was given over to a candle light service, and after singing several Christmas carols the pastor brought us the Christmas message. In spite of the bad weather there was a good crowd out.

On Christmas eve at 7:30 o'clock the children presented their Christmas play, which was enjoyed very much by those present. Mrs. Waddell, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Pearson and Miss Bullard all deserve special praise for the fine way in which they trained the children. On Sunday morning Santa Claus visited our Sunday school and saw that every one received a treat. The pastor and his family also received one, and then he went out in the name of our Sunday school and left all of the old people in the community a treat.

Center, Alamance Charge.—We had a very interesting Christmas program Sunday. The primary and junior boys and girls had charge of the opening exercise. After the classes assembled in the auditorium for the closing the gifts were taken from the tree and distributed as the primary and junior classes drew names.

The Adult Class sent Christmas cards to all the older members not able to attend church and also to those living at a distance.

The young people's class of boys and girls remembered the shut-in members by sending them a box of fruits. Shrubbery has been set around the church as a gift from the young people's class. We are also planning a Christmas party on Thursday night of this week.

Merry Christmas to all.

West End, Thomasville.—If I don't soon get in a report I guess I'll be docked for being late. We approach the new year with a lot of enthusiasm. Perhaps, as we look back on the past year, we didn't accomplish what we intended to; but we are thankful for what we did accomplish.

We are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Neese as shepherds of our flock for the coming year. We were especially glad to have Mrs. Neese join our Ladies aid society last Tuesday night, and we all feel she will be an asset to our society. We have enjoyed some splendid messages from our able pastor, Mr. Neese.

Our Sunday school held its annual Christmas program last Monday night and was largely attended, and we hope was enjoyed by all.

Owing to the bad weather we had only 17 present for Sunday school last Sunday, but our average attendance is about 150. We think the ones who came last Sunday were very brave, this being our first time to have such a small number we can't complain.

We have not had Christian Endeavor for two Sundays because of the snow and bad weather, but we hope soon to get off to a good start on our ship (1936).

Come on, West End people, let's do something to report so the reporter will not have to send a blank paper to the Herald.

We wish the Herald and all its readers a very happy and prosperous new year.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—We are all very sorry of the misfortune our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, had in injuring his leg, also the illness of his wife. We are glad to report that both are getting along nicely.

Last Wednesday night a Christmas program was given at Liberty Hill church. Mrs. N. G. McClimon, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Harrison had charge of training the children. Miss Lottie Harrison had charge of training the young people. After the program Santa Claus came into a beautiful Christmas tree which had been decorated by Mr. W. R. Harrison.

We are glad to report that Miss Merle Westmoreland, a member of the Willing Workers' class, is able to be at home again after spending a month in the General hospital in Spartanburg, S. C.

On December 20th the Willing Workers' class sponsored a cake and box supper at Flatwood school. They raised $17.45. Of this $5.00 was given to the little Busy Bee class for the fine co-operation their teacher, Mrs. John McClimon, gave. The balance was added to the Willing Workers' account, giving them a balance of $83.07 which is being saved to put on the building of Sunday school rooms.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nally and family from Fairview church to visit in our community during Christmas.

Randolph.—We appreciate most highly the kind reception received upon our return to this charge. We are also delighted with our new acquisition, the Shiloh church. Here we find a fine people and a great opportunity. With the proper co-operation at all of the churches we feel that a year of real progress can and will be made.

All the churches took a special thank-offering for our Chidren's Home. Shiloh had a very beautiful Christmas tree Tuesday before Christmas day, at 2 p.m. The rough weather made the attendance small, but the occasion was highly enjoyed by those present. After some splendid and appropriate music by the choir and children, the pastor made a short talk. Then came the distribution of presents and treat for the Sunday school. The pastor was also in line here, and received a box of fresh meats, sugar, butter, and other things suitable for any pantry. We certainly thank all who were connected with this pounding.

The Christmas program at Gray's Chapel was postponed until the fifth Sunday, at which time the children will render their program and receive a treat from the Sunday school. This was done because of the rough weather. It was our good pleasure to spend the night before Christmas and part of Christmas day in the hospitable home of Bro. C. N. Nixon. We greatly enjoyed our stay there, and thank Mrs. Nixon for the eggs and sausage she gave us when we started to leave.

Gloom overshadowed Gray's Chapel community Christmas day because of the death and burial of one of her devoted members, Mrs. Emma Jones Kirkman.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Our church had a Christmas tree Christmas eve. There were a lot of nice presents delivered and each member of Sunday school received a treat from Santa Claus. The church was decorated very beautifully.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Our church has such an efficient reporter in the person of Mrs. Neece that it has not seemed necessary for the pastor to write much. However, to set the proper example before the other pastors, this one will write briefly.

The usual welcome and more was extended to the pastor and his wife at the beginning of the conference year. The prospect for a good year is very evident. There seems to be a determination on the part of the people to make this year even better than the last.

For the past two Sundays the congregations have been very small, due to the exceedingly bad weather. Last Sunday evening we did not attempt to have any service.

One of Calvary's members, Brother Charles Coe, Jr., took unto himself a wife on Christmas day, the bride being Miss Marjorie Beane of Siler City. The uncle of the groom, Rev. H. F. Surratt in Graham performed the ceremony.

The Stewards of Calvary church are beginning to think now in terms of 1941 when the debt on the church at the Pilot Life Insurance company will be paid. The amount has been reduced from $13,500.00 to $5,100.00. This week the interest goes forward to the tune of $160.00 and during the next few weeks we shall be gathering in the principal to the amount of $425.00. This has to be done twice each year.

Next Sunday we expect to raise Herald subsidy and from that on we hope to pay something each month on the Annual Conference budget.

Plans are now taking shape for the observance of Young People's day the last Sunday in January.

Beginning with next Sunday the various classes in Sunday school will figure out the percentage of attendance as compared to the enrollment. We are hoping that the friendly rivalry will help to boost attendance.

Saturday afternoon of this week the Anna Starr Sunday school class will hold a monthly business meeting and social at the home of the teacher, Mrs. David Glass on Andrew street. The meeting will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Bro. J. C. Coe, Jr., who has been in California for the past five years is visiting his parents during the holidays. He was accompanied home by a young man who is associated with him in the orchestra in which he plays a leading part.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—At this season of the year we are all rather expecting surprises of one sort or another. The greatest surprise for us just now comes with the marriage of Miss Foy Murphy and Mr. Grover Leonard at the parsonage on Saturday, December 21, at 2:30 o'clock. Both are among the most faithful young people of our church and we wish for them many happy years together.

Our plan of appointments will remain this year as it was last, with West Thomasville taking evening services. Our Thomasville friends are very considerate in giving to the other three churches all of the morning services. We are grateful to them.

Our pastor met his regular fourth Sunday morning service and brought to us a splendid Christmas message.

One of our oldest and best members, Brother J. R. Stone, has been under the weather for some time, but is improving, and we hope he will soon be back in his usual place.

JOSEPH R. PAYNE, Reporter.

Draper.—Our church work is progressing nicely in every way. I thank the Lord for our dear little bunch of folks.

The Sunday school is sponsoring a Christmas program, which I think is a great help to the school and the church.

There will also be a special Christmas service Wednesday night, and Mrs. O. R. Boyles. Mrs. Annie Boyles, and Mrs. W. A. King will have charge.

Mrs. George R. Brown and Mrs. Allen, of Reidsville, will visit our church the first Sunday in January to reorganize our Ladies Aid into the Ladies Auxiliary.

Dr. Andrews has an appointment to visit our church December 22, 1935.

Pray for us in the Master's service.

REV. G. F. MILLAWAY SICK

Our latest information is that Rev. G. F. Millaway, one of our honored superannuates is still confined to his bed. He has had such a long and honorable career that many friends will be praying for his recovery. His address is R. F. D. 5, Box 473 M., Greensboro, N. C.

AN ENJOYABLE EXPERIENCE

Leaving Greensboro early on Friday morning, December 6, Mrs. Bethea and I started for Halifax charge to fill the appointment for the second Sunday.

We made several visits on the road as we know so many good friends on the highway down. We found this experience so interesting that the day got away from us before we knew it hardly and we had to "reign up" our horse for speedy travel when the shadows began to lengthen, arriving at our daughter's home about dark. Wish I had the time and the space to mention all the good friends and brethren we talked to as we went down.

Saturday morning we drove over to that ever open preacher's home, F. M. Taylor. Enjoying a sumptuous dinner we were taken by Bro. Taylor and wife to Enfield and there we loaded up with shelled peanuts for our Auxiliary at West End. Now the order here is to get them on the market salted and our ladies are making a fine start selling them. But "resuming forward" as Samantha used to say, we found ourselves at Bethesda for the Sunday morning services with a large and attentive audience.

Well, it was delightful. So many friends from several of the churches of the charge and from the other denominations in the community. So glad to have that tireless school man, Prof. Matthews, who has become a fixture as principal of Aurelian Springs, in our audience. He has given much encouragement to scores, and I might say hundreds of young people, and started them on careers of usefulness in the world. So many here that I might mention, but while it was a joy to meet many old friends here, there was a tinge of sadness as there were so many missing, yes, gone from there, but I trust not missing in our Father's house above.

We took dinner with Mrs. Harrison and family, the home of Rev. N. M. Harrison. A joy to be there, but how we did miss "Cousin Nat" as he was affectionately called by so many. All too short was the time in this good home, for we had to hurry off to Ringwood for an afternoon appointment. The down-pour of rain kept many away here, but I was told that there was an unusual congregation. Here, as at the former place, so many missing. I could not help but miss Mrs. E. V. Neville, who while a member of Union rarely ever missed a service at Ringwood. We deeply sympathetic with this splendid man, E. V. Neville in his great loss. The veteran of this church, Bro. Spivey could not get out on account of the rain and the frailty of his wife, as they now live in Enfield. The younger members of this congregation have grown up since we left there.

We talked here with several of the members for awhile and then hurried on to our daughter's, Mrs. Wilcox, for supper and then went to Hollister. Going was severe. Fog about as thick as I ever tried to travel in and it took quite a while to make the trip as we had to be so careful. I could not have complained if no one had come out. But to our pleasant surprise the house was nearly full. Glad to see so many friends of other days here. Like the other churches, many gone to the other world. Many who were once in business there gone to other parts. Quite a change but so many young people to make up the congregation makes it an attractive field. So many names I would like to mention that it was a delight to see. Bro. Ellington, perhaps the veteran of this church, was on hand notwithstanding the inclement weather. How I enjoyed preaching that day. If all who were out got as much from listening as I did from preaching, it was profitable to us all.

We thank Mrs. J. T. Aycock for two fat hens for Christmas, and her husband for the interest he took in providing for my expenses. Then the home folks packed many good things to eat in the car for it was "hog killing time."

After services at Hollister the writer drove down to Bro. J. W. Hardee's and we talked most of the part of the night that was left. Then after getting started by noon towards Greensboro we did not have time to visit much, so arrived at home at 6 o'clock, in time to eat supper and hurry away to a meeting of our Auxiliary and before sleeping that night heard many complimentary things about the sermons Bro. Harrison preached in my absence. Our people, I am sure, appreciated his visit.

I forgot to say that our thanks are due Bro. Frank Taylor for a tank of gasoline which helped to cut the expenses of the trip.

Our impressions of Halifax charge today are something like this: Plenty of work for one man. Good and appreciative people who are willing to co-operate. A chance for some preacher to enjoy a long and fruitful pastorate if he will go there and stay by the work and give the folks a chance to show their appreciation of his efforts. I am sure there is a spirit of hopefulness that will inspire anyone who goes with a determination to do his best to serve the people and lead them towards God.

If I have left out any that I should have mentioned, it was not because of any intention to do so. Thank every one of you who made the stay so pleasant and profitable in every way. Fortunate man who gets this assignment.

N. G. BETHEA.

The Layman Company, which co-operates with all denominations, will send for $1, to any committee or individual, a package containing over 500 pages of pamphlets, bulletins, and tabloids, including three playlets, "The Scriptural Basis for the Tithe," and an account book; also a proposal for a Ten Weeks of Tithe Education at so low a price that distribution to an entire church through ten weeks costs only three and a half cents per family.

We will also include enough copies of our pamphlet, "Winning Financial Freedom," to supply one copy to each official of the church.

MECHANICAL DIFFICULTIES

When one linotype machine failed to work in McCulloch and Swain's printing plant, where the Herald is printed, the other machine had to be operated all night last night and still we are somewhat late this week. Also we had to set more material than usual in the smaller type. But by doing this we more nearly caught up with material on hand.

By looking at the head of this column you can readily see that things have been changing some since our last issue. Then Danville was at the head of the list, now Danville takes third place while Reidsville is right up at the top. Albemarle lets us know that she is in the running also by taking second place.

Now let us look at the receipts. There is no doubt about who is in first place. That young man, Rev. Glenn Madison on Cleveland charge simply walks away with things. We were expecting something of the kind, for when he was at the First Church, Thomasville, his charge went over the top each year right near the beginning of the conference year, and thus had the privilege of enjoying being over throughout the year. This is always better than to wait until the last minute. But while Cleveland charges takes the lead, that does not mean that other charges did not do well. Rev. C. L. Spencer of the Granville charge sends in a fine amount and thus takes second place. Bro. Spencer is becoming an export in getting subscriptions. Those who heard him describe his method of getting subscriptions, at the annual conference, can readily understand why he is pushing his charge on up.

Next after Granville is Greensville and Rev. J. M. Morgan. In our last issue we credited a large payment to Bro. Morgan and his charge and here he is at it again. We are expecting Greensville to do big things this year.

Rev. W. T. Totten who lives at Yadkin College sends in enough to give State Street charge a good boost. And so the wheel goes around and the thermometer is gradually moving on toward the goal. But it is not going fast enough to suit us. We know the weather has been rough and the agents and pastors have not been able to work much, but from now on let everybody get busy.

Our receipts this week amount to $81.37, all on subscriptions.

The Church Paper and the Family

This editorial was inspired by reading an article in the Nashville Christian Advocate—which article we are reprinting this week—in which some facts are given concerning the number of families in the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, taking the church paper. In the former it is stated that one family out of seven takes the church paper, while in the latter the ratio is one out of each six. The author says he does not have the figures for the Methodist Protestant Church. We wish he did have the figures or that we had them, since he does not. But since we do not have the figures for our entire denomination, we do have reasonably accurate estimates for the North Carolina Conference. The figures given by the Advocate give five persons to each family. The editor of the HERALD has applied the test to his own church and finds that there are not quite four persons to each home. But in order that we may figure on the same basis with the Advocate, we will say that there are five persons in each family. We have in North Carolina approximately thirty thousand members. This would give us six thousand homes. Last week we printed 1,587 copies of the HERALD. This would approximate one family in four taking the HERALD. It is true that several of our people take the Methodist Protestant Recorder, but most of these take the HERALD, also.

It would be interesting to know what charge in the North Carolina Conference has the best record. In the editor's congregation, approximately one family out of each two takes the HERALD. And in counting families, we count everybody on the church roll, even though there might be only one living in a house, also those out of the city as well as those living here. And right now let us say that at the end of April we will give special recognition to that charge that reports the largest percentage of its families taking the HERALD, this to be based upon the actual number of families on the charge without any regard to the number of persons in the family. The pastors themselves are supposed to know their families and ought to be able to count them. Each pastor, also, is supposed to know who among his people are getting the church paper. So much, then, for that phase of the work.

What about those who are getting the paper, and what about those who are not getting it? Those who are getting it know what it is worth and will have to tell those who do not take it about what it is worth. In the two conferences of the M. E. Church, South, in North Carolina there is a concerted movement, initiated, we believe, by Bishop Kern, to get all of the Boards of Stewards to take the paper. As we understand it, the Board of Stewards in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, corresponds largely to the members of the Quarterly Conference in our church. What the Bishop evidently wants to do is to have all of the official members informed as to the workings of the church. And that is a goal that any church ought to want to reach. Those who read the paper know what the program of the church is. They know what the church is trying to do. It is not difficult for the conference officials to reach those who take the church paper. If all of our people took the paper, what an advantage it would be to the President of the Conference! He could make an announcement each week that would echo down to the Tidewater country and at the same time scale the heights of the Blue Ridge mountains and penetrate the farthest reaches of our church in the western part of the state. And every program that is launched would find a multitude of friends in all parts of the state. Such a goal as this may be hard to reach, but we shall not be satisfied until it is reached, and our church will never function as it ought to function until this is accomplished. Now this is not, in any way, an effort to praise unduly our work as editor of the paper. Regardless of the name of the editor, the church paper carries the program of the conference. It is filled with letters from those who are doing things. It challenges the people each week to fall in line and help do things. And it is safe to say that the ones who take the paper in large measure are the ones who are doing the work of the church.

On the other hand, what shall we say about those who do not read the paper? Well, they simply cannot keep up with the church. Some say they take a daily paper. Maybe they do, but they cannot keep up with their church by reading the daily paper. The daily paper has its place in our modern life. The editor reads two, and would be sorry if he could not get them, but the daily paper does not pretend to give enough church news to enable anyone to keep posted on the program of the church. If it did attempt this it would have no space for general news. The local church bulletin cannot furnish enough news to enable one to keep informed as to the program of the Annual Conference or the general church. The magazines cannot furnish this information. The truth is, if you get the information anywhere you must get it from your own denominational organ. That is why the denomination publishes a paper.

As we said earlier in this article, the ones who do not read the paper will not get anything out of this article. The only way it can help them is for those who do read the paper to show it to their neighbors or to go out and talk to their neighbors about what the paper is worth and get them to subscribe for it. So, let us have as nearly as possible a hundred per cent of our official members reading the paper. And let us have as high a percentage as possible of our families reading it. Pastors, will you not boost the family idea and let us see what charge can make the best record on a percentage basis, by actual count of its families taking the HERALD?

OUR CHURCH PERIODICALS

The membership of the Methodist Episcopal church is 4,570,410. The membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is 2,689,125. The approximate number of families in the former is 904,082; in the latter it is 537,825. The total number of subscriptions of the six area Advocates in the Methodist Episcopal Church is 115,000, which is the paid-up subscription list. The total number of subscriptions of the General Organ and the ten conference Advocates in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is 112,000. I do not have the figures of the Methodist Protestant Church. These calculations do not include other periodicals, such as Epworth Herald, Epworth Highroad, or World Outlook, but is strictly limited to the Advocates. This means, in so far as the Advocates are concerned, that approximately only one family out of seven in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and one family out of six in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is a subscriber to any of the Advocates. This is not strictly accurate. In many instances there are those who are subscribers for two of the Advocates. One of the conspicuous failures of Protestantism is in the restricted circulation of Christian literature. An authority on this subject says:

''There has been a steady decline in the circulation of Protestant religious periodicals during the past fifteen years. In the ten-year period from 1920 to 1930, Catholic papers, as a whole, approximately doubled their circulation. It is an exception that a Protestant minister or Protestant church official makes an effort to push the circulation of church papers. Indeed, it is not an unheard-of thing in the Protestant church for pastors and church officials to refuse to permit their congregations to be canvassed for church periodicals. But our Catholic brethren give a whole month to arouse an interest in their church periodicals. The priests preach on the subject, and their young people are faithfully taught the value of a church paper.''

While it is not a solution of the disparity between the Roman Catholic and the Methodist churches, yet some explanation may be mentioned of the small circulation of our weekly church periodicals. Within the last few years as many as a half dozen popular weekly magazines have reached a circulation of 1,000,000 and more. A careful observer says:

''Moreover, within the past quarter of a century, the daily papers have risen to a place of power. Many of them have been devoting increasing space in the Sunday edition to religious announcements. And more recently local churches have begun the custom of carrying paid advertising in these editions. Bulletins by local churches carry not only programs for the Sunday worship service and announcements for the week, but frequently news of the local parish and occasionally some general religious material. These are sent by mail to members of the local congregation during the week.''

The tendency of all this has been to make the average church member feel that he does not need the ministrations of the Advocates. Again, the publication of journals specifically for clergymen tends to cool their affection for their denominational press, which must, in a measure, serve both clergy and laymen.

More serious than all this is the breakdown of a spiritual morale, with the result of growing secularism and sensualism. It may as well be confessed that there is a decline in church loyalty. And we put what loyalty we have to a severe test when we have to make an appeal to loyalty in behalf of inferior publications.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

CHURCH FINANCES

There appeared in the Literary Digest for December 1 under the division given to religion and social service an article entitled ''Baptists and Presbyterians Check Contribution Drop.'' The summary, since brief, is necessarily limited in its scope. However, the facts given are at least interesting and capable of one or two observations.

The article begins and continues as follows: ''All denominations have been badly hit by the depression, and thirty Methodist Episcopal churches, it is authoritatively reported, have been sold from the auctioneer's block, while 400 others are in desperate need.

''It will be good news, therefore, to hear that the Baptists and the Presbyterians have checked the downward drop in contributions and hope to balance their budgets without new retrenchments in 1935. An increase of 8 to 10 per cent in Baptist contributions for August, September and October, over the same period in 1933, has been reported by Dr. Randolph L. Howard, Associate Secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society.

''Presbyterians have managed a 2.5 per cent increase in contributions, but must increase their gifts another 8 per cent to obtain a balanced budget, according to Russell Carter, Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America, with offices in New York.

''Methodist churches, on the other hand, are reported to be in serious financial straits.

''In addition to those which have been sold, and the 400 in a critical condition, nearly 5,000 of the denomination's 20,000 churches have debt problems, said Dr. Fred Mueller, Superintendent of denomination's Department of Church Extension, and the interest on church debts exceeds the amount given by the entire church for World Service.''

Assuming that the above figures are correct, two facts stand out. First, that the religious bodies which give to their local churches the largest amount of freedom in setting budgets—the Baptists and the Presbyterians—are the first to stem the tide of the depression. The moral is obvious: So far as possible, let those who pay the budgets determine the budgets.

The second fact gleaned from the above figures points out to us that even though we should be so fortunate as to see Methodist union, that even this would not necessarily be the end of all our financial worries. Witness the financial plight of the Methodist Episcopal church, at least, as summarized above.

IT'S UP TO US

I wish I had some way of knowing just how many folks are reading these weekly articles. A Conference President, back in the days of the Central Protestant, said he hadn't written to the paper because he was sure nobody read his articles. It may be so in my case. I assure you I don't want to waste my time and money if they are not being read. It is in the hope that folks are reading them that they are being written. So I am saying it's up to us who are most especially interested in the continuation of the HERALD to be doing something about it.

I think I ought to say to you what the printers of the HERALD said to the Committee. They said they would continue to print the paper at cost—from $67.50 to $70.00 an issue, depending on the press run each week—provided the Conference would reimburse them for the losses they had already sustained and would guarantee their getting cost out of further issues; otherwise we would have to find some other firm to print it. (And you may not know it, but the cost per issue from any other firm we know of, and prices have been submitted by a good many of them in Greensboro and High Point, would run from $90.00 to $150.00 per issue.)

It would of course be a beautiful thing if these young men, who have had to go in debt to keep the plant going, some of which debt was due to the HERALD, would say to the Conference, "We forgive the $3,500 due us. We enjoy printing the HERALD so much that we will forget that debt, and go on printing the paper at cost, and assume any deficit that may arise in the future." Very beautiful! Altogether too beautiful! You who read this don't by any possibility want them to do it even if they were minded to do so. It wouldn't be fair, and it wouldn't be square. But the matter of fact is, the boys simply can't do it. They need this money to secure their business, to retire pressing obligations, not to put in the bank or buy the latest model automobiles. They need it. And, more than they need it, we need to give it. We made that debt. A sufficient list of paid-up subscriptions would have avoided a deficit. Ours was the responsibility to secure those subscriptions, and since we did not thus fulfil our part of the agreement, we cannot escape the responsibility for the deficit. Shall we make an effort to remove it, and give the boys what is due them? If you say yes, get busy and help your church raise the amount apportioned to it. It isn't much for any church; not too much in any case.

Mrs. Bates is keeping the books for this campaign. Each church will get credit for the amount sent in. So do not hesitate nor wait to send in small amounts. We are turning it over in hundred-dollar installments.

ONLY TWO RELIGIONS

Recently, while presenting the Gospel on the street of a California city, we were often interrupted about as follows: "Look here, sir! There are hundreds of religions in this country, and the follower of each sect think theirs the only right one. How can poor plain men like us, find out what really is the truth?"

We generally replied something like this: "Hundreds of religions, you say? That's strange; I've heard of only two."

"Oh, but you surely know there are more than that!"

"Not at all, sir. I find, I quite admit, many shades of difference in the opinions of those comprising the two great schools; but after all there are but two. The one covers all who expect salvation by doing; the other, all who have been saved by something done. So you see the whole question is very simple. Can you save yourself, or have you to be saved by Another? If you can be your own savior, you do not need my message. If you cannot, you may well listen to it."—H. A. Ironside, in The Watchman, Toronto.

Calvary Church Observes Young People's Day

Young People's Day was observed in all the departments at Calvary church last Sunday. At the evening hour splendid short addresses were made by Morris Campbell, Miss Ruth Laughlin, and Miss Claudine Kirkman. Rev. J. E. Carroll followed with a fine address on Leadership Training. The offering of $13.32 was much smaller than it would have been had the weather been better.

—A letter from Rev. Luther K. Long, of Washington, D. C., tells us that he is to spend several weeks in California. We have an article from his typewriter which we hope to run right away.

—Those who want the editor of the HERALD in their meetings will have to plan them so as to avoid Wednesdays, as that is the rush day with us.

—We were very sorry to hear a few days ago that Mrs. H. F. Surratt, of Thomasville, has been sick for some time. We trust she may soon be well again.

—Grenville Kleiser, of New York, who frequently writes for the HERALD, is spending some time in Florida.

OUR STORY PAGE

CROOKED JIM

A great railroad depot may not be the best school for a boy, yet poor little Jim Brand had scarcely known any other. He could not remember when the long waiting rooms with their tiled floors and dreary rows of stationary settees, and crowds of hurrying people, were not quite as familiar to him and more homelike than his mother's small, bare house, which he knew as little more than a place for eating and sleeping.

He had been only six months old when a dreadful accident hapened which, at one fell stroke, made him fatherless and transformed him from a well developed infant to a pitiful creature, which even death refused to take.

''What a pity he was not killed outright!'' said everybody but the mother. She herself always insisted that only her constant watching over the little flickering life kept her from going mad in the first dreadful months of her bereavement.

The officers of the railroad company were kind to poor Mary Brand. They paid the expenses of the burial, and, after little Jim had slowly mended, employed her about the depot to scrub floors and keep the woodwork bright and neat.

When Jim was seven years old his mother sent him to school. He went patiently day after day, making no complaint, but she awoke suddenly one night to find him sobbing on the pillow beside her. Only by dint of long coaxing was she able to find out the cause of his grief. Some of the rougher boys—more thoughtless than cruel, let us hope—had called him ''humppy,'' and asked if he carried a bag of meal on his back.

Mary flamed with the fierce anger of motherhood. ''You shan't go another day,'' she declared. ''The ruffians! I won't have my darling put upon by the likes of them.''

So Jim's schooling had come to an untimely end. Yet, meager as was his stock of book learning, the development of his mind far outstripped the growth of his stunted and deformed body. Everybody liked the patient little fellow, tugging manfully at his mother's heavy buckets and running willingly at every call of the station men. At twelve years old he had picked up no small amount of information, especially on railroad topics. He knew every locomotive on the road, understood the intricacies of sidetracks and switches, and could tell the precise moment when any particular train might be expected, with the accuracy of a time table.

Yet the very quickness and ardor of his nature deepened the sense of his infirmity. How wistfully his eyes followed the boys of his own age—straight, handsome, happy—who sprang lightly up and down the steps of the coaches, or threaded their way along the crowded platforms. For one day of such untrammeled life he would have bartered all the possible years before him. Yet he never put his yearnings into words—even to his mother.

Mr. Crump, the telegraph operator, was Jim's constant friend. It was he who, at odd moments, had taught the boy to read, and had initiated him into some of the mysteries of the clicking instrument, which to Jim's imaginative mind seemed some strange creature with a hidden life of its own.

It was growing dark toward one November afternoon. Jim—never an unwelcome visitor—sat curled up in a corner of Mr. Crump's office, waiting for his mother to finish her work. He was spelling out by the fading light, the words upon a page of an illustrated newspaper, quite oblivious of the ticking, like that of a very jerky and rheumatic clock, which sounded in the room.

Mr. Crump, too, had a paper before him, but his ears were alive. Suddenly he sprang to his feet, repeating aloud the message which that moment flashed across the wire.

He rushed to the door shouting the news.

''Not a second to spare! she'll be down in seven minutes.''

The word passed like lightning. In a moment the yard was in a wild commotion. Men flew hither and thither. Yard engines steamed wildly away, the switches closing behind them.

The main track was hardly clear when 110 came in sight, swaying from side to side, her wheels threatening to leave the track at every revolution. She passed the depot like a meteor, her bell clanging with every leap of her piston, the steam escaping from her whistle with the continuous shriek of a demon, and the occupants of the cab wrapped from view in a cloud of smoke.

Some hundred yards beyond the depot the track took a sharp upward grade, from which it descended again to strike the bridge across a narrow but deep and rocky gorge.

Men looked after the flying locomotive and then at each other with blanched aces.

''They're gone! A miracle can't save 'em,'' said one, voicing the wordless terror of the rest. ''If they don't fly off the track on the upgrade they'll go down as soon as they strike the trestle.''

The crowd began to run along the track, some with a vain hope of helpfulness, some moved by that morbid curiosity which seeks to be ''in at the death.''

But look! Midway the long rise the speed of the runaway engine suddenly slackens.

''What does it mean? She never could 'a' died out in that time!'' shouted an old yard man.

Excitement winged their feet. When the foremost runners reached the place the smoking engine stood still on her track, quivering in every steel-clad nerve, her great wheels still whizzing round and round amid a flight of red sparks from beneath.

''Who did it? Who stopped her?''

The engineer, staggering from the cab, with the pallid face of the fireman behind him, pointed, without speaking, to where a little pale-faced, crooked-backed boy had sunk down, panting with exertion, beside the track.

At his feet a huge oil can lay overturned and empty. The crowd stared at one another open-mouthed. Then the truth flashed upon them.

''He oiled the track!''

''Hurrah for crooked Jim.''

They caught the exhausted child, flinging him from shoulder to shoulder, striving with each other for the honor of bearing him, and so, in irregular, tumultuous, triumphal procession they brought him back to the depot and set him down amongst them.

''Pass the hat, pards!'' cried one.

It had been pay day, and the saved engineer and fireman dropped in each their month's wages. Not a hand in all the throng that did not delve into a pocket. There was a crisp rustle of bills, the chink of gold and silver coin.

''Out with your handkerchief, Jim! Your hands won't hold it all! Why, young man, what—what's the matter?'' for the boy with scarlet cheeks and burning eyes, had clinched both small hands behind his back—the poor twisted back laden with its burden of deformation and pain.

''No, no,'' he cried in a high, shrill tone. ''Don't pay me! Can't you see what it's worth to me, once—just once in my life—to be a little use—like other folks?''

The superintendent had come from his office. He laid his hand on the boy's head. ''Jim,'' he said, ''we couldn't pay you if we wished. Money doesn't pay for lives! But you have saved us a great many dollars besides. Won't you let us do something for you?''

''You can't! you can't! nobody can!'' The child's voice was almost a shriek. It seemed to rend the air with the pent-up agony of years. ''There's only one thing in the world I want, and nobody can give me that. Nobody can make me anything but Crooked Jim.''

The superintendent lifted him and held him against his own breast.

''My boy,'' he said in his firm, gentle tones, ''you are right. None of us can do that for you. Where is the quick brain God gave you and the brave heart? Not in the bent back of yours—that has nothing to do with them. Let us help you to a chance—only a chance to work and learn—and it will rest with you yourself to say whether in twenty years from now, if you are alive, you are Crooked Jim or Mr. James Brand.''

* * * * *

Visiting in C——not long ago, a friend said to me:

''Court is in session. You must go with me and hear Brand.''

The courtroom was already crowded at the entrance with an expectant audience. When the brilliant young lawyer rose to make a plea, I noticed with a shock of surprise that his noble head surmounted an undersized and misshapen body. He had spoken but five minutes, however, when I had utterly forgotten the physical defect; in ten I was eagerly interested, and thereafter, during the two hours' speech, held spellbound by the marvelous eloquence which is fast raising him to the leadership of his profession in his native city.

''A wonderful man!'' said my friend, as we walked slowly homeward. Then he told me the story of Crooked Jim.—Our Young Covenanters.

THE BIBLE ACCORDING TO YOU

Captain Bickel ran the Gospel ship among the islands of Japan. One night he asked a member of his crew to carry a Bible to a certain man. (I write it as it was told to me.) The man whom he asked made this reply:

''No, no, Captain, he doesn't need it yet. Just now you are the only Bible he has. He is watching you, Captain. As you fail, Christ fails; as you live, Christ is revealed to him.''

No wonder that Captain did not sleep that night, ''remembering that as he lived, Christ lived, not only to that one man's soul, but in that house, that town, and in four hundred other villages.'' Never a missionary goes to sleep in Japan or China or Africa or India or Turkey but something of the same consciousness is borne in upon his soul. Well were it for us to feel and carry the same burden. The fact that it is there is true, whether we realize it or not.

What kind of Bible, therefore, are you? Morocco-bound, silk-sewed, red under gold edges, India paper and the like? Or just a plain, two-cent, paper-bound copy of one Gospel? Well, richly endowed or just a plain, ordinary man or woman, you are a Bible read by some at least, and probably by more than you think.

You are also the only Bible read by some. What do they read? What of love, loyalty, contentment, Christlikeness? Who was it who said, ''What you are speaks so loudly I cannot hear what you say''? No matter. It is tremendously challenging, at least.

The Bible according to you ought to bring the message of Jesus to others. Folks who do not go to church should be able to read it. People who may think they do not believe in God should feel its power. Men and women, who couldn't find First Corinthians 13 in half an hour without assistance, ought to see and understand it. ''By this (by love) shall all men know that ye are my disciples.'' God grant that we may be able to let them know. Let's get out a fresh edition of our Bible. Let's make it so attractive and readable that a fresh edition shall be called for often. Let's print it so plainly that ''he may run that readeth,'' even if he should try to run away. Let's make them believe in our Bible'' from cover to cover,'' from dawn to dark, from youth to old age, from Maine to California, at home and away, so long as we live on God's great earth.—*C. E. Risky to Send Cash Through the Mails

It is always unsafe to send cash through the mails unless it is insured, and especially so when the letter is not sealed. This week we received a letter, with cash enclosed, which bore evidence that it had never been sealed. We are doing the best we can to make your money safe after it reaches us, but we have no control over it until it does reach us. Better send a money order or check, even though you do not send quite so often.

President's Letter Did Not Arrive

We have not received the weekly letter from President Andrews this week, but hope he will be back with us next week.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY NEXT SUNDAY

Next Sunday is the time when all churches are requested to observe Young People's Day. Has your church made its plans to fall in line with this program? We hope that it has. If you cannot observe the day next Sunday, plan to observe it just as soon as you can in the month of February. Please help us to realize this goal: "Every Church on Every Charge Observing Young People's Day on Sunday, January 27, 1935, or Some Other Convenient Date."

If you do not have program materials, place your order today with Rev. F. L. Gibbs, 3267 West Liberty Avenue, Room 208, Pittsburgh (16), Pa.

Please Report Young People's Day Results

I would like for all pastors to send me a report of the results of Young People's Day on your charge after all churches have observed the day. Please answer these two questions:

1. How much interest did your young people and congregation as a whole show in the program?

2. What was the offering received at each church on your charge?

A postal card will give all this information.

Please Send Information

The Herald for January 10 carried a request for information from pastors. Please send me that information as soon as you can

T. J. WHITEHEAD, President.

FROM REV. F. L. GIBBS fi

I wish to take this opportunity, on behalf of the members of our Board of Christian Education and our office staff, to express our appreciation for the splendid co-operation given us in the promotion of Young People's Day, which is being held throughout our denomination in January and February. Our orders far exceeded any previous year and even our extra run of materials was exhausted. We appreciate the space given in the Methodist Protestant Herald, which is a fine paper with an efficient editor.

Yours for a greater Christian Education program in the Methodist Protestant church.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

Topic for Sunday, Feb. 3: "Wanted, Youth for the Kingdom" (Christian Endeavor Day). Scripture lesson: I Tim. 4:6-16.

Christian Endeavor Day should be observed in a most fitting way by every Christian Endeavor society. Put forth a special effort, both on the program and to have as large a number present as is possible. Invite the older people of the church to witness the program.

Have some older and more experienced Endeavorer relate the history of Christian Endeavor, pointing out its growth and development. Pay tribute to Father and Mrs. Clarke, its founders. Mrs. Clarke is still living, and it would be fine for the society to send her greetings on the 54th birthday of this great young people's organization that is worldwide in its scope and serves more than 80 denominations in its great usefulness. Have someone express tribute to Dr. Daniel L. Poling, president of the International Society of Christian Tndeavor, and his very fine associates, who are doing so much to keep Christian Endeavor to its highest point of efficiency.

Do not leave out of your gratitude nor your prayers your state and district officers, who continue to labor without financial compensation, often without actual expenses for their office, who labor so diligently for the success of the work in the state. Among them I can only mention the names of two foremost leaders from our own church: Rev. T. J. Whitehead, who is president of the state union, and Miss Ida Lambeth, president of the Central District. We have various others whose names should be mentioned if space permitted. But let us appreciate them all, and support them more faithfully.

Suggested program:

Prelude (piano and violin softly).

Call to worship. Leader: "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the House of the Lord." Congregation: "My feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem."

Solo without being announced: "I Gave My Life to Thee."

Prayer. (A few moments of silent prayer during which the piano plays softly, "Into My Heart." Then some previously informed Endeavorer concludes, thanking God for C. E., what it has done and what it is doing, and praying for its continued growth and progress.)

Scripture Lesson: I Tim. 4:6-16.

Hymn: "O For a Closer Walk With God."

Speakers. (Either on thoughts suggested above or the lesson theme, "Wanted, Youth for the Kingdom," or both.)

Consecration Pledge: Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I will be Christian, in my own life; first, through my own church, then in my community, in my country and in my world. Trusting in Jesus Christ for strength, I will be Christian always and everywhere.

Trusting in Christ for strength, dear Lord, today
We gladly consecrate our lives to Thee;
We'll read thy blessed word and daily pray
That in communion true we'll faithful be.

We will support thy work and worship true
Of thy beloved church and kingdom, too,
We here will take our part in meetings called,
And all activities of our C. E.

We will seek youth to bring, dear Lord, to thee,
Give as we can to spread thy kingdom free
Advance our country's good from sea to sea,
Promote true brotherhood, O Lord, in Thee.

These things we'll surely do, dear Lord, for Thee,
Unless prevented by some reason true,
Which we can tell to thee, with conscience free,
And we'll be guided, Lord, in all by Thee.

Before closing you might have individual testimonies as to what C. E. has meant and does mean daily to the individual.

Close with "Follow the Gleam" or "Lead On, O King Eternal."

Mizpah.

GREENSBORO LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL

The Greensboro Leadership Training School which started at Calvary church on January 14 came to a close Tuesday evening. Dr. N. G. Bethea taught a course in the "Principles of Christian Service" and Mrs. J. E. Carroll taught a course in "Junior Methods and Materials." While the attendance was somewhat small, the school was very helpful. The oldest person receiving a certificate was 83 years young, this being Rev T. F. McCulloch.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

It is an interesting fact that people of the different sections of the state are becoming more alike in a great many things than formerly; but there are still some marks of certain sections that are noticeable.

Beginning my work in the southwestern section of the state, one of the things that was amusing to me was the funny expressions that people used to mean the same things. For instance: The first year, I was driving along one day, and I stopped the mail man, who was horseback, to get some directions as to the place I was going. "You go up here to where the road forks and right fernent a big white house you take the fork hand." Well, I thought fernent meant in front, but that fork hand puzzled me. So I asked, "What do you mean by the fork band?" And he replied, "Man, don't you use your fork in your left hand " Then he said: "Are you swapping stock?" I said: "No, I'm just a kind of one-horse preacher, not got up to horse-trading yet." He immediately put spurs to his horse and said, "Giddap!" But now we use the fork in both hands. Wonder how the new generation would illustrate it?

I often told people back in those days that I was never taken for a preacher but once, and afterwards found that man had been in the asylum. Once where I went to help in a revival, when I walked up in the pulpit with dear old Brother Jimmie Hartsell, being my first time in that community, one man said to another, "My Lord! Is that our dependence for a preacher this week?" Well, he was good enough to make a confession after a few services. Folks do not always do that, as we know too well.

One Sunday afternoon, driving along the public road, as we called them in those days, it was back on Green river, in Polk county, I met a man with a string of fish. I thought perhaps he had accidentally run across such a nice string. So I stopped to ask him where he got all those fish and he replied: "Down the river in my fish trap. How will you swap that mare you are driving?" When I told him I was a preacher and was not in the trading business, he said, "Well, I am a Baptist; maybe I will come out and hear you preach sometime." But he never came. Guess he was afraid I might preach about Sunday fishing.

That country was interesting, but hard fare, for I had to put up with folks who were very poor and had little or no training in the schools. Sometimes moonshiners, and many times I wondered if I would get back alive. One good thing about it, I only went to that point once each month. Tried it for two years, but as it was a changing population, never had a chance to build up anything worthwhile. The main promoters of that project went over into the mountains of Kentucky, and I never saw or heard from them again. So my quarterly conference of Bessemer and Caroleen advised the dropping of that point. The other three years I divided my time between the other two points, to good advantage.

One time during a revival I was holding in that old log church, known as Pleasant Hill, a ruffian came in during the altar service and a woman approached him on the subject of religion, and he cursed and threatened to strike her. I ran down the aisle and rolled up my sleeves as I went, bluffed him of course, but he left the country that night, going to Texas. Found out afterwards that he was a tough character, and came in there that day to dodge the officers. My friends were uneasy for me that night and watched my horse and buggy. The way such characters take men's lives today, I would not advise any young preacher to use the same tactics I used at that time. Such characters were not to be found in that dark corner only, but in the towns, as I shall show you in my next paper, an incident that took place in one of the towns that I was then working. Such characters do not visit the churches as they once did, and perhaps we do not have the same chance to reach desperate characters that we once had. If such people could be reached by good people, perhaps there would be less crime than formerly.

TITHING BULLETINS OFFERED AT A SAVING

At least $5 a week can be saved by any church that customarily uses a four-page bulletin each week. The Layman Company, the tithing organization at 730 Rush Street, Chicago, offers this saving when using their four-page bulletin. Two pages are printed with a Stewardship message, and two pages are left blank for local announcements. The company suggests that churches conduct a five weeks' or ten weeks' course of tithe education by using its bulletins, which are offered at a nominal sum. It offers a sample set containing 32 different tithing tracts at 20 cents. Please mention the Methodist Protestant Herald, also give your denomination.

INTERNATIONAL C. E. CONVENTION

Have you thought about what a fine opportunity we Christian Endeavorers of North Carolina have to attend an international Christian Endeavor convention this year? It has been a long time sinde an international convention was held this close to North Carolina. It will take only a day to travel to the convention city, either by motor, bus or train. It is to be held in Philadelphia July 2-7. Would you like to attend? You can. Begin now to make your plans. Sometimes we have to plan several months in advance to attend a great convention like this. It is only five months until July. Watch this paper for further information.

FREE TUITION TO MINISTERS' CHILDREN AND MINISTERIAL STUDENTS AT HIGH POINT COLLEGE

"All candidates for the ministry of the Methodist Protestant church will be granted free tuition. All candidates for the ministry of other denominations will be granted one-half of tuition charge.

"All ministerial candidates must be recommended by the proper denominational authorities and present such credentials to the college office before the concessions mentioned in the above paragraph will be credited. These candidates must also sign notes for the amount of the concession, agreeing to assume indebtedness for all such tuition charges remitted, agreeing to pay the college such amounts in event they do not enter the ministry.

"In recognition of the service rendered the college by the ministry of the Methodist Protestant church, and for the staunch support given by the people of the city of High Point, the following rule obtains:

"Children of ministers of the Methodist Protestant church, and children of all regularly ordained resident pastors of the city of High Point, will be granted free tuition.

"And in recognition generally to the ministry of all churches for their service to the cause of Christian education, children of ministers, other than the above, will be granted one-half tuition charge."

In the present enrollment there are 17 ministerial students. Twelve of these are Methodist Protestants, two are Methodist Episcopals, and three from other denominations. According to the above rules, a total of $1,450 is allowed them in free tuition.

There are 24 ministers' children at the college this year. Thirteen of these are Methodist Protestants, eight are Methodist Episcopals, and three from other denominations. They also being given free tuition will make a total allowance to them of $1,850

The total of these two items is $3,350, which is over twice the amount the conference contributed to the college last year.

It will be of interest to know that from 1926 to May, 1934, the college had allowed in ministerial concessions a total of $32,476.09. That amount is 14 per cent more than the present operating indebtedness of the college. Stating it another way: If the college had collected the tuition charges from these students it would have had no operation deficit and $4,548 in the treasury.

MRS. CRAWFORD MAY EXPECT US

Mrs. J. J. Crawford, our big-hearted correspondent from Orange Chapel church on Saxapahaw charge, writes that she is raising a few chickens this year for the preachers, so this is serving notice on her that there will probably be a beaten path to her door this summer.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mt. Zion, Pinnacle-Mt. Zion Charge.—After so long a time a report comes in for this church, and no one is to be criticized for this negligence but the reporter. I have no real excuse to offer.

Our Sunday school, under the leadership of Bro. W. E. Jones, is doing splendid work. The reporter has noticed an increase in attendance and collection every Sunday, although sickness and inclement weather are beginning to show their power at this time. Although we are sorry to give up our former pastor, Rev. A. L. Hunter, we are indeed glad that he is still with us as a layman, singer and very good neighbor. The work on his dwelling house and other buildings is progressing rapidly. The reporter understand that he has his well completed, with a good head of water. We are also glad to have Bro. Hunter's son-in-law and wife with us in our church and Sunday school services.

Bro. Morris, our new pastor, has delivered two wonderful messages at Mt. Zion since he has been with us, and, to speak frankly every one felt that no man without divine guidance could speak with so much power I feel that if we will follow him in his teaching we will be drawn closer to our Savior

On Saturday, December 8, 1934, Mr. Holt Stone and Miss Opal Smith motored to Hillsville, Va., and were united in marriage. This marriage came as a surprise to the couple's relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Stone are making their home in Puck with Mr. Stone's father. We wish them much success.

Lexington, First Church.—Although this is my first report of this conference year, Herald readers have been kept well informed of the work of our churches by the regular, faithful, and efficient reporters.

The work has begun well at both churches. The Sunday schools are growing in spite of an unusual amount of sickness.

Both the churches gave excellent Christmas programs which furnished both enjoyment and profit to large audiences.

During the holiday season we were remembered by the good people of the churches with useful and valuable gifts. Our thanks are hereby expressed to the membership of First church for a Waltham watch, chain and knife, to Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Koonts for wood and other gifts, to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Koonts for meats, and to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mallard Mrs. C. B. Hamilton, Mrs. Mary Jane Lookabill, Mr. and Mrs. William McBride, and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hedrick for numerous valuable presents. Of the Mt. Carmel people, Mrs. R. M. Fritts gave us a fine cake; Mr. Jess Hedrick, fresh meats; Miss Beautus Waiteman, fresh meats; Mr. and Mrs. Early Hedrick, and Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Tussey and Miss Mary Tussey, numerous nice gifts. We are deeply appreciative of all these splendid remembrances from both the churches.

We were pleased to have Dr. R. M. Andrews, conference president, with us on January 10, to hold our first quarterly conference. Reports were excellent. First church, under the efficient leadership of Mr. J. J. Mallard, treasurer, had pastor's salary and Annual Conference expenses paid up to date, and Mt. Carmel was almost up with their part of these items. All regular claims for the year were accepted, along with our share of the McCulloch Memorial Fund, and we will endeavor to go "over the top" on all these lines.

On January 13 the congregation of First church voted to build a hut on the church grounds, and already nearly one-half of the money has been raised. January 27 was observed by this church as Young People's Day at both services. In the evening a play, "This War," directed by Miss Margaret Lee Swink, was presented. C. G. ISLEY.

First Church, Winston-Salem.—On Monday evening, January 14, the Business Women's Circle met at the parsonage, and Mrs. Bates, assisted by Dr. Bates and Miss Helen Bates, served a delicious buffet supper. Some of this group were absent due to illness, but we report some recuperations. This meeting was a very helpful and interesting one, and certainly was an enjoyment. Mrs. Bates gave a chapter in a new study book which was exceedingly worth while. The new book promises a lot of help on race prejudice, which is worth while and beneficial to most Americans.

The Workers' Council met Wednesday evening at the church. A delicious supper was served by the Auxiliary.

Dr. Bates' sermon on Sunday morning was unusual. His remarks regarding estrangement and settling quarrels were fine.

Mrs. Jacque Gwyn Stonestreet is endeavoring to organize a Junior Choir. With past co-operation that she has been extended we think she will make a great success of it.

Mr. Roy Sapp is in a local hospital very ill. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Sapp. Their daughter, Pearl, is also at home confined to her bed. We hope these two splendid young people will be out again, healthy and happy.

Many things are being planned for the observing of Young People's Week. The Boosters' Class is planning a play. A mother-daughter banquet and a father-son banquet have also been planned. This "week" should be profitable for both young people and their parents. PAULINE BRANSON, Reporter.

(This report carried over from last week. Since it was written, Mr. Sapp has passed away.)

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—I am glad to report that the work on this charge is very encouraging. Everyone is pleased with the interest shown in the work by our new pastor, the Rev. Mr. Harkey. He held his regular appointment at Clark's Chapel last Sunday morning, January 13, and gave us a very inspiring message. We had a congregation of about 56 for service, which we consider very good for a country church in winter time. We are also having midweek prayer meetings at our church with a good attendance.

We have been having a good Sunday school this winter with an average attendance of about 40.

There has been about $23 paid on the pastor's salary from Clark's Chapel, and I don't know just how much from the other churches on this charge, but I think the churches are all making every effort to meet their obligations.

I understand they are starting a building program at the Weaverville church right away to make the much needed repairs on the church building.

We are trusting that this will be the best year we have ever had on this charge. Pray for us.

MRS. CLYDE BLANKENSHIP, Reporter.

Connelly Springs.—This is my first report since conference. We have been made to feel that the people appreciate our return and we appreciate the many favors and gifts as evidence of their appreciation. The prospects for a successful year appear much more favorable than at this time last year. We are better organized, have a better system. The pastor and people understand each other better, and a splendid spirit of optimism and Christian fellowship prevails, which gives us a better advantage over conditions existing last year.

The well, started last year, has recently been finished, and we are glad to get water near. The parsonage has recently been painted on the outside. It was painted on the inside last year. With the new porch, yard leveled, shrubbery in the yard, and other improvements in and around the parsonage it could hardly be recognized as the same place.

We are glad to be back with these good people. If this was a stronger work, it would be hard to get this preacher to change. We hope by the assistance of the Holy Spirit to be able to further develop the work so they may be able to have the pastoral service they deserve. We request the continued prayers of our friends. J. L. LOVE, Pastor.

Burlington, First.—The first quarter of this conference year is about gone. The work in this particular field has been about normal. Of course, we felt the effects of the slump which usually comes at the beginning of the new conference year. This ought to be a time of new life, zeal and enthusiasm, but, alas, the reverse is often true. The work also received a setback during the Christmas season. Passing strange that His work should get a setback in the season which marks the anniversary of His birth! But the work is making noticeable gains now and we are hoping for an unusually good year in His blessed service.

Soon after the Annual Conference adjourned we held a very fine fellowship meeting in the hut. All official members of the church and Sunday school were in attendance, and the occasion was most helpful and inspiring. We enjoyed a very bountiful and delicious meal served free of cost to us by the ladies of the church. After the meal we faced very frankly and prayerfully our tasks and responsibilities for the new conference year. Professor Stough, of Gibsonville, brought us a very splendid and inspiring message. Certainly we left the room with a very keen sense of our obligation and with a determination to do our best for His sake.

A session of the Sunday school was the only service conducted in our church on the Sunday prior to Christmas Day. The pastor was taken ill on Saturday and at that hour could not get anyone to preach for him the next day. There has been a great deal of sickness among our people and there are those who are sick now, but not as many as there were a few weeks ago.

Since conference a Young People's Choir has been organized. There are quite a number of young people interested in this project. This choir has charge of the music for the Sunday evening services. Yesterday we observed Young People's Day and we had a rather large group of young people in the choir last evening in spite of the cold weather.

We have raised our assessment for Annual Conference expense. The amount allotted to this church was $150. Financially we are doing much better this year than in the previous four years. We began the year with money in the treasury, and since conference the people have made a good showing financially.

At present our hope is bright; the interest is good; the spirit is brotherly, and we are expecting a highly successful year in His name and for His sake.

FRED W. PASCHALL.

Orange Charge.—We now have a Laymen's Fellowship organization at each church. Efland organized January 20. The first object at each place is to raise McCulloch Memorial Fund. We hope to have this raised in full soon.

A Christian Endeavor society has recently been organized at Efland. We feel this will be a great help to our young people.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Reidsville.—Having been returned to Reidsville for the ninth consecutive year, I entered upon the work imemdiately after conference adjourned, and have been on the job ever since.

Circles Nos. 1, 2 and 3 gave the pastor and his wife "parties," and presented them with a beautiful table lamp and electric waffle irons. These tokens of love and esteem are highly appreciated.

Circle No. 2 held an old-time singing in the church, aided by members of the Midway church. This was an enjoyable occasion. A silver offering of several dollars was received. We are deeply grateful to the Midway friends for their valuable contribution to the music.

On December 11, Mrs. S. J. Kernodle celebrated her 85th birthday. A turkey dinner with all the trimmings was enjoyed by a few intimate friends. The pastor and his wife sat in on the feast. Incidentally, may I say that we were invited to seven turkey dinners during the holidays, since which time the pastor has done nothing much except gobble.

At Christmas we were remembered by numbers of our friends. Among the things received was a turkey, fresh meat, canned goods, cakes, and "oodles" of Christmas cards. Such expressions of good will cause a fellow to thank the good Lord that he is alive and able to take nourishment.

Our first quarterly conference has been held and everything is set for the year. The stewards have very carefully outlined their work, and we are hopeful of reaching all our goals with flying colors. The Philathea Class will pay for the lights for the church, the C. E. Society will pay the water bill, and the Baraca Class will pay the fuel bill. These are lively organizations, rendering valuable service to the church.

Flu and whooping cough have been raging in our midst for several weeks, and the attendance at Sunday school and church has been greatly reduced. However, conditions are improving and we hope to get back to our normal condition soon.

GEO. R. BROWN, Pastor.

Mecklenburg Charge.—We held our first quarterly conference on Saturday, January 12, 1935. All churches were represented except Beulah. There appeared to be a spirit of co-operation among the members in their acceptance of the programs of the church. We, however, did not accept the World Service budget in full.

We were pleasantly surprised on last third Sunday morning at New Hope church to find our car filled with a nice pantry shower. Thanks, New Hope. We will think of you while feasting on these good things. May God bless you and may we have a great year together.

Mrs. M. L. Stallings is ill at this writing. We are praying for her a speedy recovery.

P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—We are all proud to say that Rev. and Mrs. Trollinger got moved last week. They were at the quarterly meeting Saturday afternoon at Pine Bluff. The quarterly meeting was interesting, with several good suggestions.

Rev. and Mrs. Trollinger visited the sick baby at the home of Elwood Voncannon Sunday afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid met at Elwood Voncannon's last Tuesday afternoon and visited the sick baby and pounded with a lot of nice things to eat. It was greatly appreciated.

Welch Memorial.—Our pastor, Rev. J. D. Williams, brought us another good message yesterday at the 11 o'clock service. His sermons are very interesting and the real Christian hearer has learned to appreciate their real value. The only regrettable thing about his sermons is the fact that the ones who need them most are not there to hear them.

Our Sunday school attendance has held up very well during the last few months, although there has been much sickness. Mrs O. F. Voncannon is recuperating from an operation and we hope she will be able to be back with us soon. Several other members of our church and Sunday school have been ill with the flu and we hope they will soon be able to be back with us.

The Brotherhood of our church has been very active. They held a meeting at the pastor's home last Thursday evening and some very important business was discussed.

Last Friday evening the Philathea Class gave a chicken supper. The proceeds will go toward the hut fund. Next Friday night the Young Men's Class and the Catherine Gill Bible Class are planning an old-fashioned box supper. The proceeds will also go towards the hut fund.

On Monday evening, January 7, the High Point Christian Endeavor Union held the first mass meeting of the year at Welch Memorial. The new officers for the union were installed. Mr. A. J. Koonce had charge of the installation service and a very impressive installation service was held. Since this is Christian Endeavor Week, the Endeavorers of Welch Memorial and of High Point are planning to make it a very eventful week.

Bethel, Flat Rock Charge.—Christmas has come and gone since our last report. We had a nice tree and a very interesting program, considering the practice the little folks had. There was a treat for all the members and I think presents too. The writer did not have the pleasure of attending our last preaching services owing to sickness in the home. There has been quite a bit of flu in the community, and the weather being so cold, our attendance at Sunday school has fallen off considerably, but we hope as spring approaches and the days get warm and sunny that everyone will come back and do their best to make this the best year ever for old Bethel. The Christian Endeavor meetings were suspended until spring. Preaching services each first Sunday at 11 o'clock and every third Sunday at 3 o'clock. We wish all of our readers and the editor much success during the new year.

Roberta.—I don't believe I have made a report this new conference year, while there have been several reports by the reporter. I wanted to report sooner, but I realize that space is getting to be a very rare thing with the Herald lately, and for this reason I will try to make this report brief.

Since we have returned to this field we have been very busy. We are finding much to be done, and we are finding so much to be done that we have not been able to do all yet. The Roberta mill has not run but a few days since Christmas, and this has hindered some in a financial way. Yet we are thankful that we can do what we have, and we are really proud of what we have done on our Herald subscription quota. It is so good to see so many of our people reading the Herald. May I take this method to thank every one of you again for what you have done in this part of our work. I am so glad to hear so many comments on the Herald. We have been publishing a little church paper ourselves known as the "Roberta Church Visitor," which the people like and support. I trust that we will be able to let the Herald take its place in the near future.

The ladies have placed a nice oil range in the parsonage, and have placed three sets of new steps at the doors of the parsonage. These, as well as the range, were very badly needed and are greatly appreciated by the pastor and family. The church trustees brought a bunch of workers to the church one day last week and topped the trees in front of the church and brightened up the grounds.

This makes much difference and the appearance is better. The good ladies are at work on a project to raise money to pay off our part of the conference budget that is now due. Thanks for our good ladies; they shouldered all the conference obligation last year as well as many local obligations. Come on, ladies, we are banking on you.

Brother R. H. Love, father of Rev. Fred Love, has been very ill since conference. We have greatly missed him each Sunday this new year. Mr. Love is improving some, and we long to see him in his unfilled place at church soon. Mrs. Will Taylor has been dangerously ill for several weeks, but is up now and on the road to recovery. Mrs. Omey Penneger, teacher in the primary department of Roberta day school, has been out of school for several days. We visited Mrs. Penneger this afternoon and she is planning to return to her work tomorrow.

Mr. Jim Linker, one of our good brothers, has moved out of the community, and will not be with us as regular as in the past. We greatly miss Bro. Linker and his good family. We were glad to welcome into our fold Brother and Sister Walter Richie and daughter, who came to us from an M. E. church of Raleigh. Mr. Richie is widely known in this county and was formerly with the Richie Hardware Company of Concord.

We are looking forward to February 11 when this church will be host to the Western Pastors' Federation. Our good ladies are planning a sumptuous lunch for all who will be present. We wish to extend this welcome to any layman in these boundaries. Come with your pastor or let him come with you. We greatly trust that all the pastors of the western district will plan to be present on this date. May we urge that as many members of this church as can be present.

EARL A. COOK, Pastor.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Another conference year has come and nearly three months of it gone. We have not had a report for quite a while, due to the changing of reporters. We are very glad indeed to welcome Rev. A. D. Shelton to our church as pastor, and trust that he and his family may enjoy the fellowship of the people and enjoy their stay with us.

Our Sunday school is moving on nicely, with the new superintendent, Mr. L. A. Parr. The attendance is good, especially with such cold weather and the sickness that has been in our community since Christmas.

Our church services are well attended. The church is mostly filled for the 11 o'clock services and well attended at night. Mr. Shelton has been doing some wonderful preaching, some real gospel preaching since being here, and he has the audience's attention. All seem to enjoy his preaching very, very much.

On January 19 our first quarterly conference was held and business for the new year taken up.

On Saturday night, January 20, the Ladies' Aid gave a brunswick stew and oyster supper in the church hut. They sold everything and cleared $22. We hope to give quite a few suppers for raising money.

Mrs. R. C. Lineberry, one of our faithful workers, remains sick. Has not been able to attend services for two years, but she very often remembers her Sunday school class by sending 25 cents for the class collection. Many, many thanks, Mrs. Lineberry, and we miss you lots.

We are having a good attendance at prayer meeting each Wednesday night and our prayer meetings are very interesting. After prayer meetings we have choir practice, with C. E. Wilson as choir leader.

Our aims are to make this a successful year.

MISS LILLIAN WADE, Reporter.

Lincolnton.—Lincolnton is still on the map. Rev. J. R. Anderson filled his regular appointment Sunday night and preached a great message on "Many Shall Strive to Enter in and Shall Not Be Able," his chief theme being "Strive to enter in at the strait gate."

Our Sunday school attendance is fine, the attendance last Sunday being 124 and offering $12.02. Our Sunday school is not at its best due to cold and sickness.

A few children have the whooping cough. Mrs. Anderson has been ill, though she is improving now. Mrs. Little is ill, and others whom I cannot recall just now. Our wishes are for their speedy recovery.

The C. E. Society is very good, too. It is handicapped to some extent.

We planned to organize a Ladies' Auxiliary last week but were detained, due to sickness.

Sorry to hear of Mrs. J. D. Cranford's illness; hoping a speedy recovery.

REPORTER.

Asheville.—I do regret that I failed to mention last week that we were observing Young People's Day this Sunday. I was too far in the "dumps" to think much last week and should not even have sent in a report. We did, however, observe the day and very appropriately. The program sent out by the Board of Christian Education was used throughout the day with some variations. The evening service was under the direction of Miss Frances Cunningham; she was assisted by the following: Misses Nancy Clouse, Melle Smith, Irene Miller and Mrs. C. B. Baker, each of whom gave a short talk using the suggested material sent out from the Board. Mr. James H. Bailey assisted, too, by rendering two beautiful selections, accompanied by Miss Clouse, the church pianist. Those present seemed to enjoy the service thoroughly.

Mr. Minnis in his sermons recently has been stressing the idea of tithing, and Sunday he gave to all present the pledge cards sent out from the General Conference and a goodly number of our folks signed them and returned them to the pastor then and there. It is believed this is one of the most worthwhile steps taken by our members in many years, not alone from the spiritual standpoint, but from the material as well. Jesus could well say to many of us today, "O ye of little faith!" for so often we profess to be Christians yet are afraid to believe in His promises, and if we believe not, how can we expect good to come to us? "According to your faith be it unto you" (Matt. 9:29). It is hoped that more of our folk will step out on the promises of God and thus enrich their lives both spiritually and materially.

Sunday school attendance was on the increase this week. Mrs. Bolick's Beginners led the entire school in the number present The Junior girls and the Primaries were just one behind the Beginners. The Young Men's Class had the highest per capita offering, but the Frances Cunningham Philathea Class kept the record for largest collection. (I'd like to see some class beat that Philathea Class some Sunday.) The Junior boys had the largest collection in their department.

There will be no midweek prayer service this week due to the lectures which are being given each evening of this week at the Central Methodist church by Mr. S. D. Gordon, author of the famous "Quiet Talks." All of our members are earnestly urged to attend as many of these talks as time will permit.

Most of the sick are on the mend now. Mr. and Mrs. Hanner and Mrs. J. R. Moore were out on Sunday after an absence of several weeks. Mr. D. L. West is still confined to his bed and our sincere prayers go out to him and Mrs. West, in the hope that he will soon be restored to health.

Our Herald subsidy fund is growing (we expect to send it all in the first of next week, Mr. Pritchard). Anyone who can and will is urged to give a donation to Mrs. Joyner this coming Sunday.

I would like to say before closing that if any of you thought from last week's report that we were dying in Asheville, it is well to think again. You must blame the reporter: she had a severe case of the blues, but the clouds have parted again and "God is in his heaven, all is right with the world."

M. L. B.

Kannapolis.—Young People's Day was observed Sunday, January 27, in a favorable way, using the special programs.

The pleasure was ours on Sunday evening, January 13, when Rev. Mr. Hoyt Wood, of High Point College, supplied for our pastor while Rev. Mr. Smith filled the pulpit for Mr. Madison of High Point.

We are proud to state the McCulloch Memorial Fund of our church has been raised.

Rev. Mr. Smith is planning to put on a tithing campaign through February, March and April. Hope each church member will co-operate in these plans.

Wednesday evening prayer services are continued each week in the church by Mr. R. T. Sides. Won't you be one in this group?

A group of church members and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Galliway were glad to share some of this world's goods with them when on January 18 they received a good pounding.

On Saturday, January 19, the young people gave an oyster supper in the parsonage, at which time a right good sum was realized The report is given that $12 worth of Christian Endeavor material has been bought and is being used by our C. E. Society. A general meeting was held on Saturday evening, January 26, to consider means of improving interest and general church conditions. Workers' Council met on Sunday, January 27, to study Sunday school problems and to increase interest.

Our pastor has instituted a new monthly report system for the stewards. Three thousand financial blanks have been printed which when filled out by the stewards give the financial condition of the church each month. These blanks are distributed to the members.

We are sorry to know of any sick ones anywhere and we hope for all a speedy recovery. We understand that one of our own number, Miss Ollie Sloop, is to undergo a very serious operation on Monday, January 28. We all pray and ask the prayers of all others for her recovery to health and happiness. We wish to express our sympathy and best wishes to Mrs. D. B. Cartner, who has recently undergone an appendicitis operation at Davis Hospital, Statesville, N. C.

MRS. X. E. GRAYSON, Reporter.

Graham.—We observed Young People's Day Sunday at both morning and evening services. Our pastor brought a splendid message to the young people on "Youth's Sharing in God's Business," at the 11 o'clock service. Mrs. P. H. Amick and Mrs. J. D. Lewis sang a duet. The evening service was in charge of Junius Neese, the music given by the junior choir.

Our quarterly conference had to be postponed but will be held Friday evening at 7:30 at the hut. All members are urged to be present.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will give a Valentine party at the hut Saturday evening, February 2, at 7:30. Small aprons have been sent out and each person who has received one is asked to measure their waist line and for each inch place a penny in the apron pocket and bring the apron to the party Saturday night. Light refreshments will be served.

We are glad to report that Mrs. A. L. Lewis is improving, also that Mrs. Heenan Hughes and Mrs. John McPherson are able to be out again.

One of our members, Mrs. Henry Sykes, has been sick for a number of years. She has our sympathy and prayers. Our pastor recently visited Mr. B. N. Clark, and reports an improvement in Mr. Clark's condition.

REPORTER.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—Our pastor, Brother Trolinger, moved on January 22 into the parsonage, and the whole charge welcomes you, Brother and Sister Trolinger, to the work and also gives you a special invitation to visit our homes just when it suits you best.

The first quarterly conference was held last Saturday, January 26, at 2 p. m. at Pine Bluff church. All churches were represented at the conference and the following officers were elected: Parsonage committee, Love's Grove, Sister J. W. Tarlton and Brother John Smith; Pine Bluff, Sister Joe Jenkins and Brother J. T. Voncannon; and Mill Grove, Sister L. W. McCoy and Brother S. N. Garmon. O. B. Furr was elected circuit steward, also elected secretary of conference with C. W. Misenheimer as assistant secretary.

So far this year it seems that the charge has been doing very good work. As long as we pull together we will accomplish good, but, as we all know, unless we work together we will not accomplish very much good for the Lord's work. I feel confident that the more we do toward the upbuilding of the Lord's work the more we will prosper. This promise is made to us in the fifth chapter of Matthew. L. W. McCOY, Reporter.

Mebane.—We observed Young People's Day throughout the day yesterday at our church, starting with the Sunday school, after which the pastor brought a very earnest and helpful message to the young. At the evening hour Mr. Junius Neese, of Graham, spoke to us. We were pleased with his message, a young man bringing the message to young people. He spoke sincerely and encouragingly to us. We feel that his was a very worthwhile message and hope he comes again.

Most of our sick seem to be improving. However, our L. T. S. is not being so well attended because of severe cold. The few that are attending are enjoying the studies of Rev. J. C. Auman and the pastor.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet tonight at the church. Rev. J. C. Auman will speak. The business will be presided over by the president, Mrs. A. H. Jobe. The first meeting of the laymen is scheduled to be held Wednesday night in place of the regular prayer service.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON, Reporter.

First Church, Charlotte.—There has been a great spiritual awakening in our church that is drawing great crowds to both Sunday morning and evening services, and also to the midweek prayer services. A visitor recently remarked concerning the Sunday evening services, which are evangelistic, "I did not know that there were any such Sunday evening services anywhere in town." Every Sunday, except two, for twenty weeks new members have been added to the church, making a total of one hundred new members.

The church school attendance has broken all former records and continues to increase.

At this time last year there were seven members in the Young Men's Class, Mr. R. S. Garmon, teacher; today there are thirty members in this class.

The Wilma Shaw Bible Class, Mrs. H. L. Jones, teacher, has outgrown their classroom. They had forty-one women present last Sunday regardless of the very bad weather.

The Baraca Class has just closed a very enthusiastic attendance contest, with Mr. John M. Muse as captain of the Red side, and Mr. G. W. Stegall captain of the Blues. The Blue side won and will be entertained at an oyster supper on Thursday evening. Members of the Wilma Shaw Bible Class, the church school superintendent, Mr. M. D. Frink, and Mr. H. G. Garrison, secretary, are invited, and also the pastor.

Testaments were presented to Joseph Garmon, Kathryn Garmon, Mildred Craig, Billy Hollifield and Fred Love, Jr., for perfect attendance in the church school during the past year. Fred Love, Jr., has completed four years of unbroken attendance. Mr. C. B. Hollifield also had a perfect attendance record for the past year

The midweek prayer services are attended by large crowds, who say they would not miss the blessings they receive from this service. It is a regular gospel feast, usually an experience meeting, with many persons giving their testimony. Some seem almost shouting happy. It reminds one of the services we have heard that they had back in the days when "the church and the world walked far apart." When such gospel services are held we can truly say like David, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the House of the Lord."

On next Sunday morning the membership will vote on the erection of a tabernacle at the rear of the church. The erection of this tabernacle is necessary to accommodate the increased attendance in the church school. Revival services will be held in the tabernacle beginning four weeks before Easter.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor Society held a delightful social and business meeting at the Tadlock home on Thomas Avenue Friday evening.

The Intermediate C. E. Society, under the leadership of Mr. R. S. Garmon, is holding some interesting prayer meetings. Mrs. W. J. Bryan, teacher of Bible in Central High School, was the speaker on Sunday evening

Mrs. Paul Colson is superintendent of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society. We were glad to have Miss Vista Dixon, of High Point, worship with us last Sunday morning.

We are happy to have Herbert Garmon back with us. He has been transferred here from Greensboro, where he has been working for several months.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the church on Monday evening. Mrs. B. W. Little, the president, will be in charge. Every woman in the church is invited to attend.

Henderson.—The Henderson church observed Young People's Day last Sunday with an appropriate program in each of its services for the day. Despite the freezing weather and snow and ice, the program was carried out as planned.

The entire day was characterized by the presence of youth in all places of responsibility in the church and church school. A young person presided at each service, a young person either taught or made a short talk in each class of the Sunday school, the young people's choir provided the music for each service. At the evening service, instead of the sermon, a group of young people made short talks. A special feature of the evening program was the presence of the local high school orchestra that gave a program of sacred music.

We are planning a young people's banquet for Friday night, to which the young people of the town and county are invited. The principal address will be made by Rev. T. J. Whitehead, president of the North Carolina C. E. Union and president of the Conference Council of Religious Education.

A renewed interest is being taken in the work of our Sunday school. The Workers' Council has been reorganized, and under its direction a campaign has been inaugurated the aim of which is to increase membership and attendance.

The pastor continues to be encouraged as he observes a keen interest in all phases of the church work.

We are still working on our memorial fund, the total not having yet been raised. Unfortunately, right at this time our heating plant gave out and of necessity had to be replaced with a new one. The people have been very responsive to the needs of the church, and things are hopeful for a good year.

We have been pleased to receive into our membership recently the following new members: Mrs. H. T. Powell, Jr., Mrs. J. G. Satterwhite, T. W. Ellis, Jr., and J. H. Hicks, Jr.

PASTOR.

Harmony Church, Anderson Charge. — As you have not had many reports from this church, we are going to try to do better. The pastor filled his regular appointment fourth Sunday morning and preached a very inspiring and helpful message. But sorry he was unable to fill his night appointment due to illness. All wish for him a speedy recovery.

Committees were appointed to raise the money for the McCulloch Memorial Fund and other budget.

We were sorry indeed to give up our former pastor, but like our new one just fine and expect a successful year.

REPORTER.

Pleasant Union.—Pleasant Union has not yet given a report this year, but that does not mean that we have not been progressing in our work. We have a new Sunday school superintendent, Prof. R. W. Utley, who has made our work both beneficial and interesting.

Last Sunday Rev. Mr. Braxton preached an interesting sermon. Preceding this the Lord's Supper was observed.

We are planning to observe our Young People's Day on February 10. At 11 o'clock a sermon will be preached to the young people. In the evening a play entitled "This War" will be given by the members of Pleasant Union Sunday school.

Due to illness and bad weather we have had several absences. But in the future we hope to grow both in work and attendance.

H. R. B.

Love's Grove, Midland Charge.—Our Sunday school is getting along fine. We have bought doors and have closed up our Sunday school classes. We have met our financial part fine. We have paid for the doors already. It is much more convenient to have the rooms closed in. We can study and discuss the lesson more fully. We are not disturbed by the other classes. We have a secretary for every class, who calls the roll and takes up the collection. Then we have a secretary to make out a report of all the classes. The attendance is not as good as it has been, because of the rough weather. The attendance is not as good as it was a year ago, but the collections are better now than they ever have been.

We received our pastor and wife with a cordial welcome. They have moved into the parsonage at Midland. We have a board called the parsonage committee. This board met at the parsonage January 28, looked over it and decided to try to collect 25 cents from every member of the church. This fund will go into the treasury, then it will be used for the upkeep of the parsonage and as this committee sees fit to spend it.

We held our first quarterly conference at Pine Bluff. All three churches were represented. The official board was there from all three churches. This conference was held January 26. The attendance was not as good as we would like for it to have been. Work was discussed for the new year which, I hope, will be cheerfully done.

We all like our new pastor fine. He tries to get to the church in time for Sunday school. The preacher and his wife have made for themselves a number of friends by their thoughtfulness of all who needed encouragement and actual and spiritual service. We hope that Rev. J. H. Trolinger and wife will enjoy living and serving on this work, as the Midland charge.

RUPERT SMITH.

Mt. Zion, Weaverville Charge.—The work of this charge has begun in a very encouraging manner for the new year. Mr. Harkey, the new pastor, was received with a warm welcome by the people and he is liked by everyone. His sermons have been very interesting and inspiring. The members are delighted with the many visits our pastor has made. He shows enthusiasm in his work. Two of the churches have pounded the minister and his family. Everyone is looking forward hopefully to a brighter and better year. May God help us to make it a successful year.

Plans are being made to remodel the Weaverville church.

An interesting C. E. society is functioning at two of our churches and plans are being made to organize one in the third church.

A very interesting Women's Auxiliary is doing a splendid work at Weaverville church. An auxiliary is to be organized soon at Mt. Zion. REPORTER.

First Church, Concord.—Yesterday was a good day for Concord church in spite of the inclement weather. We observed Young People's Day at both morning and evening preaching services. At the morning service the pastor preached a special sermon to the young people on the subject "The Value of Little Things." The pastor was glad to preach and it was made easier for him to do since the auditorium was filled with attentive people on such an unfavorable day as it was. At the evening service the young people gave the play "This War," and again the church was crowded. The young people who had part in this play deserve much praise, and to say they did their parts well is putting it mildly. Also, Mrs. Esther Litker, who had the responsibility of getting up the play, deserves much credit for her faithfulness in directing the young people. After the play a very impressive candle lighting service was held.

The leaders of the church are very active in all their departments. And the membership seems ready and willing to co-operate with them in carrying on the work of the church. The Auxiliary is doing splendid work under the leadership of Mrs. L. M. Burrus. The Ladies' Aid Society was successful with their chicken and oyster supper on Saturday night, January 19.

Our first quarterly conference will be on Monday night, February 4, and we are expecting to hear good reports from all the official members. D. I. GARNER, Pastor.

West End, Greensboro.—Rev. W. F. Ashburn filled the morning appointment on January 20, and Rev. J. R. Hutton the evening, due to the absence of Dr. Bethea, who had been called to supply the pulpit for Rev. Joe Lynch in Lynchburg, Va. Mr. Lynch has been seriously ill for some time and his appointments have been filled by visiting ministers, Dr. Bethea having been the only one called from the N. C. Conference, however.

Our pastor used Matt. 19:22, "And he went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions," as his subject at the 11 o'clock hour. The leaflets for the Young People's Day program were used throughout the day, being climaxed by the play "This War," given by the members of the C. E. Society. It proved to be a very impressive service.

The Philathea Class held its monthly session in the Huntley-Stockton-Hill Salon with the president, Mrs. R. R. Wright, in charge. A large number were present and several plans were formulated to help further the program of the church. An interesting social hour followed.

The midweek prayer service was in charge of the C. E. Society.

Circle No. 1 will meet Monday afternoon, February 4, with Mrs. J. K. Stockard and Mrs. Charles Routh, 924 Walker Avenue.

Plans are being made for the annual February thank-offering service, and it is hoped that a very gratifying offering will be received for this worthy mission cause.

Pleasant Grove.—Young People's Day was observed at Pleasant Grove church Sunday. An interesting program based on "Our Share in Building a Christian World" was rendered. Mr. B. L. West, principal of Hasty school, was the speaker for the Sunday school service. He delivered a short talk on "What Contribution Can Our Sunday School Make Toward Building a Christian World?" In his talk Mr. West referred to Acts 28:3, when Paul brought forth a bundle of sticks and laid them on the fire. From this text three important things are taught—service, humility, and united work. Paul wasn't asked to bring forth the sticks; he did it voluntarily. He said the Sunday school can help to make the world Christian by praying, planning their work, and pushing it, and by following Paul. In conclusion, he said, "When you come to die, if you have done your part in making the world Christian, you can say, 'My work is ended but my life is not ended; what I have done will live on.'"

At the 11 o'clock service Rev. H. L. Powell read a part of the 19th chapter of Matthew. Mr. Garlington, a young ministerial student from High Point College, delivered the Young People's Day message. He brought cut how God puts His people to a test, how Abraham was asked to sacrifice his son on the altar, and how the young man in Matthew 19:16 was asked to sell what he had and give it to the poor. He told of how Jesus met with temptation. He asked the question, "When we are put to the crucial test, are we willing to say, 'Here am I, Lord, send me'?" He ended by saying, "We must keep an eye on Jesus and follow Him, no matter what it cost." Mr. Garlington's sermon was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Mr. Quentin Veach introduced both of the speakers.

The Servi Autre Class and the Sunshine Auxiliary gave Mrs. Lloyd Haynes a miscellaneous shower at her home Wednesday, January 23. Mrs. Haynes, before her marriage last September, was Miss Louise Powell, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Powell. The bride was the recipient of many attractive and useful gifts.

First Church, High Point.—On January 27 we celebrated Young People's Day with three very fine services. The Sunday school, except the very youngest children, assembled in one large group in a program of "Building a Christian World." The main feature of this program was an address by Mr. Byron Hayworth, young attorney of our city, and member of the Friends church. The main item of his address was that the principles of Jesus laid down in His Sermon on the Mount, put into practice, would solve the world's problems. So far the world's attitude toward those principles has been the same as if that world had asked for direction to go somewhere, and upon getting those directions had immediately exclaimed, "They aren't right," and proceeded to go in the opposite direction. He spoke of peace for all mankind, and love even to our enemies.

Rev. J. C. Madison was very impressive at the 11 o'clock service in asking and answering questions related to youth and the church, reminding some of his hearers of his former successes as a High Point College debater. The climax of the sermon came in a repetition of parts of the hymn "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," which was followed by the call to prayer. As the congregation bowed in prayer, a sweet voice in the choir, accompanied by soft strains from the organ, prayed, "Jesus, Keep Me Near the Cross," a hymn with which every member of the congregation was perhaps familiar. I mention this because it is one of the few prayer songs I have ever heard that was really a prayer to fit my mood, and I have heard many voices sing hymns or other songs while congregations waited with bowed heads, disturbed rather than helped by the song that was being sung (if they were all like me).

At the evening service the High Point College choir gave a beautiful program.

We are happy to report two new members of the church during the month of January on confession of faith. These are Alan Stanwood Kennett and Henry Norman Surratt.

We welcome to our Cradle Roll Mary Layne Ballard, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ballard, and Sarah Patrick Peacock, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Peacock.

Several members of our congregation have been ill recently, including our pastor, who had a five days' illness from flu. The pulpit was supplied very acceptably in his absence by Dr. P. E. Lindley and Rev. Aubert Smith. We regret that Mr. J. A. Gray continues critically ill following a fall two weeks ago.

Miss Josephine Ferguson and Mr. A. A. Everhart were married December 24 by Dr. George R. Brown at Reidsville. They are making their home at 1100 English Street, this city.

The church dining room and kitchen are giving good service this month. There were supper meetings for the Laymen's Fellowship Monday evening of last week and the Church Council of Religious Education and the officers and teachers of the Sunday school Thursday of last week. The circles of the Woman's Auxiliary in rotation serve Sunday night supper regularly to the Young People's C. E. Society. This week on Thursday night the City Union C. E. banquet will be held in our church dining room, and on Friday night the Young People's C. E. Society will have a banquet all its own for itself and friends. Of course, with all these meals there goes the feast of reason and flow of souls.

The eight circles of the Auxiliary made reports at the general meeting on January 21. Each circle has a budget of $300 and several of them are within $75 or less of their goal.

Union Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—Rev. G. B. Ferree brought us an interesting sermon the second Sunday in January. I think everyone likes our new pastor fine. We hope to make this one of our best years. We raised the McCulloch Fund in full at this service. The pastor and family had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Poindexter. We have added another stove to the church this winter, which makes it more comfortable. Several of our people have been sick with colds and flu. Mrs. L. N. Poindexter was right sick but is able to be up again. Mr. J. E. Douglass hasn't been feeling so well for the last week. We hope he will soon be better. We are sorry to say Rev. James Ring suffered a stroke today and is seriously ill. Mrs. J. W. P. Baker is so she can sit up in a chair at present, we are glad to say.

On January 20 death claimed one of our sweet little boys, Masca Poindexter, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Evan Poindexter. He died Sunday morning after an illness of eleven days with influenza and pneumonia. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Poindexter; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Scott and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Poindexter, and three great-grandparents, Mrs. J. D Williams and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. P. Baker, and a host of aunts and uncles. Funeral services were held Monday at 2:30 o'clock in the Methodist church at East Bend, where he was a member of Sunday school. Services were conducted by Rev. Charles Hutchens. Pallbearers were Conrad Joyner, Charles B. Huff, Brewer Hutchens and Tommy Caram. Honorary pallbearers and flower girls were taken from the small children of his school. Masca will be greatly missed by all, as he was the only child. The father and mother have our sympathy.

Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw Charge.—I received a letter from an Orange Chapel member a few days ago and my so-called report is mostly derived from it. It explained some things I have been wondering about ever since the election of the new officers. I have been looking every week for a report by the new reporter. I expected notring else but to lose my job, but this letter said I was still "it." That means there will not be much reporting done. I hardly ever get to church during the winter and don't live in the community so as to get any local news (don't like much local news anyway). And I guess they would still threaten to kill me if I reported what is left undone. Oh yes, I could guess at it and say Pastor Loy preached a good sermon—that is the only kind he preaches. Now, I am supposing I have a Pastor Loy, I have not seen him since the new pastors were sent out.

However, we are still taking our monthly offering for the Children's Home, and this letter says they are collecting on the Herald subsidy fund, and are expecting to observe Young People's Day sometime soon. The Sunday school has gone into winter quarters. Owing to sickness and bad weather the attendance was very small. There is something more than sickness and bad weather that keeps most people from church. Now, if they will start up the Ladies' Auxiliary I will write a long report. It has rested more than two whole years, or ever since Rev. T. J. Whitehead left us. I think it should be able to make a pretty good run by now.

I am so scared of that new editor's waste basket (or does he keep a billy goat to eat long reports?) that I did not intend to write but a few lines. However, he can abbreviate it all he wants to. I am glad our Herald has fallen into such good hands. For the benefit of those who don't know him, I would like to do a big piece of "raving" over OUR Dr. J. E. Pritchard. But he is timid and I know "Billy" would get it.

I hardly see how I could live without the Herald. MRS. J. J. CRAWFORD, Reporter.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCE

Methodist Protestant young people between the ages of 15 and 23 years are urged to attend the Young People's Conference of Guilford County, to be held at Grace Methodist Protestant church in Greensboro February 7, beginning at 9:30 o'clock. This meeting is sponsored by the N. C. Sunday School Association and the Guilford County Association and is for young people and their leaders.

FROM REV. R. L. HETHCOX

Browers Chapel, Richland charge, did not pay all of pastor's salary until after the meeting of Annual Conference. For this reason they did not appear on the Honor Roll.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Ray

James Milton Ray, the son of William T. and Annie Ray, was born August 3, 1847. At the age of 17 years he was drafted for service in the Civil War, and suffered, as was the lot of the soldiers at Gettysburg, and other places of battle. On January 28, 1872, he was married to Ann Jerome Stone, of Chatham county. This union was blest with one son, Allie Ray, of the home.

About 60 years ago he accepted Christ the Savior, and joined Center M. P. church, of which he was a member at his death. He liked to go to church. He gave diligent attention to the preaching of the Word. After suffering failing health for the past few years, the tired body of the old soldier lay down in death on December 28, 1934, at the age of 87 years, 4 months and 25 days; and his soul went back to God who gave it.

He is survived by his wife, one son, and one brother, Robert Ray, of Winston Salem, N. C.

The funeral services were conducted at Center M. P. church by the pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, assisted by Rev. C. B. Way, Rev. W. M. Pike, and the writer, all of our own church, and Rev. A. H. Harris, of the Friends church.

May God's grace comfort and sustain all who mourn. A. O. LINDLEY.

Smith

Fred Clayton Smith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Smith, of Liberty, N. C., was born May 22, 1916, and died December 21, 1934, at the age of 18 years, 7 months and 1 day.

It was said of him, whether on the athletic field or on class, "He gave his best." How beautiful it would be if it could be said of everyone, "He gave his best." He said to his loved ones, "I am going to meet Jesus. I want you all to meet me there." His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Gray's Chapel on December 23, in the midst of a great sorrowing throng. Rev. G. L. Reynolds. the pastor, and the writer conducted the services.

Fred leaves his parents, two brothers, Ed and Albert Smith; five sisters, Mrs. L. F McDowell, Mrs. R. A. Allred, Mrs. G. W. Hicks, Mrs. James Long, and Mrs. Kenneth Fogleman. May God comfort all the sorrowing ones! A. O. LINDLEY.

Duke

Mrs. Susie Tharrington Duke was born October 26, 1866, in Franklin County near Louisburg, N. C., and departed this life December 22, 1934. Her death was caused by heart trouble and other complications.

On December 15, 1886, she was united in marriage to Mr. W. M. Duke. To this union were born three sons, Thurman Duke, of Prescott, Ariz.; Marvin Duke, of Glendale, Ariz. (who departed this life in about a week after his mother's death); Roy Duke, of Louisburg, N. C., and one daughter, Mrs Willie P. King, of Arcola, N. C.

In early childhood Mrs. Duke accepted Christ as her personal Savior and united with Bethlehem M. E. church, where she remained a member for a number of years. Later she moved her membership to Hollister M. P. church and remained a faithful member until the time of her death. She was devoted to the work of the Kingdom. Her life was one of a beautiful Christian example, and her sweet, lovable disposition brought her friends both old and young. All those who knew her loved her. She will be greatly missed in her home, her church, and her community. Truly a good woman has gone from us.

Funeral services were held at her home on Sunday afternoon, December 23, 1934, at 2 o'clock, with her pastor, Rev. O. C. Loy, and Rev. L. C. Brothers, of the M. E. church, officiating. Interment was made in the family cemetery beneath a beautiful mound of flowers. KATHLEEN SHEARIN.

Deaton

Mr. Martin Brewster Deaton died on Monday morning, December 24, 1934, from a sudden heart attack. He was a loyal member of State Street M. P. church, and also a member of the board of trustees of the church He was a faithful member of the Men's Bible Class, and always willing to do his part in whatever work was undertaken.

Therefore, be it resolved: First, that the members of the Bible Class deplore the death of this good man;

Second, that the members of the Bible Class and also members of the church extend their deepest sympathy to the devoted wife and relatives;

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the wife and also a copy to the Methodist Protestant Herald.

ALL GOD'S CHIL-EN GOT SHOES

By Luther K. Long

This declaration concerning the possession of shoes is, on the part of many who make it, an act of generous faith.

In southern Georgia I have seen both white and black children walking to school without shoes—and that on frosty ground. I never followed white children to see what they did on entering their school. But when the colored ones came into the school where I had charge, I have heard them engage in the opening exercises with their companions—some of them well shod, others not at all—by singing the spiritual:

"I got shoes,
You got shoes,
All God's chil'en got shoes."

Coming to the refrain, their eyes and faces brightened as they sang:

"When I get to heav'n
Goin' to put on my shoes,
Goin' to walk all over God's heav'n."

Why should it be necessary for any of God's children, of any color or condition, to wait until heaven dawns before enjoying the privilege of putting on those shoes.

Lyman Abbott used to say: "I am a democrat in every nerve of my body, in every globule of my blood. What I mean by 'democrat' is this—that God made this world, not for a few privileged classes, rich and strong and wise, but for all his children: and His Kingdom will not come until all His children have something like a fair chance to make of themselves what they can in the world, and to have some share in its joys and in its prosperity."

REASONABLE DESIRES

Does it seem extravagant to wish that every child in our land might have comfortable footwear, at least during the coldest and slushiest winter weather? If I gave an order to that effect, backed by cash, it could be nicely arranged, for there are plenty of shoe factories, workers and stores ready to co-operate. Does it seem extravagant to wish that every child every day might have all the fresh milk it needs? Cash orders could readily be filled. Cows and the feed for them can be induced to do their part while distributors of milk are awaiting orders. Playground equipment and skilled supervisors may be had on reasonable terms whenever the authorities give the word. Why should people be required to wait for shoes, milk, and other simple comforts of life until after this life has come to an end?

When I go through a city's large and varied retail stores — dry goods, notions, clothing and furniture—or through the wholesale and retail provision markets, I am impressed with the large supply in hand or within call. The sight of so many people wanting this food and manufactured goods, and unable to buy them, is depressing in the extreme. Is it any wonder that the efficiency and the unselfish wisdom of the human connections between labor, production, and distribution are being called in question? This is why socialistic and communistic theories make such an intrigueing appeal to persons on the verge of want, and to many Christians who sympathize with them.

Thousands suffer cold and hunger in the midst of plenty. Soil and other material resources are abundant. Labor, machinery and power are in plentiful supply. Why, then, cannot all the people have food and the ordinary comforts and conveniences essential to a good human existence?

"If any man will not work, neither shall he eat," is good scriptural doctrine, and it should be persistently taught and vigorously enforced. But when men and women work or are willing to work, human inteligence should be able to devise a social system under which every one could be assured the privilege of working and eating.

In comparatively recent years the development of machinery and power, and the increased efficiency of labor, have brought it about that more food and manufactured goods often flood the markets. When there is a profitable market in prospect the production of automobiles, radios, furniture, clothing, copper and iron, jumps ahead and there is an oversupply. This leads to laying off men and closing of factories and mines. This, in turn, brings a decrease in the purchasing power of the people—and we are in for further shrinking of employment and reduction of profits and wages which eventually leads to scarcity of goods, more employment, more profit, larger wages and more money to spend. And so the not-very-merry-go-round goes round and round.

Here is something else that is disquieting. We are assured that when, and if, the old rate of production in mills and shops and on farms returns there will still be a large number of men and women who will not find jobs—a much larger number, and a still larger proportion of the total laboring population than ever before. This because of recently added machinery and power and efficiency. Who, then, will do the increased buying that these unemployed cannot do, but which it will be necessary to have done in order not again to slow up production?

A shorter working day and a shorter working week will help some. Decreasing the number of women and children employed in industry will also aid. However, if this means greatly decreased family incomes, the purchasing power of labor, by far the largest consuming class, will not furnish adequate markets to keep the wheels of industry moving at full speed.

NEW SPIRIT AND OUTLOOK NEEDED

A new spirit needs to come over the ambitions, the outlook and the purposes in life of our people. This is a large and complicated subject, involving a sphere in which much investigation is beginning to be done.

1. The intellectual and cultural elements in life should receive more attention. Not what a man has, but what he is—in spirit, in thought, in feeling—is what really counts. What he sees with interest, what he hears with satisfaction, what he knows, what he loves, what he is thankful for, what he aspires to, and what of good he shares with others—these are contacts with God and man, and they must be considered as the valuable, the real goods of life. It is worth noting that these are the things which, in almost perfect measure, may be had by those who seek them without diminishing the supply and without detriment to one's fellowmen.

"But these are just the things people do not want," I hear the reader saying to himself. True, people have always been willing to spend much more time and money on their vices than on their virtues. "Wholesome food is food that is good for you, but you don't like it," was the observation of a human boy. Plain living and high thinking have always been nice things to talk about, but have never succeeded in making themselves attractive to the multitudes. People want what they want, and are likely to resent interference on the part of well-meaning folks whose tastes are different. Nevertheless, the change in the thought of people along these lines is a necessary part of a program that would get us out of our present troubles. This leads us to a second suggestion of a practical nature:

2. It is time that humans take themselves seriously in hand looking toward the production of a better race of people. It is represented that man was given dominion over the life that is on the land and in the sea. I think it is equally true that men have to have dominion over their individual and social destiny. While much has been done in many fields man and his world just now are quite a mess.

Numbers, even though all our people were well provided for, should not be our ambition. In pioneer days children could be brought to maturity at small money cost. They were assets in farm homes on the days of almost exclusive manual labor. Food, clothing, shelter, and education were of the simplest and least expensive sorts. Our ambition for our children should be quality, attainment, well being, fulness of education and life, rather than mere numbers of human beings. An adequate standard of material comfort within the reach of all is a part of this ideal.

This means that the breeding of the physically, mentally, and morally defective and incompetent should be stopped. Many of these might be permitted to marry, but they should not be allowed to burden and endanger society by reproducing their kinds.

Isn't it extremely foolish for the best business brains of the country to be busied with the production of goods as a means of accumulating wealth, while the people who work are largely neglected and allowed to determine the future population without regard to higher human qualities? The result is that a large and increasing share of the income of the nation must be used to build and operate prisons, asylums for the insane, homes for the hopelessly defective, and food and care for the hundreds of thousands who, either inside or outside of institutions, are unable to provide for themselves. It is high time that we listen with more attention to the wisdom of scientists, the findings of sociologists, and the advice of forward-looking physicians and psychologists to say nothing of the convictions of many intelligent and high-minded women.

We used to take comfort in the thought that this country of ours was in the hands of a good and wise God who was sure to see us through any threatened disaster. We are now realizing that, with our territory and natural resources pretty well preempted, it becomes the duty of the people to set about placing limits to increases in population. Not only must we restrict immigration from foreign countries—which we are wisely doing—we must also stop the breeding of defectives and incompetents. This should continue to be the land of the free and the home of the brave, the land of opportunity and the home of those who can and will benefit by them, the land of men and women who can contribute to their children the makings of real men and women.

HE DIDN'T DO IT

The Sunday school teacher said, "Who led the children of Israel out of Egypt?" There was no answer. Addressing a little boy at the end of the line, the teacher said, "Boy, who led the children of Israel out of Egypt?"

The boy replied. "I don't know. I didn't do it. We just moved here from Missouri three weeks ago."

Well, we got through by the skin of our teeth this time. We figure our expense at approximately $74 each week, varying somewhat by the number we print. This week our receipts are $74.96, so you see, we barely made the grade.

All of the charges at the head of my column stood still this week except Calvary. She steps up a few pegs after resting last week.

But how glad we are for Fallston and Concord and Shiloh and Randolph and Roberta and Midland and Grace and Haw River and a lot of others, among these being Mrs. Bibb Mills, of Birmingham, Ala., the former Miss Frances Sutton, of Greensboro. In sending in her cash she says she could hardly get along without the Herald. We hope she feels that way about it as long as she lives.

And is not this strange that there was not a penny of Subsidy in the list this week. Of course, we know that the rough weather of the past two Sundays has played havoc with all the plans of the churches. Herald agents cannot get money unless they can see the people, and the people have been rathr scarce at most of the churches, so far as we have heard. But we have faith in the cause which we represent and are very certain that things are coming out all right.

Remember, the race is still on and it is only those who work that win. Will you be a winner? We shall look for a long list for next week.

NOTICE, THIRD DISTRICT

Since talking with Mrs. Nelson, district chairman women's work, we have decided to ask pastors, laymen and representatives of Woman's Auxiliary work to meet at our Mebane church Saturday, March 2, at 2 p. m.

We will arrange so that the pastors' and laymen's meeting will not interfere with the women's meeting.

The men will have an informal meeting to discuss ways of carrying out the conference program.

The women will present their program in their own way.

Pastors, please announce.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

—The daily press carries the news that J. W. Swain, of the firm of McCulloch & Swain, printers of the Herald, will in the near future establish a type-setting plant in the business district of Greensboro. The plant will serve printers both in Greensboro and elsewhere. It is the hope of Mr. Swain that the enterprise will relieve the firm of McCulloch & Swain of part of its payroll expense.

The Tithing Campaign

Regardless of what people in the past have thought about tithing, it is enough to make one pause and think to comprehend the significance of the new enthusiasm in tithing that is spreading from one denomination to another and is ultimately to include all the denominations in this country. One might ask the question, where did this enthusiasm come from and how did it get started? The answer to this question is that there have always been some people, even from Abraham down to the present time, who have been tithers.

But the immediate boost to tithing seems to have come from a Presbyterian church in Roanoke, Va. This church with a membership of about 400 had a debt of about $15,000. The morale of the congregation was at a low ebb, and some were almost willing to give up the struggle, when the pastor, Rev. G. L. Whiteley, began to make some investigations as to the income of the members, and found that a conservative estimate would place the amount at $2,160 a week. This, however, was the income of only 137 members, the others not having a definite income. It was then agreed to ask the people to tithe, and this they agreed to do. The time agreed upon was for three months. The usual offerings had been about $50 a week, but with the tithing campaign on the offerings went up to $450 for their banner week. At the end of fifteen weeks it was found that the sum of $2,626 had been raised, the deficit had been cleared away and the people were in high spirits again. The plan contained such tremendous possibilities that the governing body of the Presbyterian church asked that the Rev. Mr. Whiteley be released from the active work of his church and be allowed to visit various sections of the denomination to speak to the people on the subject of tithing.

So much for the Presbyterians. What about ourselves? There is a campaign on in the Methodist Protestant church to tithe for the months of February, March, and April, two-thirds of the proceeds to go for World Service and one-third to the Annual Conference budget. This campaign has been launched by Dr. J. C. Broomfield, the President of the General Conference, and his official family. Annual Conferences are falling in line and the campaign is bound to result in great good.

And while on this subject the editor of the HERALD would like to say that the church which he serves had a most blessed experience in tithing last year in the month of April. This was set aside as tithing month, the proceeds to be divided equally between local expenses and the church debt. So gratifying were the results and so blessed were the experiences that there was a universal request that another month be set aside, so the month of September was also set aside as tithing month. This was so satisfactory that the first quarterly conference of this year set aside April and September of this year as tithing months. But here is what we are coming to: This very night, in a meeting of the stewards of Calvary church, it was decided that the months agreed upon were not enough, so the month of May was added to the month of April as tithing months.

Some people preach tithing as legally binding upon the people of our day, but this writer does not preach it in that sense. There might be some argument in favor of that position, and others might find argument against it. But this writer does preach it as a privilege. For it to be the most blessed experience possible it ought not to be considered a legal obligation. It ought to spring out of the soul of man in recognition of the goodness of God to us in establishing his church in the world, with all that church has meant to us. If salvation means as much to us as we sometimes say it does, then we ought to take an offering unto the Lord. If a person wants to give more than a tenth he ought to feel free to do so. But if our membership generally would give a tenth, we would soon have our church debts paid, our Annual Conference would soon be on easy street, and we could pay our World Service and the indebtedness on High Point College and the Children's Home, and nobody would feel any burden and everybody would be happier for doing it.

One thing that ought to appeal to people is the fact that the tithe is a reasonable method. The man that makes much is able to give more than the man who does not make much. But the man who makes but little can feel that he is doing his part, just as much as the man who gives in large sums. Each man gives in proportion to the way the Lord has prospered him.

Furthermore, as we said before, tithers are happy givers. In all this writer's experience he has never found a tither that was not happy. The tither can feel that he has some part in helping to carry on the work of the Lord and he is glad. So, here is a solution to our financial problem. There is no compulsion about it. Those who want to practice it can do it, but it does not require a large number to tithe to get results. If one-fourth of the members of the church were to tithe, what a change would come over our churches!

So here's wishing success to the Presbyterians in their campaign, and here's wishing success to Methodist Protestants and any other denomination that is willing to try something that is reasonable, is easy, and gets results.

LISTEN TO BROTHER ROGERS

Last week I wrote Brother J. G. Rogers, President of the Layman's Federation, and a member of the McCulloch Memorial Fund Committee, and asked him to "write a piece" for this column for this week. I am supposing that he has done what I asked him to do. (Folks don't always do what I ask them to do, but I think Brother Rogers is an exception.) So I am simply introducing him to you, and giving him the floor. Ladies and gentlemen, Brother Rogers will now address us:

Who Said "It Couldn't Be Done"?

The writer is in receipt of a letter from one of our most energetic, enterprising, young lawyers in the State of North Carolina, namely, Henry T. Powell, of Henderson, N. C. This letter reads as follows:

"I have at last gotten the McCulloch Memorial Campaign under way, and thus far have a most pleasing report. Mt. Carmel on Granville circuit has raised more than its quota, Harris Chapel on Vance circuit has raised its quota, and at the Henderson church last Sunday, under most unfavorable conditions, one-half was raised.

"I will continue the drive, taking two churches a Sunday until the full amount of $250.00 for the district is raised."

And those who said it couldn't be done were certainly mistaken! The writer is giving you this information without the permission of Mr. Powell, but we feel it will be o.k. with him, since it is such interesting news. The letter was dated January 23rd.

We are passing this information on to the other lay chairmen to show them that the campaign can be and is being put across. If you have not raised the quota for your district, get in touch with the ministerial chairman at once and be sure to try to complete the campaign during February, as this was the date decided on by the Annual Conference Committee appointed to raise this fund.

We are especially appealing to the laymen throughout our conference to get behind this movement and help put it over the top in a nice way. WE ARE COUNTING ON YOU TO DO THIS!

We would appreciate a report from every lay-chairman in the conference as to how he is getting along with raising his quota. Please let us have this at once.

J. G. Rogers.

The McCulloch Fund got quite a boost since last week's report. Brower's Chapel sent in $5.50, which puts that church on the Honor Roll; and Dr. Pritchard sent me two checks totaling $63.00, which sends Calvary church a long way on the road to that coveted place in the sun. Winston, First church, is pegging away at it, and adds $6.75 to what they have already paid in. So the Fund stands as follows:

Previously reported	$245.26
Brower's Chapel, Richland	5.50
Calvary, Greensboro	63.00
Winston, First (additional)	9.25
Total to date	$313.01

So I can send the boys another hundred and have a nest egg for next week. It's good to see the reports from here and there that the Fund is being raised. But, brethren, shoot it in! Don't hold it. Let the boys have the use of it.

C. W. Bates, Chairman.

NOTES ON PREACHING

By P. E. Lindley

Restatement and Cumulation

This week I want to say something about the principle of Restatement and Cumulation. By these terms we mean the art of piling up words to strengthen the original assertion; the using of kindred statements for the purpose of intensifying the main contention. The public speaker should not make a general assertion and then go on and leave it there; other similar statements must be found to go with it—to accompany it and give it support. Too many good, positive declarations are born in the mind of the speaker and left to die for want of sympathetic company. The listener's thought is not concentrated long enough on the original statement; hence it fails to pass for its true worth—fails to "soak in"—whereas a few more strong sentences spoken in the same vein would have pleased the hearers, supported the assertion, and held attention to the central idea until it was fully felt and appreciated by the audience.

Here is an illustration of restatement taken from the speech of James G. Blaine on the assassination of Garfield. He asserted: "No foreboding of evil haunted him." Then the speaker restated the idea by adding: "No slightest premonition of danger clouded his sky. His terrible fate was upon him in an instant. One moment he stood erect, strong, confident, in the years stretching peacefully before him; the next he lay wounded, bleeding, doomed to weary weeks of torture, to silence and the grave."

There are many fine examples of restatement and cumulation in the Bible. Note, for instance, the 18th chapter of Job which describes the fate of the wicked. Verse five asserts: "The light of the wicked shall be put out." Then the remainder of the chapter is a heaping up of the terrors that shall overtake the evildoer. It reads in part: "The spark of his fire shall not shine. The light shall be dark in his tabernacle, and his candle shall be put out with him. The steps of his strength shall be straitened, and his own counsel shall cast him down. For he is cast into a net by his own feet, and he walketh upon a snare. The gin shall take him by the heel, and the robber shall prevail against him. The snare is laid for him in the ground, and a trap for him in the way. Terrors shall make him afraid on every side, and shall drive him to his feet.''

On and on the cumulation runs, but this is enough to show the prominence and the power of the art of restatement. It is an interesting undertaking to examine poems, speeches and books with a view of locating the effective use of this oratorical principle.

Let us make three observations: First, by the proper use of restatement and cumulation a speaker can make a big speech on a little subject. The reason an inexperienced speaker always takes such a tremendous subject is that he is scarce of material and has to select a profound theme in order to find sentences enough to go round. A more skillful orator takes a simple topic and through the art of cumulation expands it into a masterpiece. Of course it takes work to gather the material and build the body of the speech, but the results will well repay for the pains taken in the process. Begin writing out these cumulative sentences and you soon see that any assertion worth making has other statements nearly like it which can be called into use until the original suggestion stands out clearly, well-founded, and is accepted for what it is actually worth. Use the principle of progressive restatement if you want to round out a proposition to its full and rightful place.

A second thing to bear in mind is the fact that the listeners are at a disadvantage in catching and appreciating all you say. The public speaker has studied and worked the sentences until they are perfectly plain to him, but remember, they are new to the audience. In reading an article the person can go back to examine words he at first does not understand, but this privilege is denied him when listening to another speak. He must manage to gather and understand it the first time it is spoken. No listener can stop the speaker and ask for an explanation, either. Therefore, it is the duty of the preacher to restate, to expand, to make his position so clear that the hearers cannot help but see the point as he passes along. Restatement, then, helps the audience—helps them feel the full force of the argument you are presenting. Listning to a speech is not always easy, and the hearers should be given every advantage possible in concentrating on the theme in hand. And I know of no better suggestion than to recommend the proper use of this practice of restatement and cumulation. Just heap up the suggestions until people cannot help but feel the power and the wisdom of your main contention.

In the third place, we may remember that it is usually the spirit and immensity of an argument that carries the decision rather than close, technical debating. The cold, analytical mind of the speaker may be convincing to itself, but it seldom moves the audience. Besides, since so many of our religious themes do not easily lend themselves to logical proof, our most effective means of dealing with them lies in the field of suggestion. People do not need to be shown the reasons for their beliefs any more than they need to be confirmed in their beliefs. When we dwell less upon cold arguments and more upon the great affirmations, we may be serving more people and in a more wholesome way. It is, for example, much more edifying to assert and magnify the goodness and the mercies of the Lord than to spend the sermon in bookish arguments over the existence of a personal God. Restatement of what we already know is ordinarily more fruitful for the masses than searching ''some new thing'' as yet in the doubtful zone.

Now, it might be said also, in conclusion, that the best type of restatement can be achieved only by writing a good part of the production. Some of the most telling sentences, I find, are likely to be left out if a person trusts to free speaking. A paragraph of skillful cumulation is a real creation; it is built with care and forethought, and while the speaker may be able to construct such a composition of words and sentences on the impulse of the moment, he will through writing and the placing of choice words, achieve a literary style of even higher merit. One takes pride in his work the more he tries to show in it something of the taste of the artist. Splendid opportunity for such creative improvement is offered in this principle of restatement and cumulation.

BENEFITS OF STUDY

The close study of the Word of God may require all our highest powers, and tax all our freshest energies; but the consolation of that study no tongue of men or of angels can fully tell. While we are so engaged, we do indeed feel the deep meaning of what an Apostle has called the ''comfort'' of the Word of God.

Lights break around our path, assurance becomes more sure, hope burns brighter, love waxes warmer, sorrows become joys, and joys the reflections of the unending felicities of the Kingdom of Heaven. Around and about us we feel the deepening influence of the Everlasting Son.—Bishop Ellicott.

N. C. Branch Meeting April 10 and 11

A telephone call from Mrs. J. T. Pugh, president of the Woman's Auxiliary at Asheboro, brings the information that Branch officials and local officials have agreed upon Wednesday and Thursday, April 10th and 11th, as the time for the annual meeting of the N. C. Branch, Women's Work.

The hour of meeting, program and other details will be announced later. The invitation to meet at Asheboro was accepted by the Executive Committee in their meeting, January 30th.

Church Extension

Just at this time the Board of Church Extension would like very much to get hold of some money to meet some pressing obligations. Any charge that can make a payment on its assessment for Church Extension will please rush the money along to the Conference Treasurer, Mr. J. H. Allen, of Reidsville.

J. E. Pritchard, Chairman,
Board of Church Extension.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Pastors' Report Blanks

These have all been sent out; if any pastor failed to receive one, I shall be glad to send him one immediately. They are due to be sent in this week, of course.

On the Second Quarter

This week we begin the work of the second quarter of this conference year. Nine months from now the annual conference is due to be in session and as yet no home for it has been provided. If you sent in your request for this annual session, it failed to reach us; try again.

Did You Ever Really Tithe?

There appears to be an active sentiment against tithing in some churches. We are told that it does not belong to the Christian dispensation; that Jesus never taught it; that it is a relic of the outgrown Hebrew order; that it is not suited to our economic order—being impractical, etc.

Others, while not disclaiming against tithing particularly, tell us that if you would revive the church members, get them to possess real vital godliness, all this trouble over money would disappear. And so when some one attempts to get a group of church folk to tithe he has to face such objections as the foregoing.

But there are yet some people who have tithed long and faithfully enough that they know its spiritual and financial values, so they keep right on; and we are hoping that there are lots of our people with an open mind on the subject who will try it out during the months of February, March and April. So far as we know the promise of the Lord through Malachi has not been withdrawn, "Bring ye ALL the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open unto you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing there shall not be room enough to receive it."

We are calling upon all who believe the prophet Malachi to join our tithers group and claim the promised blessing of our Heavenly Father. We need the blessing, all right, and if this will bring it, I know of nothing better and easier that we could do. Do you? We try to have revivals of religion and fail utterly, oftentimes. We pray for prosperity and poverty comes. We pray for health and remain sick; so if this promise of the Lord through Malachi is still operative—if it will really be made good, then there is not a soul in all the membership of our church who can afford to stay out of this advance upon the blessings of heaven through this method. If you are yet a doubter, but have an open mind, then try tithing for a while and see what it will do for you. The Lord has said to you, "Prove me," so let this be the way we as a church shall do it.

Of course, there are our farmer folk whose incomes may be very small during the period; they may not be able to do much, but they can tithe what they do get, and later when the increase of their farms appears, then we can have a tithing period for them. Would that not be fine? Let's keep that in mind as the weeks glide by.

I presume our people are no harder to get to co-operate than others, but it is quite difficult to get some of our people to see the value of all doing a thing together under the swing of a single movement. They seem to think that they can do better by themselves. They are different, etc. Like a fellow with a big bass drum who refuses to play when the orchestra is playing; he waits until they are all through, then he steps to the front of the stage and says, Now let me give you some real music.

Take the present way of dividing up the annual conference budget into several items as was done two years ago. It was the opinion of the committee that our people could pay these easier and would be more willing to pay them one at a time than to pay all in a lump sum. We have dissenters on this. They cling to "the good old way" to do this, and consequently fail to get the whole amount as was done in the good old days, working in the good old way.

The committee, or this member of the committee, had in mind something else besides collecting a few dollars from each church for these several items. He had hoped that we might take time to tell the people what this item stands for, what the money is needed for; so when the people had a chance to give they would know what it was about and really give to those boards and institutions they loved and wanted to see prosper. The very word "budget" has such an impersonal, indefinite appearance when we see it, that it does not stir our emotions; it does not make one long to sacrifice to keep it before him. Who would really deny himself for a budget? Some do; but certainly when our people who do not know—and many do not—learn what is included in these several items which make up the budget, by a fair presentation of them, they will give each a more generous support; if they do not, the fault will not rest upon the pastor of the church. Let it be remembered by pastor and church member, these items must be supported if the denomination is to survive.

Moriah Church, Rev. W. M. Howard, Pastor

We visited this church last Sunday morning. The pastor is at the Seminary but has made arrangements for the pulpit to be supplied until he returns in May. Brother Easter takes two of the appointments each month and finds some one to take the others. There was about the usual attendance at Sunday school, I was told, and at church possibly a few more attended the services. Moriah church folks are really easy to preach to and should always get the best the preacher has to give when he preaches for them. I have said it many times privately and publicly, Moriah church has one of the finest opportunities to serve of any rural church we have. It has lots of young people, a C. E. Society numbering 50 or more, and a large number of children coming on to fill the ranks of the church officials as they shall become vacant. Any pastor might covet this opportunity to make his life count strong in the cause of the Lord. Moriah ought to grow in numbers and efficiency most rapidly. I had the pleasure of taking dinner with Brother and Sister C. E. Moser and their interesting family. I married the parents among the first couples after I went to Greensboro for my first pastorate. Such occasions have a way of emphasizing the passing of the years, also of revealing the friendly bonds which bind us together.

AN INFIDEL JUDGE

There was an infidel judge who had a colored man for a waiter, and he was religious. The colored man often would tell about his trials and temptations, so one day the judge said: "Sambo, you say you have trials and temptations? I am an infidel, and I have none." That floored the darky for a while. But one day they were driving by a lake. The judge always carried a shotgun. He saw a flock of wild ducks. He up and shot. He killed some, and crippled some. He told the darky to get that boat and gather up the ducks. "Don't mind the dead ones; take the oar and get the crippled ones first, then the dead ones." He came back to the carriage reflecting: "Massa, you are dead; the devil knows he has you safe. No squabble for you. I am the crippled one, and the devil has me crippled. That is why the judge has no trials and temptations."—Publisher Unknown.

NO CLOUDS, NO SHOWERS

"We know that all things work together for good to them that love God" (Rom. 8:28).

We are often comforted by the words of others who have experienced the loving kindness of our God, but if we are to bear witness to it we must experience it for ourselves.

An old saint was speaking of God's great goodness so joyously that it seemed as though she had never known a trial. "But have you never had any clouds?" she was asked.

"Clouds?" she replied; "why, of course, else where would all the showers come from that have refreshed and blest me so?"

No clouds, no showers; no trials, no refuge; no labor, no "well done." But all is in His hands, who tempers all, balances all, and has nothing but our present and eternal good in view.—Scripture Truth.

Laymen, Give Your Pastor a Thrill

To have laymen take the lead in financial matters is to the pastor what the finding of a spring in a desert is to a traveler. Both are refreshing. In the meeting of the Board of Stewards at Calvary church on Tuesday evening Brother Norman Kirkman made a short speech on Tithing that thrilled both the pastor and the other stewards. Laymen have a great opportunity. Of course the pastor is supposed to talk money, but when a layman tackles the job it makes an impression.

TO EVERY HERALD READER

The North Carolina Legislature now in session is doubtless getting a great deal of pressure from the brewers and "wets" to repeal our state liquor laws. Is it getting any pressure from the Methodist Protestants in North Carolina to keep what we have in the way of protection from the dreadful enemy that would enter our borders? Are we going to stand by and say nothing while the would-be repealers are doing their utmost to get money from us and our posterity through that dread monster, appetite?

The Annual Conference, three months ago, adopted a splendid report on Social Service, one paragraph of which gives the action of that body on the liquor traffic: "We reaffirm our uncompromising opposition to the liquor traffic, in any and all of its forms. . . . We appeal to our people to manifest a new militancy in the crusade for a liquorless world by uniting with and supporting all agencies that make for temperance and sobriety." (See page 49, Conference Journal.)

The Executive Committee of the N. C. Branch in session January 30 asked that I remind every member of our church in North Carolina to "manifest a new militancy in a crusade for a liquorless state," by writing a letter, or signing one that someone else has written, to the representatives from your city and county in the present legislature, asking them to do all in their power to retain the Turlington Act (our present liquor law which we kept by voting not to repeal the 18th Amendment on November 7, 1933). And asking them to provide legislation for punishing violators of this law so heavily that offenders will be fewer in the future.

Pastors and leading laymen and laywomen, NOW is the time for you to use your influence.

"Happy is he who, knowing how to wait,
Knows also how to watch and work and stand
On life's broad deck alert; and on the prow
To seize the passing moment, big with fate,
From opportunity's extended hand,
When the great clock of destiny strikes now!"

Secretary of Temperance, N. C. Branch.

Mr. Lowdermilk's Sister Passes

The editor of the Herald sympathizes with Brother R. D. Lowdermilk of Asheboro in the passing of his sister, Mrs. O. L. Cox of High Point. It has been only a short whlie since a brother passed on also. Brother Lowdermilk and his family have been very active in our church in Asheboro for a number of years, his daughter, Miss Beatrice, being the very valuable Herald agent down there.

I went down to the lake and I saw three boats. First, a rowing boat, which is like those who try to be good by their own efforts. Second, a sailing boat—carried by the wind. They are like Christians who are moved by circumstances. Third, a motor boat that is propelled by power within. These are like believers who have the power of the Holy Ghost and the indwelling Christ.—Rev. W. H. Finney.

MILDRED'S VISION

The Home for the Aged stood on the corner. Mildred, hurrying by, heard some one calling her. She looked up. There on the porch beckoning her was a little, frail, white-haired figure.

Mildred quickened her steps.

''Why!'' she cried, as she hurried up to where the little woman stood, ''it's Mrs. Higby, isn't it?''

The wind through the porch ruffled the white hair. Little Mrs. Higby nodded.

''Yes, it's me, child,'' she replied. She paused.

''Are you going down past the minister's?'' she asked.

Mildred smiled. ''Why, yes,'' she answered.

A look of relief dawned on the old, wrinkled face of the inmate.

''Its all right then,'' she replied. And then she handed Mildred a dollar bill with the creases carefully smoothed out of it.

''It's for missions,'' she explained, her face lighting as she spoke. ''And if you'll be so kind as to hand it to the minister, he'll know what is best to do with it.

''My niece, Sallie Plummer, out west, sent me that dollar bill,'' she went on. ''Said she wanted me to buy something for myself; but I couldn't spend it that way, when we are recallin' some of our missionaries because there ain't enough money to pay 'em, and cuttin' allowances of them that does stay. It would look nice of me to buy myself something with that dollar bill, when things are in that shape!''

She smiled at Mildred.

''You just give it to the minister and tell him I sent it for foreign missions,'' she added happily.

A moment later Mildred was on her way, with the dollar bill tucked snugly in her purse. There were other bills besides that one in the pretty little handbag, for Mildred was going to buy herself a suit, and her father had been more than generous with his money.

She did not really nee done, of course. Still, when one could pick up a bargain, one was foolish not to do it.

But somehow as she walked along, Mildred wasn't thinking of the new suit. She was seeing, instead, a little, thin, feeble old woman, with white hair, and that eager light on her wrinkled face.

''Do people fairly love missions like that — love them enough to give up their last cent, and be glad they had it to give?'' she said to herself as she walked along. The missionaries who leave home and friends to go to foreign countries to preach the love of Jesus surely were making great sacrifices for very small pay.

Mildred knew that in the Home for the Aged a dollar bill had its uses. Fruit—for the bill of fare in the Home was always plain. What could be nicer than that? Then, there were the magazines, for most of them on the center table in the big hall were old. Flowers, for the great rooms were singularly bare. Yet, notwithstanding these conditions, here was old Mrs. Higby cheerfully foregoing all that dollar bill would buy, and giving it to missions.

She supposed she ought to be more interested in missions herself. What was it Mrs. Higby had said? That they were even now recalling some of the missionaries!

She supposed she could do without that suit. Still, she did not want to do it. She had not yet made up her mind when she arrived at the parsonage.

But as she rang the bell and was waiting for a response, she had a vision in which the thin figure of old Mrs. Higby faded away, and in its place, there on the busy street, Mildred, light-hearted, gay, untoched, careless, found herself looking into the tender, sorrowful face of One who said, centuries ago, ''And I, if I be lifted up . . . . will draw all men unto Me.''

''Mrs. Higby, up at the Home for the Aged, sent you this dollar bill for missions,'' she began.

And then, the first thing she knew, she was pouring into his hands the contents of the pretty handbag. There were crisp bills, silver dollars, quarters, and dimes.

''And here is mine to go with it.''

And to herself she was saying, '' 'And I, if I be lifted up . . . . will draw all men unto me'.''—Publisher Unknown.

CONCERNING THE TONGUE

Did you ever keep your tongue for one day, allowing it to speak no unkind, no untrue, no unclean word; allowing it to utter no word about another's business, no judging, condemning, or critical word? Did you ever take an inventory of your words at the end of the day?

It was the Greeks who said: ''The boneless tongue, so small and weak, can crush and kill.''

Said the Turks: ''The tongue destroys a greater horde than does the sword.''

The Persians claim: ''A lengthy tongue means an early death.'' And: ''Don't let your tongue cut off your head.''

From Arabia comes this: ''The tongue's greatest storehouse is the heart.''

This from the Hebrews: ''Though your feet may slip, never let your tongue.''

The sacred writers say: ''If a man claim to be religious and bridle not his tnogue, this man's religion is vain.'' ''If a man offend not in word, that same is a perfect man.'' ''Who keeps his tongue, doth keep his soul.''—Unknown.

THE WORK OF THE MINISTRY

We are sent not to preach sociology, but salvation; not economics, but evangelism; not reform, but redemption; not culture, but conversion; not progress, but pardon; not the new social order, but the new birth; not revolution, but regeneration; not renovation, but revival; not resuscitation, but resurrection; not a new organization, but a new creation; not democracy, but the Gospel; not civilization, but Christ. We are ambassadors, not diplomats.—Hugh T. Kerr.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

N. C. BRANCH EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

The third quarterly executive committee meeting of the N. C. Branch convened at the Children's Home, High Point, January 30 at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer, president, presiding. Dr. George R. Brown, of Reidsville, conducted a most impressive devotional.

Mrs. George Haltom, recording secretary, called the roll and read minutes of the October meeting.

Mrs. George R. Brown, corresponding secretary, made a splendid report for the quarter. Information gathered from the blanks retuned shows an increase in interest and activity in the work. Siler City leads in the number of Missionary Records taken; 15 auxiliaries reported working on the project for raising money for the Suvarta Hospital in India; 2 new auxiliaries organized. She also gave, in a most interesting way, a report on the sesquicentennial conference in Baltimore.

Miss Mary E. Young made the following report on Student Loan Fund for High Point College: 11 students have been helped to date and perhaps 20 will receive loans by the close of the college year.

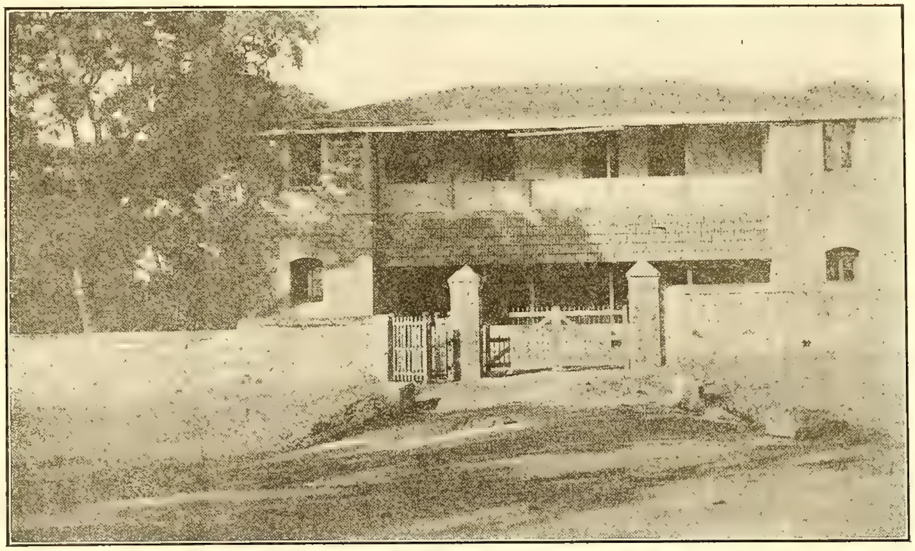
Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, chairman of districts, had a good report. She asked Mrs. Rupert Roberson, of the first district, to make a report. She said much interest is being taken in the auxiliary work. They are working on two projects. One is making scrapbooks of materials gathered from our three foreign mission fields. The other is supporting a girl at Alvan Drew School at Pine Ridge, Ky. Other district chairmen made splendid reports of work being done.

Dr. A. G. Dixon, superintendent of the Children's Home, extended a most cordial welcome to us and gave many items of interest about the Home. One hundred and ten children are being cared for. He is asking our churches and Sunday schools to double their monthly offering for Home during the month of March.

Rev. W. H. Neese made the prayer as the meeting adjourned for lunch. Those attending took lunch with them, and this was spread on the tables in the spacious dining room. The Home furnished coffee and the good eats and fine fellowship were enjoyed by the large crowd.

The meeting reassembled at 2 o'clock. Dr. R. M. Andrews, president N. C. Conference, conducted the devotions, and spoke briefly. He is making plans for a midyear meeting in the spring, and asked co-operation of those present to help make it a real worthwhile gathering. At this time the four little girls of the home sang sweetly "Jesus Loves Me."

Dr. G. I. Humphries, president High Point College, was presented and made a most interesting and challenging address.



SUVARTA HOSPITAL, DHULIA, INDIA

Reports from other secretaries were heard as follows: Mrs. Ballard on "Missionary Education"; Mrs. J. F. Bowman, spiritual life; Mrs. P. S. Kennett, Christian education; Mrs. A. H. Ragan, young people's work; Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., secretary of literature; Mrs. J. W. Boyles, thank-offering; Mrs. R. M. Andrews, temperance; Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, High Point College student loan fund; Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, secretary High Point College; Dr. Joy Glasscock, stewardship and benevolences; Mrs. J. Clyde Auman, exhibits. All these made splendid reports of work done in their departments during the quarter.

Mrs. C. W. Bates reported 35 cakes brought to the Home for children's school lunches by those attending the meeting, and from auxiliaries, besides many other useful things for the Home.

Mrs. Whitaker read an appreciation of Dr. J. F. McCulloch.

Miss Mary C. McCulloch's resignation as editor of the missionary page in the Herald was read and accepted. Mrs. J. E. Pritchard was appointed to fill out the remainder of this missionary year.

Mrs. J. T. Pugh, of Asheboro, extended a most cordial invitation to the N. C. Branch to meet in Asheboro in the coming annual meeting early in April, date to be announced later. Watch for it. This invitation was accepted by a rising vote of thanks.

The president appointed a program committee to arrange the program for this meeting. Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., Mrs. R. M. Andrews and Mrs. George R. Brown were appointed.

The following committee was appointed to nominate officers for next year: Mrs. T. L. Speas, Mrs. R. A. Hunter, Miss Daisy Cox.

This closed one of the best quarterly executive committee meetings the N. C. Branch has had and all expressed their appreciation to Dr. and Mrs. Dixon for their hospitality.

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD,
Publicity Chairman.

MAKE YOUR FEBRUARY T. O. COUNT!

A Venture of Faith

In the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Missions on Thursday, January 24, it was voted to reopen the hospital work in India as far as possible on the present budget to the India Mission. In response to a request from the Board of Missions to the India Mission regarding the cost of reopening of the hospital, the Mission replied that they could use $100 per month of their present budget. The church has expressed its desire to see this work open and this action has been taken with faith in the church to respond to this great need. February, March, and April yet remain in this fiscal year. If the income of the Board of Missions justifies it for the remainder of this year, it is our hope to invest additional funds in this great enterprise.

Make this the impetus of your "special days" for this year. Support of this project will be a credit on the World Service budget. Send remittances to treasurers of conferences and branches on budget, or special gifts outside of budget to Board of Missions.

This speaks well for the observance of the day and the help it may be toward raising the goal for each branch.

CHURCH MUSIC

This month has been designated Church Music month by President T. J. Whitehead, Conference Council of Religious Education. Each week there shall appear in these columns an article dealing with this subject by someone of experience. If anyone wishes to express themselves on it, particularly on the phase of young people's choirs, I shall be pleased to receive the article.

The following article, written by one of West End church's young ladies, is lengthy, but it is too good to condense. So rather than take up too much space in this issue, or omit any of the article, we shall give it in two installments, the second appearing next week.

THE ORGANIZED YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHOIR

By Mrs. Earl V. (Douglas Kime) Fuquay,
West End Church, Greensboro

A group of young people from West End Methodist Protestant church met on November 5, 1933, and organized a young people's choir. Mr. L. M. Foust, our director, has with his encouragement and constant supervision raised us to our present standing. Mr. C. F. Johnson has generously financed and enabled us to make our selections from the best church music. We have been given a place in the eevning program of the regular church services.

Our young people's choir meets for regular rehearsals once each week, and selects at least one special number for the following Sunday.

Our plan is simple, and the young people of any church could organize a young people's choir. We have a president, secretary, treasurer, director, pianist, custodian of robes, and librarian. When we organized we had written into the articles of organization our purposes, which are: To render better music in the church, and to develop both our social and spiritual life. Our director has given us nothing but the best music. He has made the selections from the various types of church music, the anthems, hymns, carols, and negro spirituals.

A very strict point system is our method of keeping check on attendance. At the beginning of the new year, each member is given 2,000 points; to be present at rehearsals adds 10 points; to be punctual adds 5 points. A member who misses a rehearsal loses 10 points; one who misses a church service loses 25 points. A member who is given credit for a new member receives 200 points. At the close of the year the member who has the most points is given a suitable award. The members who have retained as many points as originally given are eligible for the annual outing. Last year 24 were given a trip to Pilot Mountain. We attended Sunday school at Rev A. L. Hunter's church at Pinnacle; then we sang a number of selections during the church service.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

Christian Endeavor Topic for Sunday, Feb. 10, 1935: "Improving Our Attitude Toward Other Races." Scripture: Acts 10:34, 35.

A carefully planned and a carefully executed program on this topic could go far in readjusting racial attitudes, and improving if not solving to a very great extent a problem that is old and as complex and delicate as it is old.

What about the other races? How shall I act toward them? Does being a Christian make any difference? Should there be any difference between the attitude of a Christian and a non-Christian?

When the race question is raised, one immediately thinks of the negro; but the race issue involves other races besides the black man. I suppose, so far as we in the Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina are concerned, this discussion will confine itself most largely to the relationship between the white and the black races. That there is a serious maladjustment is evident. That the problem is tedious, delicate, and immediate in its needs is equally evident.

One has only to pick up the daily papers, and read an account such as has recently happened in Rockingham county, and he is forced to face anew the question, Where do I stand on lynching? Should that terrible crime come to my own household or be visited on the home of my friends, would I give vent to the all but uncontrollable urge and join the lynching party? And then we seek to analyze the problem for its cause and possible remedy. Why do these dreadful things happen between the races? Is the negro's passion so beyond his control that he is driven to such ends? Is his ignorance and illiteracy of crime and impending danger the cause? Or is vengeance the motive? Does the negro feel that he is the unfortunate victim of a maladjusted social and economic order that reduces him and enriches the white man? Does he feel that the foot of the white man is still on his neck grinding him farther and farther into the mire? Does he feel that social advancement and economic progress is forever from his grasp and blames the white man for his sad plight? Which if any of these possible causes prompts the negro to single out the most innocent, the most helpless members of white society to descend upon with his merciless attacks?

Now that we have suggested some possible causes, let us indicate a few possible remedies: Would racial equality solve the problem or, on the other hand, would not that only intensify the problem? Do the colored want equality or, on the other hand, do they only want the chance for advancement and improvement that the whites can aid them to get? Must we not go for our solution, after all, back to the great thought with which we started? "Improve our attitude toward other races." Is not the great thought therein epitomized, the Christian attitude, of love, conconsideration, willingness to understand, a desire to help? Will not the everyday practice of such an attitude quicken our sympathies for the other races, and lead us to a more friendly and more Christian relationship with them?

Suggestions for Your Program

Have a report showing progress over a period of one decade made by the colored race in regard to social betterment; improved standard of living; education, and economic improvement.

"Have a report on eminent characters of the colored race and their contribution.

You might even hold a debate on the query, "Resolved, that Negroes Want Racial Equality," or some other phase of the race issue.

Have some of Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poetry read, for example, "O Li'l Lamb Out in de Col'," or a selection from Booker T. Washington would be interesting.

Appropriate hymns: "Jesus Shall Reign," "In Christ There Is No East or West," "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations."

The writer believes that the time is not ripe for an audience of mixed races, even in a religious service, but no possible harm could result from inviting a colored quartet to come to the meeting for a part on the program, and it might do much to develop more friendly attitudes between the white and black races.

You might have a qualified speaker to discuss, "How can the people of all races get to know each other better?"

You might even appoint a commission to study this question and ask a group from some colored church to do likewise and submit the findings, exchange reports, reading a copy of each set of findings to both groups interested.

L. A. KING PASSES IN GREENSBORO

L. A. King, formerly of near Charlottesville, Va., but for the past six years a resident of Greensboro, passed away Monday morning. While he was not a member of Calvary church, yet the pastors of Calvary have made frequent visits to his home during his illness covering a period of five years. His wife was the former Miss Georgia McCulloch, of the Tabernacle Church community. The body was taken to the old home in Virginia on Tuesday and the funeral was held on Wednesday.

High Point College News

THE CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE AT HIGH POINT COLLEGE

By Lawrence W. Lee, Pastor Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Elk Park, N. C.

When the Methodist Church was founded in America, the leaders realized the need of a Christian college. On New Year's Day, 1785, it was voted that a Methodist college should be erected. Five months later Bishop Asbury laid the cornerstone of Cokesbury College, the first Methodist college in America. Cokesbury College proved to be a failure; but the motives back of the founding of that college are alive today. The first catalogue of the school declared that its aim was to give young men the principles of true religion and to train them so that they might be scriptural Christians.

This aim seemed to be alive in the minds of the people when High Point College was founded. In order to accomplish this work it was necessary that the faculty be well trained Christian men and women, and that there be Christian organizations in which the students might develop their spiritual life. High Point College has both of these.

The daily contact with these Christian teachers makes a great impression on the minds of the students. Words of sympathy and advice given by them linger in the minds of the young men and women and will help them solve many problems long after their college days are over. Deeds of love and justice performed by the faculty illustrate to the pupils the laws of the Christian religion. The student's observation of a devoted, sincere and reverent Christian during the worship periods helps form a clearer conception of true worship.

Christianity is based on a personal experience and everyone must have exercise to develop as he should. High Point College provides for this through the student organizations such as the Christian Endeavor, the Young Men's Christian Association, and the Young Women's Christian Association. These organizations give the young people a chance to lead in these programs, thus training them for leadership in the churches where they may go after completing the college course.

Co-operation is another lesson that may be learned, which means much toward the advancement of the Kingdom here on earth. With the Sunday school and the preaching services at the churches each Sunday morning, and the various Christian organizations on the campus, and the fellowship with Christian teachers, the young people who attend High Point College are well balanced men and women when they have completed their work. It has been predicted that High Point College will grow because of the well-trained Christian faculty and because of the fine Christian influence which the students find on the campus of this splendid standard college.

(Mr. Lee graduated at High Point College in the class of 1932. He received his S. T. D. degree at Duke University last June. Mrs. Lee, who was Miss Maloie Bogle, graduated at High Point in 1931.—N. M. Harrison.)

Prof. John M. Erickson, shown here, is head of the Department of Speech and Dramatics at High Point College. This is Mr. Erickson's first year at High Point.

Prof. Erickson's undergraduate work was done at Northwestern University, Chicago. There he majored in the subject which he is now teaching.

For three and a half years he was a member of the university debating team, and received considerable recognition for his work along this line. He was elected to membership in the Delta Sigma Rho, a national honarary intercollegiate forensic society.

Mr. Erickson came to High Point from Cincinnati, Ohio, where he now calls home, but most of his life was spent in Chicago.

Prof. W. H. Ford, who has taught business at Weaver College for several years, came to High Point College last September.

After completing his undergraduate studies at the University of South Carolina, Mr. Ford continued his studies there and received the Master's degree the next year. A year and a half more was then spent at the same institution in work on the doctorate. The major part of his graduate work has been in business and education.

Before going to Weaver College in 1930 Mr. Ford was, for four years, principal of a high school in South Carolina. Not only has he had experience in the classroom but in practical fields of business as well. For several years he was in the mercantile business and did extensive farming in his native state, South Carolina.

Prof. Ford is a member of the Baptist church, a Royal Arch Mason, and was a Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity member while in college. He is an ex-service man, and is a second lieutenant in the O. R. C.

In addition to his teaching work at High Point College he is councilor to the freshman boys.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

"Twenty-five Thousand Dollars for the Children's Home During This Its Twenty-fifth Year of Service."

Do You Read the Children's Home Notes?

Some people read the Children's Home notes, we know, because we have already received favorable comment on the above suggestion. What think you about it? Will you help? Just a note from you to the superintendent making suggestions will greatly help. There is a joy in the service here, but you can never know the anxiety and the mental strain we go through unless you could try it for a few months. What say you about the work?

A Special Request

The next calendar month is March. Last year, by the help of the conference organizations, a thoroughgoing campaign was put on in the interest of the Children's Home during March. We are not asking for such campaign this year. But there was just one feature of the campaign of last year which was responded to so beautifully and seemingly so cheerfully that we are asking that you plan to repeat that phase of it this year. That is, every Sunday school in the confer-

Enfield.—The Leadership Training School was held in our church with Rev. O. C. Loy and Rev. E. O. Peeler teachers. Due to the cold, rainy weather, the attendance was small, but those attending were much interested and they report a splendid school. The weather for the past ten days or more has been very cold and disagreeable and lots of sickness in the town and community.

Friday night, January 25, the board of stewards of our church had a get-together meeting of all church members and an oyster supper at the hut. After the supper a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Sam Peirson, Sr., read an Uncle Remus story which caused much merriment We then played old-fashioned games and everyone had such a good time we feel those who didn't attend missed something really worth while. After the social hour a few business items were taken up very briefly. The stewards promise us another such meeting later in the spring when the weather gets better.

We observed Young People's Day Sunday, January 27. At the morning service Rev. E. O. Peeler preached a splendid sermon. Both sermon and music were in keeping with Young People's Day. At the evening service we had our special young people's service. Mr. Exum Bellamy made a very interesting talk on the part young people have in making a Christian world. Misses Emma and Lillie Whitaker sang a beautiful duet. This was a very impressive service and was enjoyed by all present. The Woman's Auxiliary met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Hubert Whitaker and Mrs. J. R. Powers in the home of Mrs. Whitaker. The auxiliary is having some repairs done at the parsonage and hut and have just had the church furnace repaired so that now we have a comfortable church.

With best wishes to the Herald and its readers. REPORTER.

Friendship Station.—We haven't reported from our church in some time, but we are still existing down here. We have had so much illness during the last month. Mesdames J. H. Snotherly and W. D. Reed have been very ill, but both are improving. Mrs. J. H. Harkey's condition is somewhat improved. N. F. Hatley is still confined to his room, and J. A. Herlocker is still in a feeble condition. Mrs. C. A. Harkey is better. We have been fortunate in having Rev. Mr. Reed fill all appointments, despite Mrs. Reed's illness, and it is needless to say that the sermons were very much enjoyed.

Thanks to J. H. Snotherly for raising our McCulloch fund, which will be sent in at an early date.

Much interest has been and is still being manifested in the Men's Sunday School class taught by D. W. Sides, in studying the ancestors of Bible characters in our present Sunday school lessons. One question they have been trying to solve is which Simon was the father of Judas, the betrayer of Jesus. If any reader of the Herald knows, this class would be glad of the information.

Mrs. C. A. Cooper is expected to return to the parsonage this week after a two weeks' visit in Greensboro. Friends of Evelyn Shelton are glad to have her in our midst again. Evelyn has returned to complete her year's school work in the Millingport school.

Revs. D. I. Garner, of Concord, and D. R. Williams, of Albemarle, were callers at the parsonage this week. REPORTER.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—Brother Trollinger filled his regular appointment last Sunday at 11 o'clock. He preached an interesting sermon. I think our Sunday school is improving. We are making an effort to have our Sunday school raise 20 per cent in this month. Brother O. B. Furr visited our Sunday school Sunday and made an interesting talk. We were all very glad, indeed, to have him with us.

The parsonage committee from our church sent in $6 to Sister McCoy, the secretary and treasurer. The Ladies' Aid Society will meet next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, February 8, at the home of Mrs. Sidney Linker. Everyone is invited to attend our meetings. We also want with us Mrs. Trollinger. We were very glad indeed to have her with us Sunday for Sunday school and preaching.

BESSIE YONCANNON.

Halifax Charge.—The first Sunday in February was a good day for us on Halifax charge. For our morning appointment we went to Eden church, and found assembled there the largest congregation we have had for quite a while. The spiritual atmosphere was inspiring and encouraging. They were attentive and entered readily into a spirit of worship. Also our offering was the largest it has been any Sunday since conference. We had quite a number who signed a card pledging themselves to tithe a tenth of their income during February, March and April. Through this we hope to raise a good part of our conference claims.

After preaching service we had a short business session to discuss matters concerning building a hut. We hope to start work on it within the next week or two.

For the afternoon we went to Union, one of our oldest churches. Here we found another unusually large audience. Our membership here is not so large, but we have some who are very faithful. The faithful attendance of the members of the Baptist church here helps our congregation a great deal. This we appreciate, and ever welcome them to come and join us in worship. In this church we have a good working Woman's Auxiliary, which means much to our church and conference.

Since our last report the writer and family have been the recipients of two more—no, not little, but large poundings. One each from Eden and Bethesda churches. Each of these groups came to the parsonage and took the pastor and family in complete surprise. There were very clever tricks. Some people become offended when a trick is pulled on them, but these brought happiness and good will to the parsonage of Halifax charge. We shall not take time nor space to name the givers and gifts, but are glad to state that the gifts were numerous and of considerable value to us. May God help us to live in such a manner as to reveal to these good people our deep appreciation for these acts of hospitality and generosity. O. C. LOY.

Mizpah, Haw River Charge.—Services Sunday by Rev. J. L. Trollinger. Sermon fine. Attendance good. Planning Young People's Day the third Sunday in February. Church activities moving along fine. Stewards' meeting with Mrs. J. D. McCollum Tuesday night.

Quite a lot of sickness in the community.

Recent gifts to the church were two nice Aladdin lamps presented by Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sands. We appreciate them.

Roy Stuart is a patient in the Veterans' Hospital, Columbia, S. C.

M. L. Wagoner, Jr., of U. N. C., spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wagoner. MRS. ROY STUART, Reporter.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—These wintery Sundays have decreased our regular Sunday school attendance some. Our average attendance for the past month was 57. We hope it will be doubled by the end of next month. Our pastor filled his regular appointment last fourth Sunday night. The congregation was small but faithful.

An epidemic of flu has swept our community.

Two of our neighbor ministers have passed into another world in the past three weeks. Rev. John Nash, of Statesville, a Baptist minister, and Rev. Willie Mitchell, of Union Grove, a Baptist minister, both died recently.

Christian Endeavor is progressing fine. The cold weather has kept several of our members at home, but we're hoping the weather will soon be suitable for our congregation.

FLORA MAE WOOTEN, Reporter.

Denton.—On February 3 we celebrated Young People's Day with three very fine services. Arthur Lanier had charge of Sunday school. Our pastor preached a special sermon to the young people at the morning service.

We were very glad to have as our guest in Christian Endeavor the Lineberry Christian Endeavor. They remained for the evening service. Max Rogers was our leader, who gave a very good talk on the topic. We especially enjoyed a talk by Miss Ivy Grace Doughton, who is head of history department of Denton high school. The evening service was very impressive. We were very glad to have three of our young people from High Point College to speak for us at the evening service. Our speakers for the service were Inza Hill, Wilson Rogers, Marjorie Cranford and Jacqueline Cameron. The program sent out by the Board of Christian Education was used throughout the day.

All services were well attended, especially the evening service.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. W. A. Hedrick Monday night at 7 o'clock February 4.

The Layman's Fellowship will meet at the home of George Haltom Tuesday evening, February 5, at 7 o'clock. We are glad to report that a great many who have been sick are able to be back with us.

Many tithing cards were signed Sunday morning. We trust that all who signed will tithe.

We are all sad because of the fact we have lost one of our oldest members, Mrs. C. C. Chandler. Our sympathy goes to the family and friends. We are sorry that Miss Lillie Chandler is confined to her bed but sincerely hope for her a speedy recovery.

MARJORIE CRANFORD.

Asheboro.—We began our work here November 25 in a sermon at the morning service. On the following Tuesday we moved into the parsonage, and in a hot meal right from the women's annual Thanksgiving turkey supper we had our first taste of the thoughtfulness of this church for the comfort and welfare of the pastor and his family. And the two months that have followed have given us many more assurances of that attitude.

We found the church well organized, as we expected, due to good pastoral leadership, and good fellowship, and a ready-to-go spirit in all departments.

Our first quarterly conference was held December 6, at which time our program for the year was officially set up. All annual conference allotments were accepted in full, and the World Service budget fixed at $350, a slight increase over the previous year. The total budget for all purposes amounts to $3,731. We have paid our Annual Conference expense allotment of $80; our Journal bill is paid; the pastor is paid to date; our Sunday school has a substantial balance; and our Branch Auxiliary budget is paid in full. The general church tithing plan, fostered by Dr. Broomfield, has been indorsed by our congregation, and some pledge cards have been turned in. If we can get a generous response to this plan, our financial problems will not bother us much.

Our church calendar provides for the observance of special days and seasons. We began with Thanksgiving, in a union service at the First Baptist church. Then came Christmas, with a beautiful cantata by the choir, special programs by different departments, including a Christmas tree by the Girls' Mission Band, and the usual Sunday school treat to the children. And, of course, the Christmas hymns and sermons, closing with a special program of Christmas readings and music Sunday night, December 23 Our Christmas programs were all pleasing and worshipful.

The pastor and his family shared liberally in the generous Christmas spirit of the congregation. This began in a big way on Friday night, December 21, when a large group of our people played Santa Claus to us in a pounding, done in the perfectly splendid Asheboro way—a big way—both as to spirit and in the many and thoughtfully chosen gifts that provided well and long for the family needs. And it kept multiplying as the days passed. Today it would be a bag of flour, the next day a generous supply of choice fresh pork, then a cake, just like some pastry expert knows how to bake, then a nice frier to keep up the preacher's reputation. O, I can't detail it. But it was a "sure nuf" pounding, and it made us feel very full, and very happy, and very grateful. Blessings on the folks!

The parsonage here is new, well located, well built, and a very livable house—one of the very best in the conference. It will be a joy to any parsonage family to occupy it.

What I have written would be "most" out of date, were it not for the fact that this is my first appearance in the Herald this conference year. (A good reporter keeps the pastor out.) I have more right-up-to-the-minute matter ready, and I am burning to send it on. But I am stalling right here, nearly. The other must wait.

That "nearly" is for Lebanon. I cannot close this report without a word regarding our pastorate there. It was our privilege and pleasure to serve that charge for two years. We found as kind and as consecrated people there as we have found in any pastorate that we have served. We shall always be grateful for their unfailing kindnesses, and our recollections of them will always be pleasant. We hope and pray that this may be one of their happiest and most prosperous years. May God abundantly bless them—pastor and people.

Blessings on our Editor! He is giving us a good paper. S. W. TAYLOR.

Yarborough's Chapel, Yarborough Charge.—It has been some time since a report has been given from this church, but our church work continues to move on, getting a few things done in the meantime. We have every reason to believe that there is a very successful year ahead, if all of our members will lay hold of the tasks, those unfinished, and the ones waiting for us, and co-operate with our splendid pastor, Rev. K. G. Holt. Sunday morning he delivered an excellent sermon from the subject "Home Religion."

Our Sunday school has been very small for the past few Sundays due to sickness and bad weather, but we hope it will improve as several new people have moved into the community. Even though our attendance has been small we have had an unusually good Sunday school offering.

By God being our helper we hope to make this year the greatest in our lives.

REPORTER.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—The progress of our church seems encouraging because of the attendance and interest shown. Some are much interested and deeply concerned about our spiritual growth, while there are others who seem to cause a hindrance. What we want to see at our church is each and every leader to feel his or her responsibility to stand for right rather than so easily compromise with the evil. The burden of the church will not be carried by a faithful few when we all become "of one accord." "Pray for one another," and see if we can't be better prepared to fight our battles, because there is much more power in prayer than most of us realize. "'The earnest, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Rev. C. E. Ridge filled his regular appointment Sunday and preached a very helpful sermon from the text John 21:17, "Feed my sheep," which was a further discussion of the Sunday school lesson.

The Workers' Council held its monthly meeting Monday night. Reports were given from the different organizations and church business was transacted. Financial reports were very good and much interest in the work is shown. We are trying to raise our apportionment of the McCulloch fund, $20.25 having been collected to date.

Death again claimed a member of our church. Mrs. Madison Fritts died February 1, 1935, at the age of 82 years. Funeral services were conducted from Shiloh Sunday afternoon in charge of the pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, assisted by Rev. C. G. Isley, of First M. P. church, Lexington. Mrs. Fritts is survived by three sons and three daughters. One daughter, Mrs. J. L. Evans, is a member of Shiloh church. A more complete account will probably appear later. The family have the sympathy of friends. May God comfort and bless each one.

We wish that every Christian reader of the Herald would join us in earnest prayer for our church, because we have battles to fight and many problems to solve which can be done only through prayer. Pray for God's spirit to guide and His will be accomplished, because much depends upon the church today. What are you doing for its progress?

MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

West End, Greensboro.—Spring must be just around the corner, for it seems that interest and activity is the keynote just now in every phase of work in our Sunday school and church program.

Beginning next week a campaign for loyalty, liberality and soul-saving will be started, with questionnaires having been distributed last Sunday bearing ten promises relative to the subject above and being lived up to by those signing them in the 10 weeks' campaign to follow. Aside from this, tithing is being stressed by the pastor during this time also, and it is felt that great benefit will result for the congregation as a whole and pave the way for the revival which will be held in the future.

Dr. Bethea preached at the 11 o'clock hour on "The Part That Belongs to God," Matt. 23:23: "These ought ye to have done and not to leave the other undone." The substance of the sermon was God's reproof of our neglect of the things that belong to Him. "Life wanes," he said, "when we do not deal honestly with God." Sunday evening the subject was "My Acknowledgment." "I will pay my vows unto the Lord." The Junior Choir rendered special music.

Glenwood Presbyterian C. E. Society met with our society on Sunday evening. An attendance contest is on, and visitors or friends who are interested in a wide-awake organization will be welcomed at 6:45 any Sunday evening.

Circle No. 1 met Monday afternoon with Mrs. F. S. Stockard and Mrs. Charles Routh with an attendance of 18. Social service reported 80 visits to sick with food, clothing and other things being given to needy in our Sunday school and community.

Circle No. 2 met Monday evening with Mrs. J. Ruffin Holden with 18 present also, and the social service practically the same. A contest is being waged between the two circles to get our quota of Herald subscriptions in by March Auxiliary meeting, the losers to entertain the winners.

Our thank-offering program will be held the third Sunday evening in February. The play "The Highway" will be presented by the Auxiliary. A large offering for our mission causes is anticipated.

M. STAPLETON, Reporter.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Sunday school was conducted Sunday, February 3, by our new superintendent, Mr. Jacob A. Sharpe with a large attendance. Mr. Sharpe is a fine man and we feel sure he will make us a good superintendent.

In the 11 o'clock worship program Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, delivered a very interesting message on "Of Making Many Books There Is No End." He explained the different similes of life. "Reading brings to us viewpoints." He also explained some of the principles of reading. "What shall I read?" He pointed out, first, the meaning; second, sound ideas well rounded; third, balanced more efficiently. "To be more efficient church members we should read the church movements." He explained the church paper, showing why we should read it.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. L. M. Isley on Saturday afternoon, February 16, at 2:30 o'clock. The president urges everyone who has not paid their dues to pay before March, as the year ends in that month, and this money will count on the budget.

"Lives of babies oft remind us
We can make our lives less rough;
And we get just what we're after
If we 'holler' loud enough!"

So says Mrs. Joyner; and that's just what we have done in the case of the subsidy fund, and it is now paid in full. We are going to apply the same rule to some other items of our budget and get them off hand: f'rinstance, let's start with the High Point College assessment, and we will then be "killing two birds with one stone." We will not only have that part of our Annual Conference claim paid, but will do our bit toward helping the college to raise the $5,000 which they are hoping to raise before May—come on, folks, let's put it over. If we take care of these items as we go along, we won't have such a rushing time in November. Remember this when you put your contribution in the collection plate each Sunday. It's the little bit each week from each member that keeps the wheels of our organization running steadily. Are you doing your share?

How about your subscription to the Herald? Is it soon to expire, or has it already done so? Won't you please hand your renewal to Mr. Moore without waiting for him to seek you. It is embarrassing to have to beg folks to do things, and if you enjoy reading the Herald it should not be necessary to ask you to renew your subscription. Let's try to keep up with Mr. Pritchard's church. One out of every two families in his church is taking the Herald! Wonder what our percentage is?

Our attendance on Sunday was better all around—and do you know that the Young Men's Class did beat the Philatheas in amount of collection, and also had the highest per capita offering. I doubt if there is another class in the conference with any better record. Four members present and 95 cents collection—isn't that fine? Mrs. Wilson's Primaries led the entire school in number present. Miss Miller's Junior girls had the largest collection in their department, and Mrs. Williams' Junior boys were only 1 cent behind the girls.

The Fawcett Bible Class will hold its regular business and social meeting at the church on Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

The Intermediate girls are having a benefit party at the home of Mrs. J. R. Moore, 19 North Street, on Friday at 7:30 p. m. All are urged to be present and enjoy the evening.

Mrs. Hendricson is going along fine with her class, and we predict great things for them.

Midweek prayer service will be held as usual on Wednesday evening.

The Woman's Auxiliary circles are to meet as follows: Circle No. 1, Mrs. J. R. Moore, chairman, with Mrs. Moore, 19 North Street, Thursday, 3:30 p. m.; Circle No. 2, Mrs. J. F. Minnis, chairman, with Mrs. L. M. Joyner, 176 Merrimon Avenue, Thursday, 3:30 p. m.

Mr. West is still ill. Mr. and Mrs. West and family will be leaving Asheville as soon as Mr. West is able to travel. We shall be sorry to see them go, but trust that the change will do both Mr. and Mrs. West a lot of good. All the rest of our folks seem to be enjoying good health.

Mrs. J. F. Minnis and Mr. H. L. Hanner recently celebrated the anniversaries of their birthdays, and our membership wishes them many, many happy years.

M. L. B.

Macedonia, Fallston Charge.—Since our last report we have had a great deal of bad weather. This has caused our attendance to be low, but more people came to church last Sunday, February 3, than had come in several weeks, and we are hoping that our attendance will keep rising.

We have had quite an epidemic of cold and flu among our members, but almost everyone is well again.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets once a month in the homes of the members, and we render a program in which everyone seems interested. It was so rainy and cold that we could not have our meeting last month, but we hope that we will be able to meet this month. Rev. and Mrs. Fogleman have been with us almost every meeting, and we surely appreciate their help and interest.

RUTH HOYLE, Reporter.

Greer's Chapel, Shiloh Charge.—Just a few words from us again. Our Sunday school is doing fine. First Sunday in January the officers and teachers were elected, and they have gone to work with a determination to do their best for the Master in training the young people to carry on the work as the older ones lay it down.

January 27 was Young People's Day with us. Although it was cold and dreary outside, we had a goodly number present for Sunday school and preaching. It was an impressive service, with the children taking our places in the choir and reading the Bible. Our faithful pastor brought to one and all an inspiring message, using as his subject "The Life of Christ." It was a real blessing to all present.

We ask an interest in your prayers that our church, although small in number, may be as a light and a blessing to the community and to all who attend her services.

We are working on our share of the McCulloch Memorial Fund and hope to have it all paid in by February 10.

REPORTER.

Winston-Salem, First Church.—I shall be very brief with my report this week, but I do want to tell you of the fine observance of Young People's Week. Last Tuesday we had a mother and daughter banquet, which was enjoyed by 41 mothers and daughters. On Friday night the fathers and sons had their feast with 44 present. Both suppers were occasions for good fellowship, and were really red letter days in the life of this church. Sunday night the young people presented the play "This War," and they did it most excellently. The only disappointing things about it were the attendance and offering, both rather small, at least a good deal smaller than they ought to have been.

An interesting development of the work here is the organization of a junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Charles Stonestreet (formerly Miss Jacque Gwyn). Some 16 children were present for the first practice last Friday afternoon. We greatly appreciate Mrs. Stonestreet's interest in this project, which, we feel sure, will mean much to the church.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Calvary.—The 25th anniversary of the Boy Scout movement will be observed at our church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. Paul W. Schenck, president of the Greensboro Boy Scout Council, will make a brief talk concerning Scouting, just prior to Dr. Pritchard's sermon.

The boys of troop No. 7 and their parents, with the troop officials, will sit together in reserved seats. W. L. Caudle, assistant Scoutmaster, with a number of Scouts, spent last Friday night at Camp Graystone.

In our last report we told you that the Scouts lost the Rotary flag given by the Court of Honor which they had held for one month, but the boys are proud to announce that they won it again at the last Court of Honor.

Rev. J. L. Trollinger, of the Haw River circuit, will preach at our church next Sunday evening at 7:30.

An effort will be made to reorganize the young people's choir Friday evening.

Several of our people are planning to meet with Mrs. E. T. Coble at the Pine Needle lodge Friday for an all-day review of the mission study book. Dr. Pritchard will review the book, "Orientals in American Life," and Rev. J. E. Carroll will review the foreign study book. Dr. Pritchard reviewed the same book for the women of the First Methodist Protestant church in High Point Monday afternoon.

We wish to extend sympathy to Mrs. Harry Julian, whose mother, Mrs. Betty Stevens, passed away last Saturday morning. Mrs. Julian is one of our most loyal members.

The Board of Stewards met at the church Tuesday evening. They voted to lengthen the tithing campaign to two months instead of one. It will last through April and May.

Several of our members have been confined to their homes by illness for quite a whie. They are Mesdames Otis Campbell, Robah H. Fields, H. W. Highfill and J. A. Cox. We are glad to know they are improving.

W. A. Blaylock has been ill at his home on Randolph Avenue for some time.

Members of the Anna Starr Class have beautified their classroom. They recently had it painted and now have added new drapery, new rug and a new table.

sions met and voted to open the India hospital as far as possible on the present budget to the India Mission with the view of increasing the support later on. This means, as per information from the India Mission, that $100 each month of their budget which goes to the India Mission may be used for the hospital work.

I am sure you will be delighted with this information and will desire to use it as a special plea to the women of your branch for the February thank-offering. We are having several thousand dodgers printed. Should you desire a quantity for distribution in your branch, we shall be glad to furnish them to you.

A personal word from the Cassens gives us the information that Dr. Lacy is hard at work scrubbing the hospital, with the hope that the Board might find it possible to open the work. I am sure your heart is made glad, as is ours, that this worthy enterprise may be reopened and that again many of those suffering from physical ailments in India might find relief from their suffering through your efforts in support of the India hospital.

Very truly yours,

THE PUGH FAMILY AFFLICTED

The family of Brother L. A. Pugh, Greensboro R. F. D. 4, members of Calvary church, have been very severely afflicted this winter. Some weeks ago Brother Pugh was critically ill with pneumonia. More recently Mrs. Pugh had influenza and last week Brother Pugh was in with it also. While Brother Pugh was in last week, his little nephew who lives with them developed pneumonia. When it rains, it sometimes pours.

--Now that the severe cold weather has killed turnip greens and practically ruined turnips, those who canned theirs last fall can rejoice that they did it. Turnips that are canned before they freeze are much sweeter than those that are allowed to freeze.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

A revival was in progress. I kept noticing some big, burly young fellows that came into the services at night that seemed to come for the fun they could have. Well, I like fun, but not in a place like that. Not that kind that shows no respect for God's house and people. So my decision was to break it up.

I found on inquiry that they were a set of roughnecks from the country, whose parents were rather well-to-do, and these boys thought they could come into our congregation and have a big time. Well, the writer always gets interested in folks like that, so as to give them the time of their lives if they want it. I asked them to behave. They resented being corrected. Finally one night I reached that point where I was getting out of patience with such misbehavior and I said: "I believe those fellows cutting up over there are from the backwoods. Nobody but a greenhorn would act like that. Hayseeds, without any thought of what it means to disturb." They waited outside for me. Of course, they were big enough and important enough to silence me. As they laid their plans a young man who was not a Christian but stayed in the home where I was putting up, for it was not at the church where we lived, overheard them and went straight to them and said: "Look here, fellows, I am not a Christian, do not profess to be anything but an honest man, but I want to tell you fellows right now, if you bother that preacher there will not be much of you left to get out of this town tonight."

They then thought they would bluff. Wrote me a note, dropped it on the porch where I stayed on Saturday night of the meeting. I announced to my congregation that I had received a letter, but would not read it that morning, for I knew the folks who wrote it would not come to church in the daytime, they were too sneaking for that. So it got out and of course that filled the house that night.

I have that letter somewhere now, but haven't seen it in years. A kind of souvenir. They threatened to pull my flag ears, beat me up, and a lot of things not worth repeating. So I answered it from the pulpit. Some of you fellows that did not live in those days, and in communities like that, I know will criticize; but go ahead, that's all right. The good Lord helped me to put on brakes; I was there and the Lord was too. I told them my ears stood out for pulling for anyone who wished to try it, and that no gentleman would take advantage of me, and a dog should not do it. Rather drastic, someone will say, un-Christian, but say what you please, I was never disturbed there again and the revival went on and there were a number of people saved and the good folks of the town rallied to my support.

Numbers of such experiences could be mentioned, and I am sure if we could get such folks to church today and convince them that we were in earnest about our work and that we were willing to suffer if need be for the cause of Christ, perhaps many would be reached and saved from a life of shame.

We say sometimes that with our advancement today people are more intelligent and will not stand for plain speech as they once did, and a great many things have changed. I admit all that, but it seems to me that if people are bolder with their sins, and we are bound to admit that they are, there should be just as much boldness in accordance with practices as in the days of old. Everything called culture is not real.

It is hard to keep from moralizing on these incidents that are being given, and if at any time the editor may see that I am turning from the real purpose of these articles, he knows me well enough that I shall not become offended if the blue pencil is drawn through.

In my next, some of my experiences in revivals that revived will be given. In those days of course we had our protracted meetings that seemed to accomplish very little, but on the other hand many experiences in seeing hardened sinners happily converted bring back the memories of uplifts that it would do the church good to have today.

MRS. J. B. OGBURN'S ADDRESS

Recently we published an article entitled "More Reminiscences" by Mrs. J. B. Ogburn. Since then someone has written us wanting to know the address of Mrs. Ogburn. For the benefit of any others who might want to know, we will say that it is Summerfield, N. C.

—While the editor of the Herald and his wife were away from home about an hour last Sunday afternoon attending a funeral, three automobiles found their way to the editor's house. The occupant of one of the cars was President Andrews of our conference. There are some things that even the president of the conference does not know, one of them being that he does not know that folks are away from home until he goes to see.

—The printers of the Herald, McCulloch & Swain, are in the limelight these days. James Swain is president of the Greensboro Printers' Association, while Warren McCulloch is commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Greensboro.

—Reports from local flour mills in Union County indicate that more than two and a half times as much flour has been ground from home-grown wheat as compared with previous years.

Yadkin dairymen say that dehorning their cows allows the animals to feed better and to give a more even flow of milk. Forty-nine cows were dehorned in the county last week.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Mrs. Bettie Smith Stephens, 64, passed away at St. Leo's Hospital on February 2, 1935

Mrs. Stephens was a native of Guilford County and for a number of years had been in the dairy business at her home just southeast of the city of Greensboro. Surviving are her husband, Jesse F. Stephens; three daughters, Mrs. G. C. Fine and Mrs. Harry Julian, of Greensboro, and Mrs. Aubrey Watson, of Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. Stephens was one of the charter members of Grace Methodist Protestant church when it was organized nearly 44 years ago, and has ever been a faithful worker in it. Besides her affiliation with the church she was a member of Greensboro Chapter No. 14, Order of Eastern Star.

Funeral services were conducted February 3 at the Hanes Funeral Home with J. Elwood Carroll officiating, assisted by Rev. Milo Hinckle, Dr. S. K. Spahr, and Dr. J. E. Pritchard. Interment was in Green Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Stephens was born for modern times. She was a very competent and active business woman. Her knowledge of dairy business was held in high esteem. Perseverance and stamina were her chief virtues, both in her business activities and church work.

Sapp

The hearts of a great host of friends, as well as of the immediate members of the family, were made sad by the untimely passing of Roy E. Sapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Sapp, who died on January 23 in the Memorial Hospital, Winston-Salem, after a lingering illness due to Bright's disease, at the age of 24 years.

Roy was a member of the First Methodist Protestant church, which he joined on confession of faith during the pastorate of Rev. H. Freo Surratt in 1930.

There survive him his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Sapp; two sisters and four brothers.

Following his graduation from the Winston High School, Roy entered the University of North Carolina, but was forced to discontinue his studies there because of his health, this persistent malady which finally resulted in his death. In the hope that other climates would help him, he engaged in work as a hotel clerk in Michigan and Florida; and so long as he was able, after his return to Winston, was so employed here. The finest tribute to his character and life among his associates that could possibly have been paid him was given in a poem written by one of his fellow clerks at the Robert E. Lee Hotel, where he worked until his illness forced him to give up his position. I wish space permitted me to reproduce that poem here.

After a short service at the home, the body was carried to the First Methodist Protestant church, Winston-Salem, for the final service. The pastor was assisted at both services by two of Roy's former pastors, Rev. H. Freo Surratt and Dr. J. E. Pritchard. The body was interred in the Woodlawn cemetery.

Our sympathy goes out to the members of the family who are called upon to suffer this first break in the devoted circle. May their hearts be comforted in the sure hope of reunion in God's good time.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Barnard

Lee Meadows Barnard was released from his suffering and passed from labor to reward on December 15, 1934.

Mr. Barnard is survived by his wife, Nelle Wade Barnard, and daughter, Peggy; also, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Barnard, with whom he had been living during the latter days of his illness, and two sisters and three brothers.

Mr. Barnard had recently passed his 28th birthday. Most of his life had been spent out of doors. For three years he was in the United States Navy. Despite his outdoor life, nature laid a prolonged disease upon him and for nine years Mr. Barnard had been suffering.

In adolescent life Mr. Barnard had united with Grace M. P. church and remained a regular attendant when health permitted. He was always cheerful and wore a most unusually pleasant smile for everyone at all times. His faith in God was supreme and his prayer-life constant.

Funeral services for Mr. Barnard were conducted from the home of his parents on Sunday afternoon, December 16, by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, of Grace church, and Rev. A. D. Shelton, of St. Paul church. Interment was in Forest Lawn cemetery.

SOME TALKS GIVEN AT THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE AT ASHEVILLE

A Christian Home

(By Miss Melle Smith)

It has been said that a person's home training and environment during the formative period of his life will show in that person after he is grown. Psychology tells us that a child is unusually receptive and imitative—much more than an adult is. Roman Catholics say, "Give us a child until he is seven years old and then you may have him." They realize that during the first seven years of life a child's foundation habits are formed.

Since so much depends upon the first few years of life, and since those years are spent in the home, it is the duty of the home to surround the child with an environment which will teach him to love the good, to know and love God, and to shun evil. The responsibility of this teaching rests upon the parents, for does not the child love its parents more than anybody else and want to imitate the things the parents do? This, then, calls for a Christian home and that Christian home is what we want to think about for a few minutes tonight.

What is a Christian home? The answer must be a home that is Christ-like. It seems to me that a Christ-like home is one where genuine co-operative fellowship is practiced, where each member of the family shows respect for every other member, where parents and children share home responsibilities, and where all members are comrades together.

A Christian home is one which seeks to provide a setting which will contribute health and peace of mind to every member of the family; one which encourages the development of esthetic and cultural interests. It provides the best reading materials, and has the best pictures hanging on its walls. It tries to create interest in worthwhile hobbies, and to plan for profitable use of leisure time.

A home that is Christ-like provides for experience in religious living. It furnishes inspirational literature, art and music. It conducts family worship. It has guests with Christian personalities.

A Christian home co-operates with other family groups to build a Christian community. It shares in civic, educational, social and religious institutions and movements which will make the best life possible for every man, woman and child.

If each home tries conscientiously to be Christ-like, a better generation of parents and children will result, a better community, a better church, a better nation, and a better world.

A Christian Personality

(By Miss Frances S. Cunningham)

The greatest personality that ever existed was the Master Himself, Jesus Christ. If we would have Christian personalities, then our lives must radiate the Spirit of Christ. We must be "utterly loyal to Christ in every relationship of life."

In order to radiate the Spirit of Christ we must first have Christ in our hearts and lives. We cannot give to others that which we do not have ourselves. We need constantly to fellowship with Christ through prayer, Scripture reading, and worship. We must realize that "fellowship with Jesus is a fellowship of joy and deep inner force, but that it is also a fellowship of suffering." Like our dearest friends, Jesus shares our sorrows as well as our joys.

We all know people who draw others to them by the sheer magnetism of their personalities. We never stop to think whether these people are beautiful or not. It is the personality that attracts. They radiate love, sympathy, and helpfulness. We feel better merely to have them near us. On the other hand, we also know people who are beautiful, talented and intelligent, yet who fail to attract friends because their personalities are so unattractive.

Someone has said that the "personality is a photograph of the heart." This is indeed true. We speak to only a comparatively few people each day, yet many are influenced by our personalities. As Christian personalities we should feel the great responsibility and privilege that is ours in leading others to Christ. We should challenge others to "surrender their lives to Christ by endeavoring to make our everyday living an example to our companions."

We should share with our companions the satisfaction of our daily Christian experience, our loyalty to Christ and His teachings, and should encourage them to enter into personal fellowship with God through Jesus Christ.

A Christian Church

(By Miss Irene Miller)

The young man aimed at nothing and hit nothing. This can truthfully be said of many churches. They aim at nothing and hit nothing. Must this be said of our church? We hope not.

When we aim we want to have something in view, and I can think of no greater purpose for us to have in view than our building of a typical Christian church.

Suppose we begin our building with the youth of our church. Let us make our worship services vital, intelligent, purposeful, so it will result with our young people giving themselves unreservedly to the task of winning the world for God.

Then, too, let us increase the teaching work of our church by making adequate plans for an educational program which will meet the actual needs of youth. Let us make it possible to have trained instructors and leaders to meet the urgent needs of the present-day youth.

Let us enrich and expand our program of the church through fellowship by providing our youth with opportunities for expression of social interests of individuals. The average church needs to develop its social life; this development can be made possible by social gatherings, banquets, basket dinners Also fellowship can be extended to our youth by the means of citywide organizations.

Let us encourage, for the youth of our church, the application of Christian principles through service projects, such as training young people for places of responsibility within our church. Don't by any means discourage our youth by giving destructive criticism for the responsibilities they hold but help them, teach them, encourage them. We can either lose them or use them in the work of our church, so let us see that our youth are given abundant opportunity to be of service in our church. Perhaps if we do this we won't lose the much needed youth of our church today.

THE FIFTH DISTRICT RALLY

The fifth district rally for the first quarter of this conference year will be held at Grace Methodist Protestant church on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, February 10, 1935, with Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, as principal speaker. The subject of Dr. Humphreys' address will be "An Appreciation of Our Church." Short talks of five minutes each will be made on the woman's work of our church, the Herald, and young people's work.

J. ELWOOD CARROLL, Chairman.

—Mrs. Rupert Robinson, of Spring church, Spring Church charge, and chairman of the First District of Women's Work, has the distinction of having traveled the greatest distance of any member of the executive committee in attendance at the quarterly executive meeting held at High Point January 30. The distance traveled one way was approximately 185 miles.

A FLOWER FOR THE GRAVE OF DR. McCULLOCH

Astute, erudite, humane, superlatively so. Dr. McCulloch,—our own Dr. McCulloch,—gone. Toiling ever, in exalted endeavor, his heart and life engrossed in God's eternal purpose. Energized by that unconquerable longing, the Christian culture of humanity. Oh, gathering, dripping tears, abate. Always a friend, and in all ways.

Courageous, under tasks arduous, on and on he labored, in this tumultuous and turbulent age. Who can measure the immeasurable, or calculate the incalculable? The extent of his potent uplift, of mankind in its varied strata. Cultural, spiritual, ennobling, this uplift vitalized in human life, and society. His hundreds of school mates, his personal contact with vast student bodies, as professor. Of the enormity of the thousands and thousands through the press, The Herald. Selfishness seemed foreign to his nature. How he conserved and turned over, means derived from sale of property, to the great enterprise of his life. A quarter of a century ago he published a list of most interesting books he had purchased for sale. Impelled or drawn by their subjects, we read possibly all of them, and our whole subsequent life has been enriched by them, and eternity will mean more to us for their perusal. He may have reached hundreds thus. How profound his knowledge, how scholarly—a master mathematician.

"Deep was his culture, and his soul sincere,
Heaven did a recompense as largely send;
He gave to misery, all he had, a tear,
He gained from heaven, 'twas all he wished,
a friend."

With what tender consideration he held his beloved nieces. May all the world deal gently with his daughter.

Though of urban birth

"His heart pregnant, with celestial fire,
And knowledge with her ample page,
Rich with the spoils of time, did unroll,
Chill penury repressed not his noble rage,
And froze not the genial current of his soul."

Delving into illegible manuscripts for hours, ever the reply beautiful. You have many excellencies.

This changing, bleak, drab world will be more gray for his passing. That divinest grace, humility, made sublimely beautiful his life. He was the very embodiment of it. Oh, what a grip on the heart of the Eternal! And his grasp on the youth of his whole life. What a stay to his local church, and instruction to the men of his Bible class. How unconquerable his faith, launched and anchored in God! And in divine commiseration, our Father in return gave reward commensurate; namely, the Methodist Protestant college at High Point, North Carolina. Save for him, it would never have been.

His voice has spoken enough, his palsied and trembling frame translated, glorified. His life hid with Christ in God has been made aureate, his life extant. It will sweep on in matchlessness of splendor forever. For in the words of Longfellow:

"When great men die,
For years beyond their ken
The light they leave behind them lies
Upon the paths of men."

MOUNTAIN BOYS AND GIRLS DELIGHTED

"Teacher! Teacher! I have read the little red book, and can repeat all those verses, too," said little Bessie, as she raised her hand in excitement, and was given permission to speak by the faithful teacher in one of the mountain schools of eastern Kentucky.

Bessie was only one of the 89,848 boys and girls in the 3,100 mountain schools of the South and the Ozarks who had received a copy of the Gospel of John (Horton's edition, with helps) sent to them by the Bible Institute Colportage Association of Chicago during the past four months. Of this large number, the teachers reported that 17,302 had read the gospels and memorized nine selected verses, and to each of these was given a copy of the Pocket Treasury, consisting of 30 choice chapters of the Bible, 25 familiar gospel songs, and other valuable material as a reward.

So many of these mountain teachers were delighted with the interest taken by their boys and girls in reading the gospels and memorizing the verses in order to earn a Pocket Treasury, and wrote to the association that their pupils were eager to memorize additional Bible verses, so they could secure a New Testament.

One of the teachers wrote, "I have never found anything which my pupils enjoyed more. They very quickly committed to memor the nine verses of Scripture, and read the gospel clear through. . . . They are very anxious to receive the Testaments and are wondering what they must do to receive them. I do not think anything could be more helpful to our school, a rural school especially, than this type of work. . . . Please send the 50 Pocket Treasuries soon. We are anxiously awaiting them."

In order to secure a New Testament, it was required that the boys and girls commit to memory and repeat to their teachers 28 important Bible verses printed in a Colportage tract, entitled "Four Things That God Wants You to Know." Since the beginning of the fall term, no less than 8,699 of these mountain boys and girls have memorized the required number of verses, and to each one a beautiful New Testament, bound in suede, has been sent by the association and they are delighted with them.—The Bible Institute Colportage Association.

BEST FAMILY RECORD

This is to call attention to the fact that in our issue of May 2 we want to give special recognition to that church that has the largest percentage of its families taking the Herald. The award is to be based on an actual count of the homes in the church. A home will consist of a place where one or more members of the church lives. Out-of-town members or out-of-the-community members are to be counted.

Epitomize? We stand aghast. Who can do him justice? Our Father, may a convey of angels guard the resting place of him and his companion.

Our Father, we fain would drop this tiny tuberose upon his grave, that the frgrance of its aroma might reach the hearts of his friends. For they are legion.

Now put on your spectacles and look at the receipts this week. That young man, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, from Mt. Hermon charge, takes the cake for the largest amount of money sent in, $17 on subscriptions and $10 on subsidy. But several other places came forward with fine contributions. Rev. G. B. Ferree, of West Forsyth; Rev. C. L. Spencer, of Granville; Mrs. F. S. Stockard, of West End, Greensboro; Mrs. S. G. Arthur, Richland, and a host of others did fine work. Wish we could mention all of them in a word of praise, but look at the list and see for yourself. It is a gratifying thing to the editor to know that the charge that stands second this week in contributions is his old home circuit of Richland. While it was not all sent in by the same person, yet Richland did the thing in fine style this week. Keep it up, Richland.

And when did you see so much subsidy as this week? Guess the folks are making up for last week when we did not get any. Anyway, it sure did come in this time and we are very glad indeed.

Guess you want to know how much our receipts amount to this week. It is an even hundred dollars of subscriptions and $22.50 on subsidy, making $122.50 in all.

And now let us apologize to Gibsonville for running their quota at 17 when it should have been 22 ever since conference. We had not noticed the error until this week.

IS IT PROF. ERICSON OR IS IT PROF. FORD?

This week we received two cuts of two professors at High Point College with nothing on the cuts to tell us who was who. The article from the college mentions the names of the two men, but our problem was to determine which cut to use at a certain place. The only way we could make it out was to look at the cuts and decide which looked the most like a man who is named Ford and which one looked the most like a man named Ericson. If we were wrong in our judgment of these two men we beg pardon. It is really hard to tell a man's name by his picture unless you know him personally.

ROBERTS HALL, HIGH POINT COLLEGE

High Point College

We are giving over the first page this week to a beautiful cut of High Point College. The issue of this week is dedicated to that important institution.

Some might ask why we are putting the emphasis at this time on the College. The answer is this: The General Board of Education has agreed to give the College $7,500 provided the North Carolina Annual Conference raises $5,000 by May 1 of this year. This proposition was made almost a year ago and we felt then that we had plenty of time in which to raise it. But it is beginning to dawn on us now that it is not long until May 1, and what we do we must do quickly. We might say, however, that this $5,000 is not something over and above what we were supposed to raise, but is a part of our regular assessment for the College. As we understand it, what we raised last year will be added to what we raise this year in order to meet the conditions. We hope to have an article by Dr. Humphries for this issue, in which he will make the terms and conditions known clearly.

Now the question comes to us, Why should we be concerned about High Point College, anyway? The answer is not hard to find. It is our own. It is the child of the North Carolina Annual Conference. For a long period of years the leaders of our church in this state prayed and worked and paid in order that we might have a college. They saw the need of one. They saw that if we were to shoulder our part of the responsibility we must educate our young people in our own school. Everybody knows that the denomination that educates its young people is the denomination that has the love and respect and esteem of its young people. This is the most natural thing in the world.

Furthermore, a great many of us have put a great deal of our money into High Point College. Some of us could take the money we have given to the institution, go out in the country, buy an acre of land and build a house that would be a fairly decent place to live in for our old age. In so far as we know, nobody is sorry that he invested this much in the institution. It was given gladly and the institution has fully justified the sacrifice. In relating these facts we are neither boasting nor complaining, but simply stating a truth. We have gone too far to turn back now. Before we built the institution we might have faltered, and the world might not have been able to sense any loss, but not now. Having gone thus far, our fortunes are wrapped up in the institution. Our money has been given to it, our prayers have been given to it, and our hopes and ambitions center in it. There is nothing for us to do but to go on. We dare not turn back.

But some one mgiht ask if meeting the terms as laid down by the General Board will pay off the indebtedness. Not at all. It will take more than that. But it will be a fine beginning, and a good beginning is what we need. Since the financial slump came, we seem to have lost confidence in our selves, and this will do a great deal toward restoring confidence. It will enable the College to pay off a great many small obligations, and will go a long ways toward bringing relief to those who are carrying the burdens. And the amount we are asked to give is not large enough to be any great burden on any one. What we need is for every man to do his part and the thing will soon be done.

WHAT THE CONFERENCE EXPECTS OF HIGH POINT COLLEGE

In the field of higher learning our only hope for the Christian nurture and development of youth is the church college. The state-owned and operated schools do very little if anything at all toward the development of Christian life. Young men and women, who at their mother's knee, in Sunday school or church learned to believe in God, were taught how to pray, learned to believe in the Book as the only, yet all-sufficient guide in life, have come out of the state-owned and operated schools to doubt, yes, to utterly disbelieve in these fundamental values. It is also true that sometimes that thing slips into the church college which chills and perhaps kills the spiritual life of youth. But in the field of higher learning the church college is our only hope. Great is our expectation of such a college, for if such a college fails us, atheism and infidelity will do their deadly work on a much larger scale than at present.

The conference expects the minister trained in a church college to possess a strong, steadfast faith in God. The minister or any leader in the Christian church must possess such a faith. Fears and doubts abound. No one can silence and uproot these fears and doubts by argument or discussion, but they may be silenced and uprooted by a strong, beautiful faith. Fears and doubts flee away in the presence of a faith which says, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him."

Four years in the church college should deepen the ministerial student's conviction in the deity of Jesus Christ. We must believe in His deity, we must believe in His atoning blood, for if these things be not true, "we are of all men most miserable," without a Saviour and without hope. Jesus, the divine Son of God, is our only Saviour, "for there is none other Name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." Jesus is the only sure foundation upon which the individual or nation may build, "for other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

The church college should place due and proper emphasis upon the directing and guiding influence of the Holy Spirit. It is so easy to get lost. This is indeed a new age. All things old have been completely abandoned by many people. Living in the midst of careless thinkers; lives controlled by pagan, ungodly philosophy; perplexing bewilderment; and destructive fear, it is easy to get lost. The life, especially the life of the minister, needs the unerring leadership of God's Holy Spirit so that his own life may be kept near to the heart of God and that he may lead the people whom he serves out of the bondage and slavery of bewilderment and chaos into the land of assurance, hope and faith.

When the ministerial student is awarded his diploma by the church college there should be in his own soul a very deep love for and a very strong faith in the Book. The seed of this love and faith should have been planted in his life in early childhood and by college age should have grown into a beautiful plant. The church college should nurture and cultivate this plant. The destruction of this plant is one of life's greatest losses. The Book is the textbook of life. No one really lives unless he lives by the principles of the Book.

The conference expects the church college to place due emphasis, therefore, upon these cardinal values as she trains men for the ministry. There are values old-fashioned, but not out of date. There are values old-fashioned, but still absolutely necessary to abundant, satisfying, happy life. Eating is old-fashioned, but still necessary to physical growth. Sleeping is old-fashioned, but still essential to bodily refreshment, relaxation and rest. So there are old-fashioned values upon which the individual or nation must build or meet with bitter failure. This new age needs more than anything else, yea, the only thing that will bring us out of our wreckage and chaos is a strong faith in God; Jesus enthroned in the heart as Saviour; the life completely controlled by the Holy Spirit; and the truths of the old Book a living, vibrant reality in human life.

THE PRESIDENT OF HIGH POINT COLLEGE

(The article below appeared in the Golden Anniversary edition of the High Point Enterprise, under date of January 20 last.—N. M. Harrison.)

Rev. Gideon Ireland Humphreys, A.M., D.D., was called from a pastorate in Salisbury, Maryland, to the presidency of High Point College. He assumed the duties of the latter office September 1, 1930.

At that time the depression clouds were gathering thicker and heavier over the economic world. It was more than a mere school boy's task to come into a new community and a new field of endeavor in the face of unusual economic conditions, to steer through the turbulent tides an institution already burdened with debt and a continually mounting operating deficit.

Many of her supporters had lost hope in the economic future of the College. At the session of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, less than ninety days after Dr. Humphreys had assumed the presidency, the tone of the discussion there, relative to the College, clearly showed that many felt that the church was championing an impossibility for such times. It was necessary for President Humphreys to plead for time to see what he could do with the situation.

The accomplishments of these four and a half years speak for themslves that the trust of that conference was not a vain hope. From an annual net deficit of $15,000 he has balanced his budget, without curtailing on the faculty personnel, or lowering the standard or efficiency of work. As a matter of fact, High Point College has never enjoyed a greater prestige, a higher standard of work, or a finer student enrollment than it does today. Largely through a campaign in High Point in 1932, which netted over $50,000, he has reduced the accumulated net operating indebtedness of the institution forty-three per cent.

During the same period of time, with less than a thousand dollar deficit on the projects, there has been constructed a gymnasium on the campus, which has variously been appraised in value from $15,000 to $20,000; repainted all of the buildings inside and out; graded and transplanted trees and shrubbery on the campus making a garden spot of beauty; and has near to competion a new athletic field, upon which work has temporarily been suspended.

In response to his request, the women's department of work of the Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina has included in its budget an annual appropriation of $1,000 to the college.

Under his direction, two years ago the powers of student government were materialy increased. Such fine reaction came from the student body that further innovations were made, chief of which was the discontinuance of the deanships and the inauguration of class councilors instead. This move has favorably changed the attitude of the student toward the college regulations.

Dr. F. W. Stephenson, Executive Secretary of the Board of Christian Education of the Methodist Protestant Church, in a speech in High Point last November, referred to these achievements as "an educational romance."

While Dr. Humphreys had never served as head of an educational institution before, yet he had an educational outlook and a thorough educational background. He has, also, had a wide experience as an executive, having served as president of the Maryland Annual Conference for five years, and as president of the Board of Christian Education of the Methodist Protestant Church for thirteen years. The church and the community of High Point feel that they have in him "a man of the hour."

GOD'S POWER IN SALVATION

An earnest Christian man and a faithful reader of the Bible was assailed by an infidel.

"I do not understand nor do I believe," said he, "that the Blood of Jesus Christ can wash away my sin."

"You and St. Paul quite agree on that subject," answered the Bible student.

"How?"

"Turn to the first chapter of First Corinthians and read the eighteenth verse: 'For the preaching of the Cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God'."

The infidel hung his head and began to study the Bible. He soon found it to be God's power unto salvation.—The Lutheran.

WHERE HELL IS

A young man converted during special evangelistic meetings held in a mining village, desirous of doing something for God, bought some tracts.

He was distributing these one day when he met some of his old companions, who derided him as he spoke to them of Jesus.

"Here," said one of his old companions, "can you tell me where hell is?"

In a newspaper clipping which was reprinted in the Herald a few weeks ago, there was an account of a certain cousin of mine—once removed—who promised his father that he would repay every cent that had been lost to the depositors when the bank of which his father was president failed. The total obligations amounted to $1,000,000. It took him twenty-five years to do it. And the last payment he made was $400,000. Now the remarkable thing about that incident is that the son was in no way involved in the bank failure. He could, legally, have avoided the payment of a single dollar. Another son was involved in it; but not the one who promised his fatherd he would repay the debt.

Just what has that got to do with the McCulloch Memorial Fund? Much every way. I do not know what, if anything, Dr. McCulloch had in mind as to the continuation of the Herald after his death; just what disposition he wanted to make of it. But I am sure of this—he wanted the debt against it taken care of, the amount due the printers that he could make no provision for, paid. It was not his fault that it was not paid during his lifetime. But he was dependent on subscriptions to meet the cost of printing the Herald, and the Methodist Protestants in North Carolina didn't give him enough subscriptions, take enough papers, to pay that cost. So he left the debt—$3,500. It seems to me the Conference, meaning the members of the churches, are responsible for that debt; and that it is an obligation that we must discharge if we are to keep faith with Dr. McCulloch and the printers. No, let it be repeated, it isn't a legal obligation: no more so than the repayment of the money lost in that bank failure. We can repudiate it, as that young man might have repudiated it. But he could not do that and be true to his father or to his own promise. Neither can we in this present instance. IT IS A MORAL OBLIGATION. Shall we arise and accept it as such, and make an earnest effort to discharge it? Or shall we wash our hands of it, let the boys assume it, make it a charge against the estate, and prove ourselves untrue and unworthy? It's up to the churches to answer Yes or No.

Several checks have come in since the last report. Harmony Grove, Yarborough, goes on the Honor Roll. Good for our South Carolina brethren! Three of Brother Ferree's churches have gone on the Honor Roll; another is well on the way, and still another will get there shortly. Brother Spencer sends me a good check from Rehoboth, and tells me the balance of their apportionment is pledged; Mt. Carmel's all pledged; and that he expects Union Chapel to come through. Today (Tuesday) a check for $25.00 from J. H. Snotherly puts his church, Friendship, and Porter, on the same charge, on the Honor Roll.

Pastors, District Chairman, lay and clergy, and interested members, will please take due notice and govern themselves thereby.

P. S.—A card just received from Dr. Taylor informs me the Asheboro church went "over the top" Sunday—$150.00 to be paid in full in 30 days! Fine! C. W. B.

THE GOLDEN RULE

A beautiful and inspiring incident is recorded concerning Alfred the Great, king of England, while in retreat at Athleney, in Somersetshire, after his forces had been completely routed by the Danes. He and his royal family were forced prisoners within the walls of their little castle there, with little hope of immediate release or prospect of food. One day while discussing their straitened condition, a poor beggar knocked at the door and asked for alms. The queen responded, informed the man of their own plight, and stated that they had only one-half loaf of bread left, which would be inadequate to their present needs, to say nothing about the future. Their friends had gone out in search of food, but had very poor prospect of finding any. They could do nothing for the beggar. But the king overheard the conversation at the door, and said to the queen: "Give the poor man half of the loaf. He who could feed the five thousand with five loaves and two fishes can certainly make that half loaf suffice for our necessities."

The half loaf was given, the man was relieved of his hunger, and the king's compliance with the Golden Rule was soon rewarded with an ample store in the memorable retreat.—Publisher Unknown.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Conference Treasurer Reports

Will pastors please check against this report and discover any discrepancies which may appear? It is so easy for mistakes to be made in handling the different items as they are now kept:

High Point College—Thomasville, First, $3.00.

A. C. Debt—Concord First, $50.00.

Superannuates—Mebane, $17.00; West End, Greensboro, $20.00; Tabernacle, $23.00.

Church Extension—Saxapahaw, $3.00; Tabernacle, $9.00; Kannapolis, $7.00; Denton, $18.00; Mt. Pleasant, $25.50; Siler City, $15.81; Spring Church, $12.00; Winston, First church, $6.00.

Annual Conference Expenses—Mebane, $10.00; N. Davidson, $2.00; Halifax, $3.00; Pleasant Grove, $20.40; Thomasville, First, $40.00; Forsyth, $32.50; Mt. Pleasant, $24.50; Asheboro, $80.00; Burlington, $150.00; Flat Rock, $20.00; Whitakers, $18.00; Community Church, $66.00; Alamance, $2.40; Vance, $2.00; Lexington, First, $25.00; Mt. Hermon, $13.00.

The following have paid their assessment in full for Church Extension: Concord, Spring Church, Denton charge, Kannapolis church.

The following have paid their assessment in full for Annual Conference Expenses: Burlington, First; Community church; Asheboro; Whitakers; First, Thomasville; First, Lexington; Union Ridge, Forsyth charge.

This is according to the report of Treasurer Allen. No doubt, others have paid some of these in full but did not report to the treasurer before the 6th of February. Financially, it is not a good showing for many of the churches. Some pastors have received a very small compensation to date, and some churches have entirely ignored the call from the president of the conference to raise certain claims. We must have co-operation from all before we can attain our highest percent of efficiency in our annual conference activities. A great number of the pastors are joining in the campaign of tithing launched by President Broomfield, but most of our rural charges will not be able to do this very well for the reason that this is not a season when the income of the farmer amounts to very much. I think most of them will observe atithing month or more in the early fall when the crops are marketed.

But a larger number than ever before will try out the pre-Easter period for an evangelistic campaign, and we are praying for splendid results. It will be a great impetus to our work to have a gracious revival in the early part of the conference year.

The Mid-Year Meeting

We are beginning to plan this meeting. We hope to emphasize certain interests of the church this time more effectively and to have the meeting in connection with the pastors' school. The details are not yet worked out, so we shall have to wait a little while for a fuller announcement; yet you may expect the meeting.

The Western Pastors' Federation

This meeting was held at Roberta church. It was attended by Revs. E. A. and P. E. Bingham, H. F. Fogleman, T. M. Johnson, Lee Moser, C. G. Isley, C. E. Ridge, J. O. Fry, E. A. Cook, G. H. Hendry, D. I. Garner, J. H. Trolinger, D. R. Williams, J. M. Morgan, and possibly other pastors in that district. It was a good meeting. A splendid dinner was served by the ladies of the church, and several lay members of the churches in the district were present in the meeting. This federation has continued to meet since its organization and appears to be a channel of helpfulness to the pastors.

Davidson Charge, Rev. E. A. Bingham, Pastor

I visited Alleghany and Pine Hill churches on this charge. These are not strong numerically, but they are situated in communities where they can render distinct service, and do it, we believe. The service of the rural church is often discounted or not appreciated because the members cannot pay much money to the enterprises of the denomination, and are unable to take positions of leadership. But all the time these churches do afford opportunities for the gospel to be preached there and become the spiritual leaven to transform the attitudes of the people in the community from anti-Christian to Christian.

Brother Bingham is especially qualified as a rural pastor. He was reared in the country and knows the approach of the rural people to the church, and his training in the college and seminary has made it possible for him to render a distinct service to a people who stand greatly in need of it. He is now serving his fifth year, we believe, on this charge. The attendance at both services was good and the people appeared to appreciate the messages.

Plan of Appointments

February 17—Kernersville charge.

February 24—Haw River charge.

March 3—Philadelphia, Matthews, and Wesley Chapel, Greensville charge.

March 10—Midland charge.

March 17—Caroleen and Shelby churches.

NOTES ON PREACHING

By P. E. Lindley

Being Concrete

Lincoln, so the story goes, went to hear a lecture and became so bewildered and dissatisfied with its big words and tangled sentences that on returning home he prayed: "Lord, if ever I deliver a speech that cannot be understood, kill me at once."

Whether this account is literally true or not, it does fit into Lincoln's plan of oratory and it also represents the feeling of many a listener at the present time who tries in vain to follow a speaker and make intelligible his long and abstract phrasing. "Concreteness is the soul of attention," says one writer, "and it is a rare speaker indeed who can make himself interesting without it." Abstract discussion appeals primarily to the reason, and is, therefore, difficult to follow and appreciate. Concrete reference, on the other hand, calls up sensory images already in the experience of the listener and consequently meets a very ready response.

In all of our mental processes we go from the known to the related unknown, and in the very nature of the case these concrete descriptions employ words and situations already familiar to the audience. To show this principle one need only observe the reaction given to a concrete narrative. Notice, for example, how the congregation becomes intensely interested the second the speaker begins relating, say, a specific account of a certain crippled man who came to his door in search for food. Everybody listens when he comes to this particular story. A vital illustration is a good attention getter. If the speaker could deal altogether in concrete material, there would hardly be a dull moment in the whole discourse.

Since, however, no speech or sermon can be made up entirely of illustrations, it becomes necessary to use both the concrete and the abstract appeal. We must try to establish the proper balance between these two forms of approach. The abstract, intellectualized method should doubtless occupy more time and space in the address, yet enough of the concrete, specific material must be used to give interest, flavor, feeling and vividness to the discussion as a whole. Too many sermons suffer from over-abstraction and are greatly in need of more striking, interesting illustrations.

Illustrations serve many purposes. They hold attention; they show that the truth under consideration is workable; they break the monotony, lend variety and make the sermon attractive; they drive the point home; and, what may be even more valuable, they stir the emotions and melt down the resisting wall of indifference, allowing the message to go home to the heart.

The first lesson, therefore, to be drawn from this study of concreteness is this: Use plenty of good illustrations. No one can tell another person just how many illustrations to employ in one sermon. This is left to the skill and good judgment of the speaker. It is safe to suggest, though, that no major point or division of a sermon ought to go unillustrated. Perhaps two or three well-chosen incidents or cases could be employed on each major contention, for these illustrations are often more convincing than the main argument. Illustrations allow the sermon a sort of breathing spell. Without these specific cases to show how the truth works, the discourse soon grows heavy, solid, vague, and hard to follow.

I have known the farmer to run a tobacco stick or small pole down into a big box of newly threshed wheat to let the air circulate through the grain. Unless air can penetrate the wheat it will spoil at the center of the box. What the pole is to the grain through which it runs, the illustration is to the sermon. It loosens it up; keeps it from being too compact and solid; gives an opening now and then through which the listener's mind can pass; breaks up the otherwise thick and compressed argument into simple forms of truth so that the hearer can see and enjoy it. Illustrations simplify the profoundest truths.

Then, in the second place, the preacher would do well to give general principles concrete settings. Whenever it is possible one ought to attach the truth to something specific. Morning glories are fine flowers, but they cannot grow up into the open air; they must run on a fence, cornstalk, or something of the kind. So is truth. It is always most natural when described in some particular situation. Beware of allowing truth to go too high in the air without being tied to something. Unless truth is properly related to other existing objects or persons it lends to lose its power. When you feel the discussion is moving too far into the thin air of logic, pull it back to the earth by giving a good quotaton from some particular person or tell of a definite case where the principle was tried.

Third, modernize the Scriptures. By this we mean merely the adapting of Biblical material to everyday life. One need not, of course, cheapen the sacred writings by this process. What is usually needed is a simplified restatement of the content of the chapters. From my own experience in teaching the Bible to college students I find that people seldom get a satisfactory meaning of a selection on the first reading. We have to go over it a second time, pausing here and there to explain the meaning of words that sound a bit strange to modern ears. The language of the Bible is different from ours; even the same words appear in another form, and often terms used nowhere else appear in the Scriptures. New translations, of which there are many, help clear up a number of passages otherwise obscure to us. The Bible is full of human interests, and when explained in terms of modern life it at once becomes a new and vital portrayal of human life. Make the Bible real by placing its truths in the concrete situations of today.

A CLEAR CONSCIENCE

A young boy was seen one day hanging around a circus tent. A gentleman, thinking he would do the boy a kindness, said, "Come, Johnny, let us go into the circus."

"No," said the boy, "Father would not like it."

"But your father need not know it," said the man.

"But I will know it," said the boy, "and when Father comes home tonight I could not look up into his face."

Keep your conscience clear, boys and girls. And if ever you do get enticed into doing something wrong, be sure to confess it to your parents and to God.—Our Pentecostal Boys and Girls.

OUR STORY PAGE

STORY OF A JAPANESE GIRL

In her lesson one day a young Japanese girl came to the word "Creator," but did not know its meaning. Turning to the dictionary, she read, "Creator—One who creates; a name given to God who made all things."

A startling thought to her, for she had never heard of such a God, and it filled her mind by night and by day. She looked at the stars and said, "God must have made all the stars." The sun, and even the trees suggested the thought—God made them.

She went to the temple and looked at the image of Buddha, and she said to herself, "It was not you, Buddha, for I never heard of you making anything."

When she went to Tokyo, an old woman in the same house said to her, "Tasshee, I am going to the meeting; come with me."

"What meeting?"

"A meeting to hear about God."

"Oh, no," said Tasshee, "I do not want any of your gods, I have a god of my own, if I only knew where He was."

Tasshee, however, went to the meeting. The missionary opened the Bible and read, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Tasshee was startled: "Why, that is the God I am looking for," she said, and she became so agitated that she could hardly keep her seat, and so eager was she to put the question, "Where is He?"

When the meeting was over, she rushed to the missionary and said, "Tell me, where is that God that made the heaven and earth?" Her desire was met by proper instruction.

She came to the next meeting and heard, "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Here again Tasshee was startled. A God of love! Her gods were gods fo hate, of revenge, of anger. This God gave His only Son. All the gods she had ever heard of never gave anything. The people had to give them offerings.

This thirsting soul received the Water of Life. Tasshee is now a Christian teacher, dispensing the Water of Life to others, telling them of God who spared not His own Son, but gave Him up for us all.—Unknown.

GERHARDT'S REWARD

If you had attempted to judge Gerhardt by his shabby clothes and rough looks, you would have thought, perhaps, that he was not worth having much to do with. But if you had come to know this German shepherd lad as one hunter did, you would have said he was quite worth knowing.

The hunter, discovering the shepherd, asked him the nearest way to the next village.

"By the sheep-track," Gerhardt pointed. "Six miles."

The path looked to the hunter very crooked, but he wanted the shortest route; so he suggested to Gerhardt, "Guide me yourself to the village, and I'll pay you well for your trouble."

"Why!" replied the astonished boy, "How do you think I could leave my sheep? They would be eaten by wolves, or stolen by robbers, perhaps."

"Still, the sheep aren't yours," tempted the hunter. "I'll give you more money than you ever earned in a whole year if you'll come with me."

But Gerhardt stood firm. "No. My master pays me. so my time belongs to him, and I could not sell it to you. Besides, I would not want the sheep to get hurt."

When the hunter saw that he could not tempt the boy to go with him, he proposed another scheme. "Let me look after the sheep while you go to the village and get me some food and drink."

The boy really wanted to help the stranger; so he thought for a minute before he answered. But he had to say no again. "The sheep do not know your voice. And then—and then, you tried to make me break my word to my master. How do I know you would keep your word to me? What if you are a robber?"

At this the hunter burst out laughing. You see he was the grand duke, who owned all the country round about. I do not suppose the duke wanted the shepherd to leave his sheep so much as he wanted to find out what sort of boy the shepherd really was. Anyway, he was so pleased with Gerhardt's trustworthiness that he gave him an education, helped him to become a wealthy man, and installed him in a very important office in his dukedom.—Junior Christian Endeavor World.

HOW TO BE UNHAPPY

Be sensitive; take best care of "number one," be sure to protect yourself; "be good to yourself"; safeguard yourself.

Be revengeful; give tit for tat; let them have just as good as they send. Be sure to return evil for evil; take care to get down with a "dog" on his own level.

Be slow to forgive; the other fellow deserves it, he will only gloat over an easy deal; he is incapable of appreciating courteous treatment; he has not asked to be forgiven; just let him severely alone.

Be still slower to forget. It's enough to forgive—if you do; it's quite too much to add forgetfulness to the injury done; life might be too prosy without periodically prying up those old bones.—Publisher Unknown.

KNOWING THE BIBLE

Quite often in our daily life, temptation emerges suddenly, and we have no time to avoid it, or to take our Bibles—even if we are those who carry a Bible—and begin hunting up some helpful passage. It is the Word stored which is the Word of value, which can cleanse our lives; and the Lord Jesus cleanses His Church by the washing of water by the Word of God.

But if He is to do it, we must give Him the opportunity by the storing of the Word of God in our memories.—Rev. J. Russel Howden.

CHURCH MUSIC

We continue the article by Mrs. Douglas Kime Fuquay, the first part of which appeared in last week's issue of the Herald. This article proves what can be done by a group of young people who are interested in their church and in better music, if given a chance. There are other young people's choirs in the churches of our conference who are doing equally as good work. Let us hear from you in a similar article to this.

E. LESTER BALLARD.

The Organized Young People's Choir

(Concluded)

We are busy keeping up with all our choir activities. We have furnished special music for several Greensboro Christian Endeavor City Union executive meetings. We assisted in the special music on Young People's night at the Annual Conference. We sang at the Leadership Training School at High Point College in 1934. Our choir gave a musical program at the night service of our church anniversary day last year. We went out to spread cheer just after midnight Christmas Eve, singing carols for our pastor, a number of shut-ins, and the inmates of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home.

Through the co-operation of a few sincere friends we have been able to purchase robes for every regular choir member.

Into our much loved work and song we are trying to put a message that is ours. We hope that other similar groups will want to organize and do their bit for Christ.

A Church Hymn Test

How many of the following questions on familiar hymns can you answer?

1. Which is the oldest known Christian hymn?
2. Who was known as the Father of English Hymnody?
3. What hymn-writer refused, when a boy, to become the adopted son of a wealthy Irish Member of Parliament, preferring to continue preparation for the ministry?
4. What blind hymnist gave to the Christian world no less than 3,000 hymns, many of which are still in use today?
5. What hymns in our Methodist Protestant Hymnal were written by Methodist Protestants?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By LUTHER R. MEDLIN

Topic: What the Bible Says About Temptation and Sin.

Scripture: James 1:2-4, 12-18; Mark 7:14-23.

This should be a very interesting and can be made to prove a most helpful meeting to the young people of the church. Our day is characterized by the lack of discrimination on the part of both older and younger people of good and evil.

The difference between sin and temptation should be made clear with emphasis in order that the young people may understand that they are not synonymous terms. To be tempted does not necessarily imply sin. One may be consistently tempted and not sin. Indulgences in, participating in and yielding to temptations that confront us determines sin. The greatest spiritual characters are tempted, but fortified with strength and courage they resist. Jesus was tempted sorely. In the most alluring manner, with the most cunning tactics, at the most opportune time was evil presented to Jesus, but He was able to say, "Get thee behind me, Satan." The ability to do likewise by men and women today helps them to refrain from sinful practices, and the pursuit of harmful indulgences.

What is sin? is frequently asked. "Sin has been defined as the transgression of the law." How do you know when you have sinned? The individual, by the aid of his conscience, unless conscience has become deadened and immune to sin, will warn the individual of the impending danger.

Who is able to catalogue an adequate and unimpeachable list of sins that will be all inclusive? The greatest mistake that the church has made was when it ceased to function as an organization of mercy and kindness, leading men and women devotedly to the worship of Him who cleanses impurities, and purges iniquity, and set itself up as a judge and condemner of mankind. When it ceased to be kind and merciful and discreet in its dealings with sin and temptation, it began to point the finger of scorn and condemnation at those unfortunate victims of sin and evil and it failed in its mission. When the church failed to restore the fallen, and bind up the broken, and comfort the sorrowful, and solace the troubled; when the church failed through love and its ministry of mercy to seek and to save, it has failed. I would not have the church less pronounced than it is against evil; but rather I would have it more emphatic in its denunciation of evil, but its methods so often have tended to repel rather than attract. When the woman taken in sin was brought to Jesus, he did not ridicule her; He did not tear to shreds her moral character and lay bear before the public her sinful soul; He didn't expose her deeds of misconduct and intensify the evil she had done; but He dealt with her kindly, and may the church "Go and do likewise."

OUR PLEA FOR A BETTER YEAR

The following letter goes out this week to pastors, Sunday school superintendents, and Children's Home secretaries. We are trusting and believing there will be a hearty response. It helps to be DEFINITE in our plans.

Dear Friends and Co-Workers:

This letter comes to emphasize two things: First, during last March a special campaign was conducted to raise funds for the Children's Home, and the features which gave it success were: (1) Every Sunday school making an offering; (2) All of those making regular offerings double that offering for March. We are not asking for a campaign this year, but we are asking each church and Sunday school to double the regular offering for March.

Second, the offerings received during the last four years have been inadequate to meet the actual needs of the Home. Our income is derived from churches, Sunday schools, C. E. societies, woman's auxiliaries, special days, personal gifts, the General Conference, the Duke Endowment, and from other conferences. From most of these sources we practically know what to count upon. That we may know just a bit better what to expect from our churches, Sunday schools, and C. E. societies we are asking that you set a monthly goal for the Home. Not an assessment, but a monthly goal set and accepted by these organizations as their monthly share in caring for these children.

We are asking all the churches to increase their monthly offerings. It is always better to work by a plan than without a plan. So we have figured closely on the needed budget for the year, and if each church will take the amount suggested for it and raise it each month and send it in promptly, and then help with the special days, we will be able to go through the year paying for the actual necessities for the children. We are only asking for sufficient to supply actual needs.

We greatly appreciate the hearty way in which our people respond to this worthy and beautiful service, and as added prosperity comes we know they will respond the more liberally. Almost any church community could support one child, and yet we have at least two churches for every child in the Home.

This plan, if worked, will save us from the summer slump in offerings. May to August inclusive always puts us behind, and this is largely responsible for our annual deficits. We thank you for your careful and prayerful consideration of this, and a card from you telling us what to expect will be helpful. Thank you and God bess you every one.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

A NEW CHURCH FOR FALLSTON

Those of you who want to read some more inspiring news will please look up Rev. H. F. Fogleman's article this week and see what he says about a new church at Fallston. We trust their plans may go through without a hitch and that ere long this fine membership may be worshipping in a church building that is commensurate with their needs.

High Point College News

The varsity debating team at High Point College has started its rehearsals for this season of debating. Professor John Erickson is coaching the team. They expect to meet a number of opponents representing institutions not only in North Carolina, but other southern states as well. It will be remembered that High Point has always made an enviable record in all of its forms of forensics.

The second semester's work commenced January 26, resulting in several new students registering, which brings the total enrollment now to approximately 300.

The Purple Panther basketball team has gone through the season thus far with but one defeat. This defeat was taken by their chief rival—Elon College. Prior to the second defeat of this season by Elon, High Point stood at the top of the ladder in the Little Six Conference. Practically all the remaining schedule is to be played on the home court and the Panther boys are determined to come up with the big end of the score in each future contest.

Heat has been placed in the gymnasium as a gift from several classes of the college. This is the most modern system of heating, and consists of four blowers situated near the corners of the building causing the heat to circulate downward. This added comfort has helped to increase the attendance at our games, which has run as high as 750 at some of the contests. This necessitated adding to the seating arrangement.

Dean P. E. Lindley was recently elected president of the North Carolina Sunday School Association. Dr. Lindley succeeded J. B. Ivey, of Charlotte, who has been president of the association for several years.

Dr. Potter, a professor of Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn., made a very interesting talk to the students in chapel last Friday.

Dr. F. W. Stevenson, the executive secretary of the Board of Education, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pa., was a recent welcomed visitor to the campus. Dr. Stevenson spent several days in conference with the administration relative to the operation of the institution and the students, particularly the ministerial students, and those who were receiving aid from the Board. Dr. Stevenson's fine personality and genial spirit always make his visits a pleasure for all.

"Man becomes man only through the process of education," says Immanuel Kant. It will be observed that he did not say "college graduates" or "owner of degrees," but "through the process of education."

One is not educated when he graduates from college or receives a degree. Education is a process and it is not completed as long as life lasts.

A college training is a step toward an education. He who secures that training has an advantage, other things being equal, of the man who does not have it. With it he is in a position to achieve more in life, in the same time and with the same effort than if he did not have it. A college training is worth while.

A SIGNIFICANT STATEMENT

While sitting in the dentist's office a few days ago, I picked up a copy of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, which I found lying on the table. (By way of parenthesis: I've been going to dentists' and doctors' offices for a good many years off and on, but this is the first time I ever saw a church paper in one of them.) But the thing I was especially interested in as a member of the Herald Directing Committee was the editor's statement about the circulation of the paper. This is what he said: "Only by extending the circulation of the paper and increasing the work of the job office—by which we subsidize the paper—can we keep going." And he hinted that the going was a bit rough.

But I want to call your attention to a couple of other things besides increasing the circulation which he makes in that statement. It will help you to realize our problem. The first suggestion is that it takes a lot of job printing to get an income to take care of the cost of producing the paper. The income from subscriptions alone is not sufficient. They have to get part of that income from some other source. That is, they have a subsidy in the form of profits from the job printing department.

Now it happens that the Herald has no such source of income. All the job printing done in the plant where the Herald is printed goes to the firm that prints the Herald. That means, of course, that if the cost of printing the Herald is met it can only be met by increasing the Herald subscription list to the point of self-support. Or continue the plan of having the churches contribute to the subsidy fund to take care of possible deficits. That will be in varying ratio to the number of paid subscriptions. The more subscribers, the less subsidy.

It happens that so far this year the weekly income from subscriptions—not counting any money received for the subsidy—has pretty well taken care of the cost of production. Just how long we may expect that to continue will depend. We hope it will continue to the point where there can be a substantial reduction in the amount to be asked for as subsidy next year. If the paper can be made self-sustaining without the subsidy, no one is disposed to continue it.

But until that time and point are reached, I am appealing to the churches—pastors and people—to support the subsidy. It is our assurance that the paper will be continued without embarrassment to the printers.

C. W. BATES, Chairman,
Herald Directing Committee.

BROTHER BRITTAIN KNOWS PREACHERS

Brother G. T. Brittain, of Calvary church, whose everyday occupation is to handle fine poultry, seems to know just when his pastor is hungry for chicken. Thank you, Brother Brittain, you are a good judge of appetites.

WHO CAN FURNISH THIS COPY?

The copy of the Herald in our files for January 3 happens to be a defective one. There does not seem to be another one of that issue around these parts. Is there someone who can furnish one? If so, we shall be glad to receive it.

Let Us Pray

Please join us in very earnest prayer that God will help us to solve a big problem. It is a problem affecting our 50 boys. It is a problem that should be solved speedily, and we want to solve it right. If you believe in prayer, then pray very earnestly as soon as you read this that God will solve it for us.

MRS. E. T. COBLE A GOOD HOSTESS

The large number present at the meeting of the women of the Fifth District, held at Pine Needles Lodge on Friday of last week, were convinced of the fact that Mrs. E. T. Coble is not only a good leader, but a good hostess, also. The place was ideal for such a meeting. All in all, it was a great occasion, even if the editor did review one of the books.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

West End, Thomasville.—You haven't heard from us in a long time, but we hope to be admitted again. We haven't been idle, but are still at work and hope to make great progress this year.

We are having good attendance at all services except midweek prayer service. Seems as if we can't get many away from the fire these cold nights.

We were glad Sunday to have our Sunday school superintendent back with us after an appendix operation.

We all like Rev. Edw. Suits just fine. We feel that he is a man of God. But still we won't forget Rev. H. W. Bell, who served us so faithfully for five years. Our prayer is that he will have a prosperous year.

MRS. L. C. GODBEY, Reporter.

Mission Band, Gideon's Grove Church.—The regular monthly meeting of the Mission Band of Gideon's Grove church, Flat Rock charge, was held at the parsonage in Stokesdale last Saturday afternoon. Miss Maurice Gordon was program leader, and a very interesting program was rendered, a number of the boys and girls participating. Forty collection cards had been ordered and were distributed among the boys and girls in two groups, known as the Reds and Blues. These cards provide for ten dimes on each card. They are to be filled by the boys and girls and the money thus raised will be added to a fund now being solicited to paint the parsonage.

At the conclusion of the program, an exciting contest was held, in which a number of the boys and girls engaged. Fetzer Friddle won the prize, a box of candy. The hostesses, Mildred and Louise Way, served delicious refreshments. There were 27 members and seven visitors present. The next meeting will be held at the home of Rev. J. C. Preston, in Stokesdale, with his daughter, Mary Adell, acting as hostess.

The boys and girls were very proud of the opportunity of working for funds to paint the parsonage, and already nearly $10 has been secured by the collection cards. Each one will report to the next meeting the amount secured.

MRS. C. B. WAY, Leader.

Flat Rock Charge.—The writer has been leaving the reporting for Flat Rock charge to the reporters, but there are a few things we wish to report this week. On January 30 the pastor and wife enjoyed a very pleasant visit in the home of Brother Lynn Tucker, and participated in the happy birthday occasion in honor of Brother Tucker. He was 72 years of age that day. His daughter, Miss Grace Tucker, is the excellent reporter for Palestine church, and the family are among the most loyal members of Palestine church.

The people at the different churches have been kind to the pastor and family, and we have received a number of gifts since our last report in the Herald, for which we are thankful. Space will not permit giving names of all who have remembered us.

There have been a large number of our peope sick for the past few weeks. Some have recovered and others are improving. The condition of Mrs. Laura Angel, member of Gideon's Grove church, who has been a patient at the Baptist hospital, in Winston-Salem for six months, does not improve. Also Mrs. Mahaley Tucker, member of Palestine church, is critically ill at this writing (Monday afternoon) and is not expected to recover.

We are pleased to make the announcement that Rev. W. A. Way, pastor of Edgeville Pilgrim Holiness church, of Greensboro, and cousin of the writer, will be at Flat Rock church the second Sunday in March at 3:30 p.m. to preach. He will bring a quartet of singers to render music for the service. He and members of his choir have been broadcasting sacred music from radio station WBIG, Greensboro, for several months. We are expecting to have a large congregation on the occasion of their visit to Flat Rock church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Gideon's Grove, Flat Rock Charge.—The pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, filled his regular appointments on the first and second Sundays. The sermons uere good and the attendance larger than usual. We were glad to have a number of visitors for the services, and extend to them a welcome to come again.

The Woman's Auxiliary met February 5th. An interesting program was rendered. Mrs. C. B. Way was program leader. Officers elected for the coming year were as follows: President, Mrs. C. C. Angel; secretary, Mrs. Vinson Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. A. L. Lemons; sick and cheer committee, Mrs. R. W. Pegram, Mrs. Frank Smith, Miss Virginia Lemmons.

We regret to learn of the serious illness of Mrs. Tucker, mother of Mrs. Pegram and Mrs. Lemons. Mrs. Laura Angel continues ill in a Winston-Salem hospital. Miss Claudia Angel is at home recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

MRS. H. R. ANGEL, Reporter.

Burlington, First.—The stewards and assistant stewards held a very enthusiastic meeting last Thursday night. The meeting was held in the home of our church treasurer, Mr. J. C. Jones. Soon after the group arrived, they were invited into the dining-room and thoroughly enjoyed a splendid meal. After the meal the chairman of the board, Mr. W. E. Smith, called the group into a business session. The report of the treasurer showed that the church lacked only $50 of having paid every financial obligation for the first quarter of this conference year. The occasion was one of fine fellowship and great inspiration.

The church here is making splendid headway on a building fund. We need a new church and perhaps only a few years will pass until the need is met. The circles in the Woman's Auxiliary and individual members of the church have expressesd their deep interest and have pledged their co-operation. We are planning a three-month tithing campaign which we hope will add materially to this building fund.

Yesterday was a good day with us. The Sunday school was well attended and a large audience heard the word with interest at the morning worship hour. The 7:30 hour last evening was given over to the February Thank-Offering service sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary. The attendance was somewhat small, but the program was splendid. Miss Bettie Thompson, president of the auxiliary, presided. Mrs. D. S. Coltrane of Greensboro was the guest speaker, and she brought a very informing and inspiring message. It was a most helpful service.

We were glad to note several visitors in the services yesterday. We were especially glad to have some former members worship with us: Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rogers, Mrs. George Haltom and daughter, Mrs. A. L. Pickard, and Miss Margaret Thompson.

As we begin the second quarter we are hoping to meet all financial obligations promptly; we are expecting to make a substantial increase in our building fund; we are praying for a daily growth in our spiritual life and a large ingathering of precious souls during the quarter, especially during the Easter season.

FRED W. PASCHALL.

Glen Raven Charge.—The first quarterly conference of this circuit was held the afternoon of February 10. The attendance was good and a spirit of co-operation and harmony prevailed. The conference accepted the items of the budget, and each church took its proportional part. We believe it is in the minds of the people of this circuit to have all financial obligations paid in full this year. The pastor is grateful for this splendid feeling.

The second Sunday morning was noteworthy at Fairview church. Bro. W. M. Taylor, who is the much liked and efficient teacher of the Baraca class, took the class and went to the home of Mr. G. W. Jones, who is sick, and held the class meeting in Brother Jones' room. The offering of $4.00 was given to the sick man.

J. P. PEGG.

First Church, Winston-Salem.—Young People's Week was observed very enthusiastically in First church. There were many fine things done and a wonderful fellowship felt in the activities of the week throughout the city as well as in our own church.

The mother-daughter banquet held on Tuesday night of the week was well attended. Miss Margaret Smith served as toastmistress, Miss Pauline Branson gave a toast to the mothers, Mrs. C. W. Bates introduced Mrs. Carol C. Roberts, who gave a most inspirational talk, and Miss Helen Bates gave a toast to the American girl. There were 41 mothers and daughters in attendance. Three generations were represented by Mrs. A. A. Moser, her mother and her daughter. Mrs. W. C. Tise had the most daughters, four in number.

The father-son banquet was also a success. Mr. Archie Smith was toastmaster for the occasion. Mr. Charles Stonestreet gave a toast to the fathers and Mr. B. K. Milloway made a response. Mr. Archie Elledge, a lawyer of this city, gave an interesting and worthwhile address. Forty-four persons attended. Mr. W. C. Tise had the most sons, which was four. He also had his son-in-law and three grandsons, making nine in his group.

On Sunday night, ending Young People's Week, the Boosters' Class presented a play called "This War." These young people are to be commended for this splendid presentation. They are really "some class."

The Business Women's Circle met on Monday night with Miss Margaret Smith at her home on West End Boulevard. Miss Helen Voss, chairman, presided over the meeting. Several issues of importance to the group were discussed and passed upon. Mrs. C. W. Bates gave a most interesting chapter from the study book. Miss Smith served delicious and attractive refreshments, carrying out the Valentine idea. There were thirteen members and two visitors present.

Dr. Bates' sermon on Sunday was a most helpful one on "Attending Church." He said a person may absent himself in person, and then some may come and absent their minds, neither of these absentees, of course, get anything from the message.

Efland, Orange Charge.—Young People's Day was observed in our church the first Sunday in February. Bro. Williams brought us a message very fitting to this occasion.

This service followed Christian Endeavor, for which we were delighted to have Rev. and Mrs. E. Lester Ballard, of Mebane. Rev. Mr. Ballard addressed the C. E. Society and in his usual pleasing manner gave us some very interesting facts on the history of C. E. It is encouraging to know that we are a part of this great band of Christian workers.

We were much encouraged last Sunday evening when our attendance was three times that of our first meeting just a month ago.

The work of the Auxiliary is moving on steadily if not by leaps and bounds. Circles Nos. 1 and 2 are making quilts for sale. Two are being quilted this week. I regret that I do not have reports of their meetings, but having attended them in the past I can safely say they were inspiring and instructive. Circle No. 3 spent a very pleasant evening with Misses Margaret, Mary Elizabeth and Maxine Efland on Monday, February 4. A very interesting program on Christian centers was led by Miss Ola Mae Murray. In the future this band of workers will be known as the Williams Circle, named for our pastor and his wife. We hope to make it worthy of its name. After a delicious salad course served by the Misses Efland the circle went to the home of Mrs. J. M. Dunn, who has been ill for several weeks, and carried her a lovely Japanese primrose. The circle is composed chiefly of members of Mrs. Dunn's Sunday school class. We are very glad to know that she is much improved and hopes to be in Sunday school next Sunday.

A number of our members have been ill but we are able to report most of them are better. At this writing we have just learned that Mr. J. J. Brown is right sick. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

On Saturday evening, February 16, from 6 to 8:30, a brunswick stew dinner will be served in the dining room of the church. This will be sponsored by the Williams Circle and the proceeds will be used on our church pledge. We hope to have a large attendance.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—Our pastor, Brother Trolinger, beginning on Wednesday night, February 6, at 7:30 p. m., started the Bible discussion night. We started with the first chapter of Matthew, taking one chapter to study each week and discuss on the following Wednesday night. We give a special invitation to everybody to study these chapters in rotation as mentioned above and come discuss it with us. I am sure we are compelled to learn something from such discussions, as everybody is going to want to hear the other fellow's views. And unless he studies his Bible chapter, he or she will not be able to answer the questions asked them, or give some views as to their understanding. So if you miss one night, just go back to the starting date of this meeting, check one chapter per week until the date you can be there, and you will know just what chapter to study for the program.

Brother W. D. Reed, our former pastor, we want you to know we are remembering you and Sister Reed. And if we don't visit you as often as you might think we should, we are thinking of you in our prayers. And as Sister Reed improves we will appreciate you letting us know through the church paper, as we know it is impossible for you to write all your friends, and in this way we will all be able to know of her improvement. Also if your son, Grady Reed, happens to come to see you, we will feel an injustice done if you don't send him to Midland to see us. We learned to love him, and give him as well as you and Sister Reed a special invitation to come any time you can do so.

Kernersville.—After about six weeks ot confinement to hospitals and to room at the parsonage, I am glad to be able to report that I am now making all my appointments, and am able to do some visiting. We want to express our great appreciation to the large number of friends that visited us either at the hospital or the parsonage. There were 23 ministers who came. I want to say that these visits helped me a great deal; and the people of the Kernersville charge have been so very kind and thoughtful of our needs, having paid the salary up to date, and have kept the parsonage pantry well filled with good things to eat, and filled the fuel shed with wood and coal. I want to say that I have never been pastor of a charge where the people have shown a better spirit of loyalty and kindness. I want to say that I find Kernersville a fine charge to serve, and this being our second year, we are hoping, praying and expecting to see greater things done on this work this year.

We are looking forward to the visit of Dr. Andrews on next Sunday at Kernersville church at 11 a. m., Pine Grove at 2:30 p. m. and South Winston at 7 p. m.

Our hearts have been saddened recently by the passing from life to their future of Miss Lucile Ingram, of our Kernersville church; Bro. Frank Beeson, of Pine Grove church, and Bro. Robert Peeples, of Al church. A fuller account of these will appear later in the Herald.

O. B. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Bethesda Church, State Street.—Our pastor, Dr. T. M. Johnson, was with us Sunday and preached a very helpful sermon to the young people. We also used the program prepared for Young People's Day. Our superintendent, Mr. C. L. Wagner, presented each teacher in the Sunday school a Bible, which was appreciated very much. The church is planning to give each Sunday school scholar one during the year.

The Men's Bible class raised $16.50 Sunday morning for Church Extension.

One of our teachers, Mrs. John Brinkley, has been confined to her room for some time. Another faithful member, Mrs. J. B. Wagner, has been real sick. We wish for them both a speedy recovery.

Several of our members are attending the Leadership Training school at State Street. We are planning our Thank-Offering the secend Sunday in March.

MRS. J. O. EVERHART, Reporter.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—We observed our Young People's Day. In the morning Rev. Mr. Braxton preached an interesting sermon to the young people of our church. At 7:30 in the evening the young people gave a play entitled "This War." The play was very effective and seemed to be enjoyed by everyone. Those taking part in the play were: Rev. Mr. Braxton, Russell Bowman, Howard Bowman, Willa Shepard, Florence Bowman, Ethel Shepard, Frances Causey, Pearl McPherson, Sam Whiteley, Benson Causey, and Fred Gilreath. The play was directed by Florence and Ruth Bowman.

I wish to report that Alma Cy Staley, who was severely burned about six weeks ago, is still a patient at Sternberger Hospital but is slowly improving.

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—Young People's Day was observed at this church the first Sunday in the month. In the Sunday school and at the preaching hour our pastor brought a very splendid message to the young people, and one that should challenge each and every young person to greater ideals in life. The C. E. Society had charge of the evening program. Mr. Tyree Lindley, of Bethel M. P. church, was the speaker. We enjoyed very much the message he brought to us.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met after Sunday school Sunday, and after the program officers for the new year's work were elected. Mrs. R. S. Woody was elected president, Mrs. J. C. Guthrie vice president, Mrs. R. T. Woody secretary and treasurer. We are planning on having our thank-offering program the first Sunday in March; hope to do more work for missions in the new year than heretofore.

This community and church was saddened

January 27 by the sudden passing of one of its most loyal citizens and members of this church, Brother M. T. Hargrove. He will be greatly missed in the church and community as well as in the home. Our prayers and sympathy go out to the family and loved ones who feel the loss the most keenly.

We are very sorry at this time to report that Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Moore are both sick.

Pensacola Church.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. We are glad to say that we are increasing in number considerably.

We are glad to welcome into our church the following new members subject to baptism: Mrs. Althea Rice, Miss Jeneva Silver and Masters Kenneth Autry, L. B. Silver, Jr., and Earl Ogle.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Ray and family, who live in our community, suffered a great loss last Thursday morning when their home and all their furniture and clothing were burned. The family escaped with just what clothing they had on. They are not members of our church but our little Sunday school raised approximately $20 for them. We are very sorry to hear of their loss.

We have new hymn books for our church.

The young people of our church are going to put on a program at 11 o'clock next Sunday morning. We are going to stress the idea of our members taking the church paper. We are taking our material for the program from the Herald.

The men of our church have already done most of the work toward putting a new roof on our parsonage.

Canaan, North Davidson Charge.—We are still moving along nicely. Our Sunday school is improving, interest is good. We have new song books, and think the singing will be better now. The Ladies' Aid of Canaan gave an oyster and weiner supper Saturday night, February 9, at Canaan church which was enjoyed very much. Everybody seemed to be happy. The Aid met yesterday, February 11, at Mrs. Carl Clodfelter's and was enjoyed very much, as we always enjoy our meetings together. Some fine spirit was shown at this meeting of helping some that were in need. I think we should do more of this when we see the need of it. I think we would be happier.

Love Joy, Seagrove-Love Joy Charge.—Rev. and Mrs. E. G. Cowan were with us the second Sunday morning. Bro. Cowan made a fine talk on our Sunday school lesson that was enjoyed by all. At the preaching hour he delivered a fine sermon, taking his text from Matthew 27:36, "And sitting down they watched him there." The sermon was interesting. After preaching he administered the Lord's Supper. We are sorry our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. E. H. Reynolds, has been sick for several weeks. Hope he will soon be able to come back to Sunday school. We miss him very much. We are glad to have Mrs. K. W. Hulin back with us again. She has been visiting at High Point for a few weeks.

Our Sunday school attendance was better Sunday, February 10, than it was a year ago, and our offering was some larger, and we are hoping our attendance will keep rising and our offerings will grow larger.

Mrs. Edna Russell Strider and little son, Russell, have gone to High Point. Mrs. Strider is taking a course at the Continental College of Cosmetic Arts. Mrs. Hazel Atkins, sister of Mrs. Strider, is with her taking care of little Russell. We miss them very much.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Salem, Saxapahaw Charge.—We haven't had a report since conference, but we are all glad Rev. W. M. Loy is back with us. We are trying to do a good year's work, but sickness and bad weather are hindering some.

Mr. Loy filled his regular appointment last Sunday at 11 o'clock. He preached an interesting sermon. The attendance was very good.

All our church activities are moving along fairly well. Most of our young people seem to take a great interest in both Sunday school and Christian Endeavor.

Young People's Day will be observed second Sunday in March. Plans are being made to have a visiting speaker and special music.

Our Ladies' Auxiliary hasn't met in some time. We have reorganized and hope to soon get to work.

Community Church, Thomasville.—On January 27 we celebrated Young People's Day with three good services. Our pastor preached a special sermon at the morning service to the young people. In the evening a play, "This War," was presented under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Sechrest. The amount of $25 was raised for the day.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Boyles Monday evening, January 28. The Teen-Age Circle was hostess. Miss Grace Saunders conducted the devotionals, and Miss Pat Boyles brought us the first chapter in our new study book, "Orientals in American Life." We are always glad to have the young ladies in our meetings. After the business session the hostess served refreshments.

Our hearts were made sad at the sudden passing of Mr. J. N. Myers on Sunday morning, February 3, about 11 o'clock. Mr. Myers was a charter member of the church and was a faithful worker until his death. Our sympathy goes out to the members of the family.

The Leadership Training School which was held at the First M. P. church closed January 31. The attendance was small, owing to the weather conditions. The church is co-operating in "Store House Tithing Campaign" during February, March and April. This is a General Conference project. Tithing was emphasized Sunday in the splendid sermon our pastor brought us.

Our pastor has been teaching in the Leadership Training School in Lexington. The subject he taught was "Church School Administration." He also acted as dean of the school.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. H. F. Surratt continues ill but we sincerely hope for her a speedy recovery.

The Layman's Fellowship met at the church Thursday evening, February 7. The attendance was small but much interest was manifested.

The various circles of the Woman's Auxiliary are meeting as follows: Circle No. 1, Mrs. Virgil Ward, chairman, with Mrs. A. M. White this afternoon at 2 o'clock; Circle No. 2. Mrs. H. F. Surratt, chairman, with Mrs. T. G. Perry this afternoon at 2 o'clock; Young Ladies' Circle, Mrs. Jake Sechrest, chairman, with Mrs. E. F. Finch this evening at 7:30 o'clock; Teen-Age Circle, Miss Pat Boyles, chairman, with Miss Pat Boyles this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

We were glad to have Miss Isabel Boyles, who is attending Duke University, with us in the morning service, and she favored us with a splendid solo.

Asheville.—Everything is going fairly well —even finances are picking up a little, I believe. Again Rev. Mr. Minnis urges that each member tithe and thus enrich his or her life, both spiritually and materially. It matters not how little one earns—if God is paid His just dues there will be sufficient for temporal needs if only one has the faith to believe. Have you returned your tithing card to Mr. Minnis? If not, please do so at once, for your own good as well as the good of the entire church. May it be said of us in Asheville that we are co-operating to the fullest extent in the tithing campaign.

Circle No. 1 of the Woman's Auxiliary, of which Mrs. J. R. Moore is the chairman, is sponsoring a benefit Valentine party in the Sunday school room on Friday at 7:30 p. m. All are urged to come and enjoy the evening.

Plans are rapidly going forward for the annual Christian Endeavor banquet, to be given on the evening of February 22. It is expected that every member of the church will buy a ticket for this banquet. Tickets may be obtained from the Intermediates, who are working hard to secure a free ticket—or from Mrs. C. B. Baker or Mr. D. J. Eller, the publicity and ticket committee. The general chairman for the banquet is, of course, our president, Miss Nancy Clouse. The entertainment committee is composed of Rev. J. F. Minnis, the Misses Frances S. Cunningham and Melle Smith and Mrs. C. B. Baker. Others serving on various committees are Mrs. Jarvis Eller, Mrs. Sam Hendricson, Mrs. L. M. Joyner, Mrs. T. L. Pratt, Mrs. Jane Carter, Mrs. J. R. Moore, Mrs. H. L. Hanner, Mrs. Robey Wilson, Mrs. J. H. Bailey, Mrs. E. A. Bolick, Mrs. H. O. Charnock, the Misses Arlene Hanner, Irene Miller, Nell Carter, Ruth Drake, Polly Gentry, Betty Marlowe, Lola Johnson, Lorene Moser, Hilda Brownlow, and Mr. T. L. Pratt. This is to be a "swell" affair, and trust will be an occasion bubbling over with good will and fellowship. Let's all unite to make it such—in other words, follow Mrs. Joyner's rule.

Attendance was good on Sunday and a rather optimistic spirit prevailed. The Golden Rule Class had the honor of having the highest per capita offering of the entire school. These Junior boys are fine—but they would have to be with a teacher like Mrs. Williams. Mrs. Wilson's Primaries led the entire school in attendance again. The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class had the largest collection, regaining their rightful place. Our collections nearly doubled those of a year ago of the same date—so we feel greatly encouraged.

Rev. Mr. Minnis spoke in a most interesting way, his subject being "Racial Relations," at the Sunday morning hour; one of his striking points being, "Differences do not imply inferiority." How hard it is for some of us to learn that one truth!

Prayer services as usual Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., followed by a meeting of the entertainment committee of the Christian Endeavor banquet.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. West left on Saturday last for Summerville, S. C., Route 1. They will appreciate notes from any or all of our members who wish to write.

Mrs. Glenn E. Blacknik, of Fremont, Neb., has been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. R. Moore, for the past few weeks. She is leaving this week for her home in Nebraska.

The Intermediate Girls' Class will hereafter be known as the "Busy Bee" Class, according to the decision reached at the class meeting held at the home of Miss Edna Moore on Friday evening last. There will be another meeting on Tuesday evening of this week at the home of Mrs. Sam Hendricson, their enthusiastic teacher. Those "Busy Bees" are busy, indeed, and may make us older folk sit up and take notice if they continue as they have started.

Asheboro.—By your permission, Mr. Editor, I should like to finish that report that was started last week. But I can't begin where I left off. I had my manuscript blocked out with pen and ink, and expected to copy it on my typewriter and send it right on to you Monday. But my manuscript disappeared. My study was open Sunday, and it may be that some of my parishioners got hold of it, and, in mercy, put it out of my sight. Or it may be that I inadvertently tossed it into my waste basket, and reduced it to ashes when I kindled my fire. The latter is most probable; for had my parishioners found it they would not have known what it was. (I wrote it.)

But it is just as well, I suppose, to begin all over, for I can start with Sunday and give you some real news. It was another good day with us. At the 11 o'clock hour we raised our McCulloch Memorial allotment of $150. In the Sunday school we had an increase over the previous Sunday of 52. This brought the attendance up to 382, which is our exact Sunday school enrollment, and only 37 short of our church enrollment. The attendance at the 11 o'clock service was large, and we had a good service at night. We were glad to have Rev. W. F. McDowell with us in the morning service. He offered the opening prayer, and later spoke in honor of Dr. McCulloch. The committee on the McCulloch Memorial will have a later report.

Our Young People's Day, observed February 3, was gratifying in results. The program began with the Sunday school and closed with a play, "This War," at night. Rev. N. M. Harrison preached in the morning. His sermon was thoughtful and well received. At all services during the day the attendance was large, and a most commendable spirit of worship and co-operation was in evidence. The offering for young people's work was $25—the goal set.

Our C. E. work, under the leadership of Miss Catherine Presnell, is growing. Much help in preparing programs will be realized from the C. E. World, which is coming to the society now. Our young folks are looking forward with much happiness to next Friday night, at which time they are meeting in the social room of the church for an evening of fun and fellowship. The C. E. Society is sponsoring this social.

On next Sunday night our women will hold their annual February thank-offering service. Everything is in readiness, we understand, for a good program.

And so our work goes on. Each week brings its features of pleasure and interest. We refuse to see anything that isn't bright and hopeful. Why should we? "If God be for us, what can be against us?"

Our sick give us constant thought, and are objects always of our prayers. Mrs. Hammer is still unable to go to her office, though she hopes to fully recover from her painful accident in due time. Bro. R. R. Ross is confined to his bed most of the time, though he did sit up a few days ago, and went to the table for his meal. Despite his sickness and advanced age, he talks interestingly of present-day events and has a remarkably clear recollection of the past. Some of our other members have slight ailments that have kept them from church recently, but we expect them to be back soon.

We have shared the recent sadness of Mrs. Talton Lowdermilk in the passing of her father, Mr. G. N. Brooks; of Bro. Ross Lowdermilk in the passing of his oldest sister, Mrs. O. E. Cox, and of Mrs. H. R. Trollinger in the passing of her mother, Mrs. A. C. Brown. May the mercies of God abundantly sustain them and their loved ones.

And as we write this, news comes that Mrs. Swaim, wife of Dr. John Swaim, is in distress. Her brother, Mr. John Curtis, of Liberty, is in a Greensboro hospital and not expected to live. In early November Mrs. Swaim lost a sister, Mrs. George Reitzel, of Liberty. May the Great Physician heal and comfort.

S. W. TAYLOR.

Richland Charge.—This is our first report since coming to this charge and we want to say that we have been most kindly received here and that the people have been thoughtful of us. They began to pound us the next week after we arrived, with meats and other good things to eat, but the real pounding began the 19th of January when Giles members stormed the parsonage with many good things to eat and the other churches put the finishing touches to the pounding last week which was the sixth of the month. These churches were Charlotte, Brower's, Cedar Falls and New Union. You may want to know some of the things they brought. Well, just listen to this: 275 pounds of flour, 121 pounds of sugar, 27 pounds of lard, coffee and canned fruit and lots of other good things to eat. They sure don't intend for us to go hungry. We hope that we may be able to show them our appreciation by doing our very best for the Master and the churches. The work in general seems to be doing fine at this time. We have received three members and are hoping to receive others later. On Saturday night, February 9, the churches of this charge sponsored the "Heaven Bound" play and it was a great play and all seemed to enjoy it very much. Our part of the proceeds was $59.46, which is to be used to build a back porch here at the parsonage. Pray that the Master will help us that we may have a good year here and may His blessings be upon all of His.

And we have not forgotten the good people on the Mecklenburg charge and never will. May the dear Master be with them that this may be a great year for them and their pastor.

M. C. HENDERSON,
Asheboro, N. C.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Yesterday was a beautiful day for us and everyone seemed to be in good spirits as spring seemed to be approaching. Our good pastor, Rev. Robert Short, delivered us two very interesting and exceptionally good sermons.

For several years prayer meeting has been neglected, but we have decided to start again. Meetings will be held on Wednesday nights at the church.

The Ladies' Aid will hold their monthly meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. N. G. McClimon, Wednesday afternoon. They will also at that time quilt a quilt they have pieced. They still seem to be a willing group of ladies. Recently they paid $10 on a stove for the parsonage.

Miss Lula Pearson, teacher of the Junior class, has been critically ill, but seems to be improving nicely now.

Mrs. U. M. Compton is also ill at this writing. We remember these in our prayers and wish for them a quick recovery.

We were glad indeed to have our members from Greenville, Mr. and Mrs. U. R. Stout and son, and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Stout, back with us Sunday night.

Remember us in your prayers that we may be true to our Christ and Savior.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Young People's Day was observed at our church the fourth Sunday in January. The attendance was not so good as it might have been had the weather been better; but Mr. Whitehead's message was inspiring to all present.

The Leadership Training School begun at Friendship church was not completed because of the cold, rainy weather. Rev. J. W. Braxton and Rev. W. M. Loy were the faithful teachers in this school, and we hope it may be finished at some later date.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Wednesday afternoon, February 13, at the home of Mrs. Paul Lowder. It is hoped that all members will be present to discuss some important matters of the society.

Last Sunday evening, February 10, the young people's group from Mt. Hermon church, with the aid of a few young people from neighboring churches, presented a play entitled "This War." This play was under the direction of Miss Truth Isley. It showed careful planning; and it was really inspiring to see this group of young people willing and anxious to carry on the work of God's Kingdom. May God bless them as they further seek to carry on His work.

Quite a few of our members were kept away from church last Sunday on account of colds or other illness; we hope for them a speedy recovery.

Since our last writing many hearts have been made sad because of the passing of Harold Sharpe, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Sharpe. Our sympathy goes to the bereaved family and friends.

Tabernacle-Julian.—On the evening of January 25 the Julian officials and their wives were the guests of the pastor and family. This was a delightful occasion and we hope it was profitable. The people of the two churches have been so very nice in so many ways that it would have been a great pleasure to pastor and family to have the entire membership with us, but limitations were such that the courtesy could be extended to the official family and good wishes to all the rest.

The Tabernacle young people's service was not observed on the fourth Sunday in January as planned because of the very unfavorable weather, but was postponed to the first Sunday in February. The service was not observed in any elaborate manner but it was impressive. The most impressive part of the service was the reception of a fine young lady, Miss Lillian Hardin, into the church, and one dear baby, Miss Patricia Jane Fields, the very interesting daugrter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil M. Fields, was baptized. It was very appropriate that these very important events in these young lives should be observed on this good day when the thought of youth was upon our minds. The offering was not large but it was good what was of it. Young people's service is to be observed at Julian next Sunday, it being the morning service of the month.

On the last morning service at Julian, when the Lord's Supper was observed, two good members were received. These were Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore. These two good people have been working in our church for some time and we are now so glad to have them as members. They come to us from the Baptist church.

A most enjoyable and profitable occasion was observed in our midst on Friday, February 8. Our Mrs. E. T. Coble, who is chairman of the women's work of the Fifth District, invited the ladies of the different churches of the Fifth District to spend the day at Pine Needle Lodge, of which lodge Bro. Coble has charge. Two mission study books were reviewed by Revs. J. E. Carroll and J. E. Pritchard, while very impressive devotional services were conducted by Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. Pritchard. The ladies from all the churches furnished sandwiches while the Tabernacle ladies furnished cake, chicken salad, pickles and coffee. The Tabernacle pastor regrets very much that he was not an attendant on this occasion, but reports have been so favorable that he feels perfectly safe in saying that this was a red letter day among our people. Pine Needle Lodge is a most suitable place for such an occasion, and Mrs. Coble is a most graceful hostess. These with other things being equal made the occasion one long to be remembered, and here's hoping that it may be repeated in the not far distant future. Six churches were well represented.

The pastor and family recently enjoyed a great dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Worth Trogdon. Other guests at this time were the mother of Bro. Trogdon, the parents of Mrs. Trogdon, and her brother and his wife. This was a most delightful occasion.

Misses Gladys, Violet and Aileen Routh, among the most faithful of West End, were visitors at the Tabernacle parsonage on Sunday afternoon, February 3. We are always glad to see those with whom we have labored in other days, especially when it is such as these fine young ladies who are great workers in their church. Bro. Bethea, you will find these among your most steadfast as well as faithful and efficient. You are to be congratulated.

Death has again been in our midst, not of our immediate membership but which has brought sadness to a large number of our people. The death of Mrs. Stevens, a member of Grace church, has brought sadness to us because she was probably once a member of Tabernacle and now most of her relatives are members here. Mr. King, of Greensboro, recently died. Mrs. King is a member of Tabernacle and most of her relatives. We all extend our sympathies to those who are now sad because of these bereavements.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Fallston Charge.—There are many indications that Providence is trying to lead us into a successful year. Some three or four weeks ago we heard a great deal of talk about Sunday school rooms for Friendship church. Pledges came in so freely that the idea of a new church was soon advanced. The church is now unitedly moving toward this objective.

Perhaps I should say that it was unitedly moving toward this objective on the last occasion that we had an opportunity to pool our desires. This came Sunday morning as the people assembled for Sunday school. At a short business session pledges amounting to $2,075 were announced. This and other announcements in regard to the building committee was received with frequent and hearty applause. Apparently this spirit still prevails and will carry the work to success.

Another encouraging phase of the work is the repair which is to be done at Laurel Hill church, the most noticeable part of which will be a new roof for the church. This work has been made more easy by the fine work of the Ladies' Auxiliary. They now have on that which they are pleased to call an "apron contest." Apparently they are going to realize something like $75 or $80 from this contest. All reports will be in at their regular meeting on Thursday. Some anticipate as high as $100. It may truly be said that "the people have a mind to work."

While there is no outstanding work going on at either of the other three churches, there is that ever necessary requirement in all church work, a fair attendance at church and a distinct willingness to hear the word. Likewise, each of the ladies' organizations is meeting with a fair degree of success. They hope to have a joint meeting for the charge sometime in the early spring.

One striking thing about the work as a whole grows out of the fact that we have not thus far had a death during the year out of our membership of some 600 or 700. However, two of our aged and most highly respected members are now seriously ill, Brother S. R. P. Glenn and Brother Andy Wright. Lester Boyles, of Hebron church, is now convalescing from a serious illness.

The people of Friendship church and community enjoyed seeing two familiar faces back in the community again, Rev. J. D. Morris and Mrs. Morris. Brother Morris favored the Sunday school with a helpful talk, discussing our building program as thus far adopted by the people. We are glad that Brother Morris could get away from his work and share the day with us. Few men are better loved in their home community. Some of our people also enjoyed a pleasant visit from Rev. J. M. Morgan during the week.

Two weddings should be recorded: Miss Madge Crowder, of Lattimore, and Thomas Wright, of Fallston; and Miss Annie Neal and Oscar Davis, of Vale.

H. F. FOGLEMAN, Pastor.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Rev. R. L. Vickery filled his appointment first Sunday evening with an inspiring message, also Sunday morning. His text was from St. John 12:24. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone, but if it die not it bringeth forth much fruit."

Miss Erma Hawkins was appointed as leader for a young people's program. She gave one Sunday before the pastor took his place.

We wish to express our appreciation for the quartet singing for us Sunday from Tabor M. E. church.

Mr. R. L. Vickery and family were the guests of Mrs. Berta Hawkins Sunday.

Mrs. Woodrow Shaw was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hale, Monday.

Misses Maggie Hawkins, Helen Fowler and Eunice Green were the guests of Misses Grace Madeline and Maragrette Pittard Sunday.

We were glad to have to worship with us Sunday Rev. H. S. B. and Mrs. Thompson.

Sorry to note we have right much sickness in our community at present.

Mr. Willie Hawkins, of Roanoke Rapids, is expecting to leave Tuesday for New York for a rheumatism treatment.

Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary. — On Wednesday, February 6, at 2:30 p. m., the Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. G. A. Mitchell with 12 active members, 1 honorary member, and 1 Precious Jewel present and 1 visitor. Mrs. G. J. Mitchell conducted devotionals. Rev. W. H. Neese led the society in prayer. The songs "In the Cross of Christ I Glory" and "Launch Out Into the Deep" were sung. During the business hour reports were given by the different committees showing that much work had been done since last meeting. Several projects are being used to raise money both for the Branch budget and for improvement on parsonage. The Auxiliary is selling Elizabeth Wade products, Shino, silk hose, buying print and making dresses and sellling them, patching overalls (with money under the patches), working the India quilt block, and at the last meeting a movement was launched to try to raise $75 for Easter to be used in painting the parsonage. The quilt block committee reported the full amount ($25) pledged, and all but $2.50 is in the treasury ready to be sent to Branch treasurer. We hope all of it will be sent in by the Branch meeting.

At this meeting officers for the new year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. G. J. Mitchell; vice president, Mrs. M. L. Crew; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. H. E. Vassar; corresponding secretary, Mrs. William H. Neese.

The next meeting will be held at parsonage March 6 and will be an all-day affair, with each member carrying lunch and having a picnic dinner together. The forenoon will be spent in work on the three scrapbooks and in the afternoon the regular meeting will be held. A full attendance is desired. At this time the temperance play will be given.

The society enjoyed very much a brief report of the executive meting given by Mrs. Robinson, our district chairman.

We are looking forward with pleasure to the Branch meeting in Asheboro. The society enjoyed the nice refreshments served at the close of the meeting by Misses Hazel and Mildred Mitchell.

MRS. WM. H. NEESE, Cor. Sec'y.

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman Charge.—I am sure I am expressing the sentiments of every member when I say we are proud to have our pastor, Mr. Trogdon, back another year. We did not have a Christmas program but the children did give a good thank-offering program the first Sunday in December and a nice sum was raised for the Children's Home.

We enjoy all our pastor's sermons, but the Christmas sermon was unusual and was enjoyed by all who heard it. Many improvements have been made on the church lawn and the ladies are going to plant more flowers soon.

Mrs. Ed Jarrett is reported doing fine after an operation at the Clinic hospital, Greensboro. Mrs. Jarrett is the wife of our Sunday school superintendent.

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—We were glad to have Bro. Carl Johnson, of Randolph M. E. church, with us in Sunday school February 10. Bro. Johnson led a very interesting discussion of the lesson after the class period.

Due to bad weather and illness our Sunday school attendance has been rather small for some time.

We are very sorry to report our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love, could not fill his regular appointment Sunday, February 10, on account of illness. We trust he may soon be well again.

Little Bobby Leach, who has been critically ill at Sternberger's Hospital, has recovered sufficiently to return home.

One of our good members, Miss Tishia Isley, died Wednesday, February 7. Miss Isley became deaf early in life, yet she would attend church during services. Miss Isley was 66 years old at her death.

Mrs. Robert Chilton is confined to her room most of the time due to a fall a few days ago.

Mr. H. L. Clapp and daughter, Edith, have been very sick for several days.

Miss Pauline Whitaker is steadily improving.

Bethesda.—We failed to make our report last month. This date we wish to make a report of the best sermon that has been preached, of the greatest interest our splendid pastor, Rev. H. W. Bell, brought. The afternoon message: Text, Hosea 6:6, "For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice"; subject, "A Bird's-eye View of God's Love." This was so forcibly delivered that all hearers seemed to appreciate such a message and such a minister as Bro. Bell.

The church is progressing fine. More than was expected in beginning of the conference year. All the praise and honor is due to the excellent pastor. All the goals set this year are on way to be reached. One hundred souls saved and added to the church. This will be accomplished long before the year has closed. All the members of Bethesda have been revived and the church has been respected as in the days of the past.

Asking all Christians to pray as never before that this will be the greatest year in history for the church.

May God's richest blessing rest on all laboring for the advancement of His Kingdom.

West End, Greensboro.—The campaign for loyalty, liberality and soul-saving is showing gratifying response from all those having pledged themselves to keep the ten promises, and all church members are trying to be reached by the stewards. A large number are signing up to pay the tithe, too, which is already "holy unto God" and should be brought into "the storehouse."

The Philatheas had charge of the prayer service last Wednesday, and I am sure all attendance records were broken. Mr. Holshouser, from the First Reformed church, spoke on "What the Lord's Prayer Means to Me" or his interpretation of it; which proved very helpful. A church business meeting was held after this service and several matters disposed of.

Dr. Bethea gave us two very helpful sermons Sunday. The subject for the morning hour was "A Living Faith," II Cor. 13:5, "Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith." He elaborated on these thoughts: that we need a faith that does not waver, worry, whine, wrangle; but that will wait, watch, work, and wrestle. "Steadfastness" was the evening subject, and the Young People's Choir had charge of the music.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Mrs. Underwood, Highland Park West on Monday evening. Mrs. Bonkemeyer and Mrs. Crouse were joint hostesses to the unusually large crowd. We were glad to welcome a half dozen of the menfolk also. The following officers were elected for the new year, beginning in April: President, Mrs. A. E. Pleasants; vice president, Mrs. J. K. Osborne; treasurer, Mrs. V. C. Stockard; recording secretary, Mrs. Paul Burns.

Mrs. J. Ruffin Holden will be hostess to the Philathea Class on Saturday evening. They are asked to assemble at the church at 7:30.

The contest between the circles for raising the church's quota of Herald subscriptions is going apace and we hope to make short work of them.

Lincolnton—Whoopee! Here is Lincolnton again, boasting an attendance of 163 and offering of $16.02. We think that is good, don't you?

We are looking forward to a meeting of the ladies to organize a Ladies' Auxiliary Thursday afternoon.

Rev. J. R. Anderson announced as his subject for next Sunday, "Is Our Religion Costing Us Too Much?" If you are around in our community we invite you to come.

Rev. Mr. Anderson took his text in John 20:24, his subject being "The Unfortunate Time to Be Away." He mentioned the five blessings Thomas missed. These were: (1) Fellowship with brethren; (2) seeing Jesus; (3) gladness, the disciples were glad; (4) the certainties of after life; (5) peace. It was an inspiring message on being on hand at all meetings. It pays to be at all meetings at the house of the Lord, for Christ is there in spirit and has a blessing for all if we are prepared for a blessing. Why was Thomas expected at the meetings of the disciples, and why are you expected at the church? If we get the blessings we must be there.

Conference Council of Religious Education

The church in the position of critic or in the role of judge is out of harmony with its mission; it should point out temptation, it should reveal unhesitatingly the sin in the world and through love and service lead its constituency to forsake the error of their way and accept a life of positive good.

Have different members of the group to report what the Bible has to say about sin and temptation.

While the piano plays softly, "In the Hour of Trial," engage in silent prayer to God "to lead us not into temptations but to deliver us from evil."

Use such hymns as: "Sun of My Soul," "1 Would Be True," "Yield Not to Temptations," "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us," "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken."

Call on your pastor or some adult leader to enlarge upon the subject.

Discuss laxity of morals, its cause and effects.

First, take a look at the percentages this week. Two charges that had their heads high in the air last week had to step down a little and Calvary and Whitakers walk right out in front. Well, that is the way the world goes round. We certainly do welcome Whitakers back into our column of honor. We had been wondering what had become of her, but now we know she was getting her breath for a quick dash.

And now let us look at the receipts for this week. Just look at First Church, Winston-Salem, heading the list. That is mighty fine. And they did the generous thing of bringing in one subscription to be counted on Pinnacle-Mt. Zion's quota. We have already raved a little over Whitakers, so that is sufficient. And while you are looking, see what Charlotte did also. That is fine. And Randleman, Mecklenburg, First Church Lexington, Forsyth, West End in Greensboro, and Asheboro and Albemarle, St. Paul's and Glen Raven all send in more than one subscription. Well, that is great and we appreciate it. You will see by the thermometer that we pass the 600 mark this week. Guess you want to know what our receipts are. The amount is $110.28 on subscriptions and not one penny on subsidy.

THIS IS THE BEST YET

Cast your eye down the page a bit before you read this, and look at the financial report. Looks good, doesn't it? Sixteen churches were reported on the Honor Roll last week, and five more come in this week. And see where this money came from. A pretty good cross-section of the Conference. From Henderson to Greer's Chapel! from Reidsville to Albemarle. The only fly in the ointment is the absence from this list, and from all the other reports up to this one, of churches and charges that usually take the lead in good works. I wonder where, and why, they are?

Remember, next week there will be a report of all money received to Tuesday noon. The report will be made out by districts, charges and churches. When the roll is called, will your church be on it? I have, of course, a record of the amount paid in to me. But if you have any money on hand, send it in, and also let me know how much more has been pledged to date. And may I say in that connection: while we are anxious to get the money, if you can't get it in cash, get pledges. But let's get it underwritten.

Albemarle	25.00
Hickory Grove, Guilford	6.25
Greer's Chapel, Shiloh	16.00

Mt. Carmel, Granville	21.00
Henderson	7.00
Thomasville, Community	100.00
Reidsville	10.00
Total to date	$632.91

Mt. Carmel's quota was $18.00: they paid $21.00—the only church in the Conference, so far as I have knowledge, that has overpaid. Fine! But I know those folks. I used to serve them.

Well, enough for this time. As good as this is, I hope we shall be able to make an even better report next week.

C. W. Bates, Chairman.

LESS THAN TWO MONTHS LEFT

The time, therefore, is short in which to raise monies on the College Indebtedness Fund. But it is all the time we have at our disposal if we are going to take full advantage of the challenge of the General Board of Education.

The fiscal year of the General Board is from May to May. Please note that from May 1, 1934, to November 16, inclusive, the charges paid in to the Annual Conference Treasurer as per the list below.

In addition thereto, there has been received from the North Carolina Branch the sum of $631.13, from last May to this February.

The APPEAL now is to every charge to raise the College Assessment and send it in before May 1st. To do this by this date will enable the College to take advantage of the General Board's challenge. It would seem, therefore, that every charge ought to make special effort to co-operate. Monies raised by any charge after May 1st will not help us to meet this opportunity. And since it will mean for the charge and pastor an Annual Conference assessment out of the way, why not do it now?

Many auxiliaries have paid their quota of the $1,000 which the Branch plans to raise yearly for their year, April 1 to April 1. We are asking every auxiliary that has not done so to please finish raising its quota by April; and those auxiliaries that have and will finish this year's quota to undertake to raise next year's in the month of April.

Charges will please bear in mind that this conference year credit for what the women raise on their auxiliary quota can be taken by a charge only when it completes the assessment on the charge.

Our appeal is to pastors, presidents of the auxiliaries, and all the folks in the churches interested in the work of the College, to do much, and do it before May.

Please bear in mind that all the monies raised by the Annual Conference and contributed by the General Board will go not for current expenses of the College but for the capital indebtedness of the Conference Board of Education.

Read the following list. See how many charges raised their quota. This can only be told by asking what the assessment was for the charge. Are there any charges missing from the list, having raised no money whatever (unless the women did it) for the College? It is worth the time it will take for pastors and delegates to study this list.

Interpreting Your Label

Inquiries concerning the expiration of subscriptions leads us to believe that some people do not understand the significance of the figures and abbreviations on the label of your paper. The label tells you when your subscription will expire. If it reads 4sep5, it means that it will expire the fourth day of September, 1935—next September. If you get a paper this week and it has on it, 19feb5, it means that your subscription expired the nineteenth day of this month, but that it has not been cut off the mailing list yet. The first figure on the label refers to the day of the month, the abbreviations refer to the month, and the last figure indicates the year in which it expires.

Budgets and Evangelism

In this week's HERALD we are running an article from Brother W. J. Spainhower, of Winston-Salem, in which he asks the question if we are not more interested in budgets than we are in souls. Knowing Brother Spainhower as we do, his consecration, his love for souls, and how he goes to the jails every Sunday and sometimes during the week in an effort to save somebody, we know he is perfectly honest in asking the question, and we recognize it as a pertinent one. But the truth of the matter is, both of these things are important. There is a campaign on right now, or soon will be, that is to culminate with Easter, to bring men into the Kingdom. It may be that we do not work hard enough to get the best results. But the budgets are also important. If Brother Spainhower were superintendent of our Children's Home, or president of High Point College, or president of the Annual Conference, or chairman of the Board of Church Extension, or even chairman of the Board of Stewards of a local church, and the bills were coming in and he did not have money to pay them, he would get a little uneasy also. We must not neglect either the budgets or soul-winning.

HOW JESUS PREACHED

Jesus was the ideal Preacher. First, because He was so clear. His Divine insight led Him into the recesses of the human heart, and His hearers found it easier to understand than to obey.

Second, He was correct in His thinking. Faith and experience found perfect harmony in Him, so complete was His enjoyment of God. Beyond this experience no honest mind can go.

Third, He was under perfect control. Energy may become heat, power, or light. Jesus was all three for the human heart in perfect proportion. Zealot, Essene, and Pharisee alike knew Him not.

Fourth, His words had Divine content, enlightening the mind, rousing the conscience, stirring the affections, and challenging the will. He was the True Voice and not an echo.

Fifth, He was irresistibly convincing. The soul longs for confidence in days of distress. Jesus offered it through faith in Himself, and men had to receive Him or kill Him.

Sixth, His message was conclusive, for He saw the Kingdom of God on earth and laid its foundations in a church that would outlive the dreams of man.

Seventh, He continued to live in the experience of His disciples, and still continues His saving work in the world through the Holy Spirit.

To speak with the authority of Jesus is the ideal of every preacher.—Presbyterian Banner.

The Rankin Memorial Church

One of the most delightful pieces of news coming in this week is the announcement that English Street church in High Point will be rebuilt and the name changed to Rankin Memorial in honor of Captain A. M. Rankin. We cannot think of a more fitting thing than to have a church in High Point named after this great, good, consecrated man.

The Rankin Memorial Church

One of the most delightful pieces of news coming in this week is the announcement that English Street church in High Point will be rebuilt and the name changed to Rankin Memorial in honor of Captain A. M. Rankin. We cannot think of a more fitting thing than to have a church in High Point named after this great, good, consecrated man.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Finishing Up

The call for the full payment of the Church Extension apportionment for all churches has been made. Some churches have responded splendidly, and have paid it in full; others have paid only part, some have done nothing. To many churches the call went forth to pay their apportionment for A. C. Expenses. Some of them paid it promptly, others paid part, some have paid nothing.

Now Let's Pay All

We are asking every pastor to see that these apportionments are met between now and the second week in March, because we want to get these claims out of the way of the High Point College apportionment. We are asking all the churches to please raise this apportionment in the remaining two weeks in March and three weeks of April, so the amount can get into the hands of the Conference Treasurer before the first day of May. That is the deadline; if we can do this and thus pay our assessments in full for this claim by the last of April, the College will receive from the General Board of Education of our church $7,500 additional. This offer should stimulate keen interest in every loyal member of our church in the North Carolina Conference.

Rev. Q. L. Joyner Resigns

Rev. Mr. Joyner has resigned as pastor of Greensville charge, and his resignation has been accepted. Arrangements are being made to take care of this work for the remainder of the conference year.

The Standing District Committee Meets

The Standing District Committee was called to meet at the President's parsonage today, Tuesday, to consider a place for holding the sessions of the next Annual Conference. Henderson church and Lebanon church, High Point, had invited the conference. After mature consideration the committee decided upon Henderson as the place for the next annual conference. The date already fixed, November 6th. This is something to remember and to look forward to as you work.

Kernersville Charge, Rev. O. B. Williams, Pastor

I visited Kernersville church, Piney Grove and South Winston churches in the order named. We had good congregations at all the churches. Exceptionally good at Piney Grove and South Winston.

Brother Williams had been kept in for several Sundays because of injuries sustained in an automobile wreck several weeks ago, but he now appears to be himself again and is pushing the work forward. At last annual conference the South Winston church was put with the Kernersville charge. It makes five churches for the work, which is really too heavy, but still it is working splendidly. And the outlook for the entire charge is very good for the year.

Kernersville church has put in a new heating plant, so that the rains may descend and the snows may come, and still they can have a most comfortable building in which to worship. Other improvements are planned for the near future, we understand. Pine Grove has recently been painted inside, thus greatly improving the interior, and South Winston has been completely ceiled, top floor put down during the past year, and now presents a much more churchly appearance inside. The congregation, which numbered between 80 and 100, was made up almost entirely of young people. Judging by this fact, here is one of the greatest opportunities we have for growth among our younger churches. There is a spirit of hopefulness and determination which assures a visitor that this church will have a rapid growth. The visit was a pleasant one. I came away feeling that our Kernersville work is in the best condition it has been in for many years.

Plan of Appointments

February 24—Haw River charge.

March 3—Philadelphia, Matthews, and Wesley Chapel, Greensville charge.

March 10—Midland charge.

March 17—Caroleen and Shelby churches.

March 31—11 a.m., 15th district meeting; afternoon, 16th district meeting.

April 7—Draper, 11 a.m.; St. Paul at night.

April 14—Mecklenburg charge.

April 21—Siler City, 11 a.m.; Hope church at night.

April 28—Denton charge.

Our Cover Page

We are giving over our cover page this week for a picture of the Administration Building of our Children's Home, High Point. One reason for running it this week is to give emphasis to the appeal by Dr. Dixon, the Superintendent, for doubling the offering to the Home in the month of March. This, we understand, is to be the only campaign which they are to put on for the Home, except the appeal for larger monthly offerings all during the year. In this matter of doubling the offering for the month of March, it can be done without injury to anyone. Let each member of the Sunday schools put in twice as much as usual, and the thing will be done quickly, the Home will greatly benefit, and the people will not be any poorer. Nobody has been hurt by giving.

Methodist Protestants and the Liquor Business

Now is the time for our people to let our representatives in the North Carolina General Assembly know where we stand on the question of weakening our state liquor laws. In the face of the more than 180,000 majority against the liquor business only a few short months ago, it does seem that those who think they can set aside this verdict of the people are taking a great deal for granted. It is gratifying to read in the daily press that Raleigh is being flooded with protests against tampering with the liquor laws at this time. If you have not already done so, wire your representatives now.

BOY WANTED

Mr. Peters, a somewhat eccentric old merchant, put up a notice in a window of his store, "Boy Wanted," and the card remained there a great while before he found the boy he was after. John Simmons and Charlie Jones and a few others were taken for a few days, but none of them stood the trial.

Mr. Peters had a peculiar way of trying them. There was a huge long box in the attic, full of old nails and screws, and miscellaneous bits of rusty hardware, and when a new boy came, the old gentleman presently found occasion to send him up there to set the box to rights and he judged the quality of the boy by the way he managed the work. All pottered over it more or less, but soon gave it up in disgust, and reported that there was nothing in the box worth saving.

At last Crawford Mills was hired. He knew none of the other boys, and so did his errands in blissful ignorance of the "long box" until the second morning of his stay, when in a leisure hour he was sent to put it in order. The morning passed, lunch time came, and still Crawford had not appeared from the attic. At last Mr. Peters called him:

"About through?"

"No, sir; there is ever so much more to do."

"All right, it is lunch time now, you may go back to it after lunch."

After lunch back he went. All the afternoon he was not heard from, but just as Mr. Peters was deciding to call him again, he appeared.

"I've done my best, sir," he said, "and down at the very bottom of the box I found this." "This" was a five-dollar gold piece, which Crawford handed to Mr. Peters.

"That's a queer place for gold," said Mr. Peters; "it's good you found it. Well, sir, I suppose you will be on hand tomorrow morning?" This he said putting the gold piece into his pocketbook.

After Crawford had said "good-night" and gone, Mr. Peters took the lantern and went slowly up the attic stairs. There was the long box in which the rubbish of twenty-five years had gathered.

Crawford had evidently been to the bottom of it. He had fitted in pieces of shingle to make compartments, and in the different tills he had placed the articles, with bits of shingle laid on top, labeled thus: "Good screws," "Pretty good nails," "Picture Nails," "Small keys, somewhat bent," "Picture Hooks," "Pieces of iron, whose use I don't know," and so on through the long box.

The box was in perfect order at last and very little that could be called useful was to be found within it. But Mr. Peters, as he read the labels, laughed and said, "If we are not both mistaken, I have found a boy, and he has found a fortune."

Sure enough, the sign disappeared from the window, and was seen no more. Crawford became the errand boy to the well-known firm of Peters & Company. He spent his evenings in his little room, and Mr. Peters gave him a motto which he hung at the foot of his bed: "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much" (Luke 16:10).

All this happened a long time ago. Crawford Mills is an errand boy no more, but the firm is now "Peters, Mills and Company."

May all of our friends who know the Lord Jesus as their Savior, ask Him for grace, strength and guidance to do their work, whether at home, at school, or at business, in a way pleasing to Him. The Christian should do his or her work in the very best way.

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might" (Eccl. 9:10).

"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men; knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward . . . for ye serve the Lord Christ" (Col. 3:23, 24). —A Tract.

A MISSIONARY'S EXPERIENCE

Egerton Young tells how he set himself to win the Red Men of the North American woods and prairies. Here is how he invaded the Nelson River district and opened work among people who had never before heard the Gospel.

He is surrouned by 250 or 300 Indians. "I read aloud," he says, "those sublime words: 'For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.'

"They listened with the most rapt attention while for four hours I talked to them of the truth of this glorious verse. When I had finished every eye turned towards the principal chief. He rose, and, coming near me, delivered one of the most thrilling addresses I have ever heard. Years have passed away since that hour, and yet the memory of that tall, straight, impassioned Indian is as vivid as ever. His actions were many, but all were graceful. His voice was particularly fine and full of pathos, for he spoke from the heart.

"'Missionary,' exclaimed the stately old chief, 'I have not for a long time believed in our religion. I hear God in the thunder, in the tempest, in the storm: I see His power in the lightning that shivers the tree; I see His goodness in giving us the moose, the reindeer, the beaver and the bear. I see His loving-kindness in sending us, when the south wind blows, the ducks and geese; and when snow and ice melt away, and our lakes and rivers are open again, I see how He fills them with fish. I have watched all this for years, and I have felt that the Great Spirit, so kind and watchful and loving, could not be pleased by the beating of the conjuror's drum or the shaking of the rattle of the medicine man. And so I have had no religion. But what you have said just fills my heart, and satisfies its longings. I am so glad you have come with this wonderful story. Stay as long as you can.'

"Other chiefs followed in similar strains; and each such statement was welcomed by the assembled Indians with vigorour applause. The message of the text was the very word that they had all been waiting for."—Publisher Unknown.

We have more than eight pages of material that was crowded out this week. This will be used next week.

CHURCH MUSIC

It has been impossible to secure articles for publication on the subject of church music or young people's choirs from some who are capable of writing such articles, but we still hope to have another next week. We believe it is not because our people are not interested, for there have been numerous indications to the contrary. The difficulty is, doubtless, the multiplicity of interests and responsibilities carried by our workers. So this time we shall occupy the space with material which we think will be practical.

A Church Hymn Test

(Answers to Questions of Last Week)

1. The oldest known Christian hymn is "Shepherd of Tender Youth," written by Clement of Alexandria about 220 and translated by Henry M. Dexter, 1846. Among the newer hymn books in which this hymn is found are: Hymnal for American Youth; New Hymnal for American Youth; and Hmnal for Young People.

2. Rev. Isaac Watts, 1674-1748, was known as the father of English Hymnody. Among the hymns he wrote, found in our M. P. Hymnal, are: Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun; O God, Our Help in Ages Past; When I Survey the Wondrous Cross; Joy to the World, the Lord Is Come.

3. Rev. Charles Wesley, 1707-1788, a close rival of Isaac Watts in hymn writing, when a boy, refused to become the adopted son of a wealthy Irish Member of Parliament. The boy adopted became the father of the Duke of Wellington, who defeated Napoleon at Waterloo, 1815.

4. No less than 3,000 hymns were written by Fanny Crosby, 1820-1915, among the most popular of which are: Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour; Rescue the Perishing; I Am Thine, O Lord; Blessed Assurance; Jesus, Keep Me Near the Cross; 'Tis the Blessed Hour of Prayer; Safe in the Arms of Jesus.

5. Hymns in our M. P. Hymnal, written by Methodist Protestants are: Heavenly Father, Bless Me Now, Alexander Clark, No. 58; Behold the Shining Sabbath Sun, Amanda E. Dennis, No. 86; Can Truth Divine Fulfillment Fail?, Thos. H. Stockton, No. 97; We Need Not Soar Above the Skies, Thos. H. Stockton, No. 103; An Alien from God and a Stranger to Grace, Luther J. Cox, No. 511; and the following tunes: The Day Is Gently Sinking to a Close, Rev. W. B. Judefind, No. 36; Lord, I Am Thine, Entirely Thine, G. E. McManiman, No. 309; Come unto Me, When Shadows Darkly Gather, T. F. Rinehart, No. 372.

6. Rev. Reginald Heber, 1783-1826, lived as a young man with vice prevalent everywhere. It was said of him: "If his heart had no other covering than a glass, its thoughts were so pure, no one need fear to read them." Though his hymns did not number as many as other hymn writers, he has the unique distinction of having nearly all of his hymns still in use. Among the outstanding of them are: Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty; Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning; and From Greenland's Icy Mountains, all of which are in our M. P. Hymnal.

7. In the midst of a sudden attack of severe mental suffering, Dr. George Matheson, 1842-1906, penned the hymn of renunciation and hope, O Love That Will Not Let Me Go, in which he ascribes to Deity the attributes of love, light, joy and cross, as the subject of each verse.

8. With pomp and power, England prepared the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria's reign in 1897. The London Times requested the "uncrowned poet-laureate," as Rudyard Kipling (1865—) was called, to write a poem for such an august occasion. The response was God of Our Fathers, Known of Old. Being a work of warning rather than eulogy. Kipling was the recipient of untold criticisms. It has found its way into our better hymn books as a patriotic hymn.

9. The late Woodrow Wilson was editor of a hymn book entitled In Excelsis.

10. Philip H. Lord, popularly known as Seth Parker, asked his radio audience to send him the title of their favorite hymns. Of the 40,000 people responding, naming 600 hymns, "The Old Rugged Cross" (Rev. George Bennard) headed the list with over 26,000 votes.

Hymn Books for Your Church

May I aid you in the selection of hymn books for use in your church or Sunday school? If so, I shall be glad to prepare an appraisal of ten or twelve of the newest and best books, for publication next week. Drop me a card. If I do not hear from you, I shall take it to mean you are not interested.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson, N. C.

Topic: "What the Bible Says About Forgiveness."

Scripture Lesson: I John 1:7-9; 2:1-12.

This is the lesson that should logically follow the one of last week. Last week we learned what the Bible has to say about sin and temptation.

After the reading of the scripture lesson it might be well to have several members of the society read and comment on the following references relative to forgiveness:

Isa. 55:6, Ezek. 33:14, Math. 1:21, Math. 6:14, Math. 12:31, Math. 18:23-35, Math. 26:27, Acts 2:38, Acts 13:38, Rom. 4:7, Eph. 4:32.

It was Martin Luther who said, "My soul is too glad and too great to be at heart the enemy of any man."

Who is it that sometimes doesn't do something that should not have been done; but the slate is made clean by the simple act of forgiveness.

The story is related of a group of 30 men, red-eyed and disheveled, who were lined up before the judge of a San Francisco court. It was the regular morning company of drunks and disorderlies. Some were old and hardened; others hung their heads in shame. Just as the momentary disorder attending the bringing of the prisoners quieted down, a strange thing happened. A strong, clear voice from below began singing:

Last night I lay sleeping,
There came a dream so fair.

Last night? It had been for them all a nightmare, or a drunken stupor. The song was such a contrast to the horrible fact that no one could avoid the sudden shock at the thought the song suggested.

I stood in old Jerusalem,
Beside the temple there.

The song went on. The judge had paused. He made a quiet inquiry. A former member of a famous opera company was waiting trial for forgery. It was he who was singing in his cell.

Meanwhile the song went on. Every man in the line showed emotion. One boy at the end of the line, after a desperate effort at self-control, leaned against the wall, buried his face in his folded arms, and sobbed, "Oh mother, mother!"

The sobs cutting the weary hearts of the men who heard, and the song still welling its way through the courtroom blended in the hush. At length one man protested:

"Judge," he said, "have we got to submit to this? We're here to take our punishment, but this—" He, too, began to sob.

It was impossible to proceed with the business of the court, yet the judge gave no order to stop the singing. The song moved to the climax:

Jerusalem, Jerusalem! Sing for the night is o'er!
Hosanna in the highest, Hosanna for ever more.

In an ecstasy of melody the last words rang out and then there was silence.

The judge looked into the faces of the men before him. There was not one who was not touched by the song; not one in whom some better impulse was not stirred. He did not call the cases singly—a kind word of advice and he dismissed them all. No man was fined or sentenced to the work house that morning. The song had done more good than punishment could have accomplished. They were forgiven.

How often we fall a victim to sin, fail to resist the ravages of sin and evil and yield to their indulgences. Then in penitence we seek that advocate with the Father who has promised forgiveness; and characteristic of that great heart of love if the sin be against Him, we can all but hear Him say, "Father, forgive them. They know not what they do." If the sin be against another, how comforting the words, "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."

Suggestions for your program:

1. Hymns: "In the Hour of Trial," "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go," "I Need Thee Every Hour," "Though Your Sins Be as Scarlet."

2. Prayer: Pray to God either in sentence prayers, or silent prayer, to forgive us our sins as we forgive those who sin against us.

3. Ten minutes of general discussion on the subject. Ask some experienced Endeavorer to sum up the discussion and give its gist.

4. You might have a speaker, and give all the time to him on this general subject or some phase of the subject.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

FROM LIFE, MEMORIAL AND PERPETUAL MEMBERS

Since our missionary year for 1934-35 will close March 31, I am writing this notice in regards to life, memorial and perpetual memberships. If there are any auxiliaries in our North Carolina Branch who wish to honor any of their members with either of these memberships, please send me their names at once, that I may provide you with the necessary certificates.

The following rules govern this department: The payment of $10 to your local auxiliary constitutes a memorial membership, and is credited on your budget. The payment of $25 shall constitute a sustaining membership which shall be a credit on General Conference budget to be used directly in the work, the name of donor to be carried on roll of auxiliary. The payment of $30 shall constitute a perpetual membership. This $30 shall not be a credit on budget, but shall be invested in a permanent trust fund. The interest from this fund will be credited to the auxiliary sending in the membership.

MRS. CLYDE L. FINCH,
Secretary of Life, Memorial and Perpetual Memberships.

MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT OF N. C. BRANCH

Dear Church Women:

As our missionary year is nearing the end, there are numerous things about which I want to call your attention.

1. The Branch meets in Asheboro April 10-11 and it is desired that every church, whether it has an auxiliary, aid society, or no organization of women, be represented.

2. This is thank-offering month and every church in the denomination is asked to observe this service, which commemorates the beginning of women's work. Program material may be secured from Miss Bettie Brittingham, 516 N. Charles St., Baltimore, Md. Receipts from thank-offering services are credited on the local auxiliary budget, and the World Service budget of the local church.

3. All women's auxiliaries are urged to cooperate in the plans outlined by the Board of Christian Education, to help High Point College, by May 1. This means not the raising of more money by the auxiliary for the college, but the payment of this year's budget of $1,000 by March 31, when the books close, and for the payment of next year's budget the first thing after Branch meeting, by April 18. Make this your first work after Branch meeting and help our college secure the liberal offer made by the Board of Christian Education, that being for each dollar raised in North Carolina the board will give $1.50. Five thousand dollars is the goal for North Carolina and $7,500 the proposed amount from the Board of Christian Education. Women, this is our opportunity for real service—a plan and a purpose is before you.

4. Good news comes from the Board of Missions that hospital work will be reopened in India. The women of our Branch have been vitally interested in this and have planned and partially circulated quilt squares as a means of raising money for it. If your auxiliary has not gotten a square, do so at once. Apply Miss Bronna Apple, 222 N. Edgeworth Street, Greensboro, N. C. The Branch will get credit on the World Service budget which has for many years fallen short. The money will go in as designated for India. In addition to this, the local church will also get credit on its World Service budget. It should be noted, however, that the auxiliary of the local church is not to take credit on its budget for the quilt money, since this is a special, over and above the allotment made by the Branch to the local auxiliary. In churches where there are neither auxiliary nor aid society, we urge the women to take a quilt square or even a half square, fill it with names. The money raised in this way will go to the India hospital and will receive credit on the World Service budget of the local church.

5. The Women's Missionary convention will be held in Indianapolis May 15-20.

6. All districts should have meetings which have not done so, and elect chairmen, and send in names to Branch meeting.

Leave nothing undone during these last weeks of "finishing up," to close up the year in a way that will be pleasing to the Great Giver of all good gifts.

MRS. WM. C. HAMMER, President,
N. C. Branch Women's Work.

ALL THE PAPERS WE NEED

Last week we asked someone to furnish us a copy of the Herald of January 3 to take the place of a defective one in our files. We received telephone calls from Mrs. J. E. Devinney, Rev. J. R. Hutton and J. Norman Wills, all of Greensboro, offering to furnish us a copy. Then we received through the mails a copy from each of the following:

B. F. Waddell, Concord; Mrs. M. J. Morris, Littleton; Mrs. Walter Dunn, Enfield; Rev. T. A. Williams, Jamestown; Rev. B. M. Williams, Efland; Mrs. D. W. Sides, R. F. D., Albemarle; R. B. Hunter, Arcola; R. R. Ross, Asheboro; Mrs. A. E. White, Middlebury; Mrs. Clyde L. Finch, Henderson; B. E. Payne, R. F. D. 1, Thomasville; R. M. Cox, Rural Hall; Rev. J. T. Bowman, of Denton, Brother Bowman having sent a paper furnished by W. E. Hill, of Denton. There were two other copies received but there was no address on either of these. We thank all who sent the papers, even though we did get more than we needed. Anyway, we now know that folks read what we say in the Herald.

Our Request

Our request for financing the Home for the remainder of the year 1935 went out last week to pastors, Sunday school superintendents and Children's Home secretaries. We are trusting and believing that there will be a hearty response. Word from you promising co-operation will be encouraging. We are getting more and more favorable comments on our slogan, "Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars for the Home During Its Twenty-Fifth Year of Service." If every church and Sunday school will fall in line with our suggested plan in our letters, that will go a long way toward raising the $25,000.

Some cold mornings the boys have to "push off" the old school bus to get it going. Twelve or fifteen boys may be pushing and the bus hardly moves, but when two or three more little fellows run up and push, the bus moves off rapidly. The added help does the trick. In like manner, if all our Sunday schools who are regular will increase their efforts a bit, and if all those Sunday schools who have

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our church is moving along in great spirit. We had our Young People's Day the fourth Sunday in January and our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, brought us a very inspiring and encouraging message, which was gratefully received by the older as well as the younger.

We held our regular Sunday morning service the second Sunday morning in February. Again our pastor gave a wonderfully clear explanation of our Savior's gospel.

Mr. and Mrs. Brodie McPherson laid to rest their infant daughter on the fourth Sunday in January. We extend to them our uttermost sympathy. May their suffering be lightened by their trust in our Lord.

BERTHA BOGER, Reporter.

Shoals, Pinnacle - Mt. Zion Charge.—Although our pastor filled his appointment with a very interesting sermon, the congregation was smaller than it usually is on account of so many having had the flu, and also other serious injuries. But the past Sunday, February 10, the congregation was the largest it has been in some time. The church was about filled. A great number of visitors were present. We all were very glad to have them with us, and wish to give them a hearty welcome back with us every chance they have.

One of the members of this church, Miss Joyce Hauser, has returned to her home. She had been in the Mount Airy hospital for the past month. She seems to be doing nicely considering her condition. Also, Mrs. O. F. Hauser is showing a little improvement at her home. She has been confined to bed for a couple of weeks. All are glad to learn she is able to be up now, I'm sure. The flu isn't as bad in our community now as it was during the past month. REPORTER.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—Young People's Day was observed yesterday, February 17, at Spring Hill. Our pastor was with us at that time and conducted the service. He gave an inspiring message to the young girls and boys, urging them to cling to the higher and nobler things of life. We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. B. L. West and aunt to worship with us at this time. Mr. West is principal of Hasty High School. An offering was taken which amounted to $2.81, which will go on World Service.

Eight of our young people were fortunate indeed to be able to take the leadership training course at the First M. P. church, High Point, some time ago. They were Myrtle Byerly, Bernice Swain, Treva and Altha Craven, Nellie Wade, Edith York, Milford Byerly, and Clark Haynes.

Quarterly conference will be held in our church the third Saturday in March. We hope to see all the official members of Mt. Pleasant, Canaan and Spring Hill present.

The Young Men's Class have been working on the basement and are progressing nicely. We are hoping it will be possible to complete the rooms in the near future.

Mrs. Julia A. York, 81, wife of the late Rev. I. I. York and the oldest member of Spring Hill church, passed away February 5 at her home, 804 English Street. Funeral services were conducted at Spring Hill Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Grant, Rev. J. Clay Madison, pastor First M. P. church, Rev. H. L. Powell, pastor of Pleasant Grove church. Interment was in the church cemetery.

The Young Girls' Sunshine Circle will meet with Miss Alma Johnson at her home March 9 at 2 o'clock. The president urges that all members be present. The Sunshine Circle was organized last May with 13 on roll. Up until now they have raised $45, of which they have made payments on the piano.

The Ladies' Aid Society meets with Mrs. Carl Swain Saturday, March 9, at 2 o'clock. In the past year the Ladies' Aid has worked hard and raised $538. They paid for the carpet and pews in the church and also some on the parsonage debt.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—The C. E. Society sponsored a Valentine party Saturday evening. Games were directed by Mrs. Braxton and Mrs. H. F. Amick. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by a large number of young people.

Miss Elaine Causey entertained the Willing Worker class, of which she is a member, at a Valentine party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Causey. The invited guests included the young boys of the Class in the Corner. There were 48 present. Everyone reported a hilarious time.

The text for the regular Sunday morning church service was taken from Malachi 3:10, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse." This text was a fitting introduction to the sermon that followed about tithing. Many of our church members are like the little boy who had got his hand fastened in a vase. The boy would not let go of the penny he was holding so as to get his hand out. We are prone to grasp insignifirant things, while the things that are worth much are lost. At the close of the service a large number of tithing cards were distributed.

A committee has been appointed to canvass the church members for pledges for the new Sunday school rooms.

Mrs. Susan Pritchard, who has been confined to her room for some time, is improving. Mrs. S. A. Alexander has been missed from services during the winter months because of failing health.

Albemarle.—The attendance for the morning service Sunday was very good, the best it has been this year. We will not be satisfied about the attendance for church until the few empty pews are filled. We believe that in a few more weeks our wish will be filled. The attendance for Sunday school has also been increasing.

The young people are working very hard on a play to be given next Sunday evening. We have organized a Christian Endeavor for the young people, with an average of 25 present for every meeting. Since the organization of the society they have taken a great part in the church, and they now feel that they have a church responsibility upon them. We hope that in the future the C. E. will be a great help to the church in every way.

The Ladies' Auxiliary served a fish and oyster supper in the dining room of the church last Friday evening. Because of unfavorable weather conditions the attendance was rather small, but those that attended reported a good supper.

We have raised our quota for the McCulloch Memorial Fund and we hope that in the near future we will be able to say we have raised other quotas assigned us.

We are glad to say that most of the sick members of the church are better, and we hope to see them at church again soon.

Thomasville, First.—Our report does not show up very often, but that does not mean that we are on the standstill. Since space has been very limited, I have been holding back on our reports.

Our pastor assisted in the leadership training school in Lexington immediately following the one at this church. A good school is reported. We also had a good school here. However, the attendance was not as good as we expected. We appreciated the splendid efforts and work done by the ones who taught in our school. Rev. J. T. Bowman came all the way from Denton and did not miss a single night, although the weather was bad enough to keep some of our own people from school. We appreciate this, Mr. Bowman. Also Rev. H. F. Surratt was with us each night. We appreciate his services also.

The Layman's Fellowship held its regular monthly meeting in the home of L. R. Jarrett Tuesday evening, February 12. An interesting program was reported. A special feature for the evening was a male quartet composed of Messrs. Connell, Cain, Jarrett and Freeman. Rev. H. F. Surratt was the guest speaker and brought a very helpful message.

Young People's Day was held February 3. The play "This War" was given. Offering was taken for World Service.

Thank-offering service will be held next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

A Boy Scout troop under the direction of Mr. Malcom Bostic and Mr. Charles Prevost has been organized. This is sponsored by First church.

We are proud to report that our church is co-operating in the tithers' campaign for February, March and April. The names listed are the ones who have signed the peldge to tithe during these months: T. G. Madison, D. R. Connell, Mrs. D. R. Connell, F. S. Dorsett, Ishmael Dorsett, L. R. Jarrett, Finch Jackson, J. J. Hundley, L. A. Kirkman, W. C. Martin, W. G. Myers, Mrs. W. G. Myers, Mrs. Alex Lloyd, W. J. Loftin, Mrs. W. A. Leonard, Ralph Leonard, Mrs. Ralph Leonard, I. A. Teague, Marx Teague, J. E. Templeton, Grace H. Ragan, Mrs. T. G. Madison, Anna Williams, Mrs. S. R. Westmoreland, Mrs. L. M. Westmoreland, Mrs. Jason Hedrick, Jason Hedrick, Mrs. Roy Hill, G. H. White, Mrs. G. H. White, Mrs. Myrtle Barber. We hope to enroll others soon.

The sick among our church are Mrs. Motte Williams. She has been very sick with pneumonia. She is very much improved now. Ruby Anne Leonard is also very sick with double pneumonia. She is the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leonard. Mr. Eugene Bailey has the flu; also Mr. Bynum Wright is right sick with the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Morris and small son, Joe Burgess, were in an automobile accident and received slight injuries.

The Men's Bible Class will hold its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, February 18.

Our report is getting rather lengthy, but I must say something about the two sermons we heard Sunday. The morning text was "Thy Kingdom Come." I only wish I could give ou the sermon as Rev. Mr. Madison preached it, but it is impossible for me to do that. His evening sermon was equally as good, his text being "Thy Will Be Done."

Mr. Thomas L. Myers, a citizen of our community, passed away on February 9. He was 75 years old and leaves nine children, 49 grandchildren and 41 great-grandchildren. His funeral was conducted from Liberty Baptist church with Rev. T. G. Madison in charge, assisted by Rev. Mr. Perry, of Southmont, N. C. Interment was made in Liberty cemetery.

Shiloh Church, Connelly Springs Charge.—It has been some time since a report has been sent in from our church. Our reporter has been sick since Christmas, not able to attend church. The people at Shiloh were all glad for our same pastor to return, to be with us another year. Everybody likes our pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Love. We feel we are going to have a good year in the Master's work. Shiloh gave a Christmas program Christmas Eve night. Everyone present seemed to enjoy the program. The church was filled. There was a large tree, lots of nice presents, and a nice treat for every member of the Sunday school. The road into our church is lots better. The men have cut the road straight to the church. You can see our church from a good distance now; trees cut down, some of them. It sure looks better. Our church work is going along well in spite of rainy weather, muddy roads, and lots of sickness. We are having a good Sunday school every Sunday. Prayer meeting at the church every Sunday night, preaching twice a month, with good attendance. Our pastor has filled all appointments with fine sermons. His sermon Sunday was "Will a Man Rob God?" This was a wonderful sermon. Cards were given out to all who would tithe for February, March and April. A good many cards were signed and given back to our pastor. The first quarterly conference was held at Shiloh; all churches represented except Burke's Chapel. Sunday school reports were good. Ladies' Aid Society, Shady Grove, reports they have paid $60 on parsonage debt since conference. The chairman of the board of stewards had the best report I think they have ever had. Our charge seems to be starting off well for the year. Our pastor presented the conference claims. Most all of them were accepted. I will be glad when our church gets strong enough that we can pay our claims and stand with the stronger churches. Our pastor and family spent Saturday night in the home of Bro. Charlie McLain. We are always glad to have them in our community. There has been and still is lots of sickness in our community. All we know of are improving and we pray they will soon be well and back with us again at church. We ask the prayers of all Christians that our church may continue to grow. Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Rockingham.—We are glad to report that our Sunday school is increasing. There were 92 present last Sunday. We have had excellent reports for the last month.

Rev. H. W. Bell delivered a wonderful message Sunday night. His text was taken from Acts 2:3, "And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them." Our pastor has used as his subject "The Pentecost" for the last two or three preaching services. I am sure everyone has enjoyed these sermons very much.

We have a very fine Christian Endeavor. There is already a membership of 30. The subject for last Sunday night was "Christianizing Our Nation.' Splendid talks were given. The president of the society is Mrs. Eugene Porter.

We have ordered our Easter program. We will begin preparing it as soon as possible.

May we ever strive to do more for God and work toward the advancement of His Kingdom.

West End, Greensboro.—A rather novel experience came to this pastor and his wife last Thursday evening, February 14. A Valentine party was announced as a kind of get-together meeting, to be held in the assembly room of the Sunday school building.

Of course we went, as the Sunday school superintendent said, "We have not had any kind of get-together meeting since you came."

There were a number of names called out, ours among others, for the little Valentines with the usual little rhymes on them. Directly a large red Valentine was taken from the box and the pastor and his wife were called up to get it. It was a large heart, about ten by twelve inches, with our names on it, and when it was handed to me I noticed that it had a red string to it. Well, in most cases I do not like things with strings to them, but I was told to pull or follow the string. So I found that something was holding and I went in to the next room following the lead of the string. Then I found a large size express wagon with standards nearly as high as my head piled full of packages. There were 98 packages, weighing 131 pounds, consisting of things good for the body, and enough to fill the pantry for future use. Such a variety! Looked like someone had gone along to direct the buying, for there was not one thing but what can be used to good advantage. With all that and yet they tell me many were hindered on account of the downpour of rain, and I am sure they were.

No one but a pastor can tell how one feels when a thing like that is done for him. All of the packages were good. But one novel one I must mention. A pound of money from the Baraca Class. It had in it $7.25. Now if you can guess what kind of money it took to make one pound and that amount, you know money better than I do, for I never could have guessed.

I am not mentioning names. Wish I knew them all, but there were so many that were nameless that I shall not mention the few who did name their packages. Wish they had, for I would like to know. But such an act is not spiritless, though it may be nameless so far as the individual is concerned.

Such acts, though these were not the first that had come to us since coming here, for many had remembered us in a substantial way, inspires us for greater service, if possible, and makes us feel that what we are trying to do is appreciated.

There are many signs of life. Wisn I could point you to them all. One is, look at the Herald subscriptions nearing the goal. That, I understand, has never been done here. Come to our prayer meeting on Wednesday nights. Looks as if we are going to have to move out of the Baraca room for want of space. Several nights every bit of space taken. Somewhere in thirty at last auxiliary meeting. Our evening congregations more than doubled, sometimes as many as eighty present. Between thirty and forty tithers enrolled for this season of special effort.

So from several standpoints we are encouraged to look forward for results that will enable us to move forward towards lifting the church debt, and this has been a burden for many years with no appreciable advance made towards paying it off; and then the great opportunity this church has of making itself felt in the spiritual life of the community, with the vast amount of work to be done, gives us all here a challenge; if met in faith and love for the Master's Kingdom, will mean something unusual here in this city.

I know I have a lot of good friends that I have had the privilege of leading to Christ in the different fields in the conference, then so many good folks who have labored with me in these efforts as well as in the regular pastoral work, may I make this special request of you? We are in a special effort here of loyalty, liberality and soul saving, ending up with an evangelistic campaign beginning Easter Sunday. Will you not remember us specially in prayer that this may mean much for the Kingdom? Thank you, friends, I know you will if you are interested enough to read this.

May this be a great season of spiritual increase for all our churches.

N. G. BETHEA.

Shelby-Caroleen. — The Shelby-Caroleen charge is going forward. We have found some very good people on this work. The church at Shelby has been treated to a new roof and ceiling. The Sunday school is growing with Mr. J. H. Black as superintendent. There were 105 present the past Sunday. Twenty-two new members have been received into the church since conference. A Ladies' Auxiliary has been organized with 20 members and they are doing some real work.

We are now in an every-member canvass at Caroleen, working to get every member at work. The C. E. at Caroleen has about 50 young people on its roll, with Mr. Goldie A. Upton as president. He is one of the best young men the writer has ever known. Both the churches on this charge have fine fields in which to work and should be one of the best charges in the conference. We are very anxious that the folks see their possibilities. We will be able to report the McCulloch Memorial Fund paid in full after next Sunday. We are to have Dr. Andrews, our president, with us on March 17. He will visit both churches, Caroleen in the morning and Shelby at night. The second quarterly conference will be held by Dr. Andrews at Caroleen on March 17 in the afternoon. Pray for the Shelby-Caroleen charge.

First Church, Charlotte.—The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated on Sunday morning with an exceptionally large number of communicants participating.

Mrs. O. W. Connell, Mrs. T. J. Dellinger, Mr. J. R. Smith and Mr. Paul Colson have recently been received into our membership.

The church school attendance continues to increase.

The monthly meeting of the Workers' Council was held last Monday evening.

Circle No. 1 of the Woman's Auxiliary held the regular monthly meeting with Mrs. H. L. Jones at her home on Vail Avenue Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. C. H. DeWees, chairman, was in charge of the meeting.

Circle No. 2, composed of the young women and business women, met on Thersday evening with Mrs. Hendry, the chairman, at the parsonage.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. B. W. Little, at her home on Crescent Avenue.

The auxiliary has grown to such an extent that plans are being made to organize five circles, including the Business Woman's Circle. These circles will be organized beginning with the new missionary year.

The Wilma Shaw Bible Class will hold their regular monthly business meeting on Thursday evening this week. The membership of this class at present is 60 women. Their goal is 100 members by Easter. The class is divided into eight groups with a chairman for each group. The whole class is working enthusiastically under the leadership of Mrs. H. L. Jones, the teacher. Members of this class gave Mrs. Hendry a surprise birthday party on Thursday evening, February 7, at the parsonage. When she returned from a visit she found 50 women gathered in the parsonage who greeted her by singing "Happy Birthday to You." She was then ushered into the dining room where the table was loaded with many nice and useful gifts, and in the center of the table was a lovely birthday cake, beautifully decorated and set with candles, which was presented to her by Mrs. Ware. Games and contests were enjoyed and several readings were given by Mrs. C. S. Wommack. Refreshments were served by a committee. Mrs. Hendry was agreeably surprised, but expressed her appreciation in her most charming manner. Everyone present enjoyed the happy occasion and wished for her many happy returns of the day.

Classrooms have been built in the Beginners' and Primary departments. The Beginners' department, with Mrs. W. A. Herrin, superintendent, is growing in interest and numbers. Miss Ruby Steagall, who is such a happy, consecrated leader and worker, is superintendent of the Primary department. Under her leadership this department is not only growing in numbers, but is growing spiritually as well. A few months ago there was just one child who would offer prayer, and today Miss Ruby says there are 15 of these Primary children who will pray during the devotional services.

On last Tuesday evening Miss Stegall and Mrs. Herrin, assisted by the teachers in their departments, entertained 46 members of their departments with a Valentine social.

A Boy Scout troop will be organized under the supervision of Mr. Sigsby Tadlock with Mr. Herbert Garmon assisting.

The plans to build a hut at the rear of the church were launched last Sunday and a campaign to raise sufficient money to erect the building is under way with a substantial amount already on hand. A meeting will be held on Monday evening, at which time plans will be made to begin building at an early date.

The building committee was appointed as follows: Mr. Fred D. Blake, Dr. J. P. Richardson and Mr. G. W. Stegall.

Four new members were welcomed into the Cradle Roll department last Sunday. They were: Jo-Ann Bailey, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bailey; Melvin Delano Smith, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Smith; Doris Glenn Brown, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Craig T. Brown, and Shirley Anne Cruse, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cruse.

The midweek prayer service conducted by Dr. E. D. Moore was attended by a large crowd.

Henderson.—I am so delighted with the increased interest in our Sunday school that I cannot resist the urge to write a brief account for this week's Herald. Perhaps it will help some other Sunday school and church.

At the beginning of the conference year our Sunday school was possibly the most discouraging feature of our church program. In spite of the earnest efforts of interested and efficient officers and teachers, interest continued at a low ebb and the attendance remained around 100.

Our first step was to organize a Workers' Council that meets regularly each month. Among the very fine acts of this council has been a movement to make the classrooms more attractive. A carefully planned and executed worship service for the church school at each assembly period, with the different classes sharing the responsibility of their preparation. The actual preparation of a program doesn't come to any one class but once in about every ten weeks. Therefore it doesn't occur often enough for the classes to feel it a burden and consequently lose interest in it. Really, instead it serves to challenge their best effort. Then our Workers' Council was very unhappy over the small attendance at Sunday school and next attacked that problem, so we instituted an "interest campaign," one that embraces regular attendance, new members, visitors, and offering. An interested friend of the Sunday school donated a silver loving cup, to be awarded each month to the class scoring the highest percentage on the above-mentioned interests. In regard to the offering, a quota was set, and each class apportioned a certain amount of the total desired. To every class that reaches its apportionment their total points are doubled.

The results for the first three Sundays of the campaign have been most gratifying. Our attendance has jumped from the usual 90 to a 120 and 130 and still climbing.

Now someone says, "O, that's just another contest, and when it closes all the interest will die and they will be back where they were when they started," but this is a contest that is different. The interesting thing about it is that it doesn't end. It ends one month only to begin again with the beginning of the next month.

The classes are showing a great deal of interest in the campaign and we trust that it shall continue.

LUTHER R. MEDLIN, Pastor.

Calvary, Greensboro.—The attendance was especially good at Sunday school and at both morning and evening services last Sunday. Dr. Pritchard brought us a splendid message at the 11 o'clock hour, using for his subject "The Macedonian Call." Our missionary thank-offering service was held Sunday evening. A beautiful pageant was given under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Swain and Mrs. L. W. Gerringer. The offering amounted to $40.

We observed last Wednesday night as "Sunday School night." Around 80 Sunday school members met at the hut at 7:15, the purpose of the meeting being to honor those who remained on the honor roll for three months. A special Valentine program had been arranged and refreshments were served. Floyd C. Reynolds, chairman of the program committee, presided during the evening.

Several of our folks were present at the Pine Needles Lodge Friday, February 8, when Mrs. E. T. Coble, chairman of the woman's work in the fifth district, was hostess to the members in this district at an all-day study book review. The home missionary book, "Orientals in American Life," was reviewed Friday morning by Dr. Pritchard, and the foreign missionary book was reviewed Friday afternoon by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll. Both books were reviewed in very excellent and interesting manner. Mrs. J. E. Pritchard conducted the morning devotions and Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll conducted the devotions in the afternoon. Mrs. Coble was a splendid hostess and Pine Needles was an ideal place for the meeting. Everyone present thoroughly enjoyed the day.

Mrs. L. A. Michael and T. W. Jennings, two of our church members, are considered very sick at this time. Mrs. Michael is a patient in the Wesley Long hospital and Mr. Jennings is at St. Leo's hospital.

The Friendly Sunday school class held its

February business and social meeting on the second Tuesday night with Mrs. W. M. Johnson, Caldwell street. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. J. N. Griswold; vice president, Mrs. Clifton Causey; secretary, Mrs. R. S. Hemphill; assistant secretary, Mrs. J. B. Richardson; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Julian; assistant treasurer, Mrs. J. F. Caudle; teacher, Mrs. Howard R. Neese; assistant teacher, Miss Pearl McCulloch; flower committee, Mrs. R. C. Coble, Mrs. J. P. Lowman and Mrs. Howard R. Neece.

During the social hour Mrs. J. Frank Garrett led several Valentine contests and Mrs. Johnson served a dessert course. The next meeting will be a birthday party at the Sally Southern hostess room at the Southern Dairies March 12.

The Anna Starr Class is meeting with J. W. Williamson on Thersday afternoon of this week.

Dr. and Mrs. Pritchard spent last Thursday night in Asheboro. They were guests that evening of the Chamber of Commerce in the annual banquet. Dr. Pritchard was a charter member of this organization and was its chaplain for five years.

Dr. Pritchard went to Burlington Monday evening to review the missionary study book, "Orientals in American Life." He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Pritchard and Mrs. L. W. Gerringer.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet next Monday evening in the hut at 7:30. The Business Girls' Circle will give a program on "Temperance." The nominating committee will make a report. All members of the church, including the men, are invited.

Seagrove, Seagrove-Love Joy Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. E. G. Cowan, filled his regular apjpointment last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. He preached a fine sermon from the subject, "The Man of the Hour." We have preaching now twice a month, the first and third Sundays at 11 o'clock. Pastor Cowan and his good wife have already endeared themselves to us so much and we believe much good will be accomplished by their being here with us.

We are having a splendid Sunday school under the efficient management of our superintendent, S. G. Richardson. Uncle Charlie Stuart gives us an interesting blackboard exercise each Sunday. We are planning on having an Easter program.

Our Christian Endeavor Society meets each Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. Last Sunday night the meeting was led by Prof. G. A. York with an interesting program. Mrs Joseph Comer and Mrs. P. M. Eames sang a duet, and Mrs. A. C. Harris made an interesting talk, also several others.

The February social gathering was held in the basement Saturday night, February 16. Refreshments were served by the social committee.

The January meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Noah Williams. This being the fifth anniversary of the society, a birthday cake with fine candles was displayed. Refreshments were served. The visitors from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Russell, of Alexandria, La., and Mrs. J. R. Redmond and little son, of Ontario, Va.

New officers were elected at this meeting, as follows: President, Mrs. D. J. Johnson; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. W. P. Strider; program committee, Mrs. E. G. Cowan, chairman, Mrs. S. G. Richardson and Mrs. L. A. King. The February meeting was held with Miss Nora Yow. A large crowd was present and after the meeting adjourned all were invited to the dining room where a bountiful supply of delicious refreshments was served. The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. S. Ashworth.

We have been somewhat handicapped this winter by having to hold services in the basement, as the heating plant has not yet been installed, but we hope the weather will soon be so we can use the auditorium and Sunday school rooms. We plan to set out shrubbery on the church lawn at an early date.

We were glad to have with us at Christian Endeavor last Sunday night two of our members, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Smith, of Greensboro, who were on their way to visit their daughter, Mrs. Elsie King, at Laurinburg. Mr. and Mrs. L. A. King spent last Sunday with their son, James, at Boiling Springs, N. C.

At this time one of our junior members, Miss Davis King, is sick in bed. We hope for her a speedy recovery. REPORTER.

New Hope, Mecklenburg.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, used for his subject last Sunday "The Way," and for his scripture lesson the 14th chapter of the gospel according to St. John.

We had Sunday school last Sunday at the usual hour and prayer meeting Sunday night. We have several good speakers at New Hope. Our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. John Richardson, has served in that position for the past 15 years. We enjoy hearing him very much. Mr. Joe Ross has been teaching a singing class two nighte each week for some time and we appreciate this work very much. We enjoy good singing so much. New Hope people have been accused of liking snorting preachers, but we do not. We like preachers who are filled with the Holy Spirit and wideawake for Christ. One of our members, Mrs. Jane Belk, who has been faithful for a long time, was buried Saturday one week ago. We are sorry to lose this good old mother and grandmother.

FAYE AYCOTH, Reporter.

Asheville.—The Christian Endeavor banquet is the main issue this week, and a great deal of interest is being manifested therein. Everyone is helping and anxious to make it a real success. Already Lola Johnson and Polly Gentry have won a free ticket apiece by each selling 10 tickets to the banquet. Others will have sold their allotted 10 tickets before Friday, and we expect to have at least a hundred people present when the gong sounds on Friday evening. Come on, folks, let's have a good time, and, incidentally, a good feed. All proceeds will be applied to the Rev. Mr. Minnis' salary, and we hope that it will be a substantial amount. Mr. James H. Bailey will act as toastmaster and will also direct the musical portion of the program. We are expecting to see YOU on Friday!

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Hale Thomas at her home, 169 Hillside Street, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected at this meeting. It has been decided to hold the February thank-offering program on March 3. Miss Frances S. Cunningham, the thank-offering secretary, will have charge of the program, and expects to have a real treat to offer us—more of this anon. Make your plans now to be present.

The Fawcett Bible Class came into the limelight on Sunday with the largest number present for Sunday school. We are glad to see this class picking up again, for interest had been waning for some time. The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class had the highest per capita and the largest offering of the entire school. Mrs. Williams' Junior boys led in amount of collections in their department. Our collection this past Sunday was better than it has been for some time, and an optimistic spirit prevails. Let's keep it up, folks—it can be done M. L. B.

Grace, Greensboro.—We rejoice to welcome into our church five members this year. On January 27 Misses Mary Wills, Harriett Wills and Agnes Wills came to us from Bethesda M. P. church on Halifax circuit. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wilson reunited with Grace church after having held their membership in the country near Greensboro for several years.

Our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, and Rev. T. J. Whitehead, vice president and president, respectively, of the Conference Council of Religious Education, spent last week in Chicago, Ill., attending the annual meeting of the International Council of Religious Education. (Mrs. Carroll traveled with them as far as Altoona, Pa., where she visited her kinfolks and friends in that city.) A further statement about the Chicago meeting will appear under the Department of Religious Education news items.

Mr. Carroll is at present preaching a series of sermons on the general subject, "Crises in the Bible." Each crisis is considered under a specific theme and is developed as a unit so that visitors who worship with us may have an entire message with each worship service, yet the several units constitute a development of the progress of spiritual insight and ethical living. It will require about another month to complete the fine series of sermons.

The Methodist Protestant ministers of Greensboro and environs met at Grace church on February 18 at 10:30 o'clock. The ministers of this section have had an organization since last May 7 which meets monthly. The February meeting, however, invited ministers from a wider area since certain important matters were to be considered. The principal speakers were Rev. B. C. Reavis, pastor of College Place M. E. Church, South, of Greensboro, and Mrs. D. S. Coltrane, of Grace church. Mr. Reavis spoke on "The Work of the Minister," and Mrs. Coltrane on "The Immediate Needs of High Point College," which she listed as: (1) Distribution of literature about the college; (2) interesting prospective students in the college, and (3) payment of the college assessment before May 1, so as to meet the offer made by the Board of Christian Education. Officers of the organization were elected as follows: President, Dr. N. G. Bethea; vice president, Rev. J. W. Braxton; secretary-treasurer, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll. President Andrews was in attendance and made several important announcements to the ministers.

The fifth district rally was held in Grace church Sunday afternoon, February 10. The principal address was by Dr. G. I. Humphreys. He presented clearly and forcefully some of the reasons for our denominational existence, and made some pertinent remarks regarding High Point College. Would that we could realize what this institution means to us, and would come to the support of Dr. Humphreys and his self-sacrificing faculty.

The Baraca and the Sutton Philathea classes had a supper at the Odell club house last Monday evening. Interesting talks were made by Dr. Spahr and Pastor Carroll.

The Woman's Auxiliary at its meeting last Monday afternoon re-elected the following officers: Mrs. E. W. Teague, president; Mrs. J. M. Millikan, vice president; Mrs. W. C. Ogburn, secretary; Mrs. A. W. Staley, treasurer. In addition, Mrs. T. D. Sharpe was elected corresponding secretary. This office was not filled last year.

Palestine, Flat Rock Circuit.—Pastor Way filled his appointment Sunday to a very good congregation. The reporter was absent, but I am sure those present enjoyed our pastor's message. Pastor Way was accompanied by Mrs. Way and the children.

The first communion service for this year was held and all appreciated the new communion set.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Sharon are confined to their home with "flu," we learn. Uncle Calvin Tucker has not yet improved sufficiently to be able to attend services. Pray for this aged member.

Mrs. Archie Tucker has our deep sympathy in the loss of her father by death the past week. Mrs. Tucker's father passed away one morning and Archie's mother departed the next morning. The burden upon these good members is almost unbearable. Archie, for the past year, has not been able to do any work. His health has improved very little yet and the giving up of his dear old mother and his wife's dear father is a grief indeed to them. Give them your prayers. Send them a card of sympathy if you know them. It will cheer them.

Rankin Memorial, English Street.—We are glad to report that at last our dreams of a new church are beginning to be realized. A lot has been purchased at the corner of Barker and Adams Streets in High Point and plans have already been drawn for the new church. Too, it has been decided to build the church as a memorial to Capt. A. M. Rankin, a highly esteemed and much loved Methodist Protestant of our city. Thus the church will be called Rankin Memorial M. P. and will be known by that name from now on. Our church is working unusually hard to secure funds for this purpose, headed by the untiring efforts of our pastor, Rev. Edward Suits. All of the organizations, including the Ladies' Aid Socoiety, the Senior C. E. Society and the Sunday school classes, are striving to help along the funds also. We hope that it will not be many more weeks until we may move over into our new place of worship, where we can really carry on God's work as we should.

We are glad to report that our attendance in the Sunday school has been increasing for the past few Sundays. Our Girls' Philathea Class and the Boys' Baraca Class have started an attendance contest which will last three months. These are two of the largest classes in the Sunday school. We were glad, too, to see our superintendent, W. T. Kennedy, back after being absent several Sundays on account of illness.

Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Suits, brought us a good sermon on Sunday evening, his topic being "Temptation," and taking his text from Hebrews 4:15, "But was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin," speaking of Jesus. Our pastor's sermons are always inspiring and uplifting.

REPORTER.

Tabernacle Church, West Forsyth. — Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, filled his regular appointment Sunday afternoon, February 17, bringing to us a good gospel message.

Our attendance at church and Sunday school during the month was comparatively small, due largely to sickness, but we are planning to increase attendance.

Our church has paid its McCulloch Memorial Fund in full.

REPORTER.

West End, Greensboro.—First and foremost this week is mention of our thank-offering service, which was held Sunday evening, February 17. The play "The High Way" was given before a large and appreciative audience, and the offering itself was beyond our fondest hopes; so we feel deeply grateful to all who made it a success. Mrs. J. R. Holden, Mrs. A. E. Pleasants, Miss Elizabeth Holden and Mrs. S. H. Stapleton made up the cast of characters in the play. The worship service was in charge of Dr. Bethea.

Prof. H. A. Helms was our geest speaker at the midweek prayer service last Wednesday evening. He gave a splendid talk, reviewing the life of several Bible characters and others. The attendance was not quite up to par because of the inclement weather.

Mrs. J. Ruffin Holden, teacher of the Philatheas, was hostess to the class for their business and social meeting on Saturday night. Thirty-six were present, and following the business games and contests were enjoyed. Refreshments and favors were in George Washington motif. The class presented Mrs. Holden with a handkerchief shower as a remembrance of her birthday.

A large acdience heard Dr. Bethea at the 11 o'clock hour on Sunday. His subject for the sermon was "The Work of the Kingdom of God." We were reminded that our positions as workers for God are exalted and that we should not hide our talents in a napkin, but use them for His glory.

Our pastor expressed himself as being "quite pleasantly surprised" at the number who have signed up to tithe during the campaign and feels sure that they, as well as the church, will benefit therefrom.

Beneficial results are being manifest also in the loyalty campaign as a number of our old members are coming out who have not been to our services for some time.

WESTERN PASTORS' FEDERATION MEETS AT ROBERTA

The pastors and a few laymen of the Western Federation held a very interesting meeting at Roberta February 11. The theme for the morning was: "The Four-Square Minister." The devotional service was conducted by Rev. C. G. Isley. The first speaker was Rev. D. I. Garner. His subject was, "The Minister as Preacher." Brother Garner brought us a well-prepared message on this subject. The second speaker was Rev. D. R. Williams, his subject being "The Minister as Pastor." Brother Williams with apt illustrations made his message clear and forceful. The wise visiting pastor can help many of the sick members and indifferent members to take an interest in the church. Rev. W. D. Reed not being present to discuss the subject, "The Minister as Leader," Dr. R. M. Andrews was asked to say something on the subject. Dr. Andrews very ably handled the subject, showing how the pastor could usually lead better than he could drive. He also laid emphasis on the love and patience of the leader. Dr. T. M. Johnson very interestingly discussed "The Idea of the Ideal Minister." After relating several characteristics of the ideal minister, he spoke on what the minister should do with his hands. The meeting was then thrown open for discussion. Several pastors took part in the discussions.

At the noon hour the local pastor, Rev. E. A. Cook, and the ladies of Roberta church served a bountiful dinner in one of the Sunday scrool rooms. We heartily thank Brother Cook and the good ladies for this splendid free dinner.

The afternoon devotional service was conducted by Rev. P. E. Bingham. In the business session, after much discussion, it was decided to hold the next meeting at Friendship church, Fallston charge, and Shelby. There will be all-day services at Friendship and an evening session at Shelby. The old officers were re-elected. The time and program for the next meeting were left in the hands of the chairman and secretary. Mrs. W. B. Little, of Charlotte, brought us a very timely message on "Why Raise Our College Assessment by May?" Dr. R. M. Andrews then brought us a real sermon of information and inspiration to go forward in Kingdom service. We wish to thank each speaker for helping to make the day one of the most profitable in the history of the Federation. Most of the ministers in the district were present. We were also glad to have Rev. J. M. Morgan, recently moved out of the district, and a visiting pastor from Concord. Several local and a few visiting laymen were present. The next program will be prepared in part for the laymen and we hope to have many more present.

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

Plans had been made weeks in advance. People had been asked to pray for a great revival. Many people were within reach of the church that knew nothing of the way of life by experience. The work was new and very few people in the community knew anything about our folks. Many of them had just come into the church because they liked our way of doing things, and the interest seemed to be good and the time ripe for an ingathering.

Rev. E. A. Plyler, that prince of preachers in his day, in our church, had been engaged as pulpit help, and when he came he began preaching from the text, "For which cause we faint not." The people saw that there was no ordinary preacher in the pulpit. Many of them realized that they were the kind that fainted at the least effort, many had fainted and had not been revived. The church people came to the altar and sought power; it was given. Some of the wickedest people in the community were brought in. The altar was moved from the front to the back. People were saved all over the church. Workers were in evidence wherever there was an unsaved person. Some of the happiest people, to be sure, for there were those who relied upon God for the salvation of their loved ones. People came to mock and remained to pray. It was all excitement, some would say. To be sure there was an interest that caused them to come, the kind of excitement that causes folks to get interested about anything worthwhile. Some came to satisfy their curiosity and remained to pray.

The great thing about it all was that there were people saved in that meeting that went home to glory shouting as they lived here. Some are in the ministry today in different denominations. Bro. Plyler preached a "bloody gospel" as some have called it. Jesus and his cross was lifted high. There was nothing else offered for the saving of the sinner. He made no compromise with any evil as he saw it, and it was hard for anyone to play false with him. He understood human nature and pulled it out from its hiding place, and by the gospel showed that there was no other way of life.

I have heard a number of preachers in my lifetime. Some of the men were not counted great, in the common acceptation of the term. Then I have heard great scholars in the pulpit, great evangelists who had great followings, but some of the sermons that I heard this man Plyler preach have stayed with me longer as far as making an impression for better living is concerned than any man I have ever worked with. In this meeting to which I refer, held in the Caroleen church, there were upwards of two hundred conversions and reclamations and only in eternity will be known much of its far-reaching effects.

Bro. Plyler had been engaged to help in the Bessemer City meeting the same year, the fall following the Caroleen meeting. Here the power of the Spirit was in evidence from the beginning.

I shall never forget the Sunday morning that he came. He took for his text: "He was brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth." In the portrayal of the shfferings of Christ, which were all for us, people wept and rejoiced all over the house. Not the material here we had at the other place, but a gracious revival that brought men to their knees and the entire town received a great uplift. The house was crowded at every service. Surely we are in need of men who under the preaching of the cross can move men like that today.

Another great revivalist who has gone to his reward was Rev. J. H. Moton, and I shall not mention those of our number who are still living. I remember his preaching in many places. One in particular, in Polk county where we were working among a neglected class, or rather a class who were far removed from the centers; and men would come there out of their mountain homes, filthy, and after coming in contact with this man of God, would come back next day clean and shaven, showing that the gospel had its effect upon their bodies as well as their souls. It has ever been this way. Shall tell you more about this.

BROTHER WREN OPPOSES LIQUOR

Dear Mr. Editor:

I feel sure that the temperance people of our state are surprised and amazed at the bold move on the part of the liquor forces to bring about the repeal of our state prohibition laws and have enacted into law a measure that would legalize the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor. This move coming so closely upon a statewide election in which the majority in favor of prohibition was almost 185,000 is not easily understood. To me there is but one explanation, and that is, the liquor forces are ready to defy the majority if that majority stands in their way to more liquor and worse liquor. In the bold move now being made, the wet politicians have ignored the temperance people in this vital matter and are determined to bring back to our people legalized liquor. They seem to think that the voters will condone this act because of the revenue that will be derived from it. In this I believe they will find they are mistaken. I can not believe the dry forces who won such a signal victory in 1933 will so soon forget and turn their backs upon what was done then.

So far as I am concerned, as regards the tax that would be derived from the sale of liquor, I would rather pay more taxes and have our state continue under our present prohibition law than for the state to legalize the manufacture and sale of liquor and from it collect millions of dollars in taxes. This in deed would be dear money. It would come, in a large measure, from that class of our citizens least able to pay it. It would rob the poor family of bread and clothes and the other necessities of life. In a way it would give a sort of respectability to the sale of liquor and this would lead many young men and women, boys and girls, to drink who would never go to a bootlegger for their liquor. It is bad enough now, but what will be the awful consequences if this monster is brought out into the open and dressed up in legal clothes to make and sell its death-dealing stuff?

It is high time we awake to the dangers that confront us. What are we, as a church, going to do? What can we do? We should arouse our people from this lethargy which seems to prevail and make a determined fight for the right. In our Sunday school yesterday morning we passed a resolution asking our senator and representative to use their influence and vote against any move to weaken our present prohibition law, or enact into law a measure that would legalize the manufacture and sale of liquor. Let every Sunday school and church pass such a resolution and let the temperance men and women write their senators and representatives, and see them in person, and urge them to vote against this move on the part of the liquor forces and I believe we shall be able to stop it. This is the time to strike this hydra-headed monster before he is dressed in legal attire. L. L. WREN.

FROM BROTHER SPAINHOWER

Dear Editor:

I would like to say through your paper, there is a great deal said about the budgets, and I wonder if we are as much concerned about seeking the lost. Jesus says, I came to seek and to save the lost. I have not noticed any lost being saved or any backsliders being reclaimed, or any drop-outs coming back and taking interest.

I wonder if we are as much concerned about the soul salvation of our people as we ought to be. Jesus told Peter when he said he loved Him, to "feed my lambs," also sheep. I believe if the lambs and the sheep are properly fed the Lord will help the lambs and the sheep to feed the feeder; for he says the workman is worthy of his hire. We read, "My God shall supply all your needs according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." W. P. SPAINHOWER.

ASHEBORO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAS BANQUET

On Thursday evening of last week it was the pleasure of the editor and his wife to be guests of the Asheboro Chamber of Commerce in the annual banquet. Asheboro is one place that takes the Chamber of Commerce banquet seriously. It was said that there were more than three hundred at the tables. There was some very fine local talent on the first part of the program and a splendid address by Dr. H. E. Spence, of Duke School of Religion, as the climax of the evening. The new president, Francis White, is a son-in-law of Brother W. L. Ward, of our church. Methodist Protestants that we saw there were: Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison, Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Ross, J. D. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ward, Mrs. Francis White, Mrs. W. C. Hammer, Miss Enolia Presnell, C. E. Bulla, J. C. Bunch, Miss Kate Hammer, W. F. Redding, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., Miss Iola Lowdermilk, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Henly, Mrs. Callie Way Chisholm, J. D. Ross, Jr., Henry Jones, G. P. Pritchard.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

McCulloch

When Dr. J. F. McCulloch was called from labor to reward, the North Carolina Branch sustained a great loss. Therefore, be it resolved,

First, that we express our appreciation for his great help to us through the church paper.

Second, that while we bow in humble submission to the will of the Heavenly Father, that we try in some way to show our appreciation of his service to us by contributing to the McCulloch Memorial Fund.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. C. L. WHITAKER,
MISS MARY E. YOUNG,
MRS. R. M. ANDREWS,
Committee.

Sharpe

Harold Earl Sharpe was released from his earthly afflictions and passed to his heavenly reward on January 18, 1935. He was 12 years, 4 months and 24 days of age. He had been afflicted since he was about five years of age.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Sharpe; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Sharpe and Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Capps; four sisters, Janet, Geraldine, Edna Ruth and K. Frances; and three brothers, Ben, Richard and an infant brother, all of Burlington, R. F. D.

All of these relatives and the many friends are pointed to the God of all love that can give comfort for a time of sadness like this.

The funeral services were held at Bellemont church, Mt. Hermon charge, Saturday, January 19. Revs. T. J. Whitehead and Wayne Curtis were in charge of the services. Interment was in the church cemetery.

T. J. WHITEHEAD.

Hargrove

On Saturday evening, January 26, a shadow of gloom fell over the entire southern section of Alamance county. Word spread over that section that Marion Hargrove had been seriously injured in an automobile accident near Eli Whitney high school. On Sunday morning about 10 o'clock his soul took its flight from this life.

Mr. Hargrove was 59 years, 3 months and 13 days of age. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Perry Hargrove; three daughters, Mrs. J. J. Hockett, Pleasant Garden; Mrs. R. C. Thompson, Graham, Route 2, and Mrs. J. A. McBane, Greensboro; and two sons, H. G. Hargrove, of Graham, Route 2, and Neal R. Hargrove, Graham, N. C. In addition there are two brothers, a large number of other relatives, and a host of friends who mourn the passing of this good man.

All of the people who knew Mr. Hargrove spoke very highly of him. Everybody in his community honored, respected and loved him. He was an excellent neighbor, a splendid citizen, a devoted husband and father, and a faithful church member.

Funeral services were conducted at Concord church, Saxapahaw charge, Tuesday, January 29, by Revs. W. M. Loy, Ed Harris, L. W. McFarland and T. J. Whitehead. The Jr. O. U. A. M. had charge of the services at the grave in the church cemetery.

T. J. WHITEHEAD.

Myers

Many of us were shocked and greatly saddened at the sudden passing of Julian N. Myers Sunday morning, February 3, while his family was at church. He had been in declining health for a while, but his condition was regarded as decidedly improved.

Mr. Myers was born September 11, 1865, being the son of William and Cynthia Grimes Myers. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Torence and Otis, and two daughters, Mrs. J. R. Sechrest and Miss Nell Myers.

The deceased was a charter member of Community M. P. church and a member of the Junior Order American Mechanics. He was a quiet person, yet ever taking his position for the right. He was faithful to his church and attended until almost the end.

Funeral services were conducted from the home by the pastor Monday afternoon. A quartet consisting of Mrs. C. F. Finch, Mrs. Clyde Bartley, Mrs. John R. Perry and Dr. R. V. Yokeley sang favorite hymns.

We sincerely sympathize with the family in the loss of a husband and father. May there be a reuniting of the family in God's good time.

H. FREO SURRATT.

Bishop

James W. Bishop passed from this life at his home on January 5, 1935. He was about 73 years of age. Mr. Bishop is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eliza Bishop.

He spent most of his life in the Friendship community of Mt. Hermon charge. He united with the Friendship church in early life and remained a faithful member until his death.

All of the people in the community speak highly of his splendid Christian character. He was blind for nearly 25 years, but this affliction did not drive him from his God. He cultivated a very close fellowship with his Heavenly Father and did all he could to help others come close to Him. During his many lonely hours at home during the period of blindness he learned many poems which were food to his soul and inspiration to those that heard them. There was one poem that seems to have been his philosophy of life. That poem is as follows:

Wearied and worn with earthly care, I yielded to repose.
And soon before my raptured sight a glorious vision rose.
I thought, while slumbering on my couch in midnight's solemn gloom,
I heard an angel's silvery voice, and radiance filled the room.
A gentle touch awakened me; a gentle whisper said,
"Arise, O sleeper, follow me!" and through the air we fled;
We left the earth so far away that like a speck it seemed,
And heavenly glory, calm and pure, across our pathway streamed.

Still on he went; my soul was wrapped in silent ecstasy;
I wondered what the end would be, what next would meet my eye.
I knew not how we journeyed through the pathless fields of light,
When suddenly a change was wrought, and I was clothed in white.
We stood before a city's walls, most glorious to behold;
We passed through streets of glittering pearl, o'er streets of purest gold.
It needed not the sun by day, nor silver moon by night;
The glory of the Lord was there, the Lamb himself its light.

Bright angels paced the shining streets, sweet music filled the air,
And white-robed saints, with glittering crowns, from every clime were there;
And some that I had loved on earth stood with them round the throne.
"All worthy is the Lamb," they sang, "the glory His alone."
And fairer than all beside, I am my Saviour's face,
And as I gazed, He smiled on me, with wondrous love and grace;
Slowly I bowed before His throne, o'erjoyed that I at last
Had gained the object of my hopes, that earth at length was past.

And then in solemn tones He said, "Where is the diadem
That ought to sparkle on thy brow, adorned with many a gem?
I know thou hast believed on Me, and life, through Me, is thine.
But where are all those radiant stars that in thy crown should shine?
Yonder thou seest a glorious throng, and stars on every brow;
For every soul they led to Me, they wear a jewel now;
And such thy bright reward had been, if such had been thy deed,
If thou hadst sought some wandering feet in paths of peace to lead.

"I did not mean that thou shouldst tread the way of life alone,
But that the clear and shining light which round thy footsteps shone
Should guide some other weary feet to My bright home of rest.
And thus in blessing those around, thou hadst thyself been blest."
The vision faded from my sight; the voice no longer spake;
A spell seemed brooding o'er my soul, which long I feared to break,
And when at last I gazed around, in morning's glimmering light,
My spirit fell, o'erwhelmed amid that vision's awful night.

I rose and wept with chastened joy that yet I dwelt below—
That yet another hour was mine, my faith by works to show,
That yet some sinner I might tell of Jesus' dying love,

And help to lead some weary soul to seek a home above.
And now while on the earth I stay, my motto this shall be,
"To live no longer to myself, but to Him who died for me."
And graven on my inmost soul this word of truth divine,
"They that turn many to the Lord bright as the stars shall shine."

Funeral services were held at Friendship church Sunday, January 6. Revs. T. J. Whitehead, W. F. Ashburn and J. Elwood Carroll had charge of the services. The body was interred in the church cemetery.

Chandler

It is with deep sorrow that the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Protestant church of Denton, N. C., record the passing of a faithful member and true friend in the person of Mrs. C. C. Chandler, on January 29, 1935, age 67 years.

While circumstances prevented her from attending the meetings, she was loyal to its interests and willing to do what she could to promote the advancement of His Kingdom. May her long life of loyalty to Christ be an incentive to higher and nobler living to all who knew her.

Therefore, be it resolved: That this Ladies' Aid Society holds her in loving remembrance, and the many years of faithful service in our church and society, and follow her example in our lives by striving to do His will.

That we extend our sincere sympathy to the sorrowing daughters, Miss Lillie Chandler and Mrs. H. A. Cates.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the daughters, a copy be included in the minutes of the Ladies' Aid Society, and a copy be sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald for publication.

"This change for her meant joy and peace
And rest in that home afar;
Pray God that we be as ready to go
When we shall cross the bar."

MRS. J. T. BOWMAN,
MRS. JOE HILL,
MRS. C. T. SURRATT.

Chandler

Mrs. Ella Morris Chandler was born September 18, 1867, and departed this life January 29, 1935, age 67 years, 4 months and 11 days. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Morris and was born and reared in Randolph county near Mt. Ebal church. January 13, 1888, she was united in marriage to Mr. C. C. Chandler, who preceded her in death two years and 25 days. This union was blessed with two children, both of which she lived to see crowned in womanhood.

She professed religion early in life and joined Mt. Ebal Methodist Protestant church. After moving to Denton, she brought her membership to Denton M. P. church, where she remained a faithful and loyal member until death claimed her. She loved her church and faithfully served it as long as she was physically able to do so. For a number of years she has been a patient and resigned sufferer. Kindness, cheerfulness, and loving deeds for all have been crowning characteristics of her deportment and life.

She leaves to mourn her going two daughters, Miss Lillie Chandler, of Denton, and Mrs. H. A. Cates, of Raleigh. There are two grandchildren, Charlie Cates and Mrs. Elton Davis, of Raleigh. One sister, Mrs. M. C. Cranford; one brother, N. E. Morris, both of Denton; one aunt, Mrs. Diza Thompson, who lives near Mt. Ebal M. P. church, also a host of other relative and friends.

"A face of kindliest beauty,
A heart of tenderest grace;
A voice of sweetest cadence
A love naught can efface.

"Hands tireless in their service
Feet swift to come and go;
Ears turned to faintest whispers
Eyes keen to see and know.

"A love unlike all others
A friend of all most true;
O mother, precious mother,
All honor due to you."

The funeral service was conducted at 2 p. m. January 30, 1935, at Denton M. P. church by her pastor, J. T. Bowman, who was assisted by Revs. G. L. Reynolds, J. B. Trogdon, E. A. Bingham and J. D. Cranford. Several other ministers were present.

The family wishes to express to neighbors, friends and ministers their deep appreciation of their kindness shown during the illness and death of their mother.

May the bereaved be comforted in their deep sorrow. May God's peace and love fill their hearts.

J. T. BOWMAN.

Tucker

Mrs. Mahalie Barnes Tucker was born August 7, 1859, and ended her earthly journey February 13, 1935, having reached the age of 75 years, 6 months and 6 days. She was united in marriage to James C. Tucker in young womanhood, and to this happy union were born 12 children, 10 of whom survive, five sons and five daughters, as follows: W. T. Tucker, of Madison; Enoch, Charles, James C. and Archie Tucker, of Madison, R. F. D.; Mrs. R. W. Pegram and Mrs. B. G. Shelton, of Stokesdale, R. F. D.; Mrs. A. L. Lemmons and Mrs. E. M. Parrish, of Stokesdale; Mrs. Leslie Shelton, of Madison, R. F. D. Also 45 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren and a host of other relatives survive.

Mrs. Tucker united with Palestine Methodist Protestant church, Flat Rock charge, when a young woman more than 50 years ago, and remained a consecrated, loyal and devoted member until her entry into the Triumphant Church in the everlasting Kingdom of Heaven. The writer has never known a more consecrated and devoted member of the church than Mrs. Tucker. In her declining years of ill health and recent months of suffering she manifested a cheerful spirit despite the pain and suffering to which she was subjected. She was affectionately devoted to her children and truly loved her church and its pastors during the half century of her active Christian life. She made a most valuable contribution to life in the godly influence which radiated from her life. The influence of such a beautiful Christian life will remain with the children, grandchildren and a large host of relatives, neighbors and friends and continue to be a benediction. So applicable to the life of Mrs. Tucker is the Biblical declaration: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them."

Funeral services were conducted at Palestine Methodist Protestant church February 14, 1935, at 2:30 o'clock. by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. B. Trogdon, of Randleman, and Rev. J. P. Pegg, of Burlington, two former pastors. The mortal remains were tenderly laid to rest in the church cemetery beside the grave of the husband, James C. Tucker, who preceded Mrs. Tucker several years ago.

May the bereaved sons and daughters and other relatives be sustained by the grace of God. May they look forward to the heavenly reunion of all the redeemed of earth which will take place in the Celestial City of God where immortal spirits shall dwell together in unfaded joy and happiness through all eternity.

Stone

Grace church has suffered a bereavement in the passing of one of its most faithful members on Wednesday, February 13—John M. Stone. Mr. Stone came to Greensboro about 35 years ago. He had been one of the mainstays of the church at Haw River, where he lived previously, and soon became one of the most active and useful members of Grace church. It was as teacher of the Baraca Class that he probably rendered his most effective service. He was deeply interested in the men of the class; personally the writer feels sure that more than one were led to Christ through his efforts. During the past few years of his life ill health prevented his occupying his place in the church; but he has left the church better for his connection with it, and poorer now that he has gone. The writer valued him as a friend—one in whom he had the utmost confidence, and who no doubt has entered into the rest that remaineth to the people of God.

THE THEOLOG

The students of Westminster Theological Seminary will publish their yearbook, "The Theolog," during the month of March.

Charles E. Forlines, D. D., has written for us a page of "Friendly Counsel" to the graduating class. That advice, we believe, will be useful to all ministers who expect to improve.

Tsukasa Oda, our Japanese student, has given us, through The Theolog, his impressions of the seminary and the church. You may discover whether they were favorable or otherwise by buying a copy of the annual.

The book will be an intimate representation of student activities. It will introduce to the Methodist Protestant church the newest "prophets" by having in it a cut of each senior and a revealing article about him.

Graduates, ex-students, and other friends of the seminary are asked to send $1.50 to the editor in care of Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md. In return we shall send to them one copy of The Theolog.

Well, Calvary is still leading the procession so far as percentages are concerned. Whitakers barely holds to second place this week, and Vance was pushed off the stage by West End, Greensboro. Welcome, West End. We are glad to have you.

But the charge that heads the list this week in subscription receipts is North Davidson. They come up to the merry tune of $11. And that energetic agent over at First church, Lexington, is not far behind with $9. We have a lot of fine payments from several charges this week, but we are so crowded for space that we will not rave over them. But just look at the Subsidy column! That $20 from Asheboro looks as big as the moon. And they send more than their quota. That is good, gospel measure. And Saxapahaw gets a star this week for having raised subsidy in full. Mt. Hermon, also, comes along with a nice payment on subsidy. That is fine, and we do appreciate all this more than we can tell. Now, I know you want to know what our receipts amount to, for several have told me recently that they look for that first. We have received this week $94.42 in subscriptions and $35 on subsidy, making a total of $129.42.

Our Front Page Error of Last Week

Those of you who read the article by Dr. R. L. Shipley, the editor of the Methodist Protestant Recorder, of last week, on how an editor feels when he discovers errors in his paper, may imagine our humiliation when we discovered that the types made us say May for March in the line concerning the offerings for the Children's Home on the first page of the HERALD last week. But after it was done, there was not much that we could do about it. We were sorry, the linotype operator was sorry, the proof-reader was sorry, the composing man was sorry, yet the error remained right there on the first page. But we are asking you to substitute the word March for May and get the thing fixed in your mind that we are to double the offerings for the Children's Home in the month of March.

An Evening at Winston-Salem

On Thursday evening of last week it was the good fortune of the editor and his wife to be dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gwyn of Winston-Salem. Following the dinner quite a goodly number of the members of the First church came in for the evening. Dr. and Mrs. Bates were present and added considerably to the pleasure of the occasion. Those who have been in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gwyn know how pleasant an occasion of that kind can be made. The night was beautiful for driving, with a big beautiful moon to shine on us on the return trip.

Guilford County Peace League Dinner

The Guilford County Peace League will have a dinner in the Masonic Temple in Greensboro on Monday evening, March 11, at 6:30 o'clock. The theme to be discussed will be International Relations. Those who can spare the time and the fifty cents will likely get something that will be very much worthwhile.

Rev. W. F. Ashburn's Son-in-Law Very Ill

The family of Rev. W. F. Ashburn have been in great distress for the past two weeks over the extreme illness of Mr. W. T. Jennings, husband of Annie Ashburn, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Ashburn. Mr. Jennings is in St. Leo's hospital in Greensboro. At this time (Tuesday afternoon) his condition is thought to be more favorable.

—Mrs. L. W. Gerringer and children spent the last weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver, in Kernersville. Since the death of Dr. Gerringer last summer, Mrs. Gerringer and the children have made their home here in Greensboro, near Calvary church. Their bravery in the face of their great loss has won the admiration of all who have known them.

How Long Should the Sermon Be?

There is a great deal said these days about the length of sermons, some taking the position that fifteen-minute sermons are long enough. It appears to us that it is not wise to try to lay down a hard and fast rule. William Jennings Bryan could speak for two hours and people never thought of tiring, while someone else might speak for ten minutes and it would seem like an hour. A great many people attribute the greatness of preachers to the fact that they preach short sermons; however, there is danger of erring greatly there. The mental habits of the man, his natural talents, his grasp of spiritual principles, his way of stating thing, have more to do with the greatness of his sermon than the mere length of it. The most of the preachers of our day preached short sermons when they first began to preach, many times because they ran out of anything to say, but not all of them, if any were called great preachers.

Please Boil It Down

We have just about enough material on hand for two papers this week. In fact, so much type has been set that the supply of metal has run low. What shall we do about it? One thing is very evident; namely, reporters will have to boil their reports down, or we will have to do it here. We wish we could print everything just as it comes in, but when the forms are full, they will hold no more. Boil it down. Leave out non-essential things. Give us the important things.

Articles Carried Over

In order that other articles might appear in the HERALD, a number of short articles by the editor have been carried over from week to week. In fact, we have some articles that have been carried over so long that the type is beginning to get dark.

"TAKE NO THOUGHT"

Three times does the Lord speak these words in Matthew 6, verses 25, 31, 34. He gives us three reasons why we should not be burdened and fretted by anxious care:

(1) Nature shows us the folly of it. The fowls of the air and the lilies of the field—the animal and the vegetable kingdoms—both rebuke our anxiety.

(2) The revelation of God forbids it. The heathen who do not know God may worry, but what Christian would be a heathen in character and practice?

(3) Our own limitations and God's providence show the folly of it. We cannot forestall tomorrow, it is not in our power to do that; it lies in God's hand and not ours, and God is our Father. Notice verse 26, "Your Heavenly Father feedeth thee"; verse 32, "Your Heavenly Father knoweth."

—Scripture Truth.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

The Mid-Year Meet

The meeting held last year proved to be such a success, we are planning another. This time it will be held during the Pastors' School at High Point College. We find that it can be held then without interfering very much with their schedule, and it will save quite a bit of gasoline for the preacher and others who are interested in this meeting.

We are setting this time, or the first week in May as the time when all the claims are to be paid for the half of the year. We can make this our objective now and be out even before that date if our people will co-operate. Already some of the churches have paid up-to-date and will only need to keep up the practice about two more months when the thing is done. We have called for the apportionment for Church Extension from all churches; have called for Annual Conference Expenses from a number of others; High Point College apportionment is called for March and April, so if the churches pay these claims and keep their pastors paid up until the second week in May, they will be on Honor Roll for that date. Also we want to have the McCulloch Memorial Fund raised by then, if possible. In the meantime, Easter will have come and gone, so that we should have money for the World Service on this account. And, too, these churches which are tithing will have still more money to add to this budget.

And then we are to have reports from many churches which have joined in the pre-Easter evangelistic campaign; these will tell us of some glorious revivals which have been held. And Dr. Pritchard will bring us the good news about the M. P. HERALD, how the rush to pay subscriptions and subsidies has not abated in all these weeks. Then will come Dr. Humphreys to tell us how the General Board of Education has given their check for $7,500 to apply on indebtedness of the N. C. Board because our conference had paid the $5,000 we set for ourselves. And finally, Dr. Dixon will tell us about his March campaign and how much better he feels with a reducing indebtedness than he does with an increasing indebtedness. That will make a full morning.

Now for the afternoon. We shall have a wonderful address on some phase of foreign missions by Bishop Kern. The Bishop spent several years in the Orient and knows first hand; he will tell us. He will be followed with a speaker on some phase of Christian Education, speaker yet to be selected. And then—the collection? No. We shall sing the Doxology and go back to our charges to try to exceed the speed limit on reaching our goals for the entire year. More anon.

Do Not Hold Your Offerings

When an offering is received for any cause of the annual conference or the general church or the woman's work, send it in to the proper treasurer at once. For all annual conference and general conference claims, the money goes to Mr. J. H. Allen, Reidsville; the money raised by the Woman's Auxiliary is to be sent to Miss Bronna Apple, Greensboro. Do not hold it; send it in as soon as raised.

Express Your Appreciation

In the McCulloch Memorial Fund it was the desire of the committee setting it up that it be not a burden upon anyone. It should be an expression of our appreciation of the forty years of unstinted service rendered by Dr. McCulloch. He certainly is worthy of this, and we should be willing to do it. It will not work a hardship upon any church to pay the amount asked of it, but if it does and the people are unwilling to do it, must do it grudgingly, then, beloved, don't do it. It is no assessment. The total is apportioned to the various churches as being what was believed they would gladly do. Shall we be proud of you? We have not yet been disappointed. Remember, it is not a legal debt, not an annual conference assessment—just a schedule of amounts to show your appreciation. That is all. Show yours by paying one hundred per cent of your apportionment.

Haw River Charge, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, Pastor

I visited Fairgrove and Midway churches; hours for the services, 10 and 11:30. Had good congregations at both places. It is a little hard to preach twice in so short a time, but no doubt the attendance is much better than it would be to shift for the afternoon.

Fairgrove church is 104 years old, being organized by Rev. Alson Gray, according to my information. The present building is the second church house there. Mr. W. W. Rankin, the father of Captain A. M. Rankin, High Point, was a charter member of this church, I am told, and it was the home church of the Captain in his boyhood and early manhood. It was also the home church of Dr. A. G. Dixon for a number of years. The building has recently been repainted on the inside and other noticable improvements on the outside also made since my last visit there.

Midway church was organized much later, and it came out of a Sunday school conducted by Brother John Dixon, the father of Rev. A. G. Dixon. Here is one of the most splendid of our rural church buildings, and has in its membership some of the most substantial people in Rockingham county.

Pastor Trollinger is now serving his seventh year on this charge, and the work appears to be moving along most splendidly. Brother Trollinger is proving the value of the church bulletin in the rural church. Last Sunday the order of service was in the bulletin, and was carried out without the announcement of a hymn. Offering was taken for the Annual Conference budget; i. e., all the items in the budget; not the entire amount was received, but the pastor was gratified with the offerings and expects the balance to be raised easily.

I recommend this method he is using of informing the membership of the needs of each item and then giving an opportunity by the distribution of envelopes previous to the Sunday the offering is being taken so that the contributor may have the privilege of designating the item they desire the gift to go to. Here is a sample sheet which is being used; it was read at a service devoted to the claims. Any pastor might do this with profit where his congregation seems to be uninterested in the work of the denomination:

THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE EXPENSE

Rev. Lawrence C. Little, D.D., Professor of Religious Education in Western Maryland College, once said: "Our people do not like the Budget because they can not budge it, and they refuse to try to budge it, because they do not understand what it is all about." That statement is largely true, especially where the pastor and official board have failed to educate the people along this line.

While all our people may not understand these things, we are persuaded that the majority of the members of our local church do know more or less about the conference program. For the benefit of any who may not know, a brief statement would be in order.

The Annual Conference Expense is as follows: President's salary, $2,250; President's office and traveling expense, $500; Secretary's salary, $100; Treasurer's salary, $100; Conference page in M. P. HERALD, $200; President's parsonage, $300; Statistician, $25; Publicity Agent, $25; incidentals, $150; all of which total less than $4,000, to be paid by a membership of more than 30,000. When this expense account is compared with other denominations, and with our own Maryland Conference, we find them to be at a minimum.

With such a low cost in our denominational overhead, we should bestir ourselves to such an activity that it would be impossible for the Annual Conference to fail in meeting these items of expense.

There could be no deficit in conference finances if every member would do his or her best, and not be afraid to go beyond a mere per capita basis of contribution.

Christ expects, and demands, not our BIT, but our BEST. Less than our best is not enough.

Plan of Appointments

NOTES ON PREACHING

By P. E. LINDLEY

The Order of Worship

The sixth chapter of Isaiah has been described as an ideal pattern of worship. The four stages in the prophet's experience in the temple are elements essential to and characteristic of all true worship.

First, there was the conscious realization of the presence of God. Isaiah saw the Lord! Having thus met the Eternal One, the prophet naturally felt his own mean and undone condition. This disturbing sense of contrast is the second step in worship. At this point an angel with a live coal from off the altar touched Isaiah's lips and announced the forgiveness of his sins. Reconciliation had come; the soul had come into harmony with God. This was the third element of the worship experience. Then the prophet heard the voice of duty. He yielded himself to service, saying, "Here am I, send me." This was commitment, the crowning act of all true worship.

In actual experience, of course, the four elements described above are usually so well blended that they cannot easily be located and distinguished. They are present but difficult to isolate. But any good worship program to be of the highest order must help the individual to achieve these stages of religious experience. In fact, the degree to which it does so function marks it to that extent a successful service.

It follows, therefore, that the very order of the service itself is important. Worship programs should be planned with a view toward the realization of these essential experiences of the process. Many churches are revising and experimenting with the form of the services with gratifying results. I have observed a good deal of this type of reorganization and am venturing to suggest an outline of worship with certain modifications which, I believe, will be found helpful. The changes and additions I am recommending have already been tried in local churches. Much of this plan is being used in High Point, First church, at the present time. There is nothing final nor authoritative about the suggestions except that, having tried them out, I know they will work, and perhaps this is after all a rather good test.

Here is a suggested order of worship:

The Prelude. Good dignified instrumental music. Not too loud. May be concluded with a stanza or two of some familiar hymn written in the same key as the main selection.

Call to Worship. This is read or pronounced by the minister. To be rather slow and distinct. Need not use the same statement every Sunday morning. There are plenty of good "calls" in the Scriptures, besides the pastor may occasionally prepare his own copy.

Song, "Holy, Holy, Holy." One stanza only. Congregation stands when chord is sounded and unites in singing this opening hymn. Every worshiper should have the words memorized.

The Invocation. When this first stanza is finished, the minister may lift his hands in attitude of prayer while the organ or piano tones down and continues to play the last half of the stanza again softly. At the conclusion of this the

PLAYING SCHOOL

"Hurry up, Sam, it's your turn to be teacher this afternoon!" called Selma.

"Everybody take seats," answered Sam rather breathlessly as he ran up. "Sorry the teacher's late, but it couldn't be helped. Is everybody here?" he continued.

"All right, then," said Sam solemnly, facing his eager scholars. "On account of your bad spelling we'll start with our spelling lesson. I hope you children have put proper time on your lessons and haven't wasted it skating and scampering around. Martha, stand up and spell 'frozen water' but use only three letters."

"I can't do that; 'water' by itself has five letters."

"That's a zero for Martha for not knowing an easy little word. Marion, let's hear from you."

"Perfectly simple. I-c-e, frozen water," Marion answered quickly.

"Bobby, spell 'black fluid' with three letters," requested the teacher.

"Plenty old, I-n-k," said Bobby with a deep bow.

"Now, Teacher, let me ask you a question," requested Marvin. "What's the longest word in the dictionary?"

"I'll tell him that," Shirley offered, anxious to display her knowledge. "The longest word in the dictionary is 'smiles' because there's a mile between the first and last letters."

"Our spelling lesson time is up. I'll try you on 'rithmetic. Listen closely and do as I say and I'll tell you your answers without knowing what number you start with. Your teacher is really a bit of a magician," announced Sam, the teacher, proudly. "Here's the problem. Think of a number."

"It's thought of," giggled Patsy, "mine's six."

"Mine's ten"; "mine's three"; "mine's eight." The children all took different numbers.

"Dont tell me your numbers, do as I say," commanded Sam. "Multiply your number by three; then add one to what you have; again multiply by three; now add the first number you thought of. Has everyone finished? All of the answers end with three and begin with the number you thought of first. Is that clear?"

"Pretty smart," admitted Jimmy; "now I'll tell one. Take a number; double it; add four; divide by two; take away the number you thought of first; your answer is two."

"Your answer will always be half of what you add," explained Jane.

"You get me too dizzy with your numbers," said Sam. "We'll do something less tiring. We'll have an English poetry lesson. Nancy, you're shy and ever ready; arise and recite."

Nancy stood up, and bowing slightly, said:

"Willie tied the baby's ear
Firmly to the chandelier.
Baby chuckled, full of glee—
'Twas his ear of corn, you see!"

The children clapped heartily. Then Helen added another verse:

"Willie took the baby's tongue,
Round and round the room he swung,
Baby seemed to like it, though—
'Twas his wagon-tongue, you know."

"Good, very good," commended the teacher. "I'll now declare a recess to last until tomorrow afternoon when Miss Marion will be the beloved teacher. Study the following questions for tomorrow's geography: 'If it turns cold, what will Dela-ware?' 'In case of a flood, where will Mary-land?' "

pastor leads a brief, appropriate prayer. It is fine for the choir to sing a response at the close of this invocation. If this is not convenient, the minister will just close the prayer in the usual manner, and the congregation is seated.

A Hymn. To be selected with care. Ordinarily the entire hymn should be sung. Congregation remains seated for this song.

Responsive Reading. Congregation standing.

Gloria Patri. This fine bit of ritual should be memorized and enjoyed by every member of the group.

Scripture Lesson.

The Morning Prayer. Here is a splendid opportunity to reach for the elements of true worship, especially the second and third stages. There is a fine opening for a musical meditation between the reading of the Scripture and the prayer. By having an understanding with the musician the minister may bow at the completion of the reading and allow soft music to play for a moment while the worshipers are meditating on the lesson just read. This is very impressive. It also gives a fine spirit in which to start the prayer. Try it.

Another Hymn. Always select with a purpose.

Announcements. Be brief.

The Offering. Let organ or piano play during the item. As the ushers bring forward the offering, have the congregation stand and sing, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." This finished, the pastor may offer a brief prayer.

The Sermon. Close sermon with prayer.

Musical Meditation. Pause while the organ plays some beautiful, meditative tune already selected by the minister. This period of stillness allows the good impressions of the sermon to sink deeper. It is unfair, discourteous and poor psychology to make for the door just as soon as the last word of the sermon leaves the preacher's mouth. A reverent pause is highly in order.

Closing Hymn.

Benediction. Pronounced by the pastor, choir singing the Amen. The minister should not use the same benediction every time.

The Postlude. Instrumental music of good, substantial quality. Should not be jazzy nor too loud.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Hammer has asked me to correct an error in her message of last week. She asks that the payment of next year's budget for the college be made by April 18. We are hopeful, however, that it may be completed by April 10.

The Purpose

If $5,000 can be raised in North Carolina by May 1, the Board of Christian Education will give the college $7,500. The auxiliaries are asked to help secure the $5,000.

The Plan

The plan is for every auxiliary to pay its budget for this year by March 31, when the books close. Then provide for the college assessment for next year by April 10. Send this money to Asheboro to the Branch meeting and on April 10 at the night session present the money at a special service planned for this purpose. This will count on next year and will be one item out of the way early.

The Pressure

The time is short and the need great. But things done under high pressure usually bring results. Let local auxiliary workers be very active.

MRS. PAUL S. KENNETT, Chairman,
High Point College Campaign.

HOW MANY OF YOUR FAMILIES TAKE THE HERALD?

Fifty-three of the families of Calvary church are now on the mailing list of the Herald. We are glad to welcome several new ones this week as well as to have some continue with us who have already been taking the paper. The editor suggests to his people who are not taking it that they start with a trial subscription of three or six months, and if they do not like it when the time is out they can drop it. We are not afraid to make the challenge, as most people want to keep on taking it once they form the habit of reading it.

SOME CONTRIBUTIONS OF EDUCATION TO THE STATE

That education contributes to the general betterment of society, few people will deny. Its contribution to each succeeding generation makes it indispensable to continued progress. Men of yesterday as well as today give witness to its value.

The great British statesman and political writer of the 18th century, Edmund Burke, said: "Education is the chief defense of the nations." Lack of understanding breeds suspicion, and suspicion strife. Understanding begets friendship, and friendship national and international harmony.

Our various states do have departments of education, and a large part of the revenue of these units is used for school purposes. The federal government, on the other hand, which has the direct responsibility of national defense, when it comes to military matters, does not have an educational department on a parity with the major departments of the government, and it spends little, comparatively speaking, for educational purposes. Hundreds of millions of dollars are spent annually by the army and navy departments for instruments of death in the name of national defense. If Mr. Burke is correct, Uncle Sam seems to have the cart before the horse.

With a strong federal department of education, backed with federal moneys in proportion as other major departments, and operating on the North Carolina plan, guaranteeing equal educational opportunity to the various subdivisions, large or small, weak or strong, supplementing the efforts of these units according to need will ultimately give us an educational system which will be indeed a national defense.

In his appraisal of the value of education to the state, the Scotch reformer and historian, John Knox, writes: "Every scholar is something added to the riches of the commonwealth."

He is not mercenary in his ideas, he is not necessarily thinking of dollars and cents, though recent studies have shown that the life earnings of the group is in proportion to its educational attainments, and the higher the education the greater the earnings. The reformer has in mind value of more permanency than money. The wealth which the scholar adds to the state is wrought out problems which removes obstacles before the feet of his fellows, that they may get an earlier start and maybe more steady progress upon life's highway. This brings the additional contribution of contentment and peace. A fuller life is had, a greater service rendered.

Another European links the state's progress with education. The German man of letters, Humboldt, bears testimony in these words: "Whatever you would put into the state you must first put into the school."

If we would have a citizenship of strong bodies, clean minds, and unswerving devotion to high ideals, we must see to it that the men and women employed in the classroom, whether in the elementary school or institutions of higher learning, set the examples, and follow a curriculum which hews to the mark of the high purpose.

The teacher who practices the base things of life, or who treats lightly the ideals which have anchored the souls of men through the various vicissitudes of life, cannot be expected to inspire the heart of the pupil to pure living and fervency in devotion to the "faith of our fathers." The curriculum built around the idea of chance, rather than order and divine intelligence, will offer little encouragement to spiritual conquests.

We see then that there is a twofold obligation in this matter of education. Not only that educational opportunities are given the youth, but that the right kind of education is offered them.

Theodore Roosevelt said: "To educate a man in mind and not in morals is to educate a menace to society."

I will discuss in next week's issue of the Herald the kind of education most desirable.

Looking to March

The bad weather and, in many cases, bad roads, with the resultant small attendance at many Sunday school sessions have caused the offerings for the Home to be very small for January and February. Because of that and because we are still behind, we are asking ALL Sunday schools to make an offering, and all regular contributing Sunday schools to double their regular offering during March. This will help wonderfully. We have received many responses promising to do this. And we believe there will be a generous response to this request. If bad weather comes in March and your regular Sunday for the Children's Home offerings falls upon such a Sunday, please give us another chance. Thank you and God bless you.

CONFERENCE COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

T. J. WHITEHEAD, President
Burlington, N. C., R. 4

CHURCH MUSIC

What Young People's Choirs Can Do Correct Music

Permit us to preface this brief article with a touch upon the old, old subject of wholesome church music. Every now and then we are the victims of congregations or choirs singing songs (supposedly "religious" hymns), the words or music, or both of which are fit for the musical comedy or dance hall. They are sung with a blatant, nasal sound and an intoxicating, syncopated rhythm that creates a tingling sensation even in Methodist toes.

For the sake of Christ and His kingdom, pastors, do not countenance it! For the sake of the fine art of church music, choir directors and music leaders, discourage it! For the sake of the deepening and enrichment of the spiritual life of Christians, particularly children and young people, church leaders, prevent it! Burn your cheap, trashy song books if you can't dispose of them otherwise. The original cost of them is high, and they grow more expensive the longer you keep and use them; for wrong emotions and attitudes are engendered that require time, energy and expense to correct.

Activities

Young people's choirs can help considerably to correct this transgression against pure, wholesome worship and properly motivated music. They can select the best hymns from the song book in use at their church, learn them, and sing them at stated times.

They can sing special numbers during one of the Sunday services, if more than one service is held. If an older choir sings regularly, they can relieve them for a service occasionally. But if there is no other choir, it is their opportunity to establish themselves as the regular church choir.

They can give a musical entertainment, such as an old folks' concert, or a colonial costume party, for their own enjoyment, as well as for profit, if they desire to charge admission.

They can furnish special music for various meetings in the church and community.

Occasionally, they can change places with choirs of other churches in the neigborhood or at a distance.

They can sing for the county homes, hospitals, and like institutions, as well as for shut-ins among the church members or neighbors.

Information Desired

We are sending blanks to individuals to procure their opinions regarding the musical program at the Leadership Training School. Some of the questions may be found below. Interested reader, will you not help us by sending your answers to these questions, so we may prepare a set of standards for the choirs participating? Thank you.

1. Your name and address.
2. Your church and location.
3. What connection with the choir?
4. Has your young people's choir participated in the L. T. S. musical program previously? With what advantage (s)?
5. Which system of marking do you think most satisfactory, competitive (with judges deciding the best renditions) or point system (standards set up ahead of the date and submitted to participating choirs?
6. Suggest some factors that should be included; or prepare a form.
7. If a combined chorus could be arranged, would your choir be willing to spend about 15 cents per member for music?
8. Have you any other suggestions?

Art in Religious Education

President Whitehead suggested that we might announce that if any of our church organizations would like to have a series of stereopticon pictures of famous religious paintings displayed before an audience in their churches, showing the use of art in Sunday school, Christian Endeavor and missionary work, communicate with the author of this article for information and terms. This is a Conference Council project, not a personal one.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson, N. C.

Scripture Lesson: Matt. 9:36-38; John 2:24-25.

The life and ministry of Jesus has always inspired the deepest respect and challenged the greatest thought even among his most profound critics.

Jesus came as a fulfillment of the prophecies and as God's great manifestation of love for the world. In so doing he became the perfect Savior. This is evident by at least four reasons:

1. The Perfect Life.

"The Lord must be a perfect man in order to be a perfect Savior. He was put to the test in his temptation, His conflict with Satan. There is no other instance in the Scripture giving such an extended description of the diabolical attempt of Satan to bring a soul under his dominion. He was completely vanquished by Jesus who came forth the only pure and perfect life.

2. The Perfect Love.

There are many instances in the Bible proving the love of God, who gave his son. Within the New Testament it is repeatedly expressed, the love of Christ who gave himself. It is the greatest expression of love that can be conceived.

3. The Perfect Atonement.

To save a sinful world took our Lord to the cross. "Greater love hath no man than this—that a man lay down his life for a friend." Jesus, the perfect example of friendship.

4. The Perfect Salvation.

The plan of salvation, made possible by the sacrifice of Jesus' life, can be made effective for us only by our acceptance.

"What you are speaks so loudly that I cannot hear what you say."

The soul that has experienced the depths of Jesus' religion, the personality that is colored by the attractiveness of the personality of Jesus, the character that is constructed with the elements of the character of Jesus, will reveal the virtues emphasized by the Master in the everyday mode of its conduct.

Jesus was touched by the needs of humanity and overlooked none of them in his great ministry of mercy.

Jesus possessed that insight which enabled him to determine weakness and its destiny, and capacity for good and its possibilities.

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven—and all these things will be added."

Our Christian duty as young people is to discriminate between the things of first and second importance. May this meeting help us to give diligent attention to the church that should claim the paramount affection. and all else worth will be added.

Use such hymns as: Jesus Calls Us Over the Tumult, All the Way My Savior Leads Me, Jesus Savior Pilot Me, Take My Life and Let It Be.

Let the prayer emphasis be: To "create in me a clean heart, renew a right spirit within me."

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

I have already been asked by some, "Did those things really happen that you are reporting to the paper?" Well, I am inclined to answer like one man I knew once who said to the court, "It's so because I said so," if no other proof.

This brings me to relate an incident that took place several years ago after my first visit to Florida. I saw that monster, the whale shark, that was captured off the Florida keys, just before my visit. After examining the monster, I wrote an account of it back to "Our Church Record," and made this statement, that as the infidel had made such capital out of the Jonah story, that if they would just look into this fish's mouth they would be convinced that it could swallow a man easily. If you remember up to that time there was a contention by these skeptics that no whale had ever been found with a mouth sufficiently large to swallow a man. So I related that this monster had swallowed a porpoise weighing seventeen hundred pounds just before he was caught.

Here is what happened: Some of my folks thought I should be thrown out for telling such outlandish tales. But the next year, in the summer following, Hon. A. A. Hicks, of Oxford, who was at that time one of my members at Rehobeth, Granville charge, went to Atlantic City and saw this monster on exhibition there. So he came to my rescue and offered to take my case should there be any charges preferred.

I do not think I have ever gone past the truth in any statement, for my mother taught me to despise lying when I was a child, and I have never forgotten how I was so taught. My lessons usually consisted of about from three to four feet of "peach oil," administered in long doses. Of course, that is out of fashion now. But perhaps if there were more doses like that given today there would be less deception than we are suffering from just now.

I ran across a story several years ago something like this: A group of men were talking to a man just in from the northwest, and they were talking about the reported fertility of the soil. They asked him if reports were not exaggerated. He replied: "Yes, many stories have been overdrawn, but the most remarkable experience I had while out west was the putting in of a cottonwood pump. The soil was so fertile and so deep that it took root and while we pumped water from the trunk of the tree the children had a swing in the limbs." "My!" said one of the bystanders, "Are you a real estate agent?" The man meekly replied: "No, I am a home missionary, and while my labors have not been as fruitful as I would have liked, I trust some good has been accomplished." When I reach such stories as that and tell them for my own, I am sure the editor will be ready to pull the curtain.

I am sure if the ministers of the early days had recorded all they heard, saw and endured, we, possibly of a better time, so far as improved methods of living are concerned, would appreciate our heritage much better.

On one occasion my brother came, after having a long siege of typhoid fever, to spend a few days with me while he was recuperating, and I enjoyed quite a good deal taking him back into the dark corner of Polk county. He was living in Greensboro at the time and had never experienced such things as I took him into.

Biscuits or wheat bread was not so common. Corn bread was the main thing. They baked on the fireplace in the old-time oven. The cakes were so hard and large that my brother said they built their bread instead of making it. The first morning we were there they had corn bread and rabbit. Black coffee, but I enjoyed the good water they had. At this place, the members of the home having gone to their reward years ago, they only had one knife at the table and that was worn down to the point of a dagger. It was passed around for each fellow to cut up his rabbit. But we almost needed a hammer to crack the crust of that big pone. The only thing in the way of sweets was "long sweetening." I wonder how many of the younger people know what kind that is?

REGIONAL YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTIONS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE AND CHURCH WORKERS

The Executive Committee of the Board of Christian Education, in its last session, authorized regional conventions to be held in five geographical centers of the denomination. The purpose of the conventions is to give our young people an opportunity to study the united youth program embodied in the ideal "Christian Youth Building a New World" and an opportunity for church workers and those who have responsibility in summer conference leadership training schools to attend coaching conferences for leadership training workers and young peope's counsellors. The program committee is composed of the presidents of our conference councils. This program has not yet taken definite form and will be announced later.

The conventions are to be financed by (a) pre-registration campaign, (b) council donations, (c) convention offerings and individual gifts. A 50-cent per capita registration campaign for 3,000 registrations will be launched soon. We are ready, however, to announce definite dates and places which are as follows:

East—Baltimore, Md., May 22-24, 1935.

South—High Point College, High Point, N. C., May 29-31.

Southwest—Grayson, La., June 1-4.

Midwest—Ohio Camp Grounds, Sabina, Ohio, June 12-14.

One of the outstanding features of these conventions is the fact that the program is being planned in co-operation with the Board of Missions. Thus we will present in our convention a united front. In the words of E. Stanley Jones, I feel that our rapidly developing program demands at this stage that "we must go deeper before we can go farther." We hope that these conventions will do just that for our young people and their leaders.

High Point College News

Within the last week the Purple Panther basketball team has defeated the following teams: Atlantic Christian College, by a score of 52 to 26; Wake Forest, 19 to 13; Davidson, 49 to 43. Possibly the college spirit was never higher on the campus than now. High Point now is second from the head of the list in victories of the Little Six Conference.

The past week has been a busy one for the students. Tuesday afternoon the executive committee of the Christian Endeavor Society held its monthly meeting, followed by a business meeting of the whole society. That evening, in observation of Lincoln's birthday, Prof. John Erickson, of the speech department, delivered an excellent address on Lincoln. He used blocks of marble in Lincoln's tomb to represent various phases of the emancipator's character.

Wednesday night the Modern Priscillas, those who are majoring in home economics, had a money-making Valentine party. The weather was bad, which prevented many of the day students from coming, yet most of the dormitory students were present and enjoyed the evening.

The senior class won the intramural basketball championship title from the juniors. Two weeks ago the preliminary battle was held with the freshmen and sophomores being eliminated.

Sunday afternoon Mrs. H. A. White, of the English department, had a tea at her home for the college students. The college bus provided the transportation for the dormitory students.

The varsity debating team, consisting of Wilbur Hutchens, Kermit Cloninger, Aubert Smith and Hoyt Wood, accompanied by Prof. Erickson, will leave next week for an 11-day trip. They will encounter a different college each night. They will turn homeward from Chicago.

(This came too late for last week.)

TO THOSE HANDING IN MONEY OR MATTER FOR PUBLICATION

Inasmuch as all money must go through the hands of the editor and all matter for publication must be approved by him, those who bring or send material will save time by delivering it at the home of the editor rather than to McCulloch & Swain. The editor does all of his work at his study on Brown Street. The city of Greensboro has notified us that our house has been incorrectly numbered, so we have changed the number from 804 to 808 Brown Street. The house stands in the same place with a new number on it. Brown Street is only one block in length and branches off of Asheboro Street at the 1500 block.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—Rev. G. B. Ferree filled his regular appointment at the church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. He delivered a helpful and inspiring sermon. The attendance was very good. Due to weather conditions and a lot of sickness the attendance has been small. We are hoping to see every member present for the next service.

The Young People's Missionary Society met at the church the past Sunday morning to hold the regular meeting with ten members present. In absence of the program leader, the president presided over the meeting. The president urged the members to attend more regularly and invite others who are not members.

The Woman's Auxiliary met on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Edgar Waller, with about 25 members and visitors present. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs Waller. During the business part of the meeting election of officers was held. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Edgar Waller; vice president, Mrs. J. F. Hunter; secretary, Mrs. Blaine Long; treasurer, Mrs. W. B. Spease; secretary of young people's work, Lena Hunter. During the social hour Mrs. R. J. Whitman conducted a very interesting contest, with Mrs. Blaine Long winning the prize which she graciously presented Mrs. Waller, a recent bride. Mrs. Waller was then presented a Valentine booklet containing quaint little verses directing her to places in the house, where she found many useful gifts from members of the society. The different members there wrote a menu in a booklet which was also presented to the bride. The hostess, assisted by Jewell Long and Frances Whitman, served a delicious salad course. REPORTER.

Burlington, First.—Much enthusiasm and interest is being manifested in the three-month tithing campaign which will begin in March. God's word is true and if we prove Him as we are told to in Malachi 3:7-12, we believe that we will be greatly blessed both financially and spiritually.

Our Sunday school attendance last Sunday was 320. Our pastor gave us two good sermons. We feel that we are very fortunate in having Dr. Paschall and his family with us for another year. Our pastor's sermons are filled with spiritual food. His message probes the heart and makes one stop and ask himself if his life is a channel through which God works.

We were made sad by the news of the death of one of our charter members, Mr. Monroe Thompson, who was buried in Reidsville on February 17. Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

The Philathea banquet was held in the hut last Thursday night. Eighty-nine ladies were present. Mrs. M. A. Coble, the Philathea teacher, presented the speaker, Mrs. Clyde Auman. Mrs. Auman gave a very inspiring message on Christ as the foundation for a successful and happy life. Other numbers on the program were readings by Mrs. Walter Sykes and special music by Mrs. H. W. Wade and Mrs. Herbert Coble.

The Woman's Auxiliary was glad to have Dr. J. E. Pritchard, a former pastor, to discuss the study book on Monday night.

The Baracas are planning to have a large attendance and a good program on Baraca Day, March 3.

Flint Ridge, Liberty Charge.—Rev. Fred R. Love, our pastor, filled his appointment Sunday, assisted by Mr. Bristoe, who did the preaching.

Mr. Love has just recovered from an attack of "flu." We didn't have as large attendance as we sometimes do, on account of sickness.

We are very glad to say that we are repairing our church. We have covered it and made Sunday school rooms and are planning to paint it soon.

The women made a name quilt and the men planted an acre of corn in order to repair our church.

We are very sorry to hear of Mr. John W. Curtis' sickness. Wishing him a speedy recovery. MISS MAE WICKER, Reporter.

Lincolnton.—We moved to this charge the week following the adjournment of the Annual Conference. As there is no parsonage on this charge, we had Bro. Cranford, the former pastor, to secure for us the house out of which he was moving, and as no one knew just when we were to move, we were on the groends several days before many of the church knew we were there. I had nothing to do with assignment to this charge, I just left it up to the stationing committee to give me a place to work. But I thought the Lincolnton charge was a station. Imagine my surprise to find it a three appointment charge, Lincolnton, Fairfield, and Bessemer City. We are giving Lincolnton and Bessemer City each one service a Sunday, we go to Fairfield in the afternoon. Lincolnton has a very nice brick building with Sunday school rooms added. It has been a little hard to adjust ourselves to conditions here. But the people are responding to our program nicely, and we are slowly but surely getting organized. We have some unusual features here that are truly an inspiration. We have at Lincolnton the best Senday school in the county. About 200 on roll. Our offering seldom ever comes under $15. Last Sunday it was nearly $23. We have a junior and a senior C. E. society, both doing splendid work. The young married people are in with the boys and girls in the seniors. All are happy and working hard. We have the finest lot of young people at Lincolnton that I have had the privilege of working with in many years. We have from eight to ten boys in our midweek prayer meeting every week. They are from 14 to 20 years of age. They will lead in prayer, or lead the prayer meeting if called on. We organized a Ladies' Aid Society at Lincolnton last week, organizing one at Bessemer City this week. We organized a Boy Scout troop two weeks ago at Bessemer City. We also have a junior and senior C. E. Society at that place doing fine work. The co-operation at Bessemer City is all I can ask for, and the congregation is growing rapidly. The Sunday school is also growing. They have revived the midweek prayer meeting recently and it is going to do good. The Bessemer City folks gave us a pantry shower last week. It was a profound secret till they got ready to load it in my car.

The C. E. Society at Lincolnton gave us a nice rocking chair for a Christmas present, and Bro. McKinley Nance and his good wife gave us a beautiful end table. Bro. S. P. Gordon, chairman of our board of stewards, gave us a ton of coal; for all of this we are profoundly grateful.

We got off to a bad start with our paper and a reporter at the first of the year due to the fact that we had to start at the beginning. We could only find two or three subscribers to the paper on the charge, and no reporter. We now have 20 copies of the paper coming to Lincolnton, and 15 to Bessemer City, and some very efficient reporters in the persons of Mrs. Lewis and her assistant, Mrs. Lawrence Keener, at Lincolnton, and Mrs. Lucy Bracket, at Bessemer City, and Miss Agnes Proctor, at Fairfield.

In our first quarterly conference we accepted the Annual Conference budget as assessed, but did not accept the General Conference budget in full. Economical conditions here are some better and we have a very fair outlook for a good year.

Our attendance has been very good at all services this bad winter weather, but now that spring is here we want to increase our attendance at all services. Be here next Sunday. The church needs you and you need the church. REPORTER.

Mt. Hermon Church, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Sunday, February 3, our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, brought to us an interesting sermon on "The Christian and Literature." Scripture taken from the 12th chapter of Ecclesiastes and part of the 12th verse as the text, "Of making many books there is no end."

Sunday, February 17, our message from our pastor was taken from the 25th chapter of Matthew, the parable of the virgins, using "Empty Lamps" as the theme.

During this month Mr. Whitehead has made a special effort to get more subscriptions to the M. P. Herald. Several new subscriptions have been added. The stewardship card for the three months' tithing were signed by some. The McCulloch Memorial Fund was presented by the pastor, and right much of our apportionment was raised. We hope to be able to get it all soon.

The Young People's Day program was carried out by the pastor in the month of January with the exception of the play. This little play was given the second Sunday morning in this month immediately after Sunday school. The play was under the direction of Miss Truth Isley. It was well given and was enjoyed by all.

Next Sunday evening, February 24, at 7:30 the Ladies' Auxiliary will hold the semi-annual thank-offering service. Rev. H. L. Isley, whose home is in our community and is a faithful member of our church, is to be the speaker for the occasion. We hope many will be out for the fine message that we feel sure he will have for us. Our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, will also assist.

The auxiliary will hold the regular monthly meeting with Misses Flossie and Lola Thompson Friday evening, February 22, at 7 o'clock.

Mt. Carmel, Lexington.—Rev. Mr. Isley filled his appointment Sunday afternoon with an inspiring sermon to a large congregation.

The Sunday school is holding up well; the attendance has increased for the past few weeks. The Adult Class was very fortunate in having Mr. Phonse Bean, of First church, Lexington, with them Sunday afternoon to teach their class. Mr. Bean proved himself a very efficient teacher.

The auxiliary met immediately after preaching service with 15 active members present. Mrs. Hattie Isley presided over the meeting. Effie Mae Swicegood conducted the devotionals. The ladies had served a chicken pie and fried chicken dinner in Lexington the previous Saturday and the treasurer reported $42.08 received from the sales, which will be used for improvements in the church. It was decided to make a quilt for the next way of raising money.

We are very glad to report that Mr. J. G. Tussey is improving after being sick for the past month. Also Mr. John Rowe, who has been shut in with a broken leg is able to be up again. They are both very active members of Mt. Carmel.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Hedrick was laid to rest at Mt. Carmel February 4. Rev. Mr. Isley conducted the funeral at the home of the parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hedrick.

Graham.—Our church work is going along nicely. Attendance at all services has been very good.

Several plans were discussed for work to be done this year. Mrs. Winifred Martin was winner in a contest held during the social hour. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Clark, served delicious ice cream and cake. The March meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Winifred Martin.

We are looking forward to the visit of the High Point College choir. Our church and community are fortunate in having the opportunity of hearing this choir. Everyone is invited to hear their concert next Sunday at 4 o'clock at Graham M. P. church.

Mrs. Mary Steele, who has been quite ill due to an injury received from a fall, is improving. Mrs. Steele is now making her home in Greensboro.

Mrs. H. M. Rogers has been confined to her home several days because of illness.

Death has again visited our membership. This time Mrs. Mattie L. Fuller was taken. She was the wife of Mr. Lee Fuller. Funeral services were conducted at our church by the pastor Saturday afternoon, February 2. The church was filled for the services. Our prayers and sympathy go to Mr. Fuller and his children.

We have also shared the recent sadness of Miss Thelma Clapp and Mr. C. F. Clapp in the passing of their sister, Mrs. Bessie Clapp. They have our utmost sympathy.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—"No souls are saved after the first fifteen minutes," a deacon is reputed to have advised a young pastor, new to his charge. Whether or not one or more members of the board of stewards of the First Methodist Protestant church let it drop that they are in accord with that statement, Rev. J. Clay Madison, young and spiritually, vigorous leader of the Methodist flock, apparently believes that sermons, like economic principles, reach a point of diminishing returns when they go beyond very reasonable lengths. Nor crisp, nor terse, nor hurried, this young divine yet drives straight at his themes with apt illustrations and sententious utterances. There is no tedium, no befogging with beautiful yet meaningless figures of speech, no trying to find out direction by indirection. His hearers come away, not tired with the nausea of too much, but fresh with the desire for more.

The above is the first paragraph of a half column comment about the preacher and the morning sermon of February 17 at First church in High Point's daily paper by Mr. M. L. Patrick, English teacher in the city high school, in his column, "Talking Out of School."

The congregations continue to almost fill the church. On January 31 Mr. J. A. Gray, a faithful and devoted member of this church, and grandson of the Rev. Alson Gray, passed from the here and now to the Beyond and everlasting. The sympathy of the congregation and a large circle of friends goes out to the bereaved widow and four sons, the sister, brother and nephew.

Dr. J. E. Pritchard reviewed in a most interesting way the home land study book, "Orientals in American Life," for the women of the church on February 4.

The Laymen's Fellowship meeting on February 11 was a unique and interesting meeting. Guests included ministerial and lay representatives from all the M. P. churches in High Point. During the meeting and after the delicious chicken supper served by the women, the future of the denomination in the city was discussed and plans for the new Rankin Memorial to succeed the old English Street church were presented. The selection of the name Rankin Memorial honors Capt.

A. M. Rankin, a charter member of First church and probably its most widely known member. Those who attended the meeting went home with a new vision of the tasks of our church and a new sense of responsibility to those tasks relative to High Point College and the Children's Home.

We were pleased to receive four new members into our church fellowship on February 17, as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Vernon McLeod, 410 Montlieu Avenue; Miss Tressie Caudle, 208 Allred Street, and Miss Myrtle Cates, 305 Phillips Street.

At the February Woman's Auxiliary the new officers were elected. Mrs. C. C. Robbins, one of our most efficient and capable women, is the newly elected president, succeeding Mrs. J. C. Whitesell, who has served most effectively for two years.

The semi-annual thank-offering service was held at the regular morning service February 24. There was no publicity given the occasion beyond the announcement at auxiliary that the service would be held, and in view of that fact the small offering, taken before even the missionary sermon, is not worthy of mention in this report, as the evidence is it is far from complete.

In addition to the Intermediate C. E. Society, which has been functioning for several months, a young people's group was recently organized and seems to be gaining momentum.

Speakers from other churches are rendering us valuable assistance at frequent intervals. Mr. Thomas Dodamead, an artist of High Point who illustrates his messages in beautiful colors, spoke to the Junior church last Sunday morning, and the Rev. Liston Pope, associate pastor of Wesley Memorial M. E. Church, South, addressed the Young People's C. E. in their evening meeting.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—Our church work has been moving on in the usual satisfactory manner. The reason for our silence in this column is not a lack of interest but just a matter of wishing the editor well by putting less work on him. The fact that they have not had space for all submitted material lately (and we know of it because their statement in the Herald plainly noted same) is sufficient hint for some correspondent to be more brief with words.

Our pastor brought a fine message yesterday morning. His subject was "Will a Man Rob God?" At this service the Hemp quartet rendered three special selections. Members of the quartet are Lacy Chisolm, first tenor; V. T. Crisco, baritone; Herman C. Garner, second tenor; A. H. Trotter, bass.

Last night at 7:30 we held our annual thank-offering service in the Woman's Auxiliary work. There was special music—a violin-flute duet by Jewell and Irish Welch with Doris Gallimore accompanying at the piano. Mrs. R. M. Andrews was the speaker for this occasion and her address was most interesting and enjoyed by all. Following Mrs. Andrews' address was an interesting reading by Lake Montgomery. The Ladies' Aid keeps active. They did another good deed last week by having a telephone installed in the parsonage. The number of our pastor's telephone is 41465.

There were only 11 absences yesterday in Sunday school. We are glad to report this. Now wouldn't it be very fine if we could have 100 per cent attendance one day soon?

Mrs. Burley Huff, who underwent an operation in Burrus Memorial Hospital recently, was able to be moved to her home on Turner Street last week.

If the present plans work out satisfactorily, the actual work will begin on the church hut the first week in March.

Asheboro.—The second Sunday in February was set apart as McCulloch Memorial Day in our church. After the service was opened by the pastor, Dr. Taylor, the meeting was turned over to the committee composed of J. D. Ross, W. L. Ward and W. F. Redding, Jr. Talks were made by Rev. W. F. McDowell, Dr. S. W. Taylor, W. L. Ward, and the obituary of Dr McCulloch was read by Earl C. Bulla, after which 25 children marched into the church, each carrying a letter. When they took their places in front of the altar it was seen that the letters spelled "The McCulloch Memorial Fund." The committee then asked for pledges to raise our quota of $150; this was done in a very few minutes. Donations were made in memory of deceased ministers, members of our church and prominent laymen, as follows: Dr. W. E. Swain, Dr. C. L. Whitaker, Rev. W. A. Bunch, Rev. Randolph Lowdermilk, Rev. L. W. Gerringer, Rev. J. H. Stowe, Rev. C. A. Cecil, Rev. W. C. Hammer, Rev. T. J. Ogburn, Dr. T. T. Ferree, Bro. J. A. Auman, Mrs. J. M. Hancock and Mrs. R. R. Ross.

The first Sunday in February was observed as Young People's Day The sermon of the morning was delivered by Rev. N. M. Harrison.

In the evening the play "This War," a protest against militarism, was well rendered and impressive. Mrs. Thomas Redding directed the play.

All departments of our church have been very active recently. The Sunday school attendance has been increasing rapidly; the largest enrollment was last Sunday, 441, with an offering of $30. Some of the classes have had on a contest for new members. The Young Men's Class, taught by Robert T. Floyd, reached the high mark of 126 last Sunday morning. A picture of this fine group was made in front of the church. The Women's Bible Class, taught by Mrs. D. A. Henley, is also making a splendid attendance record. They have reached 46 and are still working.

We have also been having good attendance in the church services. Our pastor, Dr. S. W. Taylor, has been giving us helpful sermons on "The Secret of Joy in Churchgoing," "Our Children in the Church Services," "The Stewardship of Time and of Talent," and other such subjects.

We have recently received into church membership Miss Katie Belle Cagle, Mrs. Claude Winningham and Miss Montie Carter. Each of these has been a good worker in the church for some time and we are indeed glad to have them unite with us in membership.

On Friday evening, February 1, a "pot luck" supper was enjoyed by the Woman's Auxiliary. Following this, Miss Enolia Presnell gave a review of the study book, "Orientals in American Life," by Albert W. Palmer.

We are looking forward to the Branch meeting which will be in our church April 10 and 11.

On Sunday evening, the 17th, our February thank-offering service was held with Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., thank-offering secretary, in charge. Mrs. J. T. Bowman, of Denton, who is secretary of spiritual life of the North Carolina Branch, was our speaker for the evening. Her message was most interesting, bringing to us the history and latest news of each of our mission stations. Special music was given and a good offering received with the candlelighting service. In the February Auxiliary meeting Mrs. J. T. Pugh was reelected president, with Miss Esther Ross and Mrs. Robert T. Floyd, vice presidents; Mrs. Thomas Redding, recording secretary; Mrs. Earl Henley, assistant; Mrs. S. W. Taylor, corresponding secretary; Mrs. L. F. Ross, treasurer, and Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., auditor. These will be installed at the March meeting.

We are glad to report Mrs. L. D. Burkhead out again after a siege of influenza. Mrs. Burkhead is Pastor's Aid secretary. Miss Louise Swaim, director of the choir, is somewhat improved after several days of illness.

Haw River, Glen Raven.—Rev. J. P. Pegg filled his regular appointment here Sunday. He delivered a splendid sermon at the morning service on "You Are Bought With a Price." Communion service was observed after the sermon.

Our Sunday school is taking on new life since a change in the weather has occurred. We hope to have our regular number back in the Sunday school soon. Instead of having our weekly prayer service at the church, we have cottage prayer service with good results. On next Wednesday night we will meet with Mrs. J. K. Sykes. Charlie Coble is leader.

On Thursday, February 14, our church received news of the death of Mr. J. M. Stone, of Greensboro. For about ten years he and Mrs. Stone were faithful members of our church in Haw River. They did great service for this church, and it will be long remembered. We feel that our loss as a church is his eternal gain. Our church extends the deepest sympathy to Mrs. Stone and family.

Moriah.—This report should have been sent in last week but since you received your last edition of the Herald, we at Moriah have had the pleasure of hearing another fine sermon by Rev. O. L. Easter, pastor of Brown Summit. Mr. Easter brings us these messages each first and fourth Sundays of the month.

The Ladies' Auxiliary had charge of services Sunday morning, February 17. Mrs. D. S. Coltrane was speaker of the hour. Mrs. Coltrane reviewed the origin and history of the Ladies' Missionary organization, told of its works at home and abroad, and set forth some of the most pressing needs of the society today. Mrs. Coltrane also gave us some humorous anecdotes from her personal experiences and those of her friends and acquaintances.

We are glad to report that our Sunday school attendance and collections are still holding to a good average. We had several visitors last Sunday and about 160 persons present for 11 o'clock services.

For some time the water supply at the parsonage has been a problem. We hope it has now been solved by the installation of an electric pump and storage tank.

Next Sunday morning Dr. A. G. Dixon, superintendent of the Children's Home at High Point, will preach for us. We are looking forward to this visit with interest, and feel sure we shall receive something fine and constructive from Dr. Dixon. Come and be with us next Sunday, March 3, at 11 o'clock a. m.

REPORTER.

Friendship-Porter.—Our work here is still moving on with increased interest, as evidenced by increased congregations and expressions of appreciation. A beautiful quilt was presented to Mrs. D. W. Sides by her class as an expression of their appreciation of her splendid work as a teacher. She is one of the best we have known. It was presented in a very beautiful and touching way by Aunt Bedy Sides. The pastor has not only been showered with meats and eats, but mercilessly pounded by the good people of Friendship.

We are glad to have Sister Charley Harkey back at home again since having undergone a major operation at Yadkin Hospital. We have missed the inspiration of her presence greatly in our services.

Bro. Jonah Hurlarker and Uncle Philmore Hatley, our shut-ins, do not improve. Sister J. H. Harkey remains seriously ill.

To the many who inquire, Mrs. Reed is gradually improving. We are truly grateful to the people of this charge and to Midland charge for their kindly visits and helpful sympathy expressed to us in our time of need.

W. D. REED.

Gibsonville.—Rev. R. C. Stubbins filled his appointment Sunday evening at 7 o'clock to a large congregation, there being several visitors present. His subject was "Temperate in All Things." Each Sunday he brings to us wonderful messages that make each and everyone of us want to do greater and better things for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of Heaven. We are glad to report that Mrs. Stubbins is able to be out again after being confined to her home with influenza. We missed her because she too is giving of her best. Our Sunday school is going along nicely under the efficient management of our superintendent, Mr. F. R. Owen. Our choir, too, under the direction of Miss Rebecca Lowe, with Mrs. F. R. Owen pianist. The Woman's Auxiliary held their February meeting Wednesday evening with Miss Georgia Clapp at her home on Eugene Street. Mrs. Ernest Anderson led the devotional, reading for the Scripture lesson part of the 10th chapter of St. Luke.

"Deep in Sacrifice" was the theme. She concluded by reciting a poem, "The Message of Hope." Officers for the new year were elected. Mrs. D. M. Davidson was re-elected president, Mrs. P. L. Kivette was elected vice president, Mrs. F. G. Hammer secretary, and Miss Georgia Clapp was re-elected treasurer. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Stubbins. The March meeting will be held with Mrs. F. R. Owen.

I want to say that we welcome Mr. and Mrs. Robbins into our church. They come to us from Randleman M. P. church. Mr. Robbins is a teacher here in our high school.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—Today we had with us two of our superannuates, Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk and Rev. G. F. Milloway. We were very glad to have Rev. Mr. Milloway preach to us, it being his first sermon to us since his regular work here several years ago. We were very glad to welcome many visitors, including several members from Mt. Pleasant church.

We were also very glad to receive Mrs. J. T. Neece as a member of our church. Although Mrs. Neece has been a faithful attendant here, she had not moved her membership from Mt. Pleasant until today.

We were very sorry that Mrs. Braxton and Mrs. R. W. Utley were confined to their homes due to colds. We hope that they will be able to be with us in the near future.

H. R. B.

Union Chapel, Granville.—We have been delighted with the attendance and interest shown in our church since the new year. Mr. Spencer brought a most inspiring sermon Sunday morning, taken from Matthew 5:13-14, "Ye are the salt of the earth. Ye are the light of the world."

The Sunday school has also improved considerably under the leadership of our new superintendent, Mr. R. M. Edwards.

Lawyer Henry T. Powell spoke briefly on the McCulloch Memorial Fund Sunday and asked our church for only $28 while it raised $31.30 in a short while.

The regular February meeting of the Young People's Circle of missionary work will meet Sunday morning, March 3, after Sunday school, since the leader was absent on the Sunday it was supposed to have been held.

The Missionary Auxiliary will meet with the president, Mrs. C. L. Spencer, on Friday night, March 8. All members are urged to be present.

MRS. E. C. HUFF, Reporter.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—On account of sickness in the home of the reporter, I have been asked to write a report from this church. Everything is moving along nicely at this place. Preaching on the second and fourth Sundays at 11 a. m. Sunday school every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The young people have singing every Sunday night.

R. M. Andrews, D. D., preached at this church and Pine Hill the second Sunday. Rev. E. A. Bingham, pastor, gave us another fine message the fourth Sunday. His messages are all fine and so plain a child can understand. This is his fifth year with us and we have received many fine messages from God through him.

We were glad to have as visitors to worship with us the fourth Sunday Mr. Ogburn Surratt and little daughter, Jessie May, of High Point, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Surratt, of Thomasville. Come again. Let us all be about our Master's business and try to do something that will help someone else to live a Christian.

Mr. W. R. Cook is right sick and also Miss Mary Ann Coggins. Hope they will soon be well again.

MRS. HANES SMITH.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Trolinger, filled his regular appointment the first Sunday in February. He preached an interesting sermon. Most everyone enjoyed it. The Ladies' Aid Society gave a chicken supper last Friday night. Wasn't very many present on account of sickness. They also had a quilt to sell. All of this was given for the benefit of the church. They made a great deal more than was expected for the congregation. Our pastor organized a Bible discussion class the first Sunday in February, in which they were to hold a meeting every preaching Sunday in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. Everyone enjoyed the first meeting very much.

BESSIE VONCANNON.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—Mr. Grant has brought us two very imposing sermons this month. The second Sunday he preached on "Repentence." The fourth Sunday his text was taken from I Samuel 3:1-13. His subject was "Small Beginnings." Do we want to do the little things of life or do we want to do the big things? We have to do the little things so we can do the big things in life.

We observed Young People's Day the third Sunday, the young people taking charge of the Sunday school. Mr. Leo Pittard, a student from High Point College, delivered an inspiring message for the occasion.

The second quarterly conference will be held Saturday before the third Sunday in March at Spring Hill. Every one is urged to be present.

MILDRED GREEN, Reporter.

Bethel, Randolph Charge.—Our new pastor, Bro. G. L. Reynolds, has preached for us several times. We have enjoyed all of his messages, but the one he brought us February 24 on "Elements of Success in Christian Living" seemed the best yet. He discussed the subject from the topics of Regeneration, Loyalty to Christ, Prayer, Work and Consecration. His concluding thought was that Christian work is the most glorious of all work.

Our people seem ready and anxious to co-operate with the pastor in a program of Christian work, by means of which we hope to have one of the best year's work in the history of our church.

Dr. Andrews visited our charge a few Sundays ago. His visit was, as it always is, a source of much help and inspiration.

Mr. Thompson, of the faculty of Providence High School, is to preach for us next Sunday, March 3, at 11 o'clock.

Our Sunday school attendance has been a little lower than usual for a few Sundays on account of sickness. Most of our folks are back now and we hope for better attendance

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Rich

Ella Bulla Rich, wife of J. W. Rich, was born November 10, 1883, and departed this life on the morning of January 10, 1935, after an illness of about three years.

She professed faith in Christ in early life and was a member of Giles Chapel Methodist Protestant church at the time of her death. She was a true, obedient wife, a loving mother and a kind friend to all with whom she came in contact. She was always willing and ready at all times to give her services to the help of others and was liked by all who knew her.

Besides her immediate family she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Bulla; three sisters and three brothers, and a host of relatives and friends who are grieved by her passing.

The funeral services were held at the home Friday afternoon, January 11, and conducted by Rev. Joel B. Trogdon, Rev. M. C. Henderson, and Rev. O. P. Dix.

The remains were laid to rest in the Charlotte Methodist Protestant church cemetery beneath a mound of beautiful flowers.

Belk

Mrs. John R. Belk departed this life on February 8, 1935. She lived to a ripe old age, being 77 years, 11 months and 20 days. She is survived by her husband, two sons and three daughters.

Mrs. Belk was born in the neighborhood of New Hope Methodist Protestant church, Mecklenburg charge, which church she joined in childhood and remained a faithfel member until death.

The funeral was conducted in New Hope church by the pastor. The large crowd assembled there to pay their last tribute of respect showed the high esteem in which she was held in the community. Interment followed in the church cemetery.

She will be greatly missed in the church and community in which she belonged. We extend our tenderest sympathies to her husband, family, and many friends.

P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

Fuller

Mrs. Mattie L. Fuller, the wife of Lee Fuller, was called to her reward on February 1, 1935. She was born October 22, 1874, age 60 years, 3 months and 10 days. She was born in Granville county and was the daughter of Tom and Mary Hedpeth.

Mrs. Fuller was a faithful member of the Graham Methodist Protestant church, and was faithful in attendance until her health would not permit. She was the mother of a fine group of children who mourn her passing. They are: Mrs. J. C. Black, Mrs. A. M. Cook, James T. Fuller, and Amos Fuller, of Graham; and one son, Floyd Fuller, who makes his home in Burlington. One daughter preceded the mother to the better world. She will be missed so much in her home, church and community. May those who follow in her train remember her exhortations to right living and prepare to meet her in that land where sin shall not enter in to mar the great love of God exemplified by the affections of a true mother for offspring. May those who feel most keenly this separation find comfort to sustain their souls at the feet of Jesus.

The funeral services were conducted at the Graham Methodist Protestant church on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the writer, and her body was laid to rest in the Linwood cemetery of Graham. J. CLYDE AUMAN.

Wehunt

Leila Triphemia, daughter of James and Jane Seagle, was born November 5, 1867; died February 4, 1935; age 67 years, 2 months and 29 days.

In early childhood she united with Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church. She remained a member of this church until her marriage, at which time she became a member of Bess Chapel M. P. church and remained a faithful member until death.

Forty-eight years ago she was united in marriage with John M. Wehunt. He has already preceded her to the grave. To this union were born six children, three sons and three daughters. The sons are Thomas Lee, Glen Alpine, N. C.; Edward Guy, Hammonton, Calif., and Charles Lester, of this county. The daughters are Mrs. Marvin Hoyle and Mrs. B. A. Tillman, both of this section. One daughter died several years ago. She also leaves 21 grandchildren, five sisters and one brother.

The funeral services were held in Bess Chapel church by the pastor and Rev. J. D. Morris. After these services her body was laid to rest in the Bess Chapel church yard.

Stone

Grace church and Greensboro lost one of their most valuable and best men in the passing of John Milton Stone on February 12, 1935, at his home on Fifth Avenue.

Brother Stone, born February 2, 1866, was the son of the late John Winslow and Eliza Edwards Stone, of Iredell county. He came from a large family of nine children—four sisters and four brothers—all of whom have preceded him, except one brother, J. A. Stone, of Guilford College. Besides his brother, Mr. Stone is survived by his wife, Mary Pugh Stone; one son, Norman, and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur Scott.

Funeral services for Brother Stone were conducted on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 from the home, 514 Fifth Avenue, by Dr. S. K. Spahr, pastor emeritus of Grace M. P. church, and Dr. T. M. Johnson, pastor of State Street M. P. church, Lexington, who had been a college mate of Mr. Stone and a lifelong friend of the entire family.

Dr. Johnson and Mr. Stone were college mates at Oak Ridge. After graduation Dr. Johnson continued his prepaation for the ministry, but Mr. Stone went to Haw River to work in the Gov. Holt Mills, where he entered immediately upon his mission of service to mankind. During his entire ten years of residence in Haw River, Brother Stone was superintendent of the Methodist Protestant Sunday school and teacher of one of the classes. It was quoted by Dr. Johnson that Gov. Holt once said that Mr. Stone had done more good in Haw River than any other person who ever lived there. The general moral tone of the people during the Christmas season was so improved that people for considerable distance spoke of the fine work of the young man. This is more clearly understood when it is realized that Mr. Stone not only worked in the Sunday school but also organized a free night school for the mill workers and taught many of them to read and write.

Many of Brother Stone's most loyal friends live in and around Haw River. During his stay in that town he was married to Miss Mary Pugh, who survives him. One of the lifelong friends of the family, Mrs. William Huff, of Graham, sang his favorite hymns at the funeral services.

In 1900 Mr. and Mrs. Stone removed from Haw River to Greensboro, where they immediately entered upon their work in Grace church, which was then in its eighth year of existence. Mr. Stone organized the Baraca Class and taught it for nearly 25 years. He was also a regular member of the choir during that entire time.

From the time of his arrival in Greensboro until about two years ago, Mr. Stone was connected with Odell Mill Supply and was manager practically the entire period. In recent years failing health has handicapped his great usefulness of former days to some extent, but his love and prayers ever went out to the cause of righteousness, especially as represented in Grace church.

Interment was in Green Hill cemetery.

Barmer

Kathleen Barmer at the age of 28 departed this life January 11. She was a good girl. For many months she suffered from a severe affliction that death alone could relieve.

Kathleen united with Pleastnt Hill church several years ago. On the day following her death the writer conducted a brief service, assisted by Rev. J. L. Joyner, at the graveside in the family plot where her body was interred.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Barmer, three sisters, and five brothers survive.

York

Mrs. Julia A. York, wife of the late I. I. York, a deceased minister of the M. P. church, departed this life February 6 at her home at 804 English Street, High Point, N. C., following an illness of 15 days. Mrs. York had reached the ripe old age of 81 years.

Mrs. York was born in Davidson county May 19, 1853, a daughter of Rev. Alec and Elveria Elliott Cecile.

Fifty-nine years ago she was married to Rev. I. I. York. He preceded her to the grave thirteen years. For about 60 years she was a loyal member of the M. P. church and a loyal minister's wife. At the time of her death she was a consecrated member of Spring Hill church, near High Point. Mrs. York had the interest of the church at heart and she will be missed at her church.

Surviving are three sons, Dr. A. A. York, John G. York and Samuel L. York; also one half-brother, John A. Cecile, of High Point; also 12 grandchildren, one great-grandchild, and five step-grandchildren to mourn their loss.

Funeral services were conducted from Spring Hill church by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. C. Madison, pastor of First M. P. church, High Point, and Rev. H. L. Powell, pastor of Pleasant Grove M. P. church. Interment was beneath a large mound of flowers.

Saint of God a battle fought,

Berrier

Paul Lee Berrier departed this life January 4, 1935, age 8 years, 1 month and 22 days. He leaves to mourn their loss father and mother, one sister and two brothers. Funeral services were conducted at Canaan M. P. church by the writer and Rev. A. D. Shelton. Interment was in the local cemetery.

May the Lord bless the bereaved.

Ingle

On February 11 in the still of the early morning God sent his death angel in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ingle and took their sweet little baby, Carl Eugene, age 2 months and 14 days. Our hearts were made sad by the news, and the parents have our deepest sympathy. May their hearts be comforted in the sure hope of reunion in God's good time. It is now safe in the arms of Jesus, safe on His gentle breast. There by his love o'er-shaded sweetly his soul shall rest. For those in God's love it is not goodbye, but "good night." I will see you in the morning.

There is no death, the stars go down,
To rise upon a fairer shore,
And bright in heaven's jewelled crown
They shine for ever more.
There is no death, an angel form
Walks o'er the earth, in silent tread,
He bears our best loved things away,
And then we call them dead.
He leaves our hearts all desolate,
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers
To adorn heaven's brightest shores.

MRS. J. L. LOVE.

Wehunt

William Thomas Wehunt, 56, passed away at his home on January 26, 1935. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wehunt. "Mr. Will," as he was called by his friends, had been suffering many years from Bright's disease, and his passing was not unexpected. His passing was a great loss to this community and to many other friends who had known him at other places. He joined Bess Chapel at the age of 22. Before his death he had a vault prepared for a last resting place for his body.

Mr. Wehunt was married to Lula Canipe in 1909. To this union were born three children. The wife and children, with his aged mother, live at the old home place. He is also survived by four brothers.

His body was placed in the vault near Bess Chapel church after funeral services by the pastor, assisted by the Rev. Roy Campbell

Our sympathy goes out to his aged mother, who must wait for a while for her summons. Our prayers are for his wife and children who had the greatest shock and loss of their lives.

D. T. HUSS, Pastor.

Wood

Mary A. Julian Wood, daughter of the late Alfred and Mary Julian, of the Millboro community, Randolph county, was born August 22, 1855, departed this life February 9, 1935. When a small girl she professed religion and joined Bethany M. P. church and lived a consistent member thereof to the time of her death.

Sometime during the year 1872 she was married to John Clark Wood, also of the Millboro neighborhood. God blessed this union with eight sons, six of whom are living. Besides these six living sons, she is survived by 21 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Also two sisters living, Mrs. Virena Julian Barker, now in her 86th year, and Mrs. Eliza Jane York, who is three or four years younger than the deceased. Surviving also are a large circle of friends who mourn because she has been taken.

After her marriage in 1872 she moved to Watauga county, but later moved back to her old home community where she spent the remainder of her life. Sunday afternoon, February 10, her pastor conducted the funeral in Bethany church in the presence of a large congregation, and her body was laid to rest in the church cemetery.

G. L. REYNOLDS.

Hight

The Henderson church and community were saddened by the untimely death of one of its very fine and faithful young men, Allison Hight, the 16-year-old son of the late W. C. and Mrs. Hight.

Allison succumbed to an attack of pneumonia that was short in duration but severe from the start.

Allison impressed all who knew him as conscientious in deportment, faithful and loyal to the interest that he recognized as paramount.

He joined the Henderson Methodist Protestant church in 1926 and continued a faithful member to the time of his deatr. He was popular with the young people of the church and community who enjoyed his friendship and attractive personality.

Many friends of the church and city of Henderson join the mother, four brothers and four sisters in mourning the passing of this splendid young man.

The funeral was conducted by the pastor at the home on Thursday morning, assisted by Rev. J. D. Cranford, pastor of the Vance charge.

L. R. MEDLIN, Pastor.

MARRIED

Coble-Hanner

On the evening of February 18 in the beautiful suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shore, of Greensboro, N. C., Mr. Jesse E. Hanner and Miss Cora Coble were united in marriage as the beautiful vows of the Methodist Protestant church were given by their pastor, Rev. Geo. L. Curry. The home of Mrs. Shore was a most appropriate place for this beautiful wedding, she being the niece of the bride and granddaughter of the groom. Only the near relatives and friends were present. After the wedding vows were given and received, a most sumptuous and delicious dinner was served under the supervision of Mrs. E. T. Coble, the daughter of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Hanner have both been lifelong members of the Tabernacle church and among the faithful of the membership. They will live in the Hanner home near the church.

It made Calvary tremble to think how nearly she was pushed out of first place. Yarborough, under the leadership of that energetic young man, the Rev. K. G. Holt, marched right up and knocked at Calvary's front door, but Yarborough couldn't quite make the grade. And West End in Greensboro keeps right on marching, also. Somebody is going to have some hard work to do to stop her. That young man Bethea over there and the Herald agent, Mrs. Osborne, are in the running to win.

And Whitakers had to step off the stage. Maybe she will come back next week.

Now, let us look at the receipts column. We have already spoken of what Yarborough did. But see what Graham did also. They are coming along all right. Pinnacle-Mt. Zion makes a good, long leap, though their payment was divided into two parts. West End in Greensboro, Enfield, Randleman, Flat Rock, Roberta, Haw River, Denton all send in more than one subscription. While we give credit to the person sending in the money, yet there are times when we would like to lift the veil and let the folks see who secured the money. Rev. J. B. Trogdon, of Randleman, says he is simply sending in the subscriptions which Miss Opal Giles and Miss Fern Groce, of Worthville, secured. Well, hats off to them also.

Finally, a word about subsidy. Three charges, Henderson, Orange and Mt. Hermon, get stars for subsidy. That is mighty fine and we appreciate it very much. Good work for these three charges.

Guess you want to know how much we received this week. Well, it is $87.70 on subscriptions and $22.50 on subsidy, making a total of $110.20.

GRACE CHURCH, GREENSBORO

Where the Campaign for The Herald in Every Home
Will Be Put on Next Week

Dr. Palmer at Elon College

It was a delightful experience on Monday of this week to be at Elon College to hear Dr. A. W. Palmer, President of the Chicago Theological Seminary, speak on the subject "Orientals in American Life," this being the subject of his newest book. The subject had a peculiar interest to the editor of the HERALD, owing to the fact that he had reviewed this book three times during the last month. Also, the President of the editor's class at Western Maryland College, Dr. Albert Buckner Coe, was the successor of Dr. Palmer in the pastorate of the First Congregational church at Oak Park, Illinois. It is safe to say that few men are better qualified to speak on the subject of Orientals in America than is Dr. Palmer. He was born in Missouri, moved to California when three years of age, grew up on the Pacific coast, served a church in Honolulu for several years, and has travelled extensively in the Orient. He has a store of information on his chosen subject and knows how to make his address attractive.

While the larger part of the congregation at Elon was made up of members of the Congregational-Christian church, yet there were Methodist Protestants, Methodist Episcopals South, Presbyterians, Baptists and perhaps other denominations represented. While rubbing elbows with these people we were more thoroughly convinced than ever before of the wisdom of having such meetings. A local church could hardly afford to bring in such an authority of the subject of missions as was brought to Elon, but many communities working together can do things that the one community cannot do. And the problem of the immigrant is a common problem anyway. How to help those who have come to our shores and who are working under a handicap ought to be just as much a problem to one denomination as it is to another. While we listened to this address we completely lost sight of the fact that Dr. Palmer was there under the auspices of the Congregational-Christian Church, and we had a feeling that we were together as a band of Christians to consider a question which has to do with the extension of the kingdom of God on earth.

And while we are on this subject, we might say that in these days of agitation in favor of church union, we might think also about greater co-operation among the different denominations while we are waiting for church union to come about. When one denomination has a high day, let them share it with others. Somehow there is something about a college community with its broad campus that makes it an ideal place for such meetings. We trust our colleges will give us more opportunities of hearing the good things which they so frequently have.

A great many of those attending the meeting on Monday took lunch with them and the college furnished hot coffee. During the noon hour there was ample time for fellowship and we had the opportunity of renewing many acquaintances of other days. We could not remain for the afternoon services, but we did slip into the auditorium to hear the college choir render a number of beautiful selections. The hospitality and friendliness of Dr. L. E. Smith, the President of the college, had a great deal to do with making this a great day.

We are giving over the first page of the paper this week to a picture of Grace Church, Greensboro. For a long period of years Grace has been one of our leading congregations. This beautiful new building which we are showing this week is the third church home for the Grace congregation. When it was first organized it was located on East Lee Street, which is in South Greensboro. Later, a more commodious building was purchased from the First Baptist congregation on the corner of West Washington and South Green Streets. When this ceased to meet the needs of this growing congregation it was decided to erect a new plant on the corner of West Gaston and North Edgeworth Streets. This building is one of the outstanding buildings in our entire denomination, and from the standpoint of beauty and usefulness ranks high among the churches of any denomination. For a long period of years Grace Church has furnished a large percentage of the lay leadership of the Annual Conference. While this church has suffered heavily on account of deaths among its members, it still has some very important people. At the present time the church is being ably served by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, who is young and energetic and is already one of the outstanding ministers of our conference. He is popular, not only among his own people but with other denominations, also. We trust this church may continue to grow and prosper as it has done in the years gone by. We trust that the campaign to put the HERALD in the homes of all the people may succeed admirably and that we shall have the privilege of serving this good people in a larger way.

Two Birthdays

We do not try to keep up with the birthdays of all of our people; however, two have taken place recently which deserve some mention. One of these was that of Mrs. S. F. Coe, of Greensboro, the eighty-third, we believe. Mrs. Coe has lived a very useful life and has brought up a fine family who are greatly devoted to her, among them being Mrs. W. F. Medearis, Mrs. L. W. Jobe and Mrs. H. F. Surratt, J. C., Charles and Jesse Coe. One son, Dr. S. S. Coe, passed away last year. On this recent birthday all of the children who could do so came together for supper and spent the evening with their mother.

The other birthday was that of Mrs. Roddy Swaim, of the upper part of Randolph County. It is the custom of the children of this mother in Israel to visit her on her birthday, and this they did recently. It is the privilege of the editor to be the pastor of two of the daughters, Mrs. Otis Campbell and Mrs. M. H. Grier, both of Greensboro. Dr. John Swaim, of Asheboro, one of the editor's former parishioners, is one of the honored sons. The Swaim family is a large one, twelve in all, we believe, and they have proved themselves to be very useful citizens. It is no wonder that Mrs. Swaim enjoys the occasion so much when they come back to help celebrate her birthday. May both of these "mothers in Israel" have many happy returns of the day.

Just lack $31.18 of having that $1,000. I suppose it will come in this week. Hope so. If so, I can give the boys another $200. Gave Warren a check for $300 last week. His face is naturally long—got it from his father—but when I gave him the check a grin spread over his face until his mouth was as long as his face. Which is going some for a smile! Don't know how Jim took it. He wasn't there. Let's make 'em smile some more.

NOTES ON PREACHING

By P. E. Lindley

A Positive Gospel

I have just been reading a new book of sermons by Dr. James I. Vance. One thing that impresses me most in these fine messages is the strong, positive manner in which they are spoken. The Savior is being presented! There is so much "good news" to be told that the preacher spends no time denouncing people and telling us the things we are not allowed to do. Great preaching is positive preaching! Anyone can tell us of our faults and describe the dangerous roads we should avoid, but finer sermonizing lifts us away to the summits of truth where Christ abides and draws us by the lure of a real, active, positive Gospel.

The sermon that majors in criticism and negations is weak in several ways. For one thing, it tends to unsettle the weak believers. When a person goes to church in search of a little oil to brighten his poor lamp of faith, already too dimly burning, and meets a torrent of scathing rebuke for his spiritual infirmities, he is likely to grow darker instead of brighter in things pertaining to the soul. Generally the lambs need feeding rather than flailing. And no amount of scolding can take the place of a spiritual meal. Too many sermons, I fear, discourage the young believer simply because they are negative where they ought to be positive.

Then, also, the negative type of delivery leaves a rather gloomy, downcast feeling on the entire congregation. Radiance, hope, and victory seem to be absent. On the other hand, positive preaching leaves a good taste in the mouth.

What is more, a negative manner of preaching is unfair to the Gospel itself. Something happened in the Scriptures and it is the business of the preacher to tell it! Eternal truth is to be proclaimed; Good News is to be announced. Hearers must be pointed TO something. And the reality to which they are to be directed is the Reality of the Cross. The first four books of the New Testament are filled with events—things that happened; they are records of activity. The original Gospel was being enacted; and the last Books of the New Testament are for the most part an enthusiastic re-telling of the events that had gone before. So the Gospel is positive in its very nature. In like manner, the Christian preacher, proclaiming this redemptive message, is to do so in very positive terms.

I would suggest, first, that ministers magnify the certainties they do have. Some things are true, pure, just and of good report. These are the saving virtues and need to be magnified. When doubtful as to what to preach, search out a few truths you are absolutely sure about and emphasize them. A few old-fashioned, well-settled virtues are more uplifting than a learned discussion on debatable points. By this positive method one's thinking soars above the thorny grounds of controversy. You will not help a person by enumerating the thing you do not believe. What you DO believe is what counts.

Then, second, I would make more of the positive Scriptures. The Bible is full of powerful affirmations. More space is used in telling what God is than what He is not; more time is spent describing what He can do than what He cannot. The Psalms, for instance, are famed for their spirit of confidence, and St. Paul is constantly speaking words of assurance. Let the minister take his stand upon these great assertions and show us their unfailing worth in times like these. Regardless of the perilous conditions of the day, the Scriptures have a positive message that will strengthen, comfort and cheer. "The sailors steer by the stars," and anyone who is trying to point people to a life of peace and triumph must be able to direct them to some sure and unchanging realities as certain and dependable as the stars of heaven. And these eternal realities are taught over and over again in the Scriptures.

My third suggestion is this: Honor and confirm the achievements the believers have already made. All people have made some progress. Let the minister recognize and appreciate this. Share with your people the victories they have won. So present truth as to approve their positive feelings; give them credit for what they are. Cultivate their convictions rather than their doubts. The preacher himself is an example, and if he is not a personal pattern of poise and assurance, how can the followers be satisfied? The last thing a preacher should lend himself to, says L. P. Jacks, is a moral panic. Yet many pastors spread fear and alarm through the membership of the church by their pulpit habits of doubt and uncertainty. Folks of this generation are as good as any. The world is not so chaotic after all; the moral order still prevails, and there is more good than bad. If this is true of people in general, how much more is it the case that those who make up the religious congregation are not so desperately wicked!

These principles, I think, when followed in preaching will improve the work of the pulpit and help many to find a new pleasure in the worship hour. We are weak and frail enough, to be sure, but telling us what not to do will be of scant service. As the Psalmist says, we want to be led to the rock that is higher than we now are. A positive gospel is the only answer.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Pastor Appointed for Greensville Charge

Mr. Eugene A. Lambe is appointed pastor of Greensville charge, to begin his active duties when Seminary closes in May.

New Church in Danville, Va.

Last Friday night a Methodist Protestant church was organized in Danville, Virginia. Our Reidsville church is the ecclesiastical mother of it, and Dr. George R. Brown was the organizer. We hope it shall soon become a flourishing organization; our prayers and good wishes go with it.

Money a Part of Life

A dime or a dollar in your pocket which has been earned by you becomes a part of your life. It represents that much energy, thought, and labor. There has therefore gone out of you a dime or a dollar's worth of some life substance. You have no right to that dime or dollar unless it has cost you something. And if it has cost you something, it is not to be wasted. It is too precious to throw away, it is too precious to squander. It is like opening an artery in your body, allowing a certain quantity of blood to flow from your circulation. It is like tapping your physical strength and drawing from it a certain amount of your vitality; it is like taking your mind and nervous system and compelling them to serve another without compensation, for one to take the results of labor and thought and turn them over to others without full compensation.

And because your money has cost you so dearly, it is precious in the sight of God when it is laid upon His altar. A dime or a dollar earned by you represents that much of you, so when you give it cheerfully, gladly, it pleases our Heavenly Father, and it honors the work His church is endeavoring to do. Money which costs us nothing cannot mean much to us, but money which represents hard toil, self-denial, is most precious, and when it is given gladly it becomes as an incense to the Lord. We cannot give money lightly and give it rightly. It should be given with a serious mind, thoughtful of what is needed to be done and what it can do. And when the gift is prompted by a real love for the cause to which it is contributed, it at once is precious in the sight of the Lord and accepted by Him as a token of the love of the giver. We are now in the midst of the tithing period set apart by our general church, and it ought to be a season of spiritual growth and spiritual joy. It should never make us regretful or sorrowful to give of our selves or of our substances unto the work of the Kingdom of God. It should be a great joy to every one. May it be so.

Greensville Charge

I held the second quarterly conference of this charge last Saturday night. All churches except one were represented. The work of the charge was considered and plans made for carrying on the remainder of the Conference year. Rev. W. H. Neese preaches for Hobbs Chapel next Sunday at 2:30, and at Ebenezer at night. Rev. J. M. Morgan preaches at Matthews, at Wesley and Philadelphia in the order named, the third Sunday in this month. Brother Neese will preach at Ebenezer at 2:30 and at Hobbs at night the fourth Sunday in March.

I visited Philadelphia, Matthews, and Wesley last Sunday, had good congregations and good attention. I enjoyed my visit to these churches and also the hospitality of several of the members of these churches.

Plan of Appointments

March 10—Midland charge; Love's Grove, Midland, and Pine Bluff in the order named.

March 17—Caroleen and Shelby churches.

THE FALLEN TREE

Walking through a forest a gentleman saw a grand old tree which had fallen across the path. The tree appeared strong and sound; there had been no wind or storm. Why had the tree fallen? He looked at the stock, and found that the whole heart of the tree was eaten out by decay. For scores, perhaps for hundreds of years, that process of decay had gone on; and though the outside seemed fair and strong, yet the inward life of the tree was gone, and at last, without stress or strain, it fell of its own weight.

How many of the oaks of Bashan thus go down! How many of the giants in the great forest of humanity fall in the same manner! Outwardly fair, inwardly false; apparently strong, really weak; with all the aspects of growth about on the surface, but with rottenness and decay within the heart; till at length at an unexpected hour the mighty man comes thundering down before the breath of a zephyr, to the astonishment of all who had beheld his apparent strength and massiveness.—Publisher Unknown.

Mrs. Gerringer to Assist Herald Agents

At a meeting of the Herald committee of our Annual Conference, at the home of President Andrews on Friday of last week, it was decided to employ Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, widow of Dr. L. W. Gerringer, as the Field Agent to assist Herald agents and pastors in putting the Herald in the homes of all our people. Mrs. Gerringer is well qualified for this kind of work and we bespeak for her the hearty co-operation of all of our people.

One thing about this campaign is that it is designed to help every other campaign. The more our people read about the program of our church, the more they will know about it and the more they know about it, the more they will do for it.

OUR STORY PAGE

TOO RICH TO AFFORD IT

"I don't want to go to school any more, Father." Mr. Gray raised his eyes in surprise to the face of his eldest son, a lad of about fifteen.

"Why don't you wish to go to school?"

"Well, sir, I am tired of studying and I don't see any use in it."

"Do you think that you know enough?"

The boy blushed a little at his father's sharp look and tone.

"I know as much as George Lyman does, and he left school three months ago. He says he is not going away to school while his father has plenty of money."

Mr. Gray turned upon the boy a look of grave surprise. "Did George Lyman say that? His father is a poorer man than I thought. So you have made up your mind that you do not wish to go to school any more?"

"Yes, sir."

"You need not, then."

"Oh, thank you, Father!" cried Charles.

"Wait a minute," said Mr. Gray as the boy caught up his hat and started for the door. "You have nothing to be thankful for. There is an old and homely saying, 'One man can lead a horse to water but ten cannot make him drink.' So I say that you need not go to school if you are not willing to study, because if you feel as you say you do it will be time and money thrown away. But understand one thing, if you do not go to school you will have to go to work. I cannot afford to have you idle."

"Do you mean that I must go out to work by the day?"

"I mean that you must have some steady work or business. You must have a certain number of hours' work each day as surely as the sun rises."

"Why, Father, George Lyman and Ned Johnson don't have to work and they say that they don't mean to, either. George told me that his father said that you were the richest man in the county."

"If I were the richest man in two counties I would not be rich enough to afford to have my boy idle."

The next morning Charles and his father started out brightly and early. They stopped in front of a gloomy stone building.

"Are you going to stop here?" asked Charles. "It looks like a prison."

"It is a prison," said Mr. Gray.

"But I thought you were going to see an old schoolmate."

"Here is where he lives."

Before Charles could reply the heavy door was swung back and they were shown in.

"I came to inquire about Mr. Harmon, the forger," said Mr. Gray to the man who had let them in. "He is an old schoolmate of mine. How is he getting along?"

"Very well. He is quiet, but it is pretty hard for him. It is pretty hard for these men who have always had plenty of money and nothing to do. If you wish to see him I will send for him."

In a few minutes a grave, quiet man entered. His clean-cut hair and queer dress gave him a strange look. Charles had never seen anything like it before. He seemed glad to see Mr. Gray, though there was something in his manner which showed that he felt deeply his present position. Of the two Mr. Gray seemed the more unhappy. His voice broke a little as he said, "I am glad to see you, Mr. Harmon, but sorry, very sorry to find you here."

"You can't be more sorry than I am to find myself here," the man said.

Then, as if anxious to change the subject, he turned to Charles. "This is your boy?"

"Yes, this is my oldest son. He is just about the age we were when we used to go to school together. Have you forgotten all about those days, John?"

Mr. Harmon was silent for a few minutes as he thought of those happy days. Then suddenly covering his face with his hands, he wept bitterly. Charles had never seen a man weep before and those sobs and moans made him feel very sad. "I wish I could," said Mr. Harmon, lifting up his pale, tear-stained face. "I wish I could forget. I sometimes think it is all a dream, that I shall some day wake up and find it so!"

"How did it happen?" inquired Mr. Gray. "When I last saw you your prospects were bright—brighter than mine."

"It can be told in a few words," was the reply. "Idleness and bad company. As you know, I would not study. I thought there was no need for me, a rich man's son, to do that. My father's death left me with great wealth, of which I had never earned a dollar, and of whose worth I knew nothing. How it went I hardly know, but I awoke one morning to find myself poorer than the lowest clerk in the house. I knew nothing about getting money by work, but money I must have, so I tried to get it without work. The rest needs no telling."

"How many of these men," inquired Mr. Gray, "have been trained to any useful trade or business?"

"Not one in ten."

After thanking the keeper for his kindness to them, Mr. Gray and Charles started for home.

"How hard it must be to have to live in a place like that!" said Charles, as reaching the hilltop he gave a backward glance at the building, which looked so dark and lonely in the distance.

There was silence for some minutes. Then Mr. Gray said, "You asked me, Charles, if you were to work like other boys, and this visit to the prison is my answer. The world calls me a rich man and so I am. I am able to give you every chance to be wise and good, but I am not and never shall be rich enough to have you idle. Strange as it may sound, I am too rich to afford it. Many a father has learned to his sorrow what it is to have a boy idle."

Charles was very thoughtful for a few moments. Then he looked up and said, "I think I will go to school on Monday, Father."—Words of Cheer.

CONFERENCE COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

T. J. WHITEHEAD, President
Burlington, N. C., R. 4

EARLY FORMS OF CHRISTIAN DRAMA

In the very earliest years of the development of civilization we find a form of dramatics. Drama is one of the oldest of the arts. From extensive study of primitive people we find that there was hardly a time when the expression of the dramatic impulse was not given. It has been expressed in some form by all races of people.

This expression in drama gave the primitive people a sensation which was similar to real experience and furnished them with adequate power to give their impressions to others. Drama had its real origin in the expression of ideas by these people who could not convey their ideas by other means. The art of drama is simply telling a story by means of imitation which the primitive people invariably did. The primitive man believed that to imitate an event would bring that event to pass. That is, if he wanted it to rain, he would climb a tree and go through the motion of pouring water from a bucket, while a friend on the ground would strike two stones together to represent thunder and another would wave a firebrand to represent lightning.

There is a kind of nocturnal Egyptian Passion Play which is a dramatic relic of the remote past. It portrayed the struggle between Set, god of darkness, and Osiris, god of light, and was given off the shore of a lake near the temple of Sais. Its performance was at night and was given with much pomp and splendor to the accompaniment of music. Even though Set buries Osiris beneath the waters of the lake, when the combat is finished, Osiris appears as ruler of the shadow land of death. Here was seen the symbolism of the conquest of Day and Night and even a deeper symbolism—the conquest of Good by Evil, with the final rescue of the Good.

The Indians believed in long and elaborate prayers, especially for favorable weather and protection from disaster. They went through a ceremony called the Rain Dance which in reality was a play. It lasted for nine days and required 24 warriors belonging to a certain tribe for its performance.

Unconsciously, long before the art of writing was known, these primitive people were laying the foundation for drama. As these performances were handed down from one generation to another, they settled into form. These unconscious dramas were always given for some purpose other than mere entertainment. Religious ideas familiar today were portrayed.

The stage of today had its origin with these primitive people. From the play, actors learned to disguise, paint, drape the body, to make costumes and to imitate. These early ceremonies were the school for historic drama.

The life of the primitive man was a continual struggle with nature and with men. The religious, sympathetic ceremonies were his means by which he tried to overcome unfavorable forces and his efforts to recommend himself in a favorable way to the Controller of Destinies. The heart of all primitive dramatic expression was religious passion. By these dramatic expressions the purpose of worship and prayer was served, and through them the desires of worshippers were made known. They hoped to gain the good will of the gods through the range of the dramatic rites and observances which they had. It was through these dramatic activities that their standards of morality were taught. Really, the most we know about the primitive people has come to us through our study of their folk and religious festivals.

Drama was born in and nourished by the church and has been recognized as one of the most powerful factors for the spreading of Christianity. Of course there has been and is still some opposition. When Constantine the Great came to the throne he felt constrained to prohibit any sort of drama. But as so often happens, opposition brings about that which is least expected, so the church became the nursing mother of the new art.

NEWS ITEMS

March has been set aside to stress dramatics and story-telling as they relate to the program of religious education. Rev. J. T. Bowman, superintendent of this division, is to give us some helpful information this month through this page.

Are you interested in a Vacation Church School for your church or charge? Read Miss Taylor's article.

Remember the young people's convention May 29-31 and the Leadership Training School June 24-29—both to be held at High Point College.

How about taking the fifth Sunday in March to raise your apportionment for the Conference Council of Religious Education from your Sunday school and Christian Endeavor society? The apportionment is 50 cents for every 25 members or fraction thereof. This is a suggestion.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By LUTHER R. MEDLIN

Topic for Sunday, March 10: "Crime Does Not Pay."

Scripture Lesson: Psalm 1:4-6; Gal. 6:7, 8.

Is crime a young people's problem?

The writer recently heard an address by a prominent solicitor who stated that he was alarmed at the great number of young people, many of them repeaters in crime, that are paraded before him in the courts.

From the Christian Endeavor World Quarterly we find the alarming figure, that two-thirds of all arrests for crime last year were young men and women between the ages of 15 and 24. These figures come from a report issued by the United States Department of Justice.

Right thinking people need to become alarmed when they learn that our ratio of young criminals is higher than that of any other country in the world.

What part does environment play in crime?

Just as charity begins at home, so does delinquency in a great many cases. The parents may be of the criminal sort and consequently the children cannot be expected to be otherwise. Parents have been known to send the children on an expedition of thievery and burglary.

What part does unemployment and poverty play in crime?

Unemployment and the lack of income prompts a great many young people, I'm sure, to seek to gratify a desire for clothes, pleasure and luxuries in a dishonest way that were it not for their poverty-stricken condition they would be honorable and honest.

What part does heredity play in crime?

Of course a great many children show criminal inclinations from very early in life, which indicate hereditary influences.

What part does the movies play in crime?

There is a very interesting book entitled "Our Movie Made Children," by Henry James Forman, one chapter of which sheds a great deal of light on this question. The chapter reveals the result of a study made, in which young criminals were asked the cause of their crime and their answers.

Some of the things reported learned at the movies are:

How to enter a store by forcing the lock with crowbar and screwdriver.

How to cut burglar alarm wires in advance during the day.

How to take door off the hinges to force way into apartment.

How to break window noiselessly for forcing way into store or house to be burglarized, by pasting flypaper on window before breaking it.

How to act and what to do in robbery with gun.

Use of glass cutter in cutting glass of window away so window can be opened.

How to jimmy a window.

How to pick pockets.

Use of gloves in burglary.

And many others, but space will not permit. I suggest that you read the book for further interesting information of this study.

Many testimonies of the young criminals say that they got their first ideas from the pictures. It created a desire for clothes and luxuries that they could never acquire honestly, so it encouraged dishonest methods.

Invite some lawyer or judge to speak to the group on "Crime."

Have someone to report on the reform and correctional schools for boys and girls in the state. There is a school for boys at Concord, with about five or six hundred boys and others waiting to be admitted. There is a similar institution at Rocky Mount. There is a school for girls at Samarcand. There

HIGH POINT COLLEGE

Our missionary year is most gone. What we do for High Point College must be done right away.

We are so anxious to raise our $1,000 this year. It is needed so very much. Out of the 89 auxiliaries, 51 have paid their apportionments, which has amounted to $739.93. Has your auxiliary paid yet? If not, please make some special effort to do so by March 31. It will mean a lot to your auxiliary to do that much for our college.

Have you read Mrs. Hammer's message in the Herald of February 21? And what Mrs. Kennett, chairman of High Point College campaign, has to say in issue of February 28? Let all the auxiliaries raise as much as possible toward the $5,000 for the college in order that we may receive the $7,500 from the Board of Christian Education.

With the full co-operation of the ladies of the N. C. Branch, I feel sure we can do this. Let's do our very best.

MRS. L. W. GERRINGER,
Secretary, High Point College.

HILLS OF HOME

By Victor P. Hammer

From the hills of home comes an echo strong
Of the scenic day with their mirth and song,
Where the memoirs laid in the old abode
Bear remembrance back over Time's long road,
And return to live in life's vividness,
When the heart beats fast at the world's caress;
It is just such thoughts that I stow away
That engross the mind with that distant day.

Lovely hills of home, with their calm and storm,
As they loom far off in imposing form—
In their pristine file and their fancy blue
Far above the fields where the big crops grew,
Hard by vale and stream and the sleeping glen,
With some short defiles for the feet of men,
They are grouped and set for the morning's glow,
Or the dusk at eve, or the driven snow.

O'er the hills of home spread the dews of May,
Sing the mockingbirds with enchanting lay,
Bloom the roses sweet for the brides in June,
Smiles the farmer boy 'neath the harvest moon,
Comes the suitor fair to the winsome maid,
Rests the grand old sire where the maples shade,
Stroll the flocks and herds to the barnyard camps,
And, with sylvan nights, come the stars and lamps.

By the hills of home glide the crystal streams
Just as noiselessly as a baby's dreams,
While the hemlock stands in majestic cloak—
Prince of all—the willow and sturdy oak,
And the lonesome pine, and his neighbor spruce,
Clasping hands as friends under silent truce,
And keeps watch by night, and on guard by day,
Against Nature's wilds in his ancient way.

All the hills of home hold the youth's impress,
Tho' it be romance or of plain distress;
It's the odds and ends and the spicy lots
That are best retained as forget-me-nots;
It's a girl's sweet smile at the old farm gate,
Or a stroll through woodlands in June's estate;
And it might have been a cotillion ball
Where the touch of hands meant the most of all.

How the summers come, and they quickly go,
Then some unseen hand scatters winter's snow,
And the cycle turns and the years pass on—
Today we are here, but tomorrow gone;
Yet the mind glides o'er to that far-off lea
Where it sees allurements in memory;
And no matter where one may chance to roam,
He will turn his thoughts to the hills of home!

Clothing and Other Gifts

Gibsonville, 75 quarts of canned fruits and vegetables and 1 bu. sweet potatoes. Missionary Society, by Mrs. D. W. Brown, Beaver Falls, Pa., 3 dozen table napkins. The Jolly Junior Class, Waynesburg, Pa., 6 Scripture text calendars. Woman's Auxiliary, Elkhart, Ind., 13 sheets and 6 pillow slips. Mrs. L. M. Lawhon, Greenville, Texas, 1 quilt. Miss Blanche Hardee, Enfield, 2 coats. Mrs. J. M. Cutchin, Whitakers, 1 dress.

We greatly appreciate all these gifts of money and substance. And we are looking forward to a great boost in finances during March. Many encouraging letters and cards have come. We need your daily prayers and your monthly financial aid.

Our Milk Cows

We have depended so much upon our cows to help feed our children. Nearly ever since we have been here we have used more than a quart of milk per day per child. But because of Bang's disease among our cows we have had to sell for beef ten of our very best cows, so are left with just six milk cows. We must buy some more as early as possible. Any help you can give us in getting eight or ten good cows will be greatly appreciated.

We don't know how to run the Home without plenty of milk.

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

"The noblest life is often the product of sanctified tribulation."—Rev. Herbert Lockyer, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

One morning as we drove up to the church Bro. Moton said, "Bethea, is that the same man that was converted yesterday?" I replied by saying, "The Lord cleaned him up outside and in." That is the way. The changed life acknowledges its Lord by sitting at his feet clothed and in its right mind. There are too many, it is true, trying to improve the outside from the manner of appearances, which is all right so far as it goes. But there must be a changed nature before the seeds of grace can successfully grow.

To be with Bro. Moton and partake of his earnestness as he labored for the salvation of the lost would prove a benediction to anyone. Many times have I seen him, I am sure, suffer in soul for the lost one over whom he prayed.

My experience with Bro. Moton was that when he went into a campaign to save souls he was in most cases successful, and if there were not fruits forthcoming, I never saw anyone that it hurt more. It hurt him not because he was jealous of his reputation, but because he seemed to sense the danger to which an unbelieving soul was exposed more than anyone I have ever worked with in campaigns of this kind. There may have been some who were just as anxious, but in this man there was a sacrificial passion that was rare, and one that rarely ever shows itself more. He reminded one of those men who brought the sick man to Jesus. They could not get in at the door, then they went to the roof and let the man down through the roof. Faith finds a way. Bro. Moton had that faith that sought for new ways if the first failed. It's a great thing to be able to keep on with enthusiasm when our first plans fail. Hundreds of people have I seen this man win to Christ. Worked with him more perhaps than any other one man in the conference. Thank God for men like these who meant so much to the Kingdom in the Methodist Protestant church. And not only our own, but he was a favorite with other denominations. They knew if they wanted to work they would always be welcome in the church of which he was pastor. Doubtless when he went over there were many to greet him on the other side that he won to Jesus.

There were some who believed that a revival campaign in those days could only be held in certain sections. That in some places the folks would respond and in others they would not. That is not true. I had just as great revivals in the east with Bro. Moton as in the mountains. During my pastorate in Halifax we enjoyed a great meeting at Hollister, as well as at Eden.

Great demonstrations are not confined to sections. One of the greatest I ever enjoyed was during the time of traveling as missionary secretary at Eden church, Halifax charge. But they got ready for it. It cost them something in a financial way as well as getting ready in heart and mind. Some of the so-called hard cases of the community were saved.

May we see that God is no respecter of persons or sections, and that it matters not where it is or who it is when they are willing to pay the price. Revivals come now as well as then. I once heard Dr. Torry say that people could have a Pentecost now just as in the days of old if they were willing to get down upon their knees and pay the price.

Another one of our men who exemplified an earnestness in soul-saving has just gone on to his reward, namely, L. W. Gerringer. He was an earnest worker from the beginning. One of his latest or rather his last effort was in a revival in the church of which he was pastor. We had worked together in a number of campaigns that were very successful, and I shall always be glad that I had this privilege. Seems like his life was cut off just where with his culture and earnestness, together with his experience, he might have won many to the cross. But "he being dead yet speaketh." May many younger ones take up his mantle.

IS THE HUMAN RACE ROBBING GOD?

The above question may be a rather strange one. Perhaps no one thinks that it is possible to rob God of anything, since the Psalmist David tells us in the 24th Psalm that the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof. But when we read the third chapter of Malachi we find the question: "Will a man rob God?" The answer is given in the same passage of scripture, explaining that God has been robbed in tithes and offerings.

In the daily newspapers of our nation we read of accounts of robberies committed daily by men who are robbing their fellow men of material things, money, automobiles and various other properties. The acts of theft on the part of and between men are very common in these days of extreme wickedness. But can we imagine such an act on the part of any human being of robbing God?

There are a number of groups of the human race who are robbing God of certain things and by certain methods. First, there is the largest group who are robbing God of the opportunity of redeeming their souls by rejecting the gift of salvation through Jesus Christ. Statistics reveal that about 60 per cent of the entire human race have not believed the gospel of the Son of God, nor professed saving faith in Jesus Christ, the Savior and Redeemer of the world.

Another group of the human race are robbing God of his portion of their possessions. Jesus declared that many were trusting in their riches, and therefore could not inherit the Kingdom of God while they loved their riches more than God. The story of the rich man and Lazarus proves this statement.

There are many people who are robbing God of the love and devotion which rightly belongs to Him. Some are members of the church and do not assemble themselves in the Lord's house on the Sabbath day. They seem to be indifferent and unconcerned about the church and the work of the Kingdom of God in their community, and do not show an interest in the development of their own spiritual lives. We fear that such people have very little, if any, of the spiritual life which Christ imparts to those who accept Him and His grace.

Nobody wants to be classed as a robber, and yet the Bible describes those who do not offer unto God their love and devotion and service through His church on earth as robbing God of that service which they can render with their contributions of money and deeds for the uplift of hemanity.

The call of the gospel and the appeal of the gospel message is for an offering of one's self in repentance, faith and acceptance, repenting of sins, believing on Jesus Christ, and accepting Him as Savior, Lord and Master. All who fail to do this are robbing God of the opportunity of saving their souls and a life of service for the uplift of humanity and for the coming of the Kingdom of God on earth.

High Point College News

With the exception of the basketball game at Guilford next Friday, this season is over, and High Point has lost to only two schools. The last game with Guilford held the spectators tense, at least for the last few minutes. The score was 26-26 at the end of the game, and continued to keep tied until the extra five minutes were over, but Guilford finally got one point ahead before time was up and beat by one point. The game with Lenoir-Rhyne the next night was hardly interesting after the excitement of the night before. The final score was 52-41, and the result of the E. C. T. C. game was 43-22, both in High Point's favor.

Thursday night the Nikanthan Literary Society repaid their brother Thaleans for the chicken stew, which they were given in the fall, by a George Washington party.

Friday night a number of the college students heard the Duke musical clubs in a concert at the Junior High school. This was a concert presenting the concert orchestra, glee club, and jazz orchestra.

Dr. P. E. Lindley, dean of the college, led a discussion group for the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday night. This proved to be very interesting to those who took part.

The college debating team left Sunday on a trip which will take them to universities and colleges in Cincinnati, Chicago, and in several other midwestern cities. When they return they have several home meets scheduled and expect to take part in the southeastern debate tournament.

High Point expects soon to have an honor society which in some respects will resemble Phi Beta Kappa. The society will not base its requirements on scholarship alone but also on leadership, character, and service.

The statistics for the first semester grades show a high scholarship rating. Six students have straight A's, 34 have no grades below B, and 66 in all, or about 25 per cent, have records of B averages or higher.

—In order that we might catch up with the large amount of material on hand, Calvary's reporter is taking a little vacation these days.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Harmony Grove, West Forsyth. — Sunday was our regular preaching service. Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, brought us a wonderful sermon. He preached from First Timothy, "Christ came into the world to save sinners." Everyone that was there enjoyed the service.

Our Sunday school is doing nicely. We have been having good attendance at Sunday school for a good while. The attendance was more than double yesterday what it was a year ago Sunday.

Our prayer meeting on Wednesday nights and the Christian Endeavor are doing very well, but not having the attendance that we should or that we have had.

The sick in our neighborhood are improving. We have had lots of sickness but only one death, which was Mrs. Elizabeth Warner.

The ladies of Harmony Grove church met Sunday afternon to organize a Ladies' Auxiliary, and Mrs. Speas and Mrs. Hunter met with us. Our pastor was there also. We were glad to have these good people to help us get started in some good work. We hope that we can finish organizing and be able to do whatever falls on us to do. We are to meet tonight to finish organizing at the home of Mrs. G. B. Craft, who is our president.

Our reporter has not been reporting often but we hope he will. LESSIE TODD.

(This report carried over from last week.)

Bessemer City.—This is our first report for this year and I wish to say here and now that Bessemer City is still on the map. We have what we think is the best pastor in the conference in Rev. J. R. Anderson. Last Lord's Day he stressed the idea of tithing and gave to all present the pledge cards, and a goodly number of our folks signed them and returned them to the pastor then and there. It is believed this is one of the most worthwhile steps taken by our members in many years, not alone from the spiritual standpoint but from the material as well. Jesus could well say to many of us today, "O ye of little faith," for so often we profess to be Christians, yet are afraid to believe His promises and if we believe not how can we expect good to come to us. "According to your faith be it unto you" (Matt. 9:29). It is hoped that more of our folk will step out on the promises of God and thus enrich their lives both spiritually and materially.

Sunday school attendance was on the increase this week. Mr. Clarence Brackett's class of young ladies led the entire school last Sunday in attendance and collection. Our new superintendent is doing his best to put the school on top. Last Sunday we took a special collection for the Children's Home and are going to do so one Sunday in every month from now on. The blessing that we receive from helping those that can't help themselves is a wonderful joy to our life. It helps us look to Jesus for the help that we need, and if we help them He will surely help us.

Oh, yes, we are proud to say, that our C. E. Society is doing some nice work now. We have a goodly number of workers and they are doing their best for the cause and our president has a real welcome smile for every one. So if you are around in our community, we invite you to come.

On last Sunday Rev. Mr. Anderson announced that the Ladies' Auxiliary would meet in the home of Mrs. Scates, and the men know that it won't be long now until they will get some good eats.

We are glad to announce that we have a real troop of Boy Scouts in the church now and if there is any work that they can do in or around the church, just call on them. We wish to thank Mr. W. A. Harmon for what he is doing for the Scouts, as he is giving them a fish fry at Rankin lake Saturday, March 2, and the writer can see the Scoutmaster, Clarence Brackett, leading the troop through a platter of fish, and here is wishing them luck and plenty of work, and may I say that they start to work on the church yard, as there is plenty to do. So I just hope they will read this.

ASSISTANT REPORTER.

(This report carried over from last week.)

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—We are having an unusually good attendance in our Sunday school for the winter months; also much interest is being shown in our midweek prayer services.

Our pastor, Rev. Harkey, has recently organized a Christian Endeavor Society at Clark's Chapel, with the following officers elected: President, Mrs. Glenn Kennedy; vice president, Miss Elinor Gryder; secretary, Miss Frances Mackey.

We are having a large attendance at the meetings, and a great interest is being shown by the young folks, with the co-operation of the pastor.

Just now the Christian Endeavor is raising funds to buy new roofing that is needed for the parsonage. We are especially proud of the interest our young people are showing in the church.

West End, Greensboro.—A good number were out to hear Dr. Bethea Sunday, for both the morning and evening services. His subject for the 11 o'clock hour was "Essentially Dependent." In his sermon he stressed the importance of every member of the body functioning properly for a well-rounded life, as applied to our spiritual life. At 7:30 the subject was "Jesus Seeking Followers." Jesus said, "Come ye after me and I will make you fishers of men." The thought was brought out that Christ found His workers among busy, active men—not those who spend their time loafing. Rev. J. R. Hutton was a visitor at this service.

Sunday school attendance for February 24 was 212, but even with this number present some of the regular members were not there.

Several of our people are on the sick list. Mr. W. W. Eldridge was not able to be out last week and Mrs. T. J. Hicks has been confined to her home on account of an infected foot. We are glad to report both of these are better now.

Prayer meeting was under the leadership of the Young People's Choir last Wednesday and a good program was heard by the large number there. The First Bible Class will have charge of the midweek service this week.

We are well pleased with the progress that is being made in the Loyalty Campaign. Altogether 71 have signed some of the ten promises listed and 31 have definitely pledged to tithe.

MILDRED STAPLETON, Reporter.

(This report carried over from last week.)

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, filled his appointment Sunday. The reporter was absent on account of sickness. Our pastor bought us an inspiring sermon. His subject was found in Jeremiah 3:12, "Go and proclaim these words toward the north and say, Return thou backsliding Israel, saith the Lord, and I will not cause mine anger to fall upon you, for I am merciful, saith the Lord, and I will not keep anger forever." There was a very good congregation to hear Rev. Mr. Bingham. His sermon was greatly enjoyed, I think, by all. Our Sunday school is going nicely. I think when winter breaks we will have better attendance. Brother Bingham's text warns us all to return to the Lord and He will not keep his anger forever. I pray that all evil will be blotted out. It would be heaven here if everybody would do right. We have preaching twice a month on the second Sunday and fourth Sunday. Both services are at 2:30 o'clock. May we ever strive to do more for God and work toward the advancement of His Kingdom. MRS. F. L. SMITH.

(This report carried over from last week.)

Asheville.—We wish that all the Methodist Protestants in North Carolina could have enjoyed the good fellowship which prevailed at our annual Christian Endeavor banquet on Friday evening last. All present had a grand time, and, were it not for the fact that we have not the proper facilities for serving large crowds, we would wish that we might have a banquet each month. Miss Nancy Clouse, the able and always enthusiastic president of the Senior Christian Endeavor group, deserves rightly the most credit for the success of the banquet. She worked untiringly and even came to the church on Saturday morning and with the help of a few Intermediates and Rev. Mr. Minnis put the church in order again. Nancy is a member any church should be proud to own. Would more of us were like her!

It was indeed a pleasure to have Miss Ethel Wilson on the program. She has brought us joy many times and so again we wish to express our gratitude to her. She is a real asset to any program. Most of us were keenly interested to see how Mr. Bailey would manage the job of toastmaster, and it is my pleasure to say that his ability as a toastmaster is in no manner inferior to his ability as a singer. He delighted the audience with several popular selections, too, so we are doubly indebted to him. Miss Melle Smith, Mrs. J. F. Minnis and Miss Clouse each gave a reading, and it would be hard to say which excelled in this particular; suffice it to say that each reading was enjoyed equally by all present. The Intermediate and Junior Christian Endeavor groups were ably represented by their respective presidents, the Misses Polly Gentry and Betty Jane Pratt. It would be unfair not to mention the "mystery trio," composed of the Misses Nancy Clouse, Melle Smith and Frances S. Cunningham, though space will forbid me commenting further.

The Fawcett Bible Class continues to be leading in the number present for Sunday school. We are indeed proud they are rallying to the support of the Sunday school again; we need them. The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class had the largest offering again. Mrs. Williams' Junior boys led in amount of collection in their department.

The Women's Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Hale Thomas Thursday p. m. Mrs. J. F. Minnis led the devotionals, also presided over the meeting, Mrs. Baker, president, being absent because of illness in her home. Mrs. G. P. Younginer reviewed the chapter study book. The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers: President, Mrs. J. F. Minnis; vice president, Mrs. J. S. Williams; secretary, Mrs. G. P. Younginer; treaurer, Mrs. H. L. Hanner. The slate was elected unanimously. Mrs. Younginer and Mrs. Hanner were re-elected to their respective offices.

I failed to mention last week the Valentine party given by the members of Circle No. 1 of the Auxiliary. It was decidedly a success, both financially and socially. It would be a fine thing if our women would arrange to have a party each week. It would be a help financially and would tend to bind our young people closer to the church and to us. We need this contact with our youth and they need our guidance and understanding. Shall we unite in building a bridge for the youth who follow after us.

The Women's Auxiliary thank-offering program will be observed next Sunday evening. Miss Frances S. Cunningham will be in charge. She hopes to present Rev. and Mrs. Minnis, who will give an illustrated lecture of their work in India. This should prove interesting as well as instructive, so we expect to see everyone out on Sunday evening. Bring your friends, they will enjoy it too.

Oak Grove, Cleveland Charge.—Rev. R. S. Troxler held his regular preaching service at Palm Tree M. E. church last Sunday morning. A large crowd attended.

The people at other churches are real nice to the Oak Grove people. Since we have no place to go to church, they let us have our services in their church. And we sure do appreciate it.

We hope to have a place to go to church, and a new one, soon. We have it storm-sheeted and the roof on now. We can soon be back at our work again and we are anxious to do so.

The Ladies' Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. R. S. Troxler February 17. The offering was $1.50. There were eight members present. The ladies have begun a patch quilt. They are selling blocks for 10 cents a block and have your initials inserted in the square.

Mrs. Miller Powell, our former reporter, has been quite ill, but is improving.

Mr. Summie White is in the Grace Hospital at Morganton for an appendix operation.

Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Peeler and Mr. Ella Whisnant, of Enfield, N. C., have been visiting friends and relatives in this community since my last report. We were glad to have them visit in our homes.

Those visiting Mrs. P. S. Gettys Sunday were Mrs. Leary W. Adams and daughter, Billie Rita, of Charlotte; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren and Rocida Richardson, of Belmont.

Mrs. R. S. Troxler is ill now, but we hope she will be well soon.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, has been delivering some fine sermons at our church. He preached an excellent sermon for us Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. We were glad to have as many present as there was, and we also were glad to have several visitors. We will be glad when the pretty spring weather comes, so that more can attend to hear these fine sermons.

We are proud to say that our Sunday school is getting along just fine. We have Sunday school every Sunday morning when the weather permits. We reorganized our Christian Endeavor last Sunday night. We give a program Sunday night. All that served on the program carried out their parts well. We hope that there will be more to join later.

Our Ladies' Aid is still working. We meet every other Wednesday afternoon. We are proud to say that our Aid has been a lot of help to our church.

There has been a good bit of sickness in our community this winter, and we are proud to say that most of the ones who have been on the sick list are improving.

Kannapolis.—Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Love and son, Harold, of Connelly Springs, and Mrs. N. F. Harris, of Kannapolis, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. X. E. Grayson on Monday, February 18. We enjoyed having them with us and want them to come again.

The church work is going on nicely. A different system is used in Sunday school, each class having charge of the Sunday school worship at different times. Miss Mell Muse's class was in charge Sunday, February 24. A very interesting reading was given on the lesson by Miss Ruth Marshall, and a poem, "Jesus," by Miss Zula Carter. On next Sunday the various assistants will have charge of the classes. This is really interesting to have different ways of worship each Sunday.

Our Sunday school is growing some and we miss the old members, and want them to come back and be with us. Always glad to see new faces.

Our pastor, Rev. Aubert Smith, was absent last Sunday. He went with the debating team of High Point College to Chicago and we hope he enjoyed his trip very much. In his absence we had the privilege of having Rev. Mr. Moser, also a student of High Point College, to preach for us. Glad to have him and invite him to come again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Lisk and daughter, Miss Coleen Lisk, of Concord, were last week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. X. E. Grayson. We are always glad to have them with us. It was a pleasure to see Miss Ollie Sloop back at church Sunday following an operation at Statesville. Glad to report Mrs. D. B. Cartner improving. Miss Johnsie Hampton is reported doing nicely following an appendicitis operation in Charlotte. We hope for these a speedy recovery.

Mission Band, Gideon's Grove Church.—The regular monthly meeting of the Mission Band of Gideon's Grove church, Flat Rock charge, was held last Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The devotional service was conducted by Orelia Friddle. The Scripture lesson was read by Maurice Gordon, and Doris Lemmons led in prayer. This was followed by a very interesting program. The contest between the Reds and Blues collecting dimes for the parsonage painting fund, which started at the February meeting, was closed. Reports were made by the boys and girls and the Reds won by collecting the largest amount. The total amount collected during the contest was $30.75. The amount in the regular treasury is $11.17, making a total of $41.92 as a fund for painting the parsonage.

There were 30 members and two visitors present for the meeting. We now have 39 members. The next meeting will be held at the home of Doris Lemmons on the first Saturday afternoon in April.

Efland, Orange Charge.—Several things worthy of note have happened since our last report.

Our pastor continues to bring us splendid messages.

A number of our sick folks have sufficiently recovered to be back in church and others are improving.

The brunswick stew dinner served by the Williams Circle was quite a success, netting us about $25.

The Woman's Auxiliary held a splendid meeting in the church last Wednesday p. m. "The Mite Box Convention," a playlet, was used in the program and we found that they do not like to be neglected. We hope they have a more cheerful convention next year. Mr. Williams, our pastor, met with us and brought a message from the General Conference concerning our work. This was enjoyed by all. Mrs. E. S. Taylor read a message from Mrs. Hammer concerning our work for the close of the missionary year. It was decided to use the money in the treasury to finish paying our budget.

Each circle gave a good report on their work. Circle No. 2 is planning a silver social for the near future. Circle No. 1 is raising their part on the church debt by gifts from friends. It was a pleasure to those present to see them turn these gifts in to the treasurer. One of the oldest in years but youngest in spirit and usefulness was Mrs. J. H. Murray, who had collected the largest amount.

Christian Endeavor is improving, but as yet we have not enrolled as many members as we hope to. A very interesting program on "Forgiveness" was led by Miss Mable Sykes Sunday evening. Our surprise committee brought us a very enjoyable surprise. Misses Evelyn and Rozelle Nicholson, accompanied by Miss Velma Sykes, all of Burlington, favored us with several beautiful selections. We hope to have them with us again.

We have heard a number of very favorable comments recently on Bro. Bethea's articles. I am sure these are enjoyed by all who read them, especially those who know Bro. Bethea, and what M. P. does not?

Baltimore, West Forsyth Charge.—Rev. G. B. Ferree filled his regular appointment at the 11 o'clock service. Our interest in Sunday school is very good. We had 87 present last Sunday. The work on the Sunday school rooms is progressing very slowly. Some lumber has been sawed, also several folks have given donations.

Baltimore paid its full quota of the McCulloch Memorial Fund, which was $6.50.

On the first Sunday in April the Lord's Supper will be observed at the regular preaching hour. We also want to raise our part of the church extension work, which will be $6.25.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets with Mrs. T. L. Long on Saturday at 2:30 before the third Sunday in March.

Bess Chapel.—March may be an odd time of the year to take an inventory, but I am going to give our readers one from this church.

One of the greatest liabilities is low morale. This has come to many churches and people as a result of the panicky days since 1929. I feel that there is a different feeling on the part of most of these people and all are looking for better days.

A second liability here is the church debt. This represents a small percentage of the church value, but it has been borne for several years and many have been discouraged as a result of this debt. The members have been paying a very high rate of interest on the money due and this has taken a great deal of the money raised. Several plans for raising this in full were suggested at the first business meeting and prospects are good for cleaning this up during the year.

There have been other minor difficulties of a local nature that have hindered our church. These are not a result of any failure on the part of people or pastors, and these unlikely to cause much trouble.

I feel that the assets of this church far overbalance any liabilities here. I list some of these.

The church building is one of the nicest and most comfortable of any of our country churches. It is modern, well equipped, and well suited for worship. Many city congregations would be proud to own this church. The church is located in the middle of our membership. One may go out in any direction from Bess Chapel and find Methodist Protestants at almost every home.

Our people here are just as substantial as any to be found in the conference. Most of them own their own farms and are here to stay. This is as good farming section as is found near here.

The greatest asset at Bess Chapel is the type of leaders and young people in the church. We have in this congregation almost a dozen college men and women and teachers in our local public schools. All our young people are taking advantage of a local high school and if the church is able to use these in its program it is bound to go forward. One would have to go a long ways before finding another country church with as capable leaders as this one.

Last and greatest of all, the church has one of the livest women's organizations to be found. This group sets the pace for most of the others in the church. These women raise their part of church finances and do many other worthwhile things. On last Sunday the women's organization had complete charge of the church service and the program was one that any pastor would be proud to have presented. The pastor will have to do some hard work to have a service that will hold the interest like the service did on last Sunday. Truly, there is a great future for this church, once it finds its strength.

Laurel Hill, Fallston Charge.—The Woman's Auxiliary held its monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, February 14, at the home of Mrs. W. C. Hull. The meeting was called to order by the president and opened with a song. The Scripture was read by Florence Sain. Mrs. H. F. Fogleman had charge of the program. Mrs. Lucy Brackett read an interesting story on "The Brave Hunchback." Another story, "The Mite Box," was read by Miss Wilma Hull. The minutes of last meeting were read and roll called by the secretary, Mrs. W. D. Miller.

The apron contest which the auxiliary had been conducting for a month closed. The members were divided into two groups, blue and white, and pink and white groups. The losers were to entertain the winners. After the patches were torn off the aprons and the money counted, the pinks had $63.58 and the blues had $87.67, making a total of $151.25.

Members of the pink apron entertained the blues at the home of Mrs. A. B. Willis Friday night, February 22. The supper was served plate style by Mrs. A. B. Willis, Mrs. E. A. Brackett and Mrs. E. T. Sain. Miss Vangie Willis and Mrs. E. T. Sain led the guests in a number of contests. Mrs. W. D. Miller scored highest in the contests. String music was furnished by Paul Sain, J. C. Cook and Cecil Boyles.

The church will be covered presently. The shingles have already been bought and hauled to the church. There is also going to be some inside painting done immediately after the church is covered.

Siler City.—Our Siler City reporter, Mrs. Cooper, is sick and I am reporting for her. Also I will report a bit for the pastor. During the Christmas season the pastor received a Christmas gift from this church of about $12. It was much appreciated, though it is reported late. Quite a number of our people have been sick, but at the present most of them are on their feet again. Miss Sallie Smith, who has been confined to her bed for several weeks, caused by a fall, is slowly recovering. We hope to have her back in the congregation before many more Sundays. One of our members, Bro. Johnson, has been called from earth to heaven.

Our prayer meetings were called off for the winter season but start the first Wednesday night in March. The C. E. Society is doing good work. Our Sunday school is prospering under the leadership of Bro. Sharpe. We have organized in Siler City church for Siler City charge the Layman's Fellowship. There seems to be quite a bit of interest in this step and we hope much good may be accomplished by it. The first Sunday in March at 2 o'clock Bro. J. G. Rogers came down and delivered a helpful address to the Fellowship on its purposes and how to carry on. Hope our good reporter will be able to handle the pen for us the next time. Enough for this time.

Matthews Chapel, Greensville Charge.—Just a brief report for fear you folks may think we have quit the job, but it's neglect of the reporter.

On last Sunday afternoon our church was favored by a visit from Dr. Andrews, president of North Carolina Conference. He brought, as usual, a wonderful message, "Living the Christian Life." We are always glad to have Dr. Andrews with us. Come again.

On the third Sunday morning at 11 o'clock Rev. J. M. Morgan, of High Point, will fill the usual appointment. A large crowd is expected, as Bro. Morgan served this charge several years ago and has many friends here who will be glad to see and hear him again. Since the resignation of Pastor Joyner, Dr. Andrews informs us that Rev. Eugene Lamb will come to us the first of May for the remainder of the conference year.

The second quarterly conference was held at Philadelphia church Saturday night last, Dr. Andrews presiding.

Our Sunday school is doing nicely in spite of the bad weather and much sickness, measles, mumps, and flu. We have had quite an epidemic.

The friends of Mrs. Horace Clarke will be glad to learn that she is now home from hospital, much improved after a long illness with pleurisy.

Marjorie Wren, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Teso Wren, Ann Edwards, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Edwards, and also Zelma Moore, baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore, are recovering from an illness of pneumonia.

In the early morning of January 24 Murray Ellis, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Ellis, was taken away. He was sick only four days with pneumonia. Murray was 12 years of age. He united with this church about two years ago. He is greatly missed in our Sunday school and church, attending as regularly as the superintendent, always on time. He was interested in his class and lessons, winning several prizes through the Sunday school. Amid a throng of surrounding friends and relatives he was laid to rest in the church cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Pastor Joyner. We extend to the parents and one brother our sympathy.

He was kind and thoughtful in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.

Love's Grove, Midland Charge.—We are not asleep down here but we are working in God's vineyard, trying to do our mite. Our Sunday school is progressing fine with good attendance and good collections and good discussions on the lesson. Brother Trolinger is liked fine. We have put on a campaign to raise the Annual Conference claims in March with two captains to choose the members of the church, both sides represented by two autos on a chart to see which reaches the goal first. We started Sunday with one side $6 and the other $5.65. We are going to put it over during this month, praying God's guidance that we might do our best for His cause. Brethren, come on and do your best for we do just about enough to make ourselves miserable. Let all get out of the old rut and do something for our Lord, who has done so much for us and who has promised if we would bring the tithes into his storehouse he would open the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing upon us, that there would not be room to receive it. We are looking forward to the second Sunday when our president, Brother Andrews, will be with us at 11 o'clock.

We would like for Brother Reed and also Brother F. R. Love to visit us soon as there is a warm place for them here. I would like to hear from the other churches, how they are getting along on conference caims and Herald subscriptions.

We have raised our allotment for the McCulloch Memorial Fund as you saw in the Herald. JOHN N. SMITH.

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Vickery, filled his appointment at this church yesterday. At the 11 o'clock service he brought us a very good message.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely. We hope to have more attend when the weather gets warmer and the folks get well of flu. There has been lots of sickness in the community. Mrs. Bettie Insco, our oldest member, continues very ill at her home in Roanoke Rapids. If she lives to see May 17 she will be 95 years old.

We were glad to have Mr. Tom Carter from Vaughan and Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Knight from Warrenton worship with us yesterday.

Coming as a surprise to the community was the marriage of Miss Florine Smith, of Kittrell, N. C., to Mr. Claude Bobbitt, which took place at the home of the bride at Kittrell Thursday, February 28, at 12 o'clock noon. Mr. Bobbitt is our Sunday school secretary. We wish for them a long life of true happiness and success and we extend to Mrs. Bobbitt a hearty welcome in our church and Sunday school. Mr. and Mrs. Bobbitt returned last night after spending their honeymoon in Washington, D. C.

The second quarterly conference will be held at Littleton church Saturday before the fourth Sunday in March at 2 p. m., which will be March 23. All official members please be present.

Flat Rock Charge.—A special service has been arranged for next Sunday afternoon at Flat Rock church. Rev. W. A. Way, cousin of the pastor, and pastor of the Pilgrim Holiness church, Greensboro, will preach. A group of singers from his church will render sacred music during the service. These people have been presenting Sunday afternoon broadcasts over radio station WBIG, Greensboro, for the past two years. The service will begin at 3:15 o'clock, and a large congregation is expected to be present to hear the radio preacher and singers.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge.—Our Sunday school attendance was splendid through the winter months. Now spring is almost here and we are hoping for a better attendance than ever before.

Rev. R. L. Hethcox delivered a splendid message Sunday morning on Christian stewardship; the sermon was direct from the Bible and was understood by the whole congregation.

The young ladies have finished the quilt started by our former pastor's wife, Mrs. G. B. Ferree. They raised $30.20 on it. It's now ready to sell.

The Young Ladies' Class has read a good portion of the Bible since last September.

LEONA HENDRIX, Reporter.

Denton.—Sunday, March 3, was a red letter day for our church, especially for our young woman's auxiliary. The thank-offering service was held Sunday evening. This was the first appearance of our young organization before the church. The program was as follows: Prelude; call to worship; hymn by congregation; devotional: Scripture, Betty Loftin; prayer, Mr. Bowman; introduction of speakers and talks by missionaries: Japan, Miss Olive Hodges, Miss Blanche Hoover; China, Mrs. Soderbom, Mrs. Mose Sexton; India, Dr. Edyth Lacy, Mrs. Grayson Lomax; Pine Ridge, Mrs. M. O. Everett, Marjorie Cranford; Dillonvale, Hrs. Hazel Greenwald, Kate Sexton; special music, "My Task," by Mrs. J. T. Bowman; offering and candlelighting ceremony; doxology and benediction.

Next Sunday the young woman's auxiliary will have charge of Sunday school. Although the organization is young and the members are inexperienced in the work, they are striving for bigger and better things and trying to do their part in carrying on the work of our Lord.

Each Wednesday night we have prayer meeting, a service which is very inspiring and helpful. So many of our young people attend and take part in these services. We urge all who can to come and meet with us. Mrs. A. L. Hill, the class leader, sees that we have an efficient leader at each service.

Beginning with prayer meeting Wednesday night, March 6, all evening services will begin 30 minutes later.

The Sunday school decided that they would put forth every effort possible to comply with Dr. Dixon's request. Our offering, to be sent to the Home, was $12.

REPORTER.

Brower's Chapel, Richland Charge.—Rev. M. C. Henderson filled his regular appointment last fourth Sunday morning. It seems that each of his sermons are a little better than the preceding one, although they have all been wonderful.

Last fourth Sunday morning Miss Annie Ingold, Mrs. K. L. Winningham, Mr. C. L. Winningham, and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stultz joined our church. Our Sunday school is gradually increasing and we hope it will continue to grow during the coming spring and summer months.

Misses Mabel, Carrie and Pauline Burrows were joint hostesses to the members of the Young People's Society last Friday night. There were 19 members and five visitors present. After the program and business hour, delicious refreshments were served. Our pastor's interest does not end in the pulpit, but he and his family are interested and take active part in the Ladies' Aid, the Young People's Society and various other interests of the church. The next young people's meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Bonkemeyer.

CLETA MAE RAGSDALE, Reporter.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—The work is still progressing. Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, is doing some good preaching. The last two sermons have been exceptions, it seems. The evidence of more spirituality has been shown through these worship services. On February 17 he preached on "The Deceitfulness of Pleasure," truly facing facts as they exist today, which is fair warning for all who will take heed. On March 3 he preached on "Walking With God." Walk not before nor after God, but with God. To walk with God we must be near, obey and have fellowship with God. Life with its problems could be made much easier if we only walked with God.

The C. E. Society of Shiloh, with 50 members, is doing a fine work under the leadership of Mr. Protus Koonts. The lessons recently studied are requiring more Bible reading and study. Read your Bible daily and study it more frequently and prayerfull. The society has been divided into six groups as is our custom, with chairmen as follows: No. 1, Homer Sink; No. 2, Jones Leonard; No. 3, Frank Shoaf; No. 4, Miss Naomi Swicegood; No. 5, Miss Mildred Sink; No. 6, Miss Arlene Berrier. These groups are soliciting pledges to make up our budget of $150 accepted by the society for the year.

The three circles of our Woman's Auxiliary are doing a good work. The auxiliary meeting was held Sunday afternoon and new officers elected. We are hoping this year will be one of worthwhile accomplishments for the Master. Space will not permit a detailed report of its work.

The Workers' Council held its regular meeting at the church Monday night when church activities were reported. Important business was transacted, which in fuller detail will probably appear in our next report.

So while we continue to work let us not forget to pray that the leaders who have such a great responsibility will be led by the Spirit, that whatever is done may be for the glory of God.

Draper.—It has been some time since there has been a report from Draper, but this is no sign that we are idle. The work is going fine, and the masons have the walls of the church up and the rafters up and we are hoping they will be able to let us get back in the church for Sunday school next Sunday. We have been having Sunday school at the parsonage for the past few Sundays. We are hoping and praying that the weather will be good this week so they can get the roof on.

We will have a good church building, one that will take care of the needs of this community for some time to come.

Bro. Pastor and Superintendent of each Sunday school, will you take an offering at each of your churches and schools and send to the writer at Draper, N. C. We have a fine group of people here and they are making a great sacrifice in order to build a house of worship. They are going beyond their pledge for the tithes. They are going down in their pockets besides. If the churches will help us a little, we will appreciate it.

We are looking forward to the opening service the first Sunday in April. Dr. Andrews will be with us and preach at 11 o'clock. Pray for us.

L. S. HELMS, Pastor.

Kernersville.—Sunday was such a lovely day and our Sunday school attendance was splendid. The evening church service was well attended also. The evening hour for church service is now 7:30 o'clock.

We are very thankful that our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, has entirely recovered from his recent illness which was due to injuries received in an automobile accident December 23. Last Sunday evening he preached an excellent sermon.

We enjoyed our work last year with Rev. and Mrs. Williams. We were very grateful to have them return for another year's work and with these two good people as our leaders we are hoping to accomplish much during the remainder of this year.

Our prayer service and choir practice is held each Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Ladies' Aid Society recently served a George Washington dinner to the Woman's Club members with their husbands. The proceeds amounted to $25.

Those previously reported as ill are now recovered, with the exception of Mrs. Marshall, who remains a shut-in at her home.

Those who attended the funeral services of Mr. William Crutchfield, held at the Christian church near Oak Ridge Sunday afternoon, were: Rev. O. B. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Ragland and Paul Butner.

Mr. Crutchfield will be remembered by former pastors of this charge for his activity in the Sunday school of Ai church.

MRS. PAUL BUTNER.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Our dear pastor, Mr. Williams, filled his appointment fourth Sunday at 3 p. m. with a very good congregation present, considering the cold weather and rough roads. He preached a helpful sermon, which he always does.

Our Sunday school has gone into winter quarters, I am sorry to say. Hope it will soon open up again, so everyone can be back in Sunday school again, for Sunday school is needed so much. Our auxiliary met after preaching service with 12 present. Mr. Williams gave us a short but interesting talk on temperance, which was helpful to the auxiliary. Our auxiliary seems to be moving along nicely under our dear leader, Miss Tressa Sykes. She sure seems to be doing her part. If lots more would only co-operate and help her to push forward, how much easier it would be for her.

First Church, Lexington.—In the absence of the pastor, Rev. C. G. Isley, who filled his regular first Sunday appointment at Mount Carmel, James Crouse conducted the 11 o'clock service. His text was taken from II Peter 3:18, "But grow in grace." Mr. Crouse expects to enter into the study of the ministry next fall.

At the evening service we were pleased to have with us the Cooleemee quartet and Mr. Parker, soloist. Mr. Shelton, who has charge of the quartet, spoke to us on the subject "A Great Salvation." His text, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation; which at first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him," was found in Heb. 2:3. We enjoyed having these people with us and hope they will come again.

We are sorry to report the death of two of our members, Paul Lumsden, who passed away February 14, and Mr. George Jones, February 23. Both funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Isley. Interment for Mr. Lumsden was at Shiloh and for Mr. Jones at Ossipee. The bereaved have our deepest sympathy.

Elbaville, Mocksville Charge.—Our Sunday school is doing good work. The attendance Sunday morning was splendid. Much interest is being taken in the school. Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox, delivered to his hearers Sunday morning a delightful sermon, which was enjoyed by all. His text was the 41st verse of the 12th chapter of Mark, "And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast money into the treasury: and many that were rich cast in much."

We will meet the third Saturday of this month at Bethel to hold our second quarterly conference.

The young people of this church will meet with the pastor Friday night at Elbaville church to reorganize the Christian Endeavor Society for the young people. The young people are planning a program for one Sunday in the near future.

We wish to invite one and all to our church services. Our doors are open and we are always ready to welcome you. We wish to invite our former pastor, Rev. Mr. G. B. Ferree, back to our community and back to our church. May God bless him and his family. We thank God for sending Rev. Mr. R. L. Hethcox to fill Rev. Mr. Ferree's place.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—Mrs. W. A. Stafford entertained the Business Girls' Circle of Mt. Pleasant church at their February meeting Saturday night, February 23. Miss Ola Stafford conducted the devotional service and Miss Margaret Causey discussed the chapter in the study book on "International Relations in Japan." A duet was given by Mrs. H. F. Amick and Miss Rebecca W. Causey. During the business session the group was divided into two groups to take part in a contest for getting Methodist Protestant Herald subscriptions, Misses Callene Phillips and Margaret Causey being the leaders.

The George Washington note was carried out in the refreshments of cherry pie with whipped cream and coffee which were served by Mrs. Stafford and Mrs. H. L. Phillips. An old clothes sale and parlor games added fun to the social session, the purchases being worn by the buyers after the sale. Mrs. H. F. Amick will be hostess at the March meeting of the circle.

Mt. Hermon Charge.—Another surprise met the pastor and his wife at Mt. Hermon church on the first Sunday afternoon in February. When we went to the car to go to the Alamance community for the service at the Alamance church that night, we found the car so full of articles that there was not a place to sit on the seat. After rearranging the packages, we had to come by Mrs. Whitehead's home in Burlington. The check-up revealed many useful things too numerous to mention. The articles included towels, dishes, cooking utensils, bed linen and two quilts made by the auxiliary of the church, etc. Thank you, Mt. Hermon.

At the first of February we set out to work on Herald subscriptions, Herald subsidy, and the McCulloch Memorial Fund. The result so far has been ten subscriptions for the Herald, subsidy paid in full by Mt. Hermon, Friendship and Belmont, and $68.90 paid on McCulloch Memorial Fund, with $13.50 additional in pledges, which leaves only $18 to raise. We hope to raise this amount soon. Cedar Cliff is on the McCulloch Memorial Fund honor roll.

Twelve of the members of the charge are giving the tithe for the months of February, March and April. To date these have turned in $43.21, which has been turned over to various Annual Conference interests and World Service.

Last Sunday afternoon we had the young people's choir from West End, Greensboro, with us at Mt. Hermon church. They gave us a very splendid program under the direction of Mr. L. M. Foust. This is a very fine organization of a group of fine young people. They are making a great deal of progress in their work. A former pastor wishes them well in their undertakings. We hope they can be with us again sometime soon. We were glad to have Bro. and Mrs. Bethea and several of the West End members with us in the service Sunday afternoon.

T. J. WHITEHEAD.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—Since the last write-up for the paper we have put new flooring in our church at Mill Grove. It not only makes it more comfortable but it looks so much better too.

We raised $34 on our Annual Conference budget last Sunday, March 3. Our goal for the church is $50 and we hope to raise the balance of $16 during the month of March. We have a very interesting program on hand to raise this money. Brother Trolinger, our pastor, is the inventor of this interesting program. Any church desiring to know how it is run write Brother J. H. Trolinger, Midland, N. C., and he will give you an outline of how it is done. It would take too much space here to explain it. I say one thing, it has caused our folks to take an interest in collections for the church that have never seemed to be interested before. I believe every church should try the plan. We are still having our Wednesday night Bible lessons. I am sure that the few that have been attending have gotten lots of benefit out of it, and will continue to get still more in the future. We urge all denominations to come and be with us each Wednesday night at 7:30.

The parsonage is being screened this week. We are making screen frames that can be removed when necessary. Am sure when they are painted and finished they will be well worth their while, and also make the building look better. Sunday afternoon our Sunday school will be at 2 o'clock, then the president of our conference, Dr. Andrews, will preach for us. We invite everybody to come and hear this wonderful sermon we know he will preach to us. This is Sunday, March 10; don't forget the date.

L. W. McCOY, Reporter.

English Street-West Thomasville.—Most of those who read this report are familiar with the fact that this is a new charge composed of West Thomasville and English Street. At the last Annual Conference I was assigned to this new charge. I was not a total stranger to the people of these churches. Several years ago I organized English Street church, and some years later I assisted in a revival at West Thomasville. I was glad to see old friends and to know that they were still standing for the faith.

We were kindly received and have received many tokens of kindness since becoming pastor of these good people. We found well-organized C. E. societies in both churches. The good women have Ladies' Aid societies in each church. These organizations are doing splendid work. There is a splendid spirit of co-operation in evidence in every department of the church.

The English Street people are faced with the necessity of building a new church. The old church was sold some months ago. They have a splendid location on Barker and Adam streets. On February 3 they voted to change the name of their church to Rankin Memorial. This is in honor of Capt. A. M. Rankin, who is well known throughout our church. This decision has met with the hearty approval of his many friends. We are now trying to start building. A number of hands are busy moving dirt for the basement of our new church. These people need your help. Pray for them as they enter into this task.

Pleasant Grove.—On Sunday, March 3, Mr. Clarence Robbins, secretary of the Sunday school, made his monthly report for February. He stated in his report the average collection was $6, average attendance 137, visitors for the month 32, and new members for the month 7. It is hoped the Sunday school will continue to improve.

Rev. H. L. Powell brought an interesting message at the 11 o'clock service. His theme was, "Things Which Are Better Than Money." His text was taken from Acts 3:6. Mr. Powell hopes to talk to the children each Sunday for at least three Sundays between now and Easter.

MORE M. P.'S HONORED

Brothers D. E. Curtis and C. F. Garrett, both members of Calvary church, have been elected vice president and treasurer, respectively, of the Greensboro Postoffice Employes' Association.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Finch

Mrs. Pearl Breeze Finch, wife of Clarence S. Finch, prominent business man of Henderson, N. C., died at her home at 129 Belle Street Sunday evening, February 17, after a week's illness with influenza and pneumonia.

The deceased was a member of Mt. Carmel Methodist Protestant church, having joined there with her husband soon after their marriage. She had been a faithful member of this church for more than 20 years. She had served as church organist for the past 10 years, and was also a member of the Woman's Auxiliary of her church.

Mrs. Finch was held in high esteem by all who knew her, and she will be missed by the churches and people of Henderson, as well as by her own church. The deceased is survived by her husband, C. S. Finch; three boys, Stewart, Robert and Charles Walker Finch, and by two daughters, Misses Ruth and Hazel Finch, and her mother, three brothers and three sisters.

The funeral services were held at the home on Monday, February 18, at 3:30 p. m. by the writer, assisted by Rev. L. R. Medlin, pastor of the M. P. church in Henderson, after which the body was laid to rest in Elmwood cemetery.

The crowd was estimated by many to be the largest that has ever attended a funeral in Henderson, and I have never seen as many beautiful floral designs. The large crowd and many beautiful floral designs were an evidence of respect and high esteem in which she was held.

We commend the bereaved family and relatives to Him who is able to keep that which is committed to His care.

C. L. SPENCER, Pastor.

Finch

It is with loving, sympathethic hearts that we, the members of Mount Carmel Missionary Society, pause in memory of our beloved member, Mrs. C. S. Finch, who passed away February 17. We will always remember her as one whose radiance reflected a cheerful, lovable disposition, and whose everyday life revealed a character unsurpassed. Her life, so sweetly lived, will be an example for her children and all who knew her.

CALVARY	87½

Now, all you folks who said it could not be done, put on your spectacles and get your eyes and ears open and look at the head of this column this week. In the matter of percentages and in the amount of money, West End in Greensboro simply walks away with the show. West End went so far beyond the goal that it reminds us of the colored boys who got so badly frightened at a ghost that when they arrived at the gate leading to their home they were running so fast they could not stop, so they ran on down the lane, slowed down, stopped and came home.

But while we are raving over West End, don't you forget to look at Yarborough also. That hundred per cent is just as big as any hundred per cent that has been turned in at this office.

Well, congratulations to Mrs. Stockard, the Herald agent at West End, and Dr. Bethea, the pastor; also to Rev. K. G. Holt, the young pastor down at Yarborough. Calvary climbed a little this week but she had to take third place. But she is still in the running.

And look in the receipts column and see that fine payment by Ray Leatherman at Shiloh, also that by Rev. G. B. Ferree, of the West Forsyth charge. A lot of other places did well, but we cannot mention all of them here. Charlotte gets a star for subsidy this week. Fine, Mrs. Little!

What are the receipts? $102.26 on subscriptions and $19.50 on subsidy, making a total of $121.76.

First Church, Burlington, Launches Herald Campaign

Those who are interested in the HERALD Campaign will watch with a great deal of interest the campaign which is to be put on in Burlington next week to put the HERALD in the homes of all our people there. This campaign will be launched by the pastor, Dr. F. W. Paschal, on Sunday, and the first of the week Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, who is assisting pastors and HERALD agents, will go to Burlington to push the campaign during the week.

Our First Church at Burlington is one of the outstanding churches in our Conference. It was organized, we believe, in 1892, by Rev. W. F. McDowell. Throughout its years it has had an honorable career. Very few of our churches have received more members in the same length of time than has this church. It now has the largest number of members on roll of any church in the North Carolina Annual Conference, the number reported to the last Conference being 732. The Sunday school enrollment is also the largest in the Conference, this being reported as 600.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH AND PARSONAGE.
BURLINGTON, N. C.

Part of the auditorium of this building is the original one; however, in 1911 a Sunday school building was erected with about a dozen rooms, which has helped wonderfully in housing the large number of people who go there for instruction. When the Editor of the HERALD went to this church as pastor at the close of 1915, there was an indebtedness of several thousand dollars, caused by the erection of this Sunday school building. After a year or two the congregation decided it was not going to pay the debt through the Building and Loan as it was originally planned to do, so a campaign was launched and at the Sunday morning service more than enough was pledged to wipe out the entire indebtedness of the church. Other improvements were made on the building. During the pastorate of Dr. S. W. Taylor a large and commodious hut was erected at the rear of the church. This has been extensively used for classes and for social purposes. But the congregation still feels that it needs a new building, and during the pastorate of Dr. L. W. Gerringer a large lot with house on it was purchased across the street from the present property. Some of these days we expect to see a building erected that will meet the needs of this growing congregation for years to come.

The church has for its pastor Dr. F. W. Paschal, who easily ranks as one of the outstanding preachers of our Conference. He is popular with his people, and the church has steadily gone forward under his ministry. With such an able pastor and such a loyal, noble people, it is not difficult to forecast continued success for this church.

Several years ago, while the present editor of the HERALD was pastor there, he sent to the HERALD what Dr. McCulloch said was the largest check that he ever received on subscriptions, the amount being a little above one hundred and twenty dollars. We trust that this same church will break its own record next week and send in such a large number of subscriptions that it will inspire every other charge in the Conference.

The Church and Peace

On Monday evening of this week we were privileged to attend the first regular meeting of the Guilford County Peace League which was held in the dining room of the Masonic Temple in Greensboro. Following the banquet with the usual trimmings, we listened to a very illuminating address on International Relations by Dr. Elbert Russell, dean of the School of Religion at Duke University. Dr. Russell is well qualified to speak on the subject of International Relations, inasmuch as he has recently returned from a trip to Europe where he has studied the subject from the point of view of the people over there. In his address, Dr. Russell reminded us of some things that we already knew, among them being this, that no nation that goes to war wins. She may be considered the winner, but in the end she loses. There was a time that an army could go out, kill, plunder, and bring home the spoils and count the value of that which it won, but not so now. The thing that all the nations are looking for now is a market in which to sell their products, and when a nation is crushed she is no longer able to buy even if she has the disposition to buy. When the nation cannot sell its goods, unemployment is the result, so the nation that wins is as badly effected by the war as the nation that loses.

Dr. Russell considers that our own preparations for war on such a large scale is very dangerous. He says that if we outdistance the rest of the nations in preparations, they in turn will form alliances for their own protection. While we feel that our nation would never be the aggressor and would never want to use its war material on others, he says we are the only people in the world who feel that way about us.

But we started out to write about the Church and Peace. This brings to our mind the thought that the church ought to be in the very front ranks of those who are working for peace. Christ was spoken of as the Prince of Peace. When one studies the life and teachings of Christ it is difficult to harmonize these with war. War must be hateful to Christ. And it ought to be hateful to Christians. It is significant that the president of the Guilford County Peace League is a minister of the gospel, Rev. Reid Wall. In the meeting Monday evening were a number of the leading religious leaders of Guilford county. We trust this movement for peace, along with the many other things that are working for peace, may be effective in creating sentiment against war.

OUR OBLIGATION

Unless the postman brings me some money in this morning's (Tuesday's) mail, and I shall not finish this report until he comes, this week's receipts are going to be nigh to nothing. There may be two or three reasons for that. I suspect a good many of the brethren hustled around to get the money in so their churches would get in my tabulated report. Then, last Sunday was a rainy day—or at least it was here in Winston—and I guess that slowed up the collection. But those are excuses rather than reasons for the failure of a good many of our churches to respond to this appeal and opportunity. I am heading this article, "Our Obligation." It is just that. An obligation assumed, as the McCulloch Memorial Fund was assumed, by the Annual Conference, becomes, by that assumption, an obligation resting upon every church in the Conference. It rests upon all and each. We have tried to make it weigh, as far as we had knowledge, with equal weight; but in doing so we had to take into consideration more than mere numbers. We had to try to size up willingness and ability along with numbers. That accounts for some discrepancies and differences in amounts, one charge with another.

One of the fine things about this campaign so far has been the response of some churches to that obligation. They have not kicked at the size of the amount asked for. (There has been only one complaint that the committee knows of.) On the contrary, they have set to the task of raising the amount asked of them. And I think they have raised it because they have seen it not as an obligation, but as an opportunity.

Now, a word especially to those who are undertaking to raise their apportionments. If it will make it easier for you to secure pledges to be paid, say, in ninety days, we will have pledge forms printed for your use. We don't want to add anything to the expense of this campaign more than is absolutely necessary; so we will not have them printed unless they are asked for. If you think they will help you put it over in your church, write me for the number you want.

As I think I have said before, the certificates are on the way to being printed. The work has been held up in the hope of securing a more suitable photograph from which to make a cut of Dr. McCulloch. As soon as that is secured, the printing will be done, and the certificates mailed to the pastors of the churches entitled to them.

The receipts stand as follows:

Previously reported	$ 968.82
Sapling Ridge, Alamance	7.75
Winston, First (additional)	5.25
Thomasville, First (additional)	4.00
Grace, Greensboro	10.00
Hebron, Orange	12.00
Chestnut Ridge, Orange (additional)	5.50
Total to date	$1,013.32

Well, we're beyond the first $1,000. I hope we'll get the second sooner than we got the first. I'd like to see some new churches in this list. I'm a bit disappointed that they have not yet put in an appearance. But they'll surprise us one of these days, and make up for lost time. A good many tell me they are working on it. Some have it underwritten. The replies to the question in Dr. Andrews' questionnaire would indicate that only a very few have so far made no effort to collect it. But, in whichever list you belong, get busy, and send it in. Thanks.

C. W. Bates, Chairman.

Dean Lindley Finishes Series

Those who have followed Dr. P. E. Lindley in his Notes on Preaching which has been a weekly feature of the Herald for several months will regret to know that he is finishing the series with this week. We wish here to express to Dr. Lindley the sincere appreciation of the Herald for this very fine series of articles. Being a teacher in a college, Dr. Lindley doubtless finds it necessary to keep abreast of the times; however, a man who has the enquiring mind that he has will not need any compulsion to keep up with the best. With him study is a habit. We trust he will decide to give us another series from his fertile mind.

Mr. Wills Goes to Meeting of Commissions on Church Union

Brother J. Norman Wills, of Greensboro, is in Louisville, Kentucky, this week, attending a meeting of the Commissions on Church Union of the Methodist Protestant Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

NOTES ON PREACHING

By P. E. Lindley

Holding the Attention

One of the criticisms most often heard about preaching is that it is not interesting. The hearers do not find the message spellbinding or even attractive enough to hold their attention. Much of the blame, to be sure, lies in the type of listeners, while even more of the difficulty is to be found in the manner of speaking itself.

It is, of course, no easy matter to produce a speech interesting and gripping enough to sway an audience these days when every form of entertainment, from the movies down, is professionalized and intensified to the highest point of efficiency. On this question of holding attention the pulpit is is competition with the stage, the radio, and the screen. The pastor faces the same people on Sundays that have been charmed during the week by the finest artists the country can boast, and even though his appeal is along a different line, still he must employ many of the same techniques used by the professional entertainers, in comparison with whom his own skill shows up rather roughly.

Thus it is to be seen that the minister plays a tough role, and he must needs qualify himself the best that in him lies to measure up to the requirements. He must be a good attention-holder; he must have, or develop, the art of being interesting. And it is to be remembered that "art is long and time is fleeting," and that this capacity will not be reached without special thought and care.

Fortunately, however, there are several practical ways open for improvement along this line. Helpful suggestions can be found if one looks for them, and any person who is qualified to be a minister in the first place can, I think, acquaint himself with some of these principles and follow them to the intensifying of his appeal. A few of these simple laws of motivation will be listed as follows:

1. Be dramatic and sensational. Resort to the spectacular. Use words and actions that are beyond the ordinary. This method is, of course, vulgar and really has no place in the Christian pulpit. Flowing locks, flashy ties, and exciting arguments in unearthly tones belong to this crude manner of getting and holding attention. Professor Dolman calls this the fool-proof method. It is launched with such wild and vivacious tactics that attention is bound to come—people just have to look and listen. This, then, is one way to hold attention, but a very unworthy way.

2. Thorough, personal knowledge of the subject tends to draw attention. There is no substitute for mastery of the theme under discussion; we like to hear a person talk when he gives every evidence of knowing what he is talking about. In public speaking this implies wide reading, deep thought, and clear convictions. One must not fear the darts of interrogation regarding the question in hand. Rather, he should feel eager and able to give seemingly unbounded information on the subject if only time permitted. An authority in any line usually gets attention. Since none of us have actually mastered many areas of thought and experience, we, naturally, will have to limit our preaching to those truths, simple though they be, on which we are positively certain. But as time goes on we can read, study, and grow so as to be helpful in an ever-widening zone of knowledge.

3. Let the speaking be characterized by sincerity. Enthusiasm generated in the pulpit spreads over the audience. This quality in the appeal is closely associated with that named above—knowledge. Still some may have knowledge and yet lack the spirit and fire necessary to carry over to the hearers. Sincerity awakens emotions, whereas mere information only knocks at the door of the mind. Let zeal, then, permeate the message. Send out the words on the glowing wings of fervor and they will reach many a heart that is moved by the very earnestness of the appeal.

4. Stay within the experience of the group. At least establish some relationship to that experience. Notice how all attention is given to the speaker when he offers an illustration simple enough to fall within the common experience of the audience. I used to play in bands a good deal and have often observed how, when we had given what we thought was a good concert, someone would come up and ask if we could play "Old Black Joe" or "Dixie." These tunes were entirely familiar to such a person and he was wanting to hear them again; they belonged to his own experience. It is the same psychology in preaching and in listening to preaching. People are interested in that which they know something about and will easily follow the speaker so long as his thought connects well with theirs. We should learn, therefore, to simplify the discussion and so frame it as to appropriate the interest people already have in the range of the appeal. Attention is aroused when we strike the pathway along which the people have traveled before.

5. Appropriateness is another law. A speech is to be shaped to fit the occasion. This only means: Strive to utilize the thought and attention already inherent in the assembly! To introduce a subject that is all out of place is simply to violate this principle The speaker would thus fail to profit by the interest already present among the people. Try to preach the right thing at the right place. Put yourself in your hearer's place and determine as best you can what you want to hear under the same conditions. Try to be appropriate.

6. Pulpit manners may hold or detract attention. The speaker ought not stand stiff as a statue now should he pace the platform like a lion. Enough movement, dignified and easy, to prevent monotony is to be sought. Gestures in natural, graceful style are in order. With the close of any one division of the sermon the speaker should change his position on the floor. Hold attention by the proper use of your body. Facial expression is important, and one can say a great deal with his eyes. Many orators practice before a big mirror to learn how to put the best expression into their work. Actors in Hollywood, I am told, do the same thing. We want to strive to be pleasing, winning, attractive as public speakers. The manner of dress is important. The total, combined qualities of one's entire personality, moving in easy co-ordination, are needful in vocal art as the preacher enlists the interest of the audience to make a gripping, effective appeal.

MEN—GREAT AND SMALL

It is sifting time. The great crises in history have always been hours of judgment. Who is great? Who is small? In the ordinary course of human events, distinctions among men are never very obvious or clear-cut. The race simply moves on in the even tenor of its way. But let days of desperation come, when serious danger threatens us, and then we begin to discover what actually is in man. We are just emerging from such a crisis. It has its lessons. We are seeing men as they are—great and small.

Mark the small man. His condition is a sad one, though he is generally unaware of his plight. He thinks he is great. What a mercy that God withholds the truth from him, at least until he is able to bear it! The small man's basic difficulty is self-centeredness. He lives only for himself. He knows only his little circle, his little town. He is provincial. He is unable to break with the traditions. He lacks the power to scrap the specific precepts of his teachers in order to achieve their liberating spirit. He also lacks elasticity of mind, tolerance, imagination. He is wooden. He always finds the difficulty outside of himself. "What is the matter with the American people?" he cries, as he scans the election returns. He is a great advocate of peace, his own personal peace, and of comfort and of privilege. He does not want to be disturbed. He is addicted to bitterness and pessimism.

The small man is unable to see things in the large, to catch the glorious sweep of a magnificent movement, to let himself go, to take risks, to pioneer new paths. No, all this is foreign to his egotism and his selfishness. The depression has caused the small men of the world to stand out like the lines in a steel etching. We know them now for what they are.

But now look at the great man. He possesses a generous, ample spirit. He is aware of his fellow men and is able to get their points of view. He cultivates a breadth of interests and has a decent respect for human values. He never takes himself too seriously. He is no buttoned-up man. He is able to laugh heartily even at himself. He has a remarkable capacity for learning lessons out of his own experience and the history of the race. He is also characterized by a willingness to admit that he was wrong when the fact appears, and a facility for readjusting himself and his plans to changing conditions. The face of the great man is fixed toward the rising sun. He is looking toward the future, for he believes that "through the ages one increasing purpose runs." He is prepared to practice self-sacrifice if need be for the sake of the larger welfare of the race.

The great man is the man with the generous heart and the wise head. He is a good man to live with. He is the hope of the race. "God give us men"—men of large outlook, of tolerant spirit, pioneering souls who believe in God and in man! For, after all, the great man is a man of faith as against the small man, who is a man of unfaith.

Can the small man be saved? Is there any way of delivering his soul from the provincialism that dooms him to a life of personal disappointment and through him works to hamper the progress of the race? Negatively, of course the small man should be prevented as far as possible from reaching a position of influence and leadership. But on the positive side there is hope even for the small man. He may be transformed. His heart and mind may be enlarged. Let him be exposed constantly to liberalizing influences. Let him mingle with great men, for greatness is contagious. Let him read great books, especially the biographies of noble leaders who have risen above the pettiness of earth and given themselves a ransom for their fellow men. Let the small man deliberately take risks, make a few ventures, move out of his snug harbor for a voyage on the infinite sea. Let him cease to take himself so seriously. Let him do a little adventurous thinking. Above all, let the provincial learn to pray himself out of his smallness; for our God is a great God, and companionship with Him will give the soul a chance to breathe and grow and flower into spacious beauty.—Zion's Herald.

FEDERAL COUNCIL VIEW OF MEXICAN CONFLICT

Opposition to Senator Borah's resolution, which would set up a governmental inquiry into the religious situation in Mexico, was expressed by the Executive Committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in a statement adopted on March 1. The proposed investigation by the American Government was termed "an unwarranted interference with the internal affairs of another nation." At the same time, the church council went on record as strongly supporting "religious liberty for all groups both in Mexico and in every other part of the world." The text of the resolution was as follows:

"In the absence of sufficient authentic and unbiased information, we do not undertake at this time to pass judgment on various aspects of the controversy between the Mexican Government and the Church. On two points, however, our convictions are clear:

"1. We take a vigorous stand in support of religious liberty for all groups both in Mexico and in every other part of the world. We would be untrue to the genius and spirit of Protestantism were we to do otherwise. If the Mexican or any other government fails to recognize the right to full freedom for the worship of God and for religious teaching, it will forfeit the respect of all who understand the indispensable place of religion in both personal and national life.

"2. We record our strong opposition to the resolution introduced into the United States Senate calling for an inquiry by the American Government into the religious controversy in Mexico. We would regard such action by our Government as an unwarranted interference in the internal affairs of another nation. We believe that it would have no value for the safeguarding of religious liberty, and would jeopardize our friendly relations with Latin-American countries. Moreover, the proposed measure ignores the grave denials of religious liberty existing in other nations, which are equally subject to investigation."

Thomas J. Taylor Passes at Lexington

The daily preses on Monday of this week recorded the passing in Lexington, N. C., of Thomas J. Taylor, brother of Dr. S. W. Taylor, pastor of our church in Asheboro. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning. The HERALD extends sympathy to all the relatives.

OBEYING ORDERS

On one occasion, the Duke of Wellington was out hunting, with some friends who were on a visit at one of his country seats. In the course of the chase, they wished to cross a field whose hedges were too high to think of jumping; so they sought the gate. Here they found a boy leaning against it, in a leisurely manner, as though time hung rather heavliy on his hands.

"Open the gate, my boy," said one of the hunters.

"Can't, sir, without orders," replied the boy, looking up, with a countenance so full of determination that the gentlemen scarcely knew whether it was ignorant rudeness or the thought of gaining money.

"Open the gate directly, boy, or I'll put the whip about your shoulders," again cried the rider, who was impatient to proceed in the chase.

"Well, sir, if you do, I can't open the gate till master tells me."

"And why not?" they asked.

"Because master sent me here, and told me not to open the gate for the huntsmen, and I don't mean to do so unless he comes and tells me to do it."

Again and again came the demand for the gate to be opened, but the boy moved not from his position. Neither kindly words nor threats could prevail upon him to stir. At last one of the horsemen said:

"Do you know, my boy, that the gentleman who wishes you to open the gate is the great Duke of Wellington?"

The boy put his arms backwards across the top bar of the gate, as though that would strengthen his determination. Looking up quietly into the speaker's face, he said:

"If that is the great duke who fought Bonaparte, he ought to be the last man in the world to ask me to disobey orders."

Taken aback by the quiet rebuke, the duke smiled, and said:

"Well done, my boy; we were wrong in asking you to disobey your master."

The old general and his companions rode away, but not until they had given a proof how much they esteemed the faithfulness of the boy who had been put in a position of trust. He was not told to argue the question whether it was right or wrong, he was simply told not to open the gate without his master's permission.

You may be sure the incident highly pleased the duke, as it appealed to his own high sense of duty, which is a feature that more than anything else makes the true soldier—obeying orders!

When King Saul was sent to do the Lord's will, he disobeyed, and, on meeting Samuel, who rebuked him for it, he made a great fuss of what immense sacrifices he had spared, to which the Prophet forcibly replied:

"To obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams" (I Sam. 15:22).—Faithful Words.

HAPPY NANCY'S SECRET

There once lived in an old brown cottage a solitary woman. She was some thirty years of age, tended her little garden, and knit and spun for a living. She was known everywhere, from village to village, by the name of "Happy Nancy." She had no money, no family, no relatives; and was half blind, quite lame, and very crooked. There was no comeliness in her, and yet there, in that homely, deformed body, the great God, who loves to bring strength out of weakness, had set His royal seal.

"Well, Nancy, singing again," would the chance visitor say, as he stopped at her door.

"Oh! yes, I am forever at it."

"I wish you'd tell me your secret, Nancy. You are all alone, you work hard, you have nothing very pleasant surrounding you; what is the reason you are so happy?"

"Perhaps it's because I have not got anybody but God," she replied, looking up. "You see rich folks, like you, depend upon their families and their homes; they've got to be thinking of their business, of their wives and children, and then they're always mighty afraid of troubles ahead; I ain't got anything to trouble myself about, you see, 'cause I leave it all to the Lord. I think, well, if He can keep this great world in such good order, the sun rolling day after day, and the stars shining night after night, make my garden things come up the same, season after season, He can sartingly take care of such a poor simple thing as I am; and so you see, I leave it all to the Lord, and the Lord takes care of me."

"Well, but, Nancy, suppose a frost should come, after your fruit trees are all in blossom, and your plants out—suppose—"

"But I don't suppose; I never can suppose; I don't want to suppose, except that the Lord will do everything right. That's what makes you people unhappy—you're all the time supposing. Now, why can't you wait till the suppose time comes, as I do, and then make the best of it?"

"Ah! Nancy, it's pretty certain you'll get to Heaven, while many of us, with all our worldly wisdom, will have to stay out."

"There you are at it again," said Nancy, shaking her head, "always looking out for some black cloud. Why, if I was you, I'd keep Satan at arm's length instead of taking him right into my heart—he'll do you a desperate sight of mischief."

Depend upon it, you would be much happier if you would follow Nancy's rule, and never give place in your bosom to imaginary evils.—Unknown.

ANOTHER CHANCE YOURS

He who made of Jacob a prince with God although he had broken his vows and trailed the glory of Bethel in the dust, He who made of Jonah a mighty preacher of righteousness although he had been cowardly and disobedient, He who made of David a man after God's own heart although he had gone down into the bottomless pit of guilt, He who made an immovable rock out of that piece of putty called Simon Peter, He who made of Mark a lion, is saying, "Come, another chance is yours."—Publisher Unknown.

CONFERENCE COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

T. J. WHITEHEAD, President
Burlington, N. C., R. 4

NEED A LEADER?

'Tis the month of March—the days of the winds—and plans for ploughing—and for the summer's church activities! What about that Vacation Church School? We are awfully anxious to have as many as possible. Watch the Council's page for some state standards, for suggested curricula, for materials to be furnished by us.

In the meantime, do you need someone to head up your school? We have secured a number of leaders—recompense to be expenses and whatever purse the school would be able or desire to pay. Pastors, get in touch with one of these and make your plans. We expect to add to this list as our leaders get their summer plans straight for the summer.

Miss Bessie Holmes, Graham, N. C.—Miss Holmes is not sure of what dates she can be available, but just write her.

Miss Edith Guthrie, Graham, N. C.—Miss Guthrie says she will need a good musical helper. She will be available the entire summer, probably from the middle of May on.

Miss Elizabeth Hanner, Bonlee, N. C.—Miss Hanner will be available during May, the last two or three weeks in July, and the whole of August.

Miss Ola Stafford, Burlington, N. C.—Miss Stafford is available all summer, except the week of Leadership Training School and the third week in August.

Rev. C. P. Morris, Seminary Building, Westminster, Md.—Mr. Morris will be available from May 8 to the middle of September, except for certain times. Just get in touch with him and suggest your desires as to date and he will try to fit his plans around them.

We think that Miss Kathleen Paschall might be available for one or two schools—she is not yet certain of her plans for the summer. Write her at Irvona, Pa. We are expecting to be able to announce a new feature of the L. T. S. in connection with Miss Paschall, but we can't let the cat out of the bag too soon! But don't miss this page!

Choose a leader, folks! Let's make this the best summer of vacation church schools we've ever had. And watch for additions to this list.

Council Supt., V. C. Schools.

MODERN RELIGIOUS DRAMA

Since the beginning of the twentieth century drama has been increasingly used in the church and at the present, we are glad to say, the church is providing for a trained leadership in the use of drama. A great many pageants and plays have been written for church use and opportunity for study has been made by teaching religious dramatics in training classes, camps, community schools, colleges and universities.

During the past few years the church has realized as never before her responsibility to the youth of the land and one of the most perplexing problems for pastors and Christian workers is the matter of keeping alive the young people's organizations. Religion makes its appeal to youth but do we provide opportunity for religious development in youth or do we just expect them to play the role of the middle age and give no expression to those inward religious impulses? Religion of youth is different to that of maturity and we need not question its genuineness. The church in seeking for an effective means of instruction and expression for her youth has taken unto herself the drama, which was long ago developed and used by religion. Young people like to act and as they act the parts of the men and women in the Bible they are helped. The Christian mark is left on the soul and today many churches throughout Christendom are finding religious drama not only a way of interesting and keeping their young people in the church but of bringing them into closer relationship with God.

Drama is helping youth to discover a new world and dramatics furnish one form of activity by which he may express himself. To propose a dramatic performance will bring a generous response. In a successful production of a play much pleasure will be received and lessons learned in cooperation, creative work, self-expression, service, formation of ideals and incentives to right living.

Dramatics are of vital importance in the rural community, and in the city. Nothing else can more adequately meet the needs of the groups. Are we going to provide the right kind of drama—a religious drama which will meet the needs of the youth of this and the coming generations and give opportunities for spiritual development? The church needs just what worship drama can give.

J. T. BOWMAN.

P. S. Next week I will write on staging, costuming, lighting and make-up. The last week in March my article will deal with suitable plays for presentation, where they may be secured and how costumes may be rented for a nominal fee. If any one has any questions on this subject, if you will send them in before March 20th, I will answer them through the paper as best I can.—J. T. B.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson

Scripture Lesson: I Tim. 4:12-16.

Milton said, "He who reigns within himself, and rules passion, desires, and fears, is more than king."

Goethe says, "What is the best government?, That which teaches us to govern ourselves."

The Bible tells us, "He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city."

The person who can control his passions, curb his habit, utilize and direct his energy, in short, the person that is able to manage himself exemplifies greatness.

Let us reflect upon the great characters of history, some generally referred to as great, when we think of Julius Caesar, Alexander the Great, and Napoleon, their deeds of achievement all but make the pages of history glow with their glamour and brilliance. But upon more careful thought and study, for us they lose their brilliance and luster when we see them die a victim of their own passion and inner weakness.

They mastered others, but failed to master themselves.

They lead others but failed to lead themselves aright.

They guided the destiny of others but failed to guide their own destiny.

The fields upon which they were victors lay without, and the field upon which they lay victims lay within themselves.

Others they managed but they failed to manage themselves.

"I am master of my fate, I am captain of my soul," says the poet, Henley; and we will do well to make the sentiment of that line a substantial reality in life. Sad is the fate of that man who surrenders his personality, his character, his physical practice that will debauch his spirit and consume his life.

The Christian Endeavor World Quarterly, suggests the plan for this meeting of having six speakers to discuss six ways in which we can manage ourselves and thus attain our aim of being more like Christ.

First: We need to keep everlastingly trying to grow like Christ. Study the life and ethics of Christ's life, and practice them in daily conduct of life.

Second: We need to talk about the Christian life: The things we talk about most are indications of our interests. By talking about our religion we will intensify its value to us. We will contribute something and absorb something from those with whom we are discussing it.

Third: We need to be pure; We of necessity reflect the type of religion we practice. Is it strange then that we lead so few to Christ? We give them such a cloudy, imperfect and distorted picture of Christ.

Fourth: We need Faith; We need that trinity of faith; faith in God, faith in man and faith in ourselves. "Believe in yourself and humanity will believe in you, doubt yourself and humanity will doubt you."

Fifth: We need to show our faith in a practical way: "Faith without works is dead," says the scripture.

Sixth: "We need to be a pattern of good works." We need to guard our conduct carefully, after all, our life is the epistle that most people will read.

"I am the Master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul."

"This call to consecration is not all for the younger men and women. Some of you are too old to go to the ends of the earth with the saving message. Will you older Christians say, 'Here am I, use me! My money against their lives; my prayer with them in partnership!'"—Rev. Will H. Houghton, D.D., Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

High Point College News

The College presented, as its second lyceum program of the year, the Davies Light Opera Singers Monday night, February 25. Those who heard the program considered it an evening well-spent. There were four singers who gave quartet and individual selections. Many of them were familiar to the audience, such as "On the Road to Mandalay," "Shortenin' Bread," "Home on the Range," "At Dawning," and the "Pilgrims' Chorus." Another feature of the program was selections from operas which were hits several years ago, such as "Rio Rita" and "No, No, Nanette."

Last week was rush week for the fraternities and sororities on the campus. Therefore, several parties and other entertainments were given to the rushees.

Friday night the basketball season came to a close with Guilford defeating H. P. C. by a score of 46-31 on their court.

Saturday was Artemesian-Akrothinian society day. William Hunter, of the class of 30 now a lawyer in Greensboo, made the address for the morning program. A banquet, the decorations and program of which carried out the Saint Patrick idea, climaxed the day.

Samuel Meyers, of Thomasville, was operated on for appendicitis Saturday night, and G. I. Humphreys, Jr., Tuesday morning. Both were members of the sophomore class. These bring the total appendectomies for the College this year to eight.

The Woman's Sports Association is sponoring the intramural basketball tournament among the girls this week. Monday night the freshmen defeated the sophomores. Tuesday night the sophomores will play the juniors, Wednesday night, freshmen vs. juniors, and Thursday night the two women's literary societies. The seniors do not have a team.

THE KIND OF EDUCATION DESIRED

By N. M. Harrison

Education is said to be the ability to rightly adjust oneself in life's situations.

This being true, therefore, education is not solely a thing of the mind. Accumulation of facts alone does not enable one to adjust himself in these various situations. The judgment comes into play in the process, thus enabling one to differentiate, but to always rightly adjust oneself the will must function. There is not only differentiation but also a definite, purposeful selection. This makes the act personal; it becomes a part of the individual, and enters the moral realm. To rightly act, therefore, the will must rightly function. For it to rightly function, it must be trained, or educated, if you please. To neglect either will leave one's education incomplete.

The desirable kind of education is that which develops both the intellect and the will. This is what Theodore Roosevelt meant when he said: "To educate a man in mind and not in morals is to educate a menace to society." That kind of education is called

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

One day trying to get all the folks out to services, I was asking where certain people lived, and a young fellow said, "they lived down the road about one mille and I would know the house by its having two chimneys. Well, that sounded better and as it was getting late, I thought that would be a good place to spend the night.

I found the house, built of logs. Right beside the "big house" was the kitchen, and each chimney was built of dirt and sticks. That was always the home of two chimneys with me as long as I worked in that section. They took me in, for the people of that community hardly ever turned a stranger away, especially if I told them I was the preacher, and if they had "hearn" that they had a preacher over at Pleasant Hill.

The man of the house was a blacksmith and he was a talker from talkertown. I told him that I had a good friend back near Caroleen who was a blacksmith and wanted to come over with me some time. Well, I hdd an engagement for the next Saturday night before "preaching day" as they called the third Sundays.

This good brother, if he is living—I have not heard from him in years—will pardon me for the use of his name to tell the whole story. Bro. Pink Towery of Cleveland Charge, who was then living at New House, not so far from Caroleen.

After an all day ride, for it was about thirty miles, we arrived on Saturday afternoon about an hour by sun. They had fixed up lots for this extra company. They had chicken and collards for supper and an abundance of corn bread.

This brother was all up in the air because I had brought him a man of his own trade to talk to. He had some trouble remembering my companions name. Directly he said, "Brother Bethea what is this man's name? It is as hard to remember as yours was when you first came." I gave him this suggestion. Just think of something high, a steeple, or something like that. Directly he got in a big way and he said, "I tell you what's so, Brother Steeples,—" I just yelled out laughing and he never did finish what he started. Of course when we got back home and I told the joke on Brother Towery, he was called "Steeples" quite a good deal after that.

Then that night when we got ready to go to bed they put us on a bed with a mattress filled with "prarie feathers," and the man with me being about a hundred and seventy-five in weight, spread the railings and down went the slats. Here come our host and fixed it up. But by morning so many of those slats had gone to the floor that the bed was down to the floor also, in the middle, and I got up sitting up, with my toes pointing at my eyes. But we had a good trip, enjoyed the hospitality and went on to church and had a lot of visitors that day.

A moonshiner, (proved to be afterwards) came to me just before services and called me out to one side and said: "Preacher, I don't know how you stand on this whiskey question, but I'll advise you not to say any thing about it here, for there are some tough cases in this section and they will hurt you." I said "thank you for your interest in my welfare, sir."

We had a good service that day, nothing said about whiskey. I was not ready. Next time I went into the community on Wednesday. Spent the week visiting. Hard fare it was, but I thought how my Master went about without a home of his own. I've always thought of Bethany being a good place to rest with a good cook and clean beds and that Jesus went there when he was tired out. But I was young and could stand a hard fight day and night, and we had night encounters in those days. In my rummaging around I went to see a big distillery running. They had one hundred and fifty hogs in a pen, eating the "slops" as it was called. I was taking notes. This plant however, claimed to be putting up dispensary whiskey for the State of South Carolina. That was while that state was dealing in this. With all I found I was pretty well loaded for the coming Sunday, not with whiskey, but with points against it.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Flat Rock, Flat Rock Circuit.—We were very pleased Sunday to have with us Rev. W. A. Way, pastor of Pilgrim Holiness Church, Greensboro, and also a group of singers from that church. Their singing was very inspiring. After several selections, Rev. W. A. Way delivered a most interesting sermon. The church was seated to capacity while many were forced to stand. Visitors from High Point, Madison, Reidsville, Greensboro and other places were present. We extend a most cordial invitation to Rev. Mr. Way and his singers to visit us again.

The Ladies' Aid of our church met last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. J. Mabe with an unusually large number of members present, including our pastor and his wife. As this was the last meeting of last year the following new officers were elected: President, Mrs. Ira N. Johnson, Vice President, Mrs. Willis Johnson, Secretary, Miss Ester Bell Hanes, Treasurer, Miss Myrtle Wray. We have chosen very capable leaders, and we are expecting a great work from our organization this year. After the business session had ended Mrs. Mabe served refreshments. Our next meeting is to be with Mrs. Ferguson.

We were very sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. Cora Friddle who is one of our faithful members. We all hope she will continue to improve rapidly.

I think Mrs. Way should be commended for the great work and interest she has shown in her Mission Band, and especially on the success they had in raising money to have our parsonage painted.

FRANCES THOMAS, Reporter.

Concord.—Our Pastor, Rev. D. I. Garner, continues to bring us splendid messages. The attendance has been good at practically all services through the winter months. Thirty-five members recently signed the Tither's pledge. We were pleased to receive into our membership recently Mrs. Marvin Blackwelder.

A fine spirit of co-operation is in evidence in every department of the church. All claims are paid to date with a nice balance in the treasury.

Our Thank-Offering service was held Sunday evening, February 24 under the direction of our Thank-Offering secretary Mrs. C. D. Sides. The devotional was conducted by Miss Bertha Earnhardt. The first part of the program, an impressive play "The High Way," was given with Mrs. L. M. Burris, Mrs. E. F. Litaker, Miss Maude Winecoff, and Miss Ruth Burris making up the cast of characters. The second part was equally as impressive—the cirle leaders dressed to represent the foreign and home work, Japan—Miss Louranzie Little, China—Miss Agnes Litaker, India—Mrs. Marvin Blackwelder, Home Work—Mrs. Tom Blackwelder, and Mrs. J. L. Sides representing the M. P. Church in America appealed to the people to share their blessings. The response was even more than expected—the offering amounting to $23.21. Special music was rendered by the Burris sisters.

The Ladies Aid Society is doing some fine work under the splendid leadership of Mrs. Garner. The March meeting was held with Mrs. J. L. Sides. The apron contest closed with Mrs. Garner's side winning. Fifty dollars was received with Mrs. George Barnhardt raising the largest amount. The society voted to buy a kitchen cabinet for the parsonage and to paint the parsonage inside and outside. The next meeting is to be held with Mrs. W. R. Earnhardt and Miss Bertha Earnhardt.

Mrs. Jamee Smith is recovering nicely from a recent operation. Grandmas Thomas continues ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. F. Newton. Mrs. S. H. Teeter is critically ill at her home here having returned Saturday from the Charlotte Sanatorium where she underwent a serious operation recently.

Mt. Pleasant, Mount Pleasant.—The Sunday school attendance has been very good during the winter months. As spring approaches we hope to see more of our older members out. The church attendance is good also. This shows what a great worker our pastor, Mr. Braxton is in our church.

Work on the new addition to the church is to begin this week. The finance committee has a good report to start with.

Our Christian Endeavor, which meets each Sunday evening has reported an increase in interest and attendance.

We extend our sympathy to Mrs. Brown, Miss Sally Amick, and Mr. H. F. Amick in their sorrow caused by the death of their brother. Also Mrs. L. L. Bowman in the death of her sister Miss Bessie Clapp who was buried in the church cemetery.

Mrs. T. S. Smith's father, Mr. Greeson, was buried at Mt. Hope Reformed Church last week.

Miss Cecil Little of Durham is visiting her sister, Mrs. Braxton at the parsonage.

Mr. J. E. Stafford who has been confined to his room for the last eight weeks with injuries is improving.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, filled his regular appointment here Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. He read the first chapter of Genesis, using as his text the first and thirty-first verses. He preached a wonderful sermon, he always brings us a good message. I felt that the presence of the Lord was with us during this service. Everyone likes Brother Bingham and his wife. We had very good attendance at Sunday School and preaching.

Whitaker's.—The first Sunday night in February, we had a Young Peoples' Service. On account of heating conditions in our church we were invited to hold the service in the Baptist church which we did, and appreciate the favor so much.

The program was carried out well and much credit is due the two young ladies who worked it up. It was composed of the young people of all the churches.

Am thankful to say our heating plant has been worked over and we can use our main auditorium again. Our Sunday School attendance has picked up some, I am glad to report.

Our Auxiliary has taken on more interest, shown by bettetr attendance. One of our faithful members, Mrs. J. H. Cutchin, is in the hospital at present, following an operation, am pleased to state she is doing as well as could be expected; do hope she will be greatly benefited and will be stronger than she has been for some time.

Our shut-in, Mrs. J. M. Cutchin, is about the same and bearing her affliction with christian fortitude and hopeful of being with us sometime. Last Thursday the Whitaker's and Enfield Auxiliaries had a get-together meeting in the Enfield hut which was very much enjoyed by the members present.

We had a quilt tacked out in the morning, a splendid bunch at noon and the playlet gotten up by the ladies of High Point, given by the Whitaker's Auxiliary in the afternoon. It was a pleasant day and we felt paid for the outing. I think we would do well to have more such meetings.

A great number of our members have signed a pledge to tithe for three months.

Our pastor has started a new series of sermons based on outstanding events in Jesus' life. The first sermon in this series was "The Decision of Childhood." The truths to be applied from this sermon were: (1) The life of every child belongs to God and early in life the child should find its place in the church; (2) We should recognize our obligations to childhood, and we should be careful how we live around children because we influence them one way or another; (3) We should live up to our opportunity and teach our children to hate sin and to enthrone Jesus in their heart.

The Philathea Class has charge of the Sunday School March 24. We are expecting the attendance to be even larger than it was on Baraca day.

Our pastor held "Young People's Day" yesterday and gave us a very interesting sermon taken from 1st Peter, second chapter and fifth verse, "Building a Spiritual House." We feel that we are very fortunate in having Mr. Loy and his family with us for another year. His sermons are filled with spiritual food. His sermons make us stop and ask ourselves if our lives are a channel through which God may work. Our offering Sunday morning was for "Young People's Day" and amounted to $4.79.

We are all interested in the building of our hut, the lumber, bricks, etc., are already on the church ground and we expect them to begin building this coming week. Then all who have had a part in helping us build it, by their contributions and aid, will be ready to enjoy the supper the ladies of the Auxiliary promised to provide.

We were made sad by the death of one of our most loved members, Mrs. Mamie McDaniel who died suddenly February 12, 1935. Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Also by the sad death of the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Billings, our heart aches for these grandparents with whom the little fellow had lived most of his young life.

The Woman's Auxiliary met February 19th, with Mrs. W. C. Moore, they had a very interesting meeting with a goodly number present.

Our Sunday school continues stedfastly on, although we are not so large in number, we are thankful for the faithful members and hope as spring arrives we will grow in number.

Union Grove, Mocksville Charge.—Union Grove people enjoyed Rev. R. L. Hetchox's sermon on "Tithing," last Sunday at 11:00 a. m. If everybody would tithe more, the welfare of the churches and people would be better. We are robbing God—but "What shall it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses his own soul?" Too many people are after the things of this world and don't stop to think where their soul is going.

We were fortunate to have Rev. Grady White to come and preach to the Christian Endeavor Society last Sunday evening at 7:30. Everybody enjoyed his sermon on "Doubt."

We have organized a Woman's Auxiliary since my last report. It is doing splendid work. A supper was given, and a quilt pieced to raise some funds. With dues and all we have about $26 in the treasury. Now we are selling some scouring powder from which we hope to realize more money. We have not fully decided yet as to the purpose we will put our money.

Lebanon, High Point.—Well I am back normal again, after the excitement Monday night, I had gone to Mr. Cook's to visit, and was sitting in the room talking when a niece of Mr. Cook's came in and said "Mr. Morgan, they phoned for you to come home, someone is there to see you." Of course I rushed home, and who should I find but a room full of people who had come to greet me with a smile for they had relieved themselves of the burdens they were bearing, and I was invited to the dining room, and there found the dining table loaded with good things to eat.

And believe it or not I am going to do my part of it as long as it lasts, and by the looks of the table it will be a long time.

Would like to name all who were here but for the lack of space in the Herald we will not. The Lord knows them and may He bless them, for they have been a blessing to us.

I have always appreciated the spirit of the gift, as much as the gift, so in turn may we be a blessing to you.

WINSTON-SALEM FIRST CHURCH

The Auxiliary is holding their annual meeting tonight—Tuesday. They have had a splendid year. All the circles have gone beyond their apportionments, and the whole auxiliary budget has been raised. And this has been done without the struggle that usually characterizes the last month or two of the Branch year. All honor to the faithful women who have made it possible!

The Junior Choir gave us a sample of what they could do when they sang at the morning service a couple of Sundays ago. They sang "Fairest Lord Jesus," most effectively. There are about twenty in this group, under the efficient and enthusiastic leadership of Mrs. Chas. Stonestreet.

The Sunshine Circle holds its meetings on the second Sunday, during the morning preaching service. There were twenty-six present last Sunday. Their budget for the year was $15.00. They raised something over $23.00. Mrs. S. E. Hauser and Mrs. Roy Hauser have rendered a beautiful service in training these children.

The Baraca class voted Sunday morning to put on the "Womanless Supper" again this year. It will be held some time in May. The affair last year was a great success, and the men are anxious to repeat it.

Sunday school and morning service attenance is much better than last year. The increase in attendance at the morning service, however, seems to be offset by a decrease in attendance at the evening service, which becomes increasingly a problem for our downtown churches.

We were delighted to have Mr. J. A. Koonce, of High Point, and Mrs. D. S. Coltrane, of Greensboro, with us Sunday morning, to present the College. They did it effectively. Our apportionment is in sight and will all be raised by the time it is asked for.

Weaverville Church.—The work at this church seems to be moving along in a harmonious way. We are proud of our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harky. He has the "go forward" congenial spirit about him that takes and the work is prospering. The S. S. has increased in number an attendance. Our congregations are larger in general. He has filled all his appointments, but due to the illness of the writer, I haven't been able to hear all his sermons, but what I've heard were good; inspiring us to better and greater service for the Master.

We held our Thanksgiving Service the fourth Sunday in February. On this occasion Brother Harky delivered a splendid missionary message. Our collection amounted to $6.55. We wish to thank Miss Potter of Bethel Home, for her kind assistance in arranging the program and favoring us with the violin.

New Hope, Mecklenburg.—Sunday being such a beautiful day it made us feel that spring is most here. With the trees budding forth into new life, we ought to take new courage and be thankful for the blessings we have received.

Rev. P. E. Bingham, chose as his subjest, Looking for Jesus, reading nineteenth chapter of Luke. He told how Zacchaeus worked to see Jesus. Are we looking for Jesus? He is the best friend we have in our sorrows, trials and temptations. If we seek to know and do His will, then we shall be happy as Zacchaeus was.

We raised $7.45 for the parsonage improvements.

We enjoyed having Rev. and Mrs. Bingham with us Sunday afternoon and for supper Sunday night.

The Kind of Education Desired

secular education. The desirable kind we call Christian education.

The purpose of the first is to train only the mind; its chief concern is the scholastic grades the student makes. It does not concern itself with the habits of the student, which is determined by the degree of development of the will. That is a matter for the church and home to look after.

Christian education, on the other hand, feels its responsibility for the full development of the student. His intellect must be developed in order that he might the better think, and his will must be developed in order that he might the better select the right ways of life. This is the difference between the two systems.

Which will you choose for your child? The church college endeavors to be a buttress to the home and the church. It will not only give as thorough secular education as any, but will at the same time, by precept and example, endeavor to just as thoroughly equip the student for right choices of life.

BE AGREEABLE

Agreeableness is one of life's greatest assets. It opens doors of friendship, opportunity, and achievement. It is the first quality that employers seek in applicants for responsible positions.

We like agreeable salesmen, lawyers, public speakers, hotel clerks, porters, motormen, bootblacks, barbers, acquaintances, and friends.

Get the habit of being agreeable—first with yourself. Begin the day with a smile that emanates from inner serenity.

The real test of your agreeableness and geniality is when everything seems to go against you, when you are confronted by bad business, unprofitable investment, disloyal friends, ill health, frustrated plans. If you can maintain your agreeableness through such experiences you are headed for ultimate victory.

One way to cultivate agreeableness is to keep your mind inviolate. Make your thought-world harmonious by dwelling upon pleasant things.

Shut the door of your mind against such insidious enemies as anxiety, fear, jealousy, selfishness, resentment, and hyper-criticism.

Agreeableness arises from mental harmony. It cannot be successfully counterfeited. It is a spontaneous expression of your inmost nature.

Agreeableness is like a lighted candle that cheers an otherwise dark and desolate room.

Agreeableness attracts friends and good fortune.

Agreeableness relieves a tense situation and ventilates a harassed mind as no other power can do so well.

The day brings its inevitable problems. Cancelled orders, increased taxes, unforeseen disappointments, foolish mistakes, unwarranted interruptions—the best antidote for these is agreeableness.

If your task is hard, be agreeable.

If some one tends to "get on your nerves," be agreeable.

If bills are difficult to collect, be agreeable.

If men malign you, be agreeable.

If you are about to lose your temper, instantly curb it.

BE AGREEABLE.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

McDaniel

The Woman's Auxiliary of Eden M. P. church desires to pay a tribute of love and respect to the memory of Mrs. Mamie McDaniel, who was a faithful, devoted member of the Eden church and of the Woman's Auxiliary. Her interest in and devotion to the activities of the church were sincere and unfailing, and her presence an inspiration in any meeting.

Her passing has left a vacancy in the ranks of our auxiliary and has caused sorrow to the members of the organization.

Therefore, be it resolved: First, that while she will be greatly missed in our organization, we feel that our loss is her eternal gain. Second, that as members of the Woman's Auxiliary we extend to her family and loved ones our most sincere sympathy in their sorrow. Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, the Enfield Progress and to the Methodist Protestant Herald. Also that a copy be spread in the minutes of the Woman's Auxiliary.

COLLECTING PICTURES MISCELLANEOUSLY

Rev. W. A. Ledford

Recently I heard a churchman address a group of ministers, using as his subject "Generalities in General." The field covered in that address reminded me of my scrap picture book. During the years, I have kept pictures of places that I have visited, and people I have met. I have included in this collection also pictures of historical importance, and of those who have influenced my life. Collecting these pictures has been easy, interesting and rewarding. I just watch the papers, magazines, programs. Today I saw the announcement of the death of Dr. Bonnette, who headed the Department of Modern Languages at Western Maryland College for 35 years.

Anyone will be surprised to learn how entertaining and helpful such a collection becomes through the years. It will keep together many pleasant memories, and bring before us valuable reminiscences of other days, and faces that otherwise would be forgotten. In 1906 I attended a district conference at Concord, N. C. I ate my first meal there in the home of the late Rev. D. A. Braswell. I met my wife for the first time at his table. I have the program of that conference, and Rev. Mr. Braswell's picture in my scrapbook. At that conference I met Dr. Forliss for the first time, as I did the late Dr. J. F. McCulloch. I have pictures of both in my book, as I do also of Drs. Dixon, Andrews, Bates, Pritchard, Paschall and many more.

When I want to recall the good old days I look over my scrapbook of picteres of the Wesleys, Whitefield, Asbury, and the giants of other days. It does me good to look at the kindly face of the late Dr. F. T. Tagg, the shrewd countenance of the late Bishop Hamilton, and endeavor to catch the world view and passion of the late Dr. John F. Goucher. I did not begin my ministry till the "days of the saddle bags" were a memory; but "old Dobbin" was still popular on the highway. Now I prize the picture of my horse and buggy! I had rather see my picture beside it than beside the national capitol.

One never gets finally away from his school days. I have a good picture of Piedmont High School as it appeared when I was there. I have several pictures of Western Maryland College, and the seminary there. I have a large picture of Dr. T. H. Lewis, with this notation, "Scholar, preacher, orator, administrator, and pioneer of Methodist Union." Near this picture I have one that I am equally proud of; that of Dr. H. L. Elderdice, who could always know what to say, and when and how to say it. Close to these is a good picture of Dr. Forlines, who was the despair of many of us in book knowledge. This section would not be complete without the pictures of Drs. Pritchard, Bates and Dudley of the seminary class of 1912, and two of my own classmates, the late Dr. L. W. Gerringer and the late Rev. John C. Walden.

I have such pictures as that of Albert Schweitzer, Dr. Grenfell, and Dr. E. Stanley Jones, whom I heard recently introduced as the world's best-known Protestant; but I admire more the pictures of those who have touched my life in a more intimate way. There is that fatherly face of the late Dr. Heisse, who gave me my first appointment as a regular pastor, and later baptized our only child, and always called me affectionately "Son." I wish I had beside it the picture of John H. Moton, who baptized me and received me into the church, laid his hands on my head when I was ordained an elder, and married me. As I recall, he was shy of photographs.

Being a pastor, I am naturally interested in the pictures of churches. I have the Lovely Lane Meeting House erected in 1774—where Methodism was organized at the Christmas conference of 1784. On this page occurs all the successors of Lovely Lane, including the present First M. E. church. I have a small picture of the old Redwine church, where Corra Harris went as a bride, together with the oldest Presbyterian church in America. Along with these are some log meeting houses of pioneer days, and many modern Methodist cathedrals, to say nothing of our "Westminster Abbeys." Be it far from me to disparage the building of beautiful churches; for I have always enjoyed worshipping in a beautiful sanctuary. But someone has said, "When Methodism began to build cathedrals God Almighty raised up the Salvation Army." If there was one thing that stood out above all others in the recent sesquicentennial celebration, it was that Methodism might regain today what made it great in the days of our "fathers." Worship must be in spirit and in truth and not in buildings.

I have in this collection the monument of Rev. Elijah Mitchell, D. D., on the mountain peak that bears his name—the world-famous Bok Singing Tower in central Florida; the great Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City; the Bible House of Japan; Niagara Falls in winter; and the pictures of as many churches that I have been pastor of and parsonages that we have lived in, as it has been possible to get together. Perhaps this hobby of mine has now been "rode" all too long. If I have succeeded in pointing out the value of such a collection, given some conception of the pastime and pleasure it has brought to me, and can induce others to go and do likewise, I shall count it a joy.

Well, well, look at the percentages at the top of this colunmn this week! Whitakers, which caused us to go off into Ancient History last year to find suitable illustrations to give full credit for what she did in going over the top, does one better this year. Last week West End in Greensboro went over with such a big percentage that we thought nobody else would equal her record but she has to step out of the way of Whitakers. We will just imagine that the winds that were howling so furiously on Monday night and Tuesday were really singing the praises of Whitakers. And Grace comes up into our column of honor this week! In our new filing cabinet the batch of cards containing Greensboro subscribers is getting so thick it is about to crowd everybody else out. But if it had not rained so furiously all day on Tuesday Grace would have had an even higher rating. On Monday afternoon Mrs. Starr, the agent and Mrs. Gerringer who is assisting in the canvass went out and brought in the cash but Tuesday it was just too bad to get out.

Now turn to the Receipts column for this week and see what First Church at High Point did. The Mr. Lee, the agent over there wrote us a few days ago that he had taken over the Herald Agency there, and if he keeps up the work long at the rate he is going this week, we will have to buy some more filing cabinets. But let the good work go on. We will take care of the subscriptions if you will get them to us. Next week Mrs. Gerringer is to be at First Church Burlington but behold! Before she got there Mrs. Durham, the agent sent in $15.00. Fine for First Church! And Rev. J. L. Trollinger of Haw River charge brought in eight dollars. Well, let the good work go on.

Our receipts this week are: On subscriptions: $122.50. On subsidy, 00000000.

some have increased their offerings, and others have promised to try again. A goodly number have set a goal and have promised to try to raise a definite amount per month. All of us have learned that a definite plan always works better than a haphazard plan. We are still living in hopes that the March offerings will mean much to the Home in clearing up bills.

Our Cows

We have bought one cow, and will perhaps buy four more this week, but will still need at least two or three more provided we can find the money to pay for them. Then to begin immediately to build up the right kind of herd we are going to need several Holstine and Gurnsey heifers. Our friends throughout the state can help us much with this, and your help will be greatly appreciated. Thank you and God bless you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

Whitaker-Lovett Sunday School Class, Asheboro

Robert T. Lloyd, Teacher

Rev. S. W. Taylor, D.D., Pastor

We are pleased to give over our cover page this week to a picture of the Whitaker-Lovett Sunday school class in our church at Asheboro. This class has had such a remarkable growth in recent months that it is now one of the outstanding classes in our entire conference. Inasmuch as the present editor of the Herald was pastor of this church when this class was organized in 1926, and having been pastor of Will A. Lovett at the time of his tragic death in an automobile accident, and having been pastor when R. T. Lloyd took over the class, the name Lovett having been added to Whitaker Class, this class is especially dear to his heart. But let us see what the Asheboro Courier had to say about this class in a recent issue:

"The cut of the Whitaker-Lovett Class of the Methodist Protestant church was made from a picture of the members on Sunday, March 3. This class was organized during 1926 by the late Will A. Lovett and named for Dr. C. L. Whitaker, a former pastor of the church.

"After the death of Mr. Lovett in 1927, R. T. Lloyd was assigned as teacher of the class and the name Lovett added to the class name in honor of their beloved teacher-friend. The class has rocked along in very good shape, as is a habit of men's classes, from that time until November 1, when the membership totaled 22 active members.

"On this date, however, the interest of the members and teacher registered boiling point and an active membership drive was staged, with obvious results, and the achievement of 126 active men as members of the class. Unlike most organizations of large membership, the interest has mounted with the membership, and the work of the class, in addition to the Sunday morning hour of Bible study, has also broadened with the growth of enrollment.

"Lynn Kennedy is president of the group with Lester Rich active secretary. Reitzel Smith is assistant secretary and Raymond Allred is class treasurer. R. T. Lloyd remains teacher and is not only the teacher of these 126 men, but a personal friend of each, as was the case of the former teacher, Mr. Lovett. Talton Lowdermilk is assistant teacher and is also efficient and interested in his task.

"A large part of the credit for the rapid growth of the class is due the chairman of the membership committee, Henry Rich, who has served faithfully and efficiently as the results disclose. Mr. Rich bespeaks the sentiments of the entire class membership in welcoming additional members into the class roll."

Having read what the Courier had to say, now let us look at the names of people in the class and get a bit of Methodist Protestant history out of a good many of them. Of course we all know something of the life and labors of the late Rev. C. L. Whitaker, D.D., who was one of the outstanding men of our conference for a long period of years, having been President of the Conference for two years. W. A. Lovett was a grandson of Rev. W. C. Hammer and nephew of the late Congressman W. C. Hammer. Robert Lloyd is a licensed preacher in the Asheboro church and is doing perhaps a greater work in the local church than some people could do in an all-time pastorate. Lester Rich, the secretary, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Rich, who have been active in our church in Asheboro over a long period of years, they having come to us originally from the Christian Church, while Reitzel Smith is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Smith, who have spent a lifetime in our church, Mrs. Smith being a sister of Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk and the late Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk. Talton Lowdermilk, the assistant teacher of the class, is also a nephew of Revs. E. G. and W. R. Lowdermilk. If our loved ones who have gone on to the glory world are familiar with what is going on here, it must make heaven a little sweeter to know that their offspring are following in their footsteps. And to those who have labored long and faithfully and who are no longer able to carry on, it must be a great joy to see their kinsmen according to the flesh engage in such noble work. The names of other officers of the class are not so familiar to us. We wish for this class continued success and prosperity.

Mrs. Gerringer to Be in Asheboro Next Week

Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, who is assisting Herald agents in putting on the campaign for the Herald, will be in Asheboro next week. This church, under the able leadership of Dr. S. W. Taylor, a former President of the Annual Conference, and with a Herald agent who has already paved the way for what is to come, ought to have no difficulty in reaching its quota and more. For when a church reaches its quota, only about half of the membership is taking the paper. While we acknowledge money in the name of the Herald agent, yet it is easy to trace Mrs. Gerringer as she assists in canvassing the churches. Last week she was at Grace Church, Greensboro, and this week she is at First Church, Burlington, and it so happens that the agents at these two churches head the list this week. And Grace's contribution was divided, part of it being acknowledged last week and part this week. So we are expecting Asheboro to do big things next week. This church is easily one of the outstanding churches in our conference and has a habit of doing things. It is the largest contributor to the Children's Home in the conference and takes the lead in many other things. So, watch Asheboro.

What the Laymen Can Do

Writing some lines concerning the work of the laymen in the Sunday school class shown on the front page of the Herald this week set the mind of the editor to working on the subject, "What the Laymen Can Do." And when we think about the subject in its true light there is very little that the laymen cannot do, especially in the Methodist Protestant church. There are some churches, of course, where the layman does not occupy as prominent place as he does in ours; however, in all churches the laymen are the ones who put the program of the church across if it is put across at all. It is true that God has a place in His church for the minister, but that does not shut out the layman. The church is made up largely of laymen. And here we mean women as well as men. They furnish the membership, the congregation, the workers, the money, and almost everything else except the sermon and a great deal of energy on the part of the minister who attempts to direct the laymen. But when laymen realize what they can do and are willing to be used, it is marvelous what they can accomplish.

As you look at the picture of the large class on the front page of this paper, some of you are going to say, "Marvelous, wonderful," and perhaps other things equally expressive. Some, perhaps, will wish that they could do something like that also. Well, what has been done in this class at Asheboro could be done in a great many places if there were those who thought it could be done and would undertake to lead the way. Asheboro is a good town, but there are other good towns also. Classes do not build themselves up without effort there any more than in other places. What made this class begin to grow was that somebody went to work and somebody else fell in line. No one person can build up a large class, but just a few can inspire others and put a community to work. So, laymen, realize your God-given opportunity and start something in your community. It will do the church good, it will do the community good, but more than that, it will do you good. Many people have dwarfed themselves by not using their strength.

Our New Church in Danville, Va.

Dr. George R. Brown, pastor of our church in Reidsville, spoke briefly to the Greensboro M. P. ministers on Monday morning about the new Methodist Protestant church in Danville, Va. Thirty-eight persons are to be classified as charter members. A building has been fitted up and services are being held regularly. A Sunday school has been organized with an enrollment of about seventy-five. Dr. Brown preached there on last Sunday evening and says there is a spiritual atmosphere about the place that makes it easy to preach. He has great faith in the new enterprise. We trust that they may succeed wonderfully.

Greensboro and Vicinity M. P. Ministers Meet

Methodist Protestant ministers in Greensboro and nearby towns held their monthly meeting at Grace church on Monday morning. Rev. J. R. Hutton was the principal speaker, bringing a ringing message on preaching. Brother Hutton used as a basis for his address the incident where Peter preached to Cornelius and those who had assembled to hear what Peter had to say. The officers elected a month ago were in their places Monday. Dr. N. G. Bethea is the new President, Rev. J. W. Braxton is Vice President, and Rev. J. Elwood Carroll continues as Secretary.

Calvary Church Launches Tithing Campaign

On last Sunday morning a two months' tithing campaign was launched at Calvary church with fairly good success. Short addresses were made by J. Frank Coble, the Chairman of the Board of Stewards, and by Norman Kirkman and the pastor. Quite a goodly number of people signed up to tithe their income for the months of April and May. Out of the tithe the people are to pay their regular pledge to the church and are to give the remainder to pay on the church debt.

Don't get excited, Brother Barnabas! That isn't what we've paid on the McCulloch Memorial Fund. That's what we still owe. But don't get down in the mouth about it, Brother. That's $1,043.97 less than we owed when we started on this thing. We may have to do what General Grant is said to have said he would do at the siege of Vicksburg, "fight it out along this line if it takes all summer." But IT CAN BE DONE and IT WILL BE DONE. So we'll just buckle down to doing it. Thanks to all who have helped to do it so far.

I've had no request so far to the offer to send pledge cards to help them secure the quota to pastors, or those who have been appointed to raise the amount their church is asked for. So I suppose you are going at it without this help. But the offer is still open. If you want them, write.

The receipts stand as follows:

Previously reported	$1,013.32
Lawndale, Fallston	7.15
Corinth, Littleton	3.00
Center, Alamance	15.00
Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon (additional)	4.50
Friendship, Mt. Hermon (additional)	1.00
Total to date	$1,043.97

Lawndale, on Fallston Circuit, is the only addition to the Honor Roll this week. And there was none last week. So that Roll isn't growing very fast. We're glad to see Littleton Circuit coming in this week. Hope that whole district can pay out soon.

C. W. Bates, Chairman.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

In the District Meetings

I am suggesting that when you make your programs for the district meetings special emphasis be put on Tithing and Evangelism. These subjects are receiving consideration through the church just now and it would help the causes to have them discussed in the district meetings this spring. When doing this, if the chairmen can enlist the laymen and laywomen in this meeting it would also be fine. We have not yet overworked very many of our laymen. Some few have been used a good deal, but the big majority have yet to experience the thrill of taking a real part in one of our church programs. There ought to be in every district a few men and women who can and who will gladly discuss both these subjects from a layman's standpoint, and after all, that is the standpoint we want them discussed. For until there are laymen and laywomen in our churches who will be interested in soul-saving, there is but little the pastor can do in a revival meeting; and unless our church members are ready to tithe or give systematically, the church will do nothing really comparable to its ability in raising money for its enterprises.

High Point College Apportionment

Every church has had a definite allotment made it for the maintenance of the college for this year. It heads up in the Annual Conference Budget, and must be paid if the church or charge become an Honor Roll church. There is need of raising this apportionment before the first of May. The General Board of Education has offered to give $7,500 to the college or N. C. Board of Education if the churches in the North Carolina Conference will raise $5,000 by the first of May, or, to be exact, by the last day of April. To raise this amount it will be necessary for all of our churches to act during the remainder of March and first three weeks of April. Let every pastor and official board find out how much his or their church has to raise and at once set about to raise it. It can be done and it should be done, so let's everybody work together and raise it in the next six weeks.

Midland Charge, Rev. J. H. Trolinger, Pastor

I was at the three churches, Love's Grove, Mill Grove and Pine Bluff, during the day. Here I had a pleasant surprise. The pastor had organized each of his three congregations to raise all the items in the Annual Conference Budget. Two captains had chosen in the Sunday school all who were present, divided the total amount to be raised equally, made a mile on a large chart to represent one dollar, each group selected a car and started across the chart. They had given themselves the month of March to raise the amount chosen; but last Sunday both Love's Grove and Mill Grove raised their allotments with some to spare. Pine Bluff was a week later in getting started, but it was about half over and the pastor expects them to get out next Sunday. These two churches have done something no other church in the conference has done this year—raised their allotment for A. C. expenses, A. C. debt, Superannuates, Church Extension and High Point College. Who follows in their train? The Midland churches raised their allotment for the McCulloch Memorial Fund some time ago. New screens for doors and windows of the parsonage had been put on; some fixtures put inside. Midland church had put in new windows, new top floor, and so the story goes.

I asked Pastor Trolinger how it all had happened. He said it had been easy, and so did the members with whom I talked. It was easy because they had more of the members working than ever before, and one official said that not in his recollection had his church ever paid the Annual Conference Budget in full before, so they have broken a record of long standing and we hope have set a challenge which scores of other churches will follow at once. The trouble with most churches in trying to do things is they have too few at the task. We congratulate these folk and shall take the liberty of holding them up before those who have feared to try. It does not take a great deal of money to pay all the conference claims at any of our churches. It takes more faith and willingness to work than the people put into it. There's where the trouble lies.

I greatly enjoyed this visit and feel that these people will have a great year.

Love's Grove church building is a most attractive one, brick with Sunday school rooms, well arranged, lacking only painting on the inside to complete it. It has not yet been dedicated; we are hoping this shall be done during the year.

Shelby-Caroleen, Rev. J. O. Fry, Supply Pastor

I visited both these churches and held the second quarterly conference for them on this trip. The industrial conditions at Caroleen are bad at present, which is hindering our work here some, I was told. But the pastor reported that he had received his salary in full for the first quarter, that the McCulloch Memorial apportionment was paid in full for the charge, likewise both the Annual Conference expenses claim and Church Extension were paid. There have been repairs made on the Shelby church, new roof and other needed repairs, and 26 new members have been received there during the present pastorate. Congregations at Shelby have increased quite a bit this year, I was informed. If the present progress is continued until conference, much will be done on this work this year.

Poor Mail Service

I put my report into the mails here last Tuesday; Dr. Pritchard said it arrived at the HERALD office Thursday at noon. Since the address was typewritten, there ought not to have been any reason for those who handled it mistaking the address; it evidently just took that long to travel from High Point to Greensboro. And it happens that the HERALD, which is put into the mails in Greensboro on Thursday night, reaches South Carolina before it reaches us in High Point. I know it happened that way once last year and presume it has happened that way oftener. But, of course, there is nothing we can do about it but to wait until our mail is delivered.

March 31—Concord, 15th District Meeting at 11 a. m.; afternoon, 16th District Meeting.

April 7—Draper, 11 a.m.; St. Paul at night.

April 14—Alamance charge, Center and Sapling Ridge churches.

April 21—Siler City, 11 a.m.; Hope church at night.

April 28—Denton.

May 5—Fallston charge.

May 12—Anderson and Yarborough charges.

By Mrs. R. M. Andrews

(Tune—"She'll Be Comin' 'Round the Mountain When She Comes")

There's a friend we welcome gladly when it comes,
There's a friend we welcome gladly when it comes,
The Methodist Protestant Herald,
The Methodist Protestant Herald,
Is the friend we welcome gladly when it comes.

Oh! it's filled with information, read it through,
Tells the news of all creation unto you,
Brings it in from sea to mountain,
Flings it forth from molten fountain.
Oh! it's filled with information, read it through.

Chorus (To be sung after other two stanzas)
(Tune—"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching")
Hail! Hail! Meth-dist Protestant Herald,
How you fill our hearts with cheer;
Ever faithful, wise and true,
Leader, friend, and teacher, too.
Oh! we greet you and we'll hold you ever dear.

METHODIST UNION

Rev. J. C. Broomfield, D.D.

Because of the interest of our people in the progress of the negotiations for Methodist union, I am sharing with them my impressions of the meeting of the General Commission on Union just closed at Louisville, Ky.

The commission is composed of 25 commissioners from the Methodist Episcopal Church, 25 from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and 15 from the Methodist Protestant Church.

Over 40 of the commissioners were in attendance. Four of the members of our commission—Rev. S. W. Taylor, D.D., Rev. Roby F. Day, D.D., Mr. John H. Baker, and Hon. Nate S. Williamson—were unable to be present.

The commission was in session March 13-14, and received the report of its Committee of Fifteen appointed at the meeting held at Chicago last August.

Before leaving Chicago, the Committee of Fifteen divided its work among three subcommittees—one on Annual Conferences, one on Jurisdictional Conferences, and one on the Episcopacy.

These subcommittees had held frequent meetings, and brought their findings to the Committee of Fifteen in its meeting on March 12, one day before the opening of the meeting of the General Commission.

In previous meetings I detected what to me were evidences of hesitancy, suggesting uncertainty, and even fear. It was not so in this meeting. The time apparently had arrived to come out into the open and start building the basis on which the three churches could unite.

And build they did!

In the spirit of unselfishness, of give-and-take, of apparent anxiety to do the right thing, and of willingness to face serious problems and delicate situations calmly and firmly, they proceeded with their task.

It is not possible to state definitely what was done, for nothing was finally adopted; but in my estimation substantial progress was made toward a United Methodism in America.

I can assure our people that the two things we cherish—the autonomy of the local church, and the principle of equal lay representation, such as we have enjoyed for over a hundred years—are being built into the plan of union. The next meeting of the commission will be held August 14-16 at Evanston, Ill.

CONCERNING METHODIST UNION

Dr. Broomfield's report of the meeting of the three commissions appointed by their respective General Conferences, to consider the subject of the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant Church, gives the essential facts, and I have little to add. I do wish, however, to record a few personal observations and convictions.

I was impressed with the courtesy and consideration shown our members by those of the commissions representing the two larger churches. The spirit of selfishness was not at any time shown, but, on the other hand, they seemed to have due regard for our interests; their attitude was brotherly, never patronizing.

While to unite these three denominations is a great undertaking, there seemed to be no thought other than to go forward with the perfecting of the plan; when this has been done, I feel that it will commend itself to the great majority of all the people concerned. I am sure that such a union as is contemplated will mean a great deal to the cause of Christ, both at home and abroad. For this reason I think that our personal preferences should not carry too great weight, but that our one and only desire should be to honor the great Head of the Church, by seeking to know and to do His will upon earth.

J. Norman Wills.

Rev. Joseph Lynch Passes

The Methodist Protestant Recorder carried the information last week of the passing of the Rev. Joseph Lynch, a member of the Maryland Conference and pastor of our church in Lynchburg, Va. As we remember it, Brother Lynch delivered a series of sermons to the students of High Point College a year or two ago. He also assisted Dr. George R. Brown in a meeting at Reidsville last year.

OUR STORY PAGE

GIVING MOTHER A VACATION

"No, I cannot go out today. In fact, this week is to be a very busy week for every one in our home except husband and me. There will be no 'father' and 'mother' here next week."

Such was the answer to one of the ministers in town when he desired to have one of the women of his church take an interest in a "mothers' club" which had been organized to help create a better atmosphere in the community. And such an answer called forth other questions.

"Are you and your husband going away next week?"

"No, not exactly, but we are not to be home."

"Well, well; I am curious. I cannot understand you."

"Well, I will tell you, but you must not tell anyone around here. Will you promise?"

"I promise."

"You know I have three children—two in high school and one in the eighth grade."

"Yes, your daughter Edith and my daughter Elsie are both seniors."

"And my son George and your son Henry are juniors."

"And Mabel is in the eighth grade. They are all at the age when they need much attention."

"Will you be at the prayer service tonight?"

"Yes, but George and Edith will not be there. They have important business tonight. They must get ready for next week."

"I am anxious to learn about 'next week,' " said I.

"It is to be a week of rest and pleasure for me and a week of delight for husband. Saturday night husband and I will say 'good-by' to our children and are not to recognize them again as children until a week from Saturday night, though we shall be at home all the time. George is to be the 'man of the house,' Edith is to be the 'mistress of the house,' and Mabel is to be their daughter, and husband and I are to be an 'uncle' and 'aunt' visiting them. You see, next week is 'vacation week,' and while some children will want to 'go somewhere,' mine will have a fine time staying home."

"Yes," said I, "but who will do the work?"

"Why, our nephew and nieces. Husband and I move into the spare bedroom and play 'uncle and aunt' for a week."

"How strange," said I. "I always noticed that you were a fine mother and you and your children were as one, but tell me, can they take care of the house alone? Who will do the cooking?"

"Edith will do all the cooking except the meat. George knows just how to cook the meat to delight his father. But cooking is not the best part of it. Every morning George will read the Scripture and pray. How blessed it is to see and hear one's own son conduct family worship and how he prays for his father and mother. Edith and Mabel always sing a hymn. They were practicing 'Faith of Our Fathers' today noon so as to have a new hymn for next week."

"What do you do?" I asked.

"Oh, papa and I just keep the tears back until we kneel in prayer; then we weep for joy. After prayer 'uncle' excuses himself and goes to his business, while I go to my room and cry and talk it over with Jesus.

"Pardon me for shedding a few tears. When I think of next week I just cannot keep my eyes dry. The tears of joy will not stay out of sight.

"Yes, I am not much of a 'club woman.' I am too busy making a home for my loved ones. The time some women take at their clubs I take to get up surprises for my family. You see, I am one of the kind that believes to be a real wife and mother is the greatest of honor for a woman. But I must not turn preacher. But my children are not always desiring to 'go somewhere.' They act as if 'there was no place like home,' and that is heaven for me."

"My sister, I am delighted to learn that your plan makes a home what it should be. May I call on the 'uncle and aunt' next Wednesday evening?"

"To be sure, we should like to have you; and I know my children will be pleased to have you spend an evening with your uncle and aunt."

* * * * *

"I had a most delightful evening with the 'uncle and aunt,' and the nephew and nieces were royal entertainers. As I think it all over, I believe to be a real wife and mother and have a few surprises for husband and children will make a real home and answer that awful problem 'I want to go somewhere.' "—Publisher Unknown.

RADICAL INFLUENCE WANING

Unless we greatly mistake, during the past few years there has been a marked decline of public interest in radical criticism and a renewed interest in the Bible. Somehow after the critics have shown to their own satisfaction that there is nothing especially authoritative in the Bible, men feel that there is. The Bible speaks to them in a tone that no other book can rival. It searches out the deep things of the Spirit, and reveals a man to himself and God to him. You may explain to your satisfaction just how the Books of the Bible were written, and make everything in it very human and commonplace, but you cannot get rid of the Divine element in it that appeals to every one who honestly studies it. The Bible thus stands on its own merits. It is well for believers in the Bible to be able to answer criticisms against it, but after all the Bible is its own best defender. It is so true to human experience that it needs no outside defense. —The Watchman-Examiner.

MOODY'S ANSWER

At the close of a meeting a cynic approached Mr. Moody and said, "Mr. Moody, during your address this evening I counted eighteen mistakes in your English."

Looking kindly at his critic, Mr. Moody said, "Young man, I am using for the glory of God all the grammar I know. Are you doing the same?"

STAGING, MAKEUP, LIGHTING, AND COSTUMING

When I was a high school boy in plays, my instructor urged and insisted that we learn our lines to perfection as if the whole thing depended upon the lines. Directors and playwriters today will tell you that that is very important but is not all, by any means.

The staging of the play counts more than any other one thing. It makes no difference if the play is given with perfect lines, it will not be a success unless the stage is set up in the right age and environment. The stage gives the atmosphere even before a word is spoken.

Makeup plays a very important part in the success of a play. Someone might ask the question, Why use makeup? The main purposes of makeup are—to combat lights, to stimulate projection, to obtain change, to simulate character, to intensify the dominating characteristics, and to promote a psychological effect. Lights of a stage may keep an actor from stumbling over the furniture but they may be an enemy to him as soon as they touch his face. If a makeup is "very pretty" in the dressing room, it will not be of any use whatever under the lights. Suppose you do not have the right aged character to play a certain part; with makeup it is easy to make an old man or an old woman out of a young man or young woman.

The cost of makeup is very reasonable. For one dollar a student size kit may be ordered from Max Factor & Co., which will supply you with all that is needed to make up any character except the colored. It also contains powder and cleansing cream.

"Lights are to drama what music is to lyrics of a song. No other factor that enters into the production of a play is so effective in conveying its moods and feelings. They are as essential to every work of dramatic art as blood is to life."—Belasco. With the proper use of lighting, very cheap costumes can be made to look from the audience to be very rich and costly. Many times with cross lights you can change the color altogether. Of course the lantern, where there is no regular stage equqipment, is the best thing, but pans purchased from the dime store may be used as reflectors and all colors of gelatin can be used to fit the occasion.

In the selection of costumes the director should be clear about the motives. Costumes should be representative of a character, a type, a social caste, a race, a country, or a period of history. J. T. BOWMAN.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson, N. C.

Topic for Sunday, March 24, 1935: "Does God Guide People Today?"

Scripture Lesson: Romans 8:12-14.

As the piano plays softly, let the leader read:

"I ask no dream, no prophet ecstasies,
No sudden rending of the veil of clay,
No angel visitant, no opening skies;
But take the dimness of my soul away."

"Take the dimness of my soul away." How can I know what God wants me to do? If I could only be sure of what God wants me to do. If I but had some definite knowledge that God is guiding me into decisions, and choices, all would be well, and life would be easy. And thus we reason.

That God has talked with men through ages past goes without saying. If he doesn't speak to men today, it is no fault of God but of man. It is no indication that he has withdrawn his love and blessing; but simply means that the voice of God has grown dim by man's interests and attention to indulgences foreign to the will and plan of God.

Here let us take up a discussion of the points in the lesson as outlined by our C. E. Quarterly:

1. "God speaks to us in our conscience."
On the mount, God didn't appear in the storm, the crash of the thunder and the flash of the lightning. He didn't reveal Himself in the falling of the tembers and the descending rains. God didn't appear in the earthquake, and the tremors and heavy shakes that rocked the hills and loosened the tons of earth and stone, sending a deluge into the valleys. God didn't appear in the terribleness of the fire, but after each of these cataclysms had passed; quietness reigned and God spoke in the still small voice. He continues to speak to men today in the still small voices of conscience, telling us what is right and what is wrong. "We call it conscience but some people call it God."

2. "God speaks to us through the Bible."
The Bible is filled with the deeply rich experiences of men who have known God, and reading them we can know Him better and ascertain His plan for us more definitely.

3. "God speaks to us through art and beauty."
God's world is robed in beauty, God's world is robed in light, says the poet. "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help," sings the psalmist. "If God can speak to Moses in a fiery bush," surely He can speak to us in the mellow glow of a sunset. The poet has expressed it again as he says, "In the rustling grass I can hear Him pass, He speaks to me everywhere."

He can speak to us in noble art. Count Zinzendorf was standing one day before a picture of the crucified Christ when his heart was strangely stirred. It seemed to him that the eyes of the Christ gazed sorrowfully at him. He bent to read the words beneath the picture:

"This thou hast done for me,
What have I done for thee,
Thou crucified."

From this moment on, this man's life belonged to Christ and he became the founder of the great Moravian church.

4. God speaks to us through noble lives."
We become like the people we are with most; therefore it is wise to live constantly in the presence of the best. Let us elect the best of associates, the best of books, the best of everything, if we would make our lives sublime.

5. "God speaks to us through prayer."
Too often prayer becomes just a one-sided conversation, we do all the talking. In fact, we talk so much that we can't hear God when He speaks to us. The chatter of our own lips drowns out the "still small voice" of God. Prayer ought to be the vital stream between man and God, through which we may get our message through and, having cleared the line, await the response that will come.

6. "God speaks to us through the Holy Spirit."
The Holy Spirit is something that we may not be able to see, but we are conscious of its abiding presence. The Comforter promised by Jesus.

Use hymns like: "Holy Ghost With Light Divine," "Break Thou the Bread of Life," "Take My Life and Let It Be."

HOW MANY FAMILIES TAKE THE HERALD?

Please remember that in our issue the first week in May we want to recognize the charge that has the largest percentage of its families taking the Herald. Calvary church now has 58 families taking the paper. While we do not list subscribers by churches, we can furnish sections of the mailing list to those who are especially interested in counting.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

NOTICE—YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

I have mailed Annual Report Blanks to presidents of auxiliaries and pastors, where I did not have the name and address of the young people's secretary, and I do want to insist that YOU COMPLETE AND SIGN REPORT AND RETURN to me on or before APRIL 7, in order that I may make a complete report to the Branch meeting, and more particularly that your young people may get credit for the work they are doing.

If you do not have an organization for your children and young people, please advise if they are receiving any missionary training.

Please be sure to give NUMBER OF POINTS ATTAINED according to efficiency chart in order that banners may be awarded to the organization doing the best work.

If you have not received Annual Report Blank, kindly advise and I will be glad to mail you another.

May I have your co-operation in making my report to the Branch 100 per cent.

MRS. A. H. RAGAN, Sec. Y. P. Work,
N. C. Branch, Thomasville, N. C.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE

Of course you have been reading the splendid articles in the Herald pleading with all auxiliaries to pay their apportionment by March 31. Then raise your apportionment for next Branch year by April 10 and take to Branch meeting. I sincerely trust that each president of an auxiliary is seeing to it that an effort to do this is being put forth. It will do two things, help your auxiliary budget and most of all help to raise the needed amount to secure the board's offer. District chairman, will you not do your part to encourage your district to come up 100 per cent? Let's all have a part in this special service at Branch meeting and make this committee and others happy.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON,
Chairman of Districts, N. C. Branch.

GLORIOUS EASTER

To add to the joy of Easter, every church and Sunday school in the Methodist Protestant denomination needs our own beautiful Easter service, and the Board of Missions needs the full co-operation of all the churches in an endeavor to meet pressing obligations to our missionaries and the work. We have been compelled to borrow about $10,000 this year to keep the work going, which loan must be paid by April 30, the close of our missionary year. The work in the various fields is reduced to an irreducible minimum already, and we see no way to reduce further. Please, every pastor and Sunday school superintendent order supplies at once from the Board of Missions, 516 N. Charles Street, Baltimore, Md., and do your very best to get a liberal offering on Easter Sunday for missions. Send the offering to your Annual Conference treasurer on Easter Monday morning and urge him to forward the same at once to Mr. H. C. Staley, Treasurer, 516 N. Charles Street, Baltimore, Md.

G. W. HADDAWAY, Executive Sec.,
Board of Missions.

FROM SECRETARY OF SCHOLARSHIPS AND WORKERS

The Secretary of Scholarships and Workers in each auxiliary is earnestly requested to send me a report of all monies contributed for Scholarships and Workers this missionary year; that is to say since the Branch meeting in April, 1934. It is very important that I have this data to include in my report to the Branch meeting which will be held in Asheboro in April. Only one church so far has made report to me. A postal card will do. Please be prompt.

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

After a hard day's drive through mud that was sometimes hub deep, the community was reached and I tried to rest for the work of next day. Qute a number of folks came to see what the new preacher had to say. There were church people of one of our sister denominations that came; it seemed to head off anything that we might try to do. They were the kind of folks that thought we were not the folks that were traveling the right way and consequently did not have much business in there.

I was always wondering whether there would be any folks next time I went back, for it was a very uncertain proposition anyway, proved to be entirely so in the end.

But perhaps you are wondering what was said about the whiskey question. A plenty was said, and I found out afterwards that the fellow who warned me was making his living that way. Usually when a church member comes and warns you ahead of time, he has an interest either directly or indirectly. I might say that I never had any more instructions there how to handle the whiskey question.

There are always some, or rather in many communities you will find some, that know much more about how a man should preach than he knows himself. A wonder to me that the Lord calls men, gives them training for their work through the schools, and, by experience, that someone who usually has an "ax to grind" knows more about it than the preacher. Those "general informants" don't all live in the backwoods either. Perhaps that would be the best place for them, with apology to the backwoods.

I remember one man who came to me and said: "Preacher, I would like to pay you some if you will take corn for it." Well, I had a horse to feed and told him I would take a couple of bushels. "It is forty cents now and I can let you have three bushels." So credited him with the amount and took one bushel on the buggy and told him I would get the other when I came back. Thirty miles, an all-day drive, with that corn. Next time I went back, corn had gone to sixty and he asked me to make the raise on my book. I did, but did not buy any more corn. Wonder if any of our preachers of today ever had an experience like that. They are common yet, I mean such experiences, and such people will always be common.

May I tell you one other amusing experience before leaving this community? The last night I was ever there I spent a miserable night. Put in a shed room with the bed built to the wall. About time I was ready to go to sleep, or hoped to, for it was unusually hot July weather. Some of the older brethren know how well they travel in hot weather. I mean "the pestilence that walketh in the night seasons." They were there, ready for an attack. I had been warned not to leave the door unfastened. So I eased up and opened the door. About the time I got back in bed an old cat came through the little window that was the only means of ventilation. It was up near the ceiling. She got under the bed and had to quiet her babies and about the time they got quiet the family dog came creeping in. He occupied the space between me and the door. Then bump, bump, bump, bump, to get what was on him off, and I imagined that what he had got all over me. Maybe they did, I am not sure. I drove him out and by that time the mosquitoes had gotten in the room. What time did you say it was by then? Breaking of day. I went out, fed my horse, got away soon as I could, and left those desolate regions to those who seemed to know better what they needed than I did. I shall always feel grateful to that Quarterly Conference that released me from making another trip to that section.

There were sections there where one would drive eight miles through woodland without sight of a clearing or any living thing but the wild turkeys, pheasants, and wild game generally. But not being a mighty hunter, these things did not appeal to me, and if they had, it took all of a day to get through such roads in the winter; and in summer time one had to be merciful to his beast and travel a little while and then rest. But in the two and one-half years I was never bothered by man or beast.

FOURTEENTH DISTRICT RALLY

The approaching fifth Sunday rally for the fourteenth district will be held on Sunday, March 31, Shady Grove church, Connelly Springs charge.

The services will begin at 11 o'clock. Rev. J. L. Love will read the Scripture lesson and offer prayer. Rev. J. R. Anderson, pastor of Lincolnton charge, will bring the morning message, "The Christian Church, Its Task."

Beginning at 1:30, the afternoon program will take a practical turn and center around our denominational endeavors and seek definitely to point out ways through which they may be promoted. The following items will be recognized and presented as assigned:

Four ways through which to support the Children's Home, Rev. D. T. Huss.

Four ways through which to support High Point College, Miss Nathalie Lackey.

Four ways through which to support the M. P. Herald, Rev. T. O. Fry.

Four ways through which to support our missionaries, Mrs. B. L. Heavner.

Four ways through which to support our A. C. E., Rev. R. S. Troxler.

Certainly each of these causes occupies that which might be called a strategic point in our conference program. Should time permit, impromptu suggestions will be received from the audience.

Shady Grove church is located approximately one mile north of Connelly Springs. Remember the day, Sunday, March 31.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Sapling Ridge, Alamance Charge.—The Woman's Auxiliary of Sapling Ridge church held its monthly meeting on March 8, 1935, in the home of Mrs. M. H. Woody. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Mabel Teague; scripture read by Mrs. Frank Webster; and prayer led by Mrs. Sina Stone. The roll was called and the minutes read by the secretary, and then a very interesting program on prayer was stressed by the society. After the business session was over all the members of the society made a quilt square which they hope to raise money on to buy a piano for the church.

The hostess, Mrs. Woody, served a very delightful two-plate course which was enjoyed by all.

There were most of the members present and five visitors. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Wade Perry on Wednesday, April 17.

. Our Sunday school is getting along very nicely. We hope to have more people come now, as the weather is more favorable. Our pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, is bringing us some good sermons which I think all the people are enjoying very much, and we are proud of the interest he is taking in both the young and old people. We are hoping to give a good Easter program and have a large crowd attend on that day.

MRS. WADE PERRY, Auxiliary Sec.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We are considering an Easter Day program.

Rev. T. J. Whitehead delivered a splendid sermon Sunday, March 10. He and his wife were also guests of Mr. W. M. Boger and family for dinner.

Mr. Mike Payne, an old resident of this community, has been seriously ill for the past week, but is showing improvement at present. BERTHA BOGER, Reporter.

Shoals, Pinnacle-Mt. Zion Charge.—On second Sunday, March 10, our pastor filled his regular appointment at the 11 o'clock hour. The audience gave him their best attention. A large number were present, considering the weather. At 3 o'clock the pastor and several members of the church had a church meeting.

Mr. Morris preached a very interesting sermon. It's great to say, but is true, that our pastor preaches better each time. He was good at first, but now he is still better. Of course, we all enjoy hearing him preach, and wish it were possible for us to hear him more often. He was accompanied by Mrs. Morris. Everyone thinks a lot of her, too. They took lunch with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Westmoreland. I'm sure they enjoyed their visit the entire day in Shoals. They were present at Sunday school Sunday morning. All enjoyed having them with us and extend a hearty welcome to them each second Sunday, and more often if they can possibly be present.

By the way, I'm sure everyone is glad to learn that our Sunday school is improving. Sunday we had several visitors and one visitor joined the Sunday school. All are invited to come to our Sunday school that aren't in Sunday school. We do hope we will soon have several more new members in Sunday school, because there are others who aren't in Sunday school anywhere. So they are welcome to visit ours. And if they like us, as we hope they will, join ours.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the church to hold their last meeting for the year. They are planning a program on "Temperance" to be given fourth Sunday night at 7 o'clock. We hope to have a large number present. So all are invited to come and be with us. REPORTER.

Bessemer City.—Bessemer City is still moving along very nicely. Sunday school was good last Sunday. Our superintendent was back with us again and we are hoping that he will be with us regularly from now on. Rev. J. R. Anderson will meet with the board of stewards Sunday afternoon at 4:30 and try to get them going again.

We have been looking for our pastor to give us some pastoral work for some time now, but as yet he has not gotten around to us, but we are still looking for him. Bessemer City is a small town with nine churches, and without pastoral work we cannot last very long. The pastors of the other churches are awake to the fact that if they don't do their work somebody will take their membership.

C. E. Society is doing very good now and is having good programs, and if you have not been attending we would like for you to come out Sunday evening at 6:15.

Our troop of Boy Scouts is off to a good start. Last Monday night they won the efficiency award of Gaston county, and we hope that they just keep going. There are three troops here but our troop is the best.

Enfield.—Our church work is still going on with increased interest. Our attendance at Sunday school and church has been very good, and our pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, has been giving us some very helpful and inspiring sermons. Our church is co-operating in the three-month tithing campaign. Some of the members have manifested much interest and already turned in their tithing pledges.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its February meeting in the home of Mrs. Sam Peirson, Sr., with Mrs. J. M. Person and Mrs. C. E. McGwigan assistant hostesses. At this meeting the following new officers were elected and will be installed at the March meeting: President, Mrs. R. A. Jordan; first vice president, Mrs. Egbert Barnhill; second vice president, Mrs. S. C. Whitaker; treasurer, Mrs. Sam Peirson, Sr.; recording secretary, Mrs. Myra Mann; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. A. Hunt; leader Circle No. 1, Mrs. H. M. Whitaker; leader Circle No. 2, Mrs. E. E. Stalling. At this meeting we also held our February thank-offering service with Miss Mary Collins, secretary, in charge. Our offering was incomplete, due to absences. We have much sickness in our midst now. Mrs. Pike, who has been confined to her bed for over three years, seems to be failing fast for the past few days. Mrs. J. R. Powers had the misfortune to hurt her foot very badly some weeks ago and is unable to walk yet. George Earl Sykes, who has been in the sanatorium, is reported as doing very nicely.

Our auxiliary and Whitakers auxiliary met at the hut Thursday, March 7, and quilted a quilt, every member donating a square. The quilt will be sold and the money turned over to Bethel Home from the auxiliaries. Several from our district are planning to attend the district meet at Creswell. The auxiliary had a chicken salad and oyster supper at the hut.

Tabernacle, Julian.—Our editor called our attention to some birthdays of importance which notice was read with interest. The writer is now calling attention to some remarkable old people in our midst. Mrs. Charlotte Woodburn recently passed her 96th birthday. Mrs. Woodburn is one of the beloved saints. Her principal thought is of her "Glory Home," to which she is certain she will soon go. Yet for some good cause she remains with us. Mr. Robert Coble has recently celebrated his 93rd birthday. Uncle Robert is hale and happy. He moves about the home as men of much younger years. Indeed he does quite a lot of work. Apparently he is to enjoy many more birthdays. Mr. C. Mack Jones has passed his 90th birthday. While Brother Jones is not so well as Brother Coble, he is with us and we trust he will be with us for many more birthdays. These are three remarkable old people of our community.

Death has been in our midst and this time it has taken from the home of Brother and Sister C. Floyd Fields their precious little baby, Lois Jacquelene, who was two months of age. Our sympathies are extended to these dear parents, and yet they are to be congratulated in that they have been allowed to contribute a precious jewel to the Better Land.

The Tabernacle Woman's Club is responsible for some improvements on the Tabernacle church grounds which is to be very much appreciated. Beautiful shrubbery has been bought and placed in front and around the Sunday school building, which adds much to the appearance of the grounds. Prof. DeLoach, the teacher of agriculture in our high school at Pleasant Garden, did the landscaping and assisted in the planting of the shrubs. Thanks to the professor.

Another improvement has come our way which is certainly not to be overlooked. One of the furniture deliveries of Greensboro came to our parsonage door one day recently and unloaded a fine living room suite. The invoice which was also presented called for $112.81. But no charges to the pastor and family. The good ladies of our very efficient auxiliary are responsible. To say the least, the pastor and family certainly do appreciate this splendid addition to the comforts of our home life. Three years ago there were no furnishings in our parsonage, but from time to time nice things have been added. It is fine, fine.

Our regular morning service was at Julian last Sunday, and we were invited to dinner as we always are at Julian. We mean pastor and family. This time we were to go to the home of Bro. P. R. Blackard. Well, what a dinner. It was the kind that will cause any one who lives on a diet to break all kinds of training and doctor's orders. We always know what to expect when we go to the Blackards'. Bro. Blackard and his family came to this community from Virginia some years ago and the entire family has come into the Julian church. The speedometer told us we were driving eleven and one-half miles from the church to the Blackard home. This distance the Blackards drive to church, but they are of the most faithful of the Julian congregation and that is saying much. The Blackards are always there, night or day, and on time. Bro. Blackard and his sons are great farmers as well as good church people.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Shady Grove, Connelly Springs Circuit.—Rev. J. L. Love filled his appointment last Sunday, preaching from James 1:22 as his text. He made a wonderful sermon and a great appeal to his congregation, as he made us see ourselves just as we are; but he has a habit of bringing us very impressive sermons twice a month. We are very proud of him as our pastor. Our church is progressing nicely under his leadership.

Our Laymen's Fellowship is doing a great work under our pastor's leadership. The Ladies' Aid Society is doing a fine work with Mrs. Love as president. Our Sunday school is being well attended with Grandpa Setzer as superintendent. Our weekly prayer meeting is going good. Bro. R. B. Tomlison conducted last night's reading and discussing Philippians 4.

We are looking forward with a joyous anticipation to the fifth Sunday, March 31, as the district rally has promised to meet with us at Shady Grove. We invite all churches to be present in a goodly number from over the district, and other churches too are invited. All laymen are requested to bring baskets, but pastors and families are not expected to bring any baskets.

Our church is one and one-fourth miles north of Connelly Springs. As spring is here and people want somewhere to go, just come to Shady Grove March 31.

C. C. F., Reporter.

Guilford Charge.—Seems that our reporters are asleep. I hope they will wake up now as spring is almost here. I haven't reported in some time, but nevertheless we are moving on very well with our work. Mitchell Grove members are building the second Sunday school room, hope to have it completed in a short time. The Sunday school convention will be held at Vickery the fifth Sunday afternoon. The public is invited to attend. Our second quarterly conference will be held at Mitchell Grove next Saturday, March 23, at 2:30. Hope to have a large attendance. During the month of February, Vickery and Hickory Grove members gave us a nice pounding, which was very much appreciated. The members on the work are continually giving us things for the pantry. Mr. and Mrs. Worth Lewallen, of Fairfield, visited us last week and brought us 20 cans of fruit and jelly. Many thanks to all for their thoughtfulness of us.

The sick ones on our work seem to be improving, for which we are very grateful.

Mrs. G. L. Kirkman, one of our members of Vickery, died two weeks ago. She was sick a short time. Surviving are her husband, six sons and four daughters. They have our prayers in these sad and lonely hours. Mrs. Myrtle Hayworth was taken March 5. She was a member of Lebanon church, High Point. She and her four small children made their home with her father near Fairfield church, so they attended there. It is so sad for a young mother to be taken from her children. She was a fine woman.

T. A. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Lincolnton.—Rev. J. R. Anderson filled his regular appointment Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour, giving us a fine message from Philippians 3:10: "That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his suffering, being made conformable unto his death." The three important phases, love, sacrifice and suffering.

We say again we are proud of our Sunday school. Number present, 166, and offering over $27.

We are planning an all-day service the fifth Sunday in this month, and are expecting a very good day. There will be singing and a brief talk. All the public are invited. Please come; we will be glad to have you.

The Christian Endeavor of our church had a social last week, March 15. Twenty-five or more were present and enjoyed a splendid entertainment and refreshments.

The ladies are doing fine in the auxiliary. They are planning a measuring social the last Friday night in this month. The public is invited. It will be held at Mrs. Cass Leonard's home at 7:30 o'clock.

REPORTER.

First Church, Lexington.—The auxiliary of the First Methodist Protestant church held its March meeting with Mrs. Archie Miller Thursday night, March 14, 1935. The meeting was opened by singing "At the Cross." Prayer was offered by Mrs. S. J. Lookabill. Devotional reading was led by Mrs. L. B. Koonts, after which the president, Mrs. O. F. Johnson, took charge. Mrs. Arvil Walser called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. There was much business discussed in which the auxiliary was much interested. Ways were planned by which each member might do her part to help in various ways to carry on the Master's work. At this meeting the auxiliary took in $37 for its last month's work. Plans were discussed in which to raise money for church purposes. It was planned to serve a chicken pie dinner and supper March 30. The delegates to the Women's Branch meeting, which is to be held at Asheboro April 10 and 11, are Miss Margaret Lea Swink and Mrs. Hattie Isley. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Arvil Parker on South Ford Street April 18.

Following the business session, Mrs. Miller assisted by little Betty Lou Miller and Master Billie Johnson, served ice cream and cake to the following members and visitors: Mrs. Arvil Walser, Mrs. Arvil Parker, Mrs. Savanna Craven, Mrs. Ed Clifton, Mrs. S. J. Lookabill, Mrs. James Hunt, Mrs. Hattie Isley, Mrs. Miller, Miss Margaret Lea Swink, Miss Lola Mae McCulloch, Rev. C. G. Isley, Mr. Archie Miller, Doris Parker, Nancy Lou Clifton, Betty Lou Miller, Billy Walser, and Billy Johnson. Rev. and Mrs. D. I. Garner, of First M. P. church, Concord, were welcome guests.

MRS. HATTIE ISLEY.

Graham.—The Woman's Auxiliary held their second thank-offering service at the hut on Monday evening, March 11. The program was given by Circle No. 3. A business meeting was held after the service and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. P. Williams; vice president, Mrs. R. A. Davis; treasurer, Mrs. N. E. Sykes; secretary, Mrs. Charles Cates. Mrs. George Stafford and Mrs. Percy Amick will be delegates to the Branch meeting.

Our Sunday school attendance is increasing. We are still working to reach 200. The following classes had perfect attendance Sunday: Miss Dona Parks', Mrs. M. R. Kirkman's, Mrs. R. A. Davis', and Mr. J. D. Foust's.

Our pastor is preaching a new series of sermons. He spoke Sunday morning on "Christ's Choice of Associates." The Sunday night song service was in charge of Mrs. Christine McPherson and Mrs. H. C. Stout.

We welcomed Mr. Hubert C. Stout into our membership Sunday morning.

Preparations are being made for our Easter services. The choir will give special numbers at the morning service and the children will give a program in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Foust Thompson celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last Sunday. We wish them many more happy years together.

Mrs. Mary Steele continues quite ill at the home of her daughter in Greensboro.

MRS. CHARLES CATES, Reporter.

Shiloh Charge.—Since our church reporters have kept the readers of the Herald informed as to what is being done on this charge, and the editor receiving more information than he had space to print, I have refrained from writing a report.

However, it seems that the rush is going to continue all through the year, so I guess I had better come in and join the happy family. There has been much sickness among our people and we have lost five members by death since conference. With spring approaching we see better days ahead, and the work seems to be progressing in a very satisfactory manner. The interest and attendance in the Sunday schools, C. E. Society, prayer meetings, and preaching services have been very encouraging. Finances are being met on pastor's salary and budgets almost as promptly as when they are due. About 50 per cent of our Memorial Fund has been sent in, and our college assessment is claiming our attention now and will be raised very soon. I have never labored with a people that are more loyal to the pastor and responsive to the church and conference program. They have been so nice to us and have remembered us continuously with just such necessities that a family needs to sustain physical life. Space will not permit me to name the gifts or the givers, but the dear Lord knoweth them and will reward each of them. I do not know what the Shiloh reporter will say this week if she sends in a report, but we just cannot keep the secret any longer, so here it is: Shiloh is to have a parsonage.

Subscriptions are being taken, money is being paid in, and work has actually begun. The well and garage are finished, and several thousand brick are on the yard. The location is near Shiloh church, and it will be a splendid parsonage when it is finished. This is a rather big undertaking for a country church, but when Shiloh sets out to do a thing she does it. If this report gets by the editor's waste basket and gets into print, I think I will write again sometime.

C. E. RIDGE, Pastor.

Bethel, Alamance Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, has filled all his regular appointments. He always brings us inspiring messages. Bro. Isley and his wife have received a warm welcome in our midst.

Last Sunday we held our thank-offering service. The Woman's Auxiliary has paid its budget in full. The ladies are planning to hold a white elephant sale next Saturday at the home of Mrs. Lon McPherson under the direction of Miss Daisy Winningham, one of the circle leaders.

Young people's service was held the fourth Sunday afternoon. The speakers were Misses Bessie Holmes and Edith Guthrie. Special music was rendered by Tyree Lindley, Vaughn Boone, Misses Opal Cook and Lottie Lea Foust.

We are having a good Sunday school under the direction of Mr. Lon McPherson and his splendid staff of teachers, Rev. G. W. Holmes, Mrs. Lon McPherson, T. C. Boone, Tyree Lindley, Mrs. W. W. Workman, and Misses Bessie Holmes and Sallie Mae Bivens.

We have recently painted our church and installed two new Heatrolas.

The second quarterly conference for this charge will be held at Sapling Ridge church April 13 at 2 o'clock.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—I promised a fuller report of our business activities. Since Shiloh charge has no parsonage, and seeing a great need for one, Shiloh church is undertaking to build a parsonage on Shiloh church property. A building site has already been cleared. A well was dug two weeks ago, and last week a garage was built. The contract for the house has been given and plans are to start the foundation early this week. As is understood thus far it will be a seven-room brick veneer. A building committee composed of Mr. Jesse Hill, Mr. Ed Waitman and Mr. Jack Weaver is working on the matter. There has been $1,297.50 pledged to date and $703.50 already collected. We hope that we will be able to carry out this which you know is a large undertaking and will require the co-operation of the entire church membership.

Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, is working faithfully in our business activities and at the same time still doing good preaching. He preached Sunday on the subject "When Wickedness Succeeds"; text, Psalms 73:3. Sin is never more dangerous than when it succeeds. These messages are proving very helpful and uplifting to everyone who will take heed.

There were several visitors in our congregation Sunday, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Walser, of Winston-Salem; Mr. Carl Berrier, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mr. Tom Berrier, of Richmond, Va.; also some from our neighboring churches. Everyone has a cordial invitation to attend our services at any time.

The work in general is showing that someone is working and we hope that we as a church will be able to hold up the banner of our Lord that sin may be overthrown. Pray for us in our work.

Lebanon, Spring Church Charge.—The Lebanon church auxiliary of Spring Church charge met at the church on March 3 and elected new officers, as follows: Mrs. J. H. Harris, president; Mrs. J. C. Cook, secretary; Mrs. W. S. Burnette, treasurer; Mrs. W. W. Grant, corresponding secretary. There were several new members present and some unusual interest shown. We have paid our budget and are hoping for a good year's work this year.

Our Sunday school is growing and the interest as a whole in all the church work is taking on new life. We are not asleep, if you do not see anything in the paper about us. Bro. Neese gave us a very fine message last Sunday.

MRS. W. W. GRANT.

Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon Charge. — The fourth Sunday in February held several special features for the people of our church. Sunday school at the regular time was in charge of the superintendent, James Thompson. Immediately after Sunday school the temperance secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. C. M. Neese, and several other ladies gave a short temperance play.

After these services at the church a number of people went to the home of J. F. Isley, where his mother, Mrs. Mary Isley, was celebrating her birthday. A large crowd of friends and relatives and her pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead, enjoyed the bountiful dinner and the fellowship with her. Mrs. Isley seemed to be made very happy by the occasion and may she have many more such happy birthdays.

On the fourth Sunday evening at 7:30 the Ladies' Auxiliary held the semi-annual thank-offering service. Rev. H. L. Isley was the speaker. He used as his subject "The Kingdom of God." Scripture, Matt. 6:10, "Thy kingdom come." It was an inspiring and helpful message, showing us that to establish the Kingdom of God we must do our part to help to save others. We were all glad to have Rev. Mr. Isley with us for the service, as he is one of our own members of Mt. Hermon church. He stated that night that it was in Mt. Hermon church that he was baptized, converted, and licensed to preach. Rev. Mr. Whitehead also assisted in this service.

Our pastor has been with us for the regular appointments in this month the first Sunday afternoon and the third Sunday morning. He will also be with us again for an extra service the fifth Sunday in this month. Beginning with the first Sunday, Rev. Mr. Whitehead stated that from that time until Easter the main thought of his sermons would be around "Jesus and the Modern World," and for that service he used as his subject "Jesus and Modern Business." The third Sunday his subject was "Jesus in the Modern Home."

For the service the first Sunday Rev. Mr. Whitehead had arranged for some special music furnished by the Young People's Choir of West End church, Greensboro, L. M. Foust, director. The music was excellent. The pastor, Dr. N. G. Bethea, and several others from West End also came with the choir and worshipped with us during the service. We were glad to have them all and welcome them again.

Last Sunday evening at C. E. service Mr. H. G. Self, principal of E. M. Holt High School, made an interesting talk.

Ladies' Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Vincent Wood next Friday evening at 7:30 for the regular monthly meeting. The officers for the coming year will be elected.

Winston-Salem, First Church.—I had not intended monopolizing Herald space by having another report in this week, but something happened last week that I want to tell you about. It happened thusly:

Last Thursday morning, while I was pecking away at the typewriter, William Tice—otherwise known as "Bill"—came to the door and said, "Papa sent me around to install a radio; where do you want me to put it?" He went on to explain that it was a gift, and that I'd find out more about it. Well, if there's one thing more than another I've wanted and couldn't see my way to getting these last two or three years or so, it's been a radio. So we're happy. At least I am; and Mrs. B. will be as soon as I get tired of twisting the dial to see what I can find. But since this thing takes in the whole world, it may be some time before that happens. We are greatly obliged to the good friends who made this gift possible.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Rankin Memorial.—We are glad to report that work on our new church seems to be going forward. All of our organizations seem to be truly at work, trying to raise funds for the new church. In the past month or so our Ladies' Aid Society has raised $50 toward this purpose. This organization has been working on a number of projects, having given two brunswick stews, making quilts and spreads, as well as selling a number of other articles. Mrs. A. N. Lineback seems to have taken the prize in securing the largest amount of names for a name quilt, the number being over 200. Too, the Girls' Philathea Class has been very busy in the past month, having raised about $60 on the building fund. The Senior C. E. Society has raised $40 on the fund. All of the other organizations and larger classes are at work, too. However, our pastor is heading the list in raising money, getting donations from friends interested in our church. His goal, he states, is $2,000. With such a leader as our pastor, Rev. Edw.

Suits, and with the help of all our friends, and above all, the help of God, we are expecting to soon realize that dream of a new church. So many of our friends are co-operating with us in giving their time and money. We cannot express how deep our appreciation is to them. Pray for our church, for we need your prayers as never before.

Mill Gove, Midland Charge.—Dr. Andrews visited our church since the last write-up, and preached for us. We enjoyed very much his visit with us and his sermon. Love's Grove and Mill Grove have raised enough money to pay their Annual Conference claims in full, and Pine Bluff will have theirs by end of this month, the requqired time set to raise this amount. They are more than halfway on the amount now.

Sickness in their neighborhood and among the church members has been a big handicap to them, but they will make it if they are blessed with sufficient health, I am sure.

We are planning on a sunrise Easter service on Easter morning, and invite everybody, regardless of denomination, to come and worship with us in this early morning service.

There seems not to be any other news at this time except we had an interesting Sunday school lesson last Sunday and a good crowd attended. L. W. McCOY, Reporter.

Bethany, Randolph. — Brother Reynolds filled his regular appointment Sunday at 11 o'clock. He preached an interesting sermon, his subject being "The Christian Life." The music for Sunday school was furnished by the junior choir. We feel sure we will have a good year at this place. We have a great number of bright young people, and our pastor seems to be inclined to take a great interest in them, and we think that is our greatest need. The young people have been neglected too much.

Our Sunday school has held its numbers and interest exceptionally well this winter.

We were glad to have Sister Reynolds worship with us Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid Society held a sandwich and pie sale Saturday night at Mrs. W. P. Julian's, and cleared about $8, had several interesting contests and some wholesome fun.

Mrs. V. C. Barker died March 11 at the age of 86. She was a charter member of Bethany church and one of the oldest members. She was able to attend church until only a short time before her death. She will be missed in the church and community.

Asheville.—Many things of interest are happening in our church this week, chief of which is the rally for the southwestern district of the Christian Endeavor Union, which will be held Friday evening. Mr. Robert S. Nance, general and field secretary of the Kansas Christian Endeavor Union, will be the principal speaker and will base his remarks on the topics: "Christian Youth Building a New World," and Christian Endeavor's slogan, "I Will Be a Christian." A supper conference at 6:30 will open the rally. Miss Nancy Clouse, president of the Senior Christian Endeavor, and the following members compose the committee to arrange for the supper: Mrs. H. L. Hanner, Mrs. T. L. Pratt, Mrs. Jarvis Eller and the Misses Frances S. Cunningham and Melle Smith. We know the supper will be good and all of us should avail ourselves of this opportunity to hear Mr. Nance. Expecting to see you, one and all!

The Senior Christian Endeavor are also having a St. Patrick's Day party at the church tonight (Tuesday). It is hoped a good crowd will be out to enjoy the evening.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Thursday at 3:30 p. m. with Mrs. Y. D. Eller at her home, 39 North Ann Street. The new officers are to be installed at this meeting, therefore all members are urged to be present. The party given by Circle No. 1 on Friday evening last was a success, both socially and financially. It is never a waste of time to entertain our young people, and to let them know we are not too old to enjoy some fun, and it is really surprising how much they can teach us older folks.

Attendance for all services last Sunday was very good. Our Sunday school attendance was exactly that of a year ago; the offering was, however, larger this Sunday, so we feel encouraged. The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class still keeps the record for the largest collection; the Fawcett Bible Class for number present, and Miss Miller's Junior girls for the largest amount of collection in the children's department.

Rev. Minnis brought to our attention a very worthwhile message Sunday morning, using as his topic "Doing the Impossible." May we each and every one really learn that "we can do all things through Christ" if we follow His example and teachings. M. L. B.

West End, Greensboro.—Dr. Bethea took his text on Sunday morning from Matt. 20:27, "And whosoever shall be chief among you let him be your servant." His subject for this enlightening sermon was, "Leaders who are willing to be servants." He urged us to follow the example of our Savior, which was of humility and service.

On Sunday evening our Boy Scout troop, No. 24, recently organized, was installed by troop No. 17 and their leader, Wiley Cox. District Commissioner D. L. Gallagher was in charge of the program. Scout Executive Frank W. Braden presented the charter to the committee composed of L. W. Routh, F. J. McFadyen, J. C. Inmon and C. S. Routh. Graham Cochrane is the Scoutmaster and Harold Carter his assistant. Eight boys were inducted into the rank of Tenderfoot Scout. We are proud of our troop and wish them every success.

We are very glad to report that Mrs. C. G. Monnette, who has been gravely ill, is now at her home and gaining in strength. All of her friends are hoping for a complete recovery soon.

The Woman's Auxiliary met Monday evening, March 11, with Mrs. J. R. Bull, 2002 Spring Garden Street. Twenty-five were present and the two circle chairmen reported for the past year's work. Over $500 has been raised for the various mission causes and local work. Circumstances preventing them from accepting the offices of president and treasurer, respectively, Mrs. A. E. Pleasants and Mrs. V. C. Stockard were replaced by Mrs. S. H. Stapleton and Mrs. Emily Osborne. Devotional leader for the year is Mrs. W. W. Clement, who served us so faithfully last year also.

An orange-eating contest is being held Tuesday evening to promote our High Point College Fund. Each one eating an orange must pay a penny for each seed found therein —and no cheating, of course. Aside from this, several games will be played, directed by Miss Rosa Mann, and the feature of the evening will be a number of readings by Miss Leffie Jones, of Elon College. A large crowd is expected.

The Japanese idea was carried right down to the floor, so to speak, on Monday evening when Miss Violet Routh and Mesdames L. W. Routh and C. R. Bryant entertained the Philathea Class. Paper chrysanthemums were pinned in the hair of each guest as she arrived, and seats were found on the low stools and pillows about the room, which was decorated with peach blossoms and Japanese lanterns. After the business discussion, several games were played, and the hostesses served spiced tea, cakes and mints. Vari-colored fans were given as favors.

We are working steadily toward a revival to be held beginning on Easter Sunday. To this end cottage prayer meetings are now being held in homes of various members and are proving very helpful.

Mebane.—We are in the midst of our campaign for college assessment and McCulloch Memorial Fund. We hope to secure both in the time set apart. The Leadership Training Club put on "The Family Album" in the school auditorium last Friday night. Lots of fun and a neat sum was realized from this. Sunday afternoon the West End choir gave a splendid program at our vesper service. We enjoyed these young people very much and hope they come our way again. Dr. N. G. Bethea, their pastor, was also a very welcome visitor. The organizations of the church all seem to be doing their bit. Of course, with the pastor and wife constantly planning and helping, we should certainly do our best. Among our members that are not well enough to be at church are Mr. C. C. Smith and Mrs. E. H. Roberson. We miss them and hope they are soon able to be in their accustomed places.

Among the visitors Sunday were Miss Mary Wills McCulloch, of Greensboro, and two of our own girls, Miss Bessie Barnette and Miss Edna Nicholson, both of Greensboro. We will go back to our regular evening services at 7:30 next Sunday. We have enjoyed the vesper services.

MINISTER AS PREACHER

By D. I. Garner, Pastor First Methodist Protestant Church, Concord, N. C.

(This talk was given at the pastors' federation meeting of the western district of the North Carolina Conference on February 11, 1935.)

Who is the preacher and what manner of man is he?

The preacher is a man born to his work just like any other man is born to his work. He is in a sense born to spiritual work and spiritual things and concerned with them as the farmer is with farming, the business man with his business, or the physician with the physical body of man. He is a man born of the Spirit of God with one or more talents with which to proclaim the good news of salvation to a lost, sinful world. He is a man to whom spiritual cares are what secular cares are to other men.

The preacher is a man of knowledge. He may know science, he may know philosophy, the definitions of theology, he may know the principles of the religions of the human race, he may know all about sociology and psychology. All well and good if he does. But he does or should certainly know the best current thought of his day and generation. He has a working knowledge of the word of God. For the word is the sword of the spirit, said Paul to the church. Also we are told in the book of Hebrews, For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. The preacher is a man of love. He loves humanity for what they are and what they are to become. He loves them in spite of their wicked and sinful actions. He knows how to sympathize with people, he enters into their joys and sorrows in such a way that his love and sympathy is seen and felt, for where love is you can feel it. It is through the love and sympathy of the preacher that his message of truth is impressed upon his hearers. The preacher is a man of vision. For no one can speak for God who has not first heard the voice of God and seen his glory and his truth. Isaiah, Ezekiel, Paul, Martin Luther, John Wesley, John Knox and more recent preachers have had their visions of God and we of today have ours.

Phillips Brooks describes preaching as the revelation of truth through personality, truth shining through the prism of a human soul. Beecher said that preaching is the making and the mending of men. If we go further back and ask St. Paul, he tells us that preaching is persuasion. Taylor the sailor evangelist says that it is the business of the preacher "to take something hot out of his own heart and shove it into mine." The ideal ministry by Johnson defines preaching. To be like Christ, to stand in his behalf, sensible of a divine commission, persuaded that we are his ambassadors, not by infallible sacredotal selection, not by the market law of demand and supply, but by immediate, internal and effectual call of God; and thus persuaded, to take the truths of Holy Scripture and unfold, illustrate, amplify them for enlightenment and persuasion, and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, to have them intensified by profound personal conviction, fused in the fires of one's own soul, poured upon waiting ears and hearts from lips touched with God's altar fire, and accompanied by every possible adjunct of effective posture and gesture and voice.

What's Wrong With Present-Day Preaching?

Well, someone says there is nothing wrong with present-day preaching. But there are others who claim there is a great deal wrong with it. They also give their reasons for thinking as they do. One reason they give is that scarcely anybody attends church except the members of the church and not so many of them on an average. Another reason is every generation wants less preaching. Twenty-five years ago they wanted 30-minute sermons and they only want 15-minute ones now. We have built fine churches and the people do not come. We have put pipe organs in our churches and hired singers and still they will not come. I heard one of the presiding elders of the Western North Carolina district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in annual conference in Greensboro last fall say this in making his report to conference, that the charges in his district did not care whether a preacher could preach well or not if he would visit them, that was what they wanted. Bisop Kern interrupted the elder and said, "Young men, don't take that last statement about preaching too seriously." So after all, maybe it is the kind of preaching instead of not wanting preaching that makes the people stay away and the desire on the part of those who do go for shorter sermons. I think we all admit that our preaching is imperfect and that we cannot preach as well as we would like to. There may be many failings in our preaching, there is no doubt in my mind about there being many, but there is one that stands out above all others and that is the lack of power. When we look into the New Testament and see the contrast between the Apostles and us, we are startled, and dismayed by their wealth of power and our poverty of power. We believe in no far distant day the preacher will again seek and receive this master key. For there is the sounding out of the need of finding this key of power.

The Ideal Preacher

The ideal preacher is one who does nothing to suggest to his congregation that he is preaching too long, that he is trespassing on the congregation's time. He does not pull out his watch when preaching, for that suggests to his hearers that he is trespassing on their time. He does not say in conclusion, just one more thing and I will let you go, or use any other phrase that would suggest that he is trespassing on the people's time. The ideal preacher does not preach too long. He knows when he has finished his sermon and stops with the end of it. There is nothing tacked on and nothing left out that should be said. He does not talk too loud or too low. The ideal preacher does not make a gospel out of economics, politics, prohibition, or the social order. But he always holds to the one and only atonement for sin which is the death of Jesus Christ on the cross of Calvary. The ideal preacher declares the love of God as it was revealed through Jesus Christ our Lord. He preaches the divinity of Christ as taught in the Holy Scriptures. He preaches the death of Christ, the atonement for sin, and the only atonement possible for the human race.

He also preaches the resurrection of Christ as our hope of immortality. "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept." The ideal preacher preaches boldly against sin. He shows that sin is a deadly, heinous and wicked thing which destroys the body, the mind, and the soul of man. He also shows that when a person sins it is not only against himself but that it is against the human family, against nature, and against God. The ideal preacher knows when he goes into the pulpit what he is going to say and why and how he is going to say it. The ideal preacher is led by the Spirit of God and given power by the divine Spirit to preach his truth. He feeds his flock on what is necessary for growth and development. Through the enlightenment and power of his message sinners are converted to God and to the Christian religion.

In the language of St. Vincent, may I say: "O Priest, O Expositor, O Doctor, if the divine gift hath made thee fit by genius, training, and learning, be thou a Bazaleel of the spiritual tabernacle; engrave precious gems of divine doctrine; adorn them wisely; add splendor, grace, loveliness. Let that which was formerly believed darkly be understood by thy exposition. Let posterity by thy aid rejoice in truths understood which antiquity venerated without understanding them. Yet teach still the same things which thou didst learn, so that, although thou speakest in a new fashion, thou speakest not new things."

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Fine

Mrs. Margaret Morris Fine was born January 18, 1851 and departed this life March 9, 1935. Aged 74 years, 1 month and 19 days. June 8, 1897 she was united in marriage to W. C. Fine and to this' union were born three children. Irving, who preceded her in death three years ago, Mrs. Fred Slack of Denton and Miss Grace Fine of Denton.

Early in life she gave her heart to Christ and joined Mt. Ebal Methodist Protestant Church where she remained a devout member until her death. During her later years she was not able to attend church but her thoughts were always of serving those about her. The deceased is survived by her husband, two daughters, one brother, John C. Morris, of High Point, Mrs. Harris Gallimore, of Denton, seven grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends. She was a good and kind mother and a faithful friend.

The funeral service was held at Chapel Hill Methodist Protestant church Sunday afternoon, March 10, by the writer who was assisted by Rev. E. A. Bingham.

May God's richest blessings rest upon the bereaved family and relatives.

J. T. BOWMAN.

McDaniel

Mrs. Mamie McDaniel, wife of the late Russell McDaniel was called to her reward on February 12th, 1935. She was 62 years old and was born in Edgecombe county and was the daughter of William and Mary Rawlings.

Mrs. McDaniel was a faithful member of Eden Methodist Protestant church, and was faithful in attendance whenever it was possible for her to go. She was the mother of three children, two of which servive her, Ernest McDaniel of Grifton, N. C., and Russell McDaniel of Enfield, N. C., one son preceded the mother to the better world; also two sisters, Mrs. Sim Glascow and Mrs. Joe Lucas, of Aurelian Springs, N. C., and one brother, Dawsie Rawlings, of Weldon, N. C. She will be missed so much in her home, church and community. May those who feel most keenly this separation find comfort to sustain their souls at the feet of Jesus.

The funeral services were conducted at the home of Mrs. Aubrey McDaniel with whom she lived, on Wednesday afternoon, February 13th at 2:30 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. O. C. Loy assisted by Rev. Mr. Womack and Habel of Enfield, N. C., and her body was laid to rest in Elmwood cemetery in Enfield beneath a mound of beautiful flowers.

Thompson

George Monroe, son of William H. and Rachel Thompson, was born in Alamance county, North Carolina, March 9, 1857, and departed this life on February 16, 1935. In October, 1879, he was happily united in marriage with Miss Rachel Annie Braxton. To this union three children were born, two sons and one daughter. For about 30 years Brother Thompson was in business in Burlington. Twenty-five years ago he moved to Reidsville, where he spent the remaining days of his life.

Brother Thompson was a charter member of the Burlington Methodist Protestant church. Even though he united with our church in Reidsville after leaving Burlington, he always had a warm spot in his heart for the old home church, and often spoke of the delightful days he spent with the brethren there. For more than 60 years he was a loyal member of the church, and, until affliction laid a restraining hand upon him, he was faithful in the discharge of his religious duties.

For several years he was sorely afflicted and suffered untold pain; but through it all he bore up with Christian fortitude. He trusted his soul to Christ and confidently believed that all would be well with him at the end.

His funeral was held in the church, conducted by his pastor with the assistance of Rev. M. S. Huske, of the Presbyterian church, and his body was laid to rest in the Reidsville cemetery. To the bereaved wife, son, daughter and other relatives we express deep sympathy.

GEO. R. BROWN, Pastor.

THE SUNSET SHORE

By Victor P. Hammer

In this grand old world with its calm and strife
And the busy days in a varied life,
There is more to do as we move ahead
Than to strive alone for our daily bread.

There's a hand to shake, there's a smile to match,
There's a heart to love, there's a song to catch,
There's a time to act, there's a mite to give—
For a grand reward, if we rightly live.

On the way of life, as the course is run,
We should rise and shine like the rising sun;
Should the days be bright and the years be long,
May life be adorned with their mirth and song.

We must sail, sometime, from the sunset shore,
Where it's "good-bye," friends, when our days are o'er;
But the ship we want for that Home of Love
Is the Prince of Life to that land above.

BISHOP KERN ON LIGHTING THE CHURCH

On Bishop Paul B. Kern's page in the N. C. Christian Advocate he gives such good advice that we are asking Methodist Protestants to ponder it and maybe do something about it. Listen to what he says:

How did the idea ever get started that a "dim" light was a religious light? Every now and then I go into a church auditorium that "gives me the creeps." Several years ago our church architects took a notion to have all lights concealed. They stuck the lights up on the top side of chandeliers or in hidden crevices of the walls and ceiling and then went off and left them. They have been growing dimmer and dimmer every year. Nobody knows how many of these old globes are burnt out and worn out and the congregation sits in the gathering gloom singing "Work for the Night Is Coming." I got to thinking how many people do you reckon would go into a restaurant or store that was as poorly lighted as some of our church auditoriums? The children of this world are wiser in their generation than the "children of light," who in this instance are the children of darkness. Call in your local electrician and get up there after those old worn-out bulbs, clean out the dead bugs and candle flies, and let there be light.

Incidentally, did you ever study the lighting from the standpoint of the audience and its ability to see the preacher and the choir? I never realized how poorly lighted my pulpit platform was until one time I stood in the back of my auditorium while a service was going on and I realized that the shadows on the face of the speaker were such as greatly handicapped his effectiveness. With the help of an electrician we put new reflectors at strategic points and gave the proper flooding of light on the platform and everybody said, "Why didn't we think of that before?"

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

you have any money in hand for the Home, please send it in.

Some Encouraging Letters

We are getting many encouraging words these days, and they help.

One says: "Glad we doubled our offering yesterday. We hope to do better this year than last. I am never happier than when working for the Home."

Another says: "Enclosed find my personal offering. I know the children would be cared for whether I give or not. But it is a joy to give, and I trust the gift will help."

Another whose wife was reared in an orphanage said: "Yours is a great work. When one takes a child from the gutter and trains it to Christian manhood, he is doing the Lord's own work."

Another said: "Surely the Lord put you two in this good work, and we love you and appreciate you more and more every day."

These and many other similar expressions have come to us in recent days, and they cheer our hearts.

Mr. Davis and others are prophesying that the depression will be practically over within about two months. We hope they are correct; for if so, then our hands will be quickly lightened when the folks get a bit more money. God bless and keep each of you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

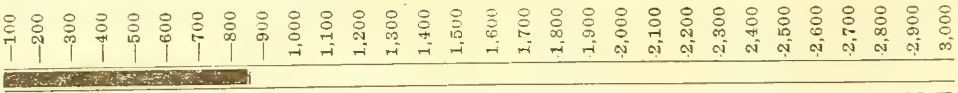
HERALD CAMPAIGN FOR 3,000 SUBSCRIBERS



YOUR CO-OPERATION IS NEEDED TO INCREASE THE LENGTH OF THIS BLACK LINE

First, we are asking you to look at Grace. There she is, up there at the very top with one per cent to spare. Well, that is thrown in for good measure. And Calvary comes on up to within striking distance of the goal. No real campaign has been put on there yet except as the editor can pick up a subscription here and there, but she is still in the running.

Now look at the receipts for this week. While we do not have so many items, we do have some very fine ones. This is partly due to the fact that Mrs. Gerringer is making the systematic search in conjunction with the Herald agents at these places. But not only did First Church, Burlington, and Grace come up splendidly, but First Church at High Point moves up a peg and so does Lincolnton, Kernersville, Randolph, Seagrove-Love Joy. Tabernacle, and Calvary. All of these sent in more than one subscription.

Before leaving this subject let us ask, What has become of a certain gentleman by the name of Subsidy? We have not seen him in these parts for some time. Also we are getting very anxious to hear from some of our agents who started out so well some time ago but who evidently have stopped. We hope they get busy again.

Our receipts? O yes, $96.60, all on subscriptions.

WHAT ONE WOMAN WRITES ABOUT HER DELINQUENT SUBSCRIPTION

From a certain woman we have received the following letter: "I do not feel under any obligation to pay the $4.00 for the Herald for the last two years. I subscribed for it for only one year and paid for that, so it was your duty to stop the paper when it was out."

Under our new system this cannot happen again. Now we notify subscribers two weeks before their subscription expires and if they do not renew we cut them off the mailing list. In the long run this will be the most satisfactory. Those who cannot get the money just on time can continue to receive the paper by writing us that they will pay in the near future.

WELCOME, SPRING

Spring made its official debut in Greensboro at 8:18 this morning with a temperature that reminded us that summer is coming.

Methodist Protestant Herald.

ONE IS YOUR MASTER EVEN CHRIST AND ALL YE ARE BRETHREN.

VOLUME XLI GREENSBORO, N. C., MARCH 28, 1935 NUMBER 19

This Church Will Attempt to Reach Its Goal in the Herald Campaign Next Week

TABERNACLE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH
Rev. G. L. Curry, Pastor

Tabernacle Church

On the first page of the Herald we are giving you a view of Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church, located about nine miles southeast of Greensboro on state highway 60 or U. S. highway 421. This church is one of the most influential of all our country churches. To begin with, it is one of our oldest, having celebrated its one hundredth anniversary a few years ago. During the more than one hundred years of its history it has had at least three and perhaps four buildings, the present one being large and roomy. It is situated on a considerable knoll and has a commanding view of the country round about. Those approaching the church are impressed by its dignity and stateliness even while yet a considerable distance away.

While Tabernacle can boast of considerable age and of great beauty of location, it has not depended on these to carry it through to success. It has been a living organism. It has entertained the Annual Conference a number of times and has sent as many or perhaps more strong ministers into the ministry of the North Carolina Annual Conference as has any other one of our churches. While we do not have the list of ministers before us that have gone out from this church, yet we do know that it has furnished to the conference such men as Rev. J. F. McCplloch, D.D., founder and editor of the Methodist Protestant Herald; Rev. T. F. McCulloch, who has been equally faithful to the cause of righteousness as was his brother; Rev. W. F. Kennett, who was for some years president of our annual conference and is now one of our honored superannuates. The late Rev. W. C. Kennett went out also from this church, as did the Rev. Joseph Causey, who passed to his reward many years ago. Tabernacle can also boast of having sent into the ministry Rev. H. F. Fogleman, present pastor of Fallston charge.

While the church building is sufficient for any ordinary occasion, it was found that Sunday schools rooms were badly needed, so within the past few years a building that had formerly been used for public school purposes was moved nearer the church building and was fitted up for class rooms for the Sunday school.

While we have been thinking in terms of the building, we must not overlook the character of the people who worship there. This church is located in one of the prosperous sections of Guilford county, and the people are intelligent and are comfortably situated. While the community has lost a good many people in the years gone by who came to Greensboro to engage in various occupations, there are still plenty of fine people in the community to carry on this important church.

Rev. G. L. Curry, the present pastor, is one of the hard workers in our conference. He is a good preacher, a good organizer, and is vitally interested in everything for the good of the church and the annual conference. We trust this church may continue to prosper in the work to which it has been sent, and that it may rally to all of our conference enterprises. We trust also that the campaign for subscriptions to the Herald to be put on there next week by Mrs. Gerringer may be an abundant success. We want the privilege of serving a larger number of the Tabernacle people through the Methodist Protestant Herald.

Moriah Methodist Protestant Church

While we are not able to give our readers a picture of Moriah church, we do want them to know some of its history and to understand its importance in the work of our conference. This church, located about three miles southeast of Greensboro and situated on state highway 60 and U. S. highway 421, has been referred to as the mother of all other Methodist Protestant churches in Central and Western North Carolina. In 1829, one year after the organization known as Associated Methodist Churches was formed, the members of this church, which at that time was a Methodist Episcopal church, met at the church, elected the Rev. John Coe as chairman and James Gilbreath as secretary, and proposed to formulate a set of resolutions which are to our church what the Declaration of Independence was to the American colonies. Then the membership, with the exception of one or two families, went over in a body into the new organization, choosing the Rev. John Coe as its first pastor. The original number of members of the church was 34, and that number has grown from time to time until it is now one of our very important churches. By its very location it has been a feeder for the churches in Greensboro. When Grace church was organized, we understand that a considerable number of people moved their membership from Moriah to the new organization. From time to time others have moved to our other churches, but Moriah still exists and will continue to do so.

Following the death of the pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, last June, Rev. W. M. Howard, a student in our Seminary, was appointed pastor there. He served acceptably until time to return to the Seminary, and at that time Rev. O. L. Easter was appointed to serve until Rev. Mr. Howard returns after school. Like Tabernacle, this church has been a vital force for righteousness all these years. And we expect it to continue to do the work committed unto it. And since it is the plan for Mrs. Gerringer to canvass Moriah congregation as well as Tabernacle next week, we trust that the effort will meet with success and that when we sit down to our typewriter to write something for the Herald, we can have a feeling that a large number of the members of Moriah are going to read it.

Methodist Protestant Church Not Dying

No person who occupies the position we do here could entertain very long any opinion that the Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina is waning. Here it is necessary for us to read everything that comes in—the reports from the mountains to the sea. Almost every week we read reports of building new churches or church huts or painting churches or beautifying them in some way. We also read of increasing congregations, increasing Sunday school attendance, and many other things to give us new courage. Surely, there is a determination on the part of our people these days that speaks of larger and better things. So may it be.

THE LAY DISTRICT CHAIRMAN

Brother Henry Powell, a young lawyer of Henderson, is chairman of the second district. In his letter this week, in which he encloses $23.11, he has this good word: "Each church in the second district has pledged its amount in full except Henderson, and I believe that will be finished next Sunday." That inspires me to say a word or so about and to the district chairmen.

First—A word about them. There are eighteen districts—two districts have been combined for this campaign—in the conference; and over these a layman and a minister have been appointed to direct and head up the McCulloch Memorial Fund Campaign. Two of these districts—the 11th and the 15th—have already paid out. As Brother Powell states, his district is well on the way out. And there are two or three more that are pretty well along.

In each of the districts that are out, and in those that are well on the way, there is evidence that the lay leader has been active; certain proof that without their assistance the campaign would not have gone over. Now that isn't said to disparage the work of the ministers. But some of these are a bit timid when it comes to pressing the finances, particularly a matter of this sort. It has been, therefore, largely because of the activity of the laymen, both the district chairmen and the laymen in the individual churches, that has made this movement a success. What a fine thing it would be if we could harness these brethren up to all the other tasks, money-raising or otherwise, that the conference asks us to undertake! And why not? Ours is, if it is anything at all, a laymen's church. Why should they not claim the birthright, and enter into their inheritance?

Second—Now a word to the lay leaders. What the other brethren who were appointed with you have done, you can do. I do not mean to cast any reflections on the churches that are in the districts that have already paid out, but many of them have never responded, certainly not in any large way, to any conference appeal before this. Why did they do it this time? Largely, I think, because some layman interested himself in the campaign. It is a refreshing thing to receive this money, to see where it came from, and to catch something of the spirit in which it has been given. But, I say, those who gave it are no better, nor worse, than the members of any of the churches that have, so far, made little or no response—perhaps because the district chairman, ministerial as well as lay, has failed to approach them.

So I am appealing to you to make the effort. It may take a good deal of effort. It probably will take some time. BUT IT CAN BE DONE. Will you please get behind the pastors in your respective districts, see that they appoint some one in each church—or do it yourself—to make a canvass. Get it underwritten. The cash if you can—a pledge if you can't. But let's get the thing behind us. There are many other, and equally important, things to engage our attention.

The Fund stands as follows:

Previously reported	$1,043.97
Worthville, Randleman	15.00
Pleasant Hill, W. Forsyth (additional)	.64
Union Hill, W. Forsyth (additional)	.57
Flat Rock, Vance	18.11
Henderson	5.00
Winston, First (additional)	1.00
Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon (additional)	1.00
Bellemont, Mt. Hermon (additional)	6.50
Chestnut Ridge, Orange (additional)	3.00
Total to Date	$1,094.79

It is possible that the amount credited to Worthville is the apportionment in full for that church. The letter accompanying the remittance does not so state. If it is, will the remitter please drop me a card? We want every possible church on the Honor Roll.

C. W. Bates, Chairman.

EASTERN DISTRICT COLLEGE COMMITTEE OF TEN

Mrs. J. H. Cutchin, of Whitakers, N. C., has been asked to look after District No. 1, Mrs. M. A. Coble District No. 4 and Mt. Hermon charge. The writer has written each pastor in Districts Nos. 2 and 3. In District No. 3 Mebane and Orange charges are making desperate efforts to have full amounts of college apportionment in hand before May 1.

We sincerely hope each pastor, Sunday school superintendent and auxiliary worker is doing his or her best to raise college assessments in full in time for the college to secure the extra $7,500. This is a challenge North Carolina cannot afford to turn down.

B. M. Williams.

EASTER AND WORLD SERVICE

We have mailed samples of Easter supplies to every pastor and Sunday school superintendent so far as we could secure their addresses. These have been prepared by the order of the General Conference for Easter to be used by the local church exclusively for General Conference benevolences—missions and education—and not diverted to local or Annual Conference purposes, which has been done in far too many instances and thus taken from missions that which by General Conference authority belongs to the said work, and every dollar contributed on Easter is so much needed at this time. It is to be hoped that all churches and schools will deal fairly with our missionary work and thus prove their loyalty and obedience to the General Conference action. How pleasantly goes the work when there is full co-operation. "We are laborers together with God."

We think this Easter service is a fine and usable service for the strong city churches and the rural and weak ones. Easter Sunday occurs this year on April 21 and will come before you are ready for it unless you order promptly. These services are free. We ask, however, that you get us as large an Easter offering as possible for missions. Your Board of Missions is in very great need of funds at this time to meet expenses of the missionary work and missionaries' support. So do your very best for us.

Easter Victory—This is the title of our Easter service. It is bright, catchy and in strict keeping with the Easter season. You can scarcely improve upon it.

Pageant—This pageant is written by a Methodist Protestant, one who knows the spirit and need of our church, and is the finest pageant we have ever read.

Recitation Sheet—For schools that may not wish to use the pageant. These recitations are all any school could desire.

Offering Envelope—Every member of the church and Sunday school and other organizations should be supplied with the Sacrificial Offering Envelopes at least two weeks before Easter, and on Easter Sunday these envelopes should be distributed in the church pews. Pastors and other church leaders, please make a strong appeal for a generous offering and forward the same immediately after Easter to your Annual Conference treasurer and urge him to send your offering to Mr. H. C. Staley, General Conference Treasurer, 516 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Md., before April 30. We must have an Easter offering this year of not less than $25,000. This will be Easter Victory for the Board of Missions and also for the Methodist Protestant Church. Will you help to relieve our present missionary situation?

Send your order at once to the Board of Missions, 516 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Md.

G. W. Haddaway, Executive Secretary,
Board of Missions.

—Calvary church will use the last week in April as Anniversary Week this year. On Thursday afternoon, April 25, there will be a dinner, with Dean Lindley of High Point College the principal speaker. Dr. C. W. Bates, of First church, Winston-Salem, will preach the annual sermon Sunday morning, April 28, and Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, pastor of Grace church, will preach Sunday evening.

GET ON WITH THE JOB!

By Grenville Kleiser

America will recover.

It takes time to recuperate from a serious illness.

Whatever the cause of the protracted depression, this country will emerge from its national ills stronger and better than ever.

These times are teaching many persons the most vital lessons of life.

One outstanding lesson is that material things perish, while spiritual possessions endure.

We should ignore the calmity howlers. Our main duty is to get on with the job!

To anyone who is wavering or despondent, to those who have suffered serious loss, there is one helpful admonition: Stiffen your will!

* * * * *

Life is a battle in which a man, in order to be on the winning side, must have bulldog tenacity and indomitable will.

Weaklings feebly succumb in face of danger or panic.

Strong men, on the contrary, press bravely forward despite obstacles and discouragements.

Get on with the job!

There is work for you to do today. Make it your chief concern to do it well.

The good and fine and noble things in life are still available to you.

You need not longer suffer from doubt, self-limitation, and discouragement. Realize that within you are inexhaustible resources.

Get on with the job!

* * * * *

Work if you would win. Prizes are not awarded for sloth. Intelligent and incessant labor is essential to success in any undertaking.

Nothing can hold you back when you have set your whole mind and heart upon a great life purpose.

There is a man who throughout the years of depression has not been heard to voice a single word of complaint. He has continued to work on with cheerfulness and full assurance that the sun of prosperity will shine again.

Today holds out to you new and inspiring opportunities for self-discipline and personal progress.

You are making your own destiny.

Hard work is the sovereign remedy for a vacillating mind.

A little more patience and staying power, and victory is yours. Get on with the job!

A BOY'S PRAYER

A little mission boy who had just learned the alphabet was one Sunday morning seen out on the hillside, with his hands clasped together and his eyes closed. He was repeating the letters of the alphabet over and over. The missionary drew near, and asked him what it meant. He replied, "I was praying." "But why," replied the questioner, "did you repeat the alphabet?" "Well," he said, "I felt that I must pray, and as I knew no prayer, I just said the letters of the alphabet, knowing that the great God would put them into words for me."—Canadian Epworth Era.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

The Mid-Year Meet

Plans are maturing most satisfactorily for this meeting. We hope to announce at an early date the entire program and we feel sure it will please and help those who attend the meeting. Our next objective now is to secure a large attendance. Our goal is at least one lay worker from each church in the conference. This can easily be done if we can get up enough interest in the meeting. Of course, we will have more than that number present; but we really shall endeavor to get a lay worker from every church present.

And Too—

This will be in the midst of the Pastors' School, so those who come early can attend two periods in that school before the program of the mid-year meeting starts. We want to see more of our pastors at this school than could attend last year. I know that some would come who shall not be able to attend, if it were not for the cost—not large, but it falls mighty hard upon the very men who need the school most. I have been wondering if we could not secure a fund from our churches and certain laymen which would make it possible for every pastor to attend this school who is financially unable to go. It would not be a burden upon those who gave the money, i. e., we have people who are able to give this money without disfurnishing themselves. If you will communicate with Bro. Harrison he will take pleasure in telling you about this matter.

Remember High Point College

We are now in the period when all churches, which have not already done it, are raising their apportionment for High Point College. So come along, folks, and get this item out of your way now, so later in the year you can have credit for this and have more time for the other interests of the church. By raising $5,000 you can give the college $12,500. When have you ever been able to do a turn like this before? Get into the move and have the experience which should linger long in our memories.

How About the Tithe?

We presume that hundreds of our people are now tithing their income and paying it monthly or weekly into the treasury of the church. We wish we could have thousands in our conference who would do this. It would certainly relieve financial strain under which some of our boards are laboring.

But—

Are you getting any joy out of it? We should always get joy out of our gifts unto the interests of the Kingdom. He who gives grudgingly misses the real reason for giving. While his gift may help in a substantial way those to whom it is given, yet if the giver is not benefited, then the spiritual results are divided by half. For he who "gives himself with his gift, feeds three, himself, his hungering neighbor and me."

The Easter Program

It is not yet too late to order the literature from M. P. Book Concern, 516 North Charles St., Baltimore, and begin training the children for this program. You can find enough in the literature they send out to build a fine program. It helps the children to take part, it stimulates interest in the whole school, it increases attendance, and when the gifts to missions are in proportion to the ability of the giver, all, both young and old, may receive a great uplift from the program. Be sure to give it April 21.

Richland Charge, Rev. M. C. Henderson, Pastor

I visited Brower's Chapel and Cedar Fall churches; was due to go to Giles' Chapel, but since there were two funerals, one at 2 and another at 4 p. m., this service planned for me was called off. Richland charge appears to be doing nicely; the congregations at all churches, I was told, were good. Brower's has been painted inside, new altar rail made, new choir and pulpit chairs put in, and possibly other improvements which I did not observe. There also is being some improvements made at the parsonage, an ample back porch built and screened, and some interior beautification. Cedar Falls people are talking of painting their church. And so it appears the people have a mind to work, which, after all, is more vital to progress than skill or ability to work without willingness. Richland has too many churches on it for much development and it may not be strong enough to divide and support two pastors; still there is much that can be done by pastor and people as the days come and go.

Bro. C. P. Morris has been appointed to serve the Danville M. P. church, beginning his duties immediately after the seminary closes.

Midland Leads

A letter from Pastor J. H. Trolinger informs me that his charge has paid all Annual Conference claims and 50 cents over. Who's next?

Mrs. Gerringer to Be at Tabernacle and Moriah Next Week

Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, who is assisting HERALD agents, will be at Tabernacle and Moriah churches next week. This will be an interesting experiment, as this is the first time she has attempted to canvass any of our rural churches. The campaign at Grace and at First church, Burlington, was very fruitful, and the work started well at Asheboro the first of this week. We trust it will be successful next week also.

I LOOK THROUGH THE GOLDEN GATE

By Luther K. Long

I have many times crossed the American continent in imagination. By means of Francis Parkman's The Oregon Trail, I have gone with the Lewis and Clark expedition of 1805-06. I have followed the trek of the gold-seekers of 1849 as they laboriously crossed the plains and mountains. In my boyhood days, covered wagons were sometimes seen passing through Illinois, bearing farmers and their families on the way to establish homes on the rich wheat and orchard lands of California and the Northwest. Stories of these journeys have occupied many hours of my time throughout the years.

In the summer of 1920 I came by train from New York to San Francisco with only a three hours' stop in Chicago. There we changed trains and for the rest of the journey occupied the same seats and Pullman berths there assigned to us. That was a great trip and full of interest as day after day the hills and valleys, the rivers and plains and mountains passed in review before our eyes. One could but be impressed with the extent and possibilities of this great country of ours and its conglomerate population.

Leaving Washington, D. C., the 21st of January, I made a crossing by motor bus, reaching Berkeley, Calif., the 13th of February. The route took me through Raleigh, N. C., Atlanta, Ga., Montgomery, Ala., New Orleans, La., Houston, Dallas and El Paso, Texas, Phoenix, Ariz., and Los Angeles and San Francisco, Calif. I stopped in several states to visit friends. The bus gives one a closer and more intimate view of the country traversed than does the train. Leaving the bus for a night or longer enables one to rest and do a bit of sight-seeing and enabling one to become a bit better acquainted with the region as one passes through.

It is gratifying on such a trip to come across so many old friends and former acquaintances, and to become acquainted with interesting people never encountered before. The country and the world are one, and people from any and everywhere are interesting and have much the same qualities—qualities that make many of them good companions on a short or a long journey.

It is fine to be once more in this beautiful city, the seat of the University of California and so near San Francisco and the gateway of the Orient.

One afternoon my daughter took me for a drive over the hills and valleys and through some of the fine fruit lands of this region. Near sunset we stopped on the skyline drive that overlooks a wide and extensive stretch of territory. Immediately in front of us were fine homes clinging to the beautifully landscaped hillsides. Reaching down into the valley, Berkeley, Oakland and Alameda filled the space to San Francisco Bay. Reaching down to the bay from the west came the great city of San Francisco from its towering hills. Across the bay, studded with islands and shipping, one follows the Bay Bridge as it rests on Yerba Buena Island preparatory to its high leap to San Francisco. A little to the right and on to the west is the famous Golden Gate. This is the mile-wide opening between high hills by which ships come into the bay from the Pacific Ocean, and through which ships pass from the bay into the Pacific on their way to the Far East.

The sun was just over the Gate as we looked, bringing out clearly the towers of the Golden Gate Bridge now under construction. So clear was the sunlight we could see the Farallones rocks towering their heads many miles out at sea. The sky was painted with great strokes of marvelous color, a picture not easily forgotten.

One's imagination can not help working while looking west through the Golden Gate into the Far East. Years ago the Mediterranian Sea and its surrounding cities and states was the center of civilization and enterprise. Wars were fought on its surface and on its shores. Kingdoms rose and fell in sight of it, and men and peoples in that region made notable contributions to human thinking and progress.

With the discovery of America, the stage hands began to shift the scenery and the players started new acts. The Atlantic with its surrounding territories was destined to become a far larger stage and center of world activity and interest. During more than 400 years sailing vessels, then steam ships, and now airships, have been crossing and recrossing, bearing soldiers and munitions, scholars and industrial workers. Wealth the like of which has never before been known, and cities beyond the imagination of former generations have been built, while schools and colleges have prospered beyond measure.

In our own country pioneers have worked across the continent until the Pacific coast is a well settled and developed region with immense resources of all sorts. The Pacific and its bordering lands furnish a larger center and a greater opportunity for development than the Atlantic, even as the Atlantic is greater than the Mediterranean. Are we to have a newer and greater civilization around the Pacific? Some think we are and believe that here is the place for our people to demonstrate their largeness of mind and wisdom in planning.

A few days ago I spent some time at the Pacific School of Religion (Congregational). It has a wonderful site next to the University of California. One looks across the bay and through the Golden Gate much as one looks from the Sky Line Drive. In that school are students from China, Japan, the Philippines, and our own country. I am told that all these study in a fine spirit of co-operation, endeavoring to so understand the gospel and the work of the Christian church as to be able to bring a spirit of good will and conciliation in the relations of the people of the Orient and the Occident. As I looked at these young men and women and then through the Golden Gate, my prayer was that the spirit of the Pilgrim Fathers, the spirit of the later Christian workers who have carried the gospel across the continent, might be in and on these leaders in training for the great work to which they are consecrating themselves.

Wherever we live we should consider ourselves as citizens of the world. Nothing that concerns itself with humanity should be foreign to us. Our thinking and living should be on such a scale as to contribute a bit toward that good understanding so much needed if we are to make a success of our international and interracial relations.

GOING TO CHURCH WITH FATHER

Mother had been an invalid so long that it had been years since she had been able to go to church. Betty had gone all through her childhood and young girlhood, but lately she had gotten in with a gay set, and on Saturday night there was always something doing, and, on account of it she had gotten into the habit of rising late on Sunday morning and missing church altogether. Father was no longer young, and his life, like most men of his class, had been a struggle; but each Sunday morning found him regularly in his pew. Father believed in that old verse in the Bible, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength."

It seemed too bad that he must go alone—always alone.

Betty passed the sitting room door one evening. Father's old friend was there with him, Mr. Sears.

"Yes, Douglas," father was saying, "I am quite alone in my church-going. My wife can't go and Betty no longer cares for it. It is a great grief to me, I assure you."

Betty did not stop to wait for Mr. Sears' answer.

"So—after all, father cared and missed her."

She went noiselessly upstairs to mother's room. She opened the door and went in by the side of the gentle invalid.

"Mother," she began, "I want to ask you a question. Has father felt my not going to church with him so much? I never realized he cared, but just now, in passing the sitting room, I overheard him say something to Mr. Sears that led me to think he did."

Mother took the white hand.

"Dear," she said, "before I answer, let me tell you something. Almost the first place your father took you was to church, and you were always a quiet little thing. You went as you grew older, and were always such a good child while there, but after you grew up the world crept in. My invalidism made things worse, and so, between the two, father has been compelled to go alone. I know he feels it, but he is not the father to tell you of it. He was always a man of few words."

Betty stood quite still. A new seriousness marked her pretty face. The next moment she was kneeling by mother's side.

"You need say no more, Mother," she said. "I have come to my senses at last, I realize what I owe my father and God, and I shall not be found unfaithful."

Saturday morning the telephone rang. Betty took down the receiver.

"That you, Betty?"

"Yes, it's Bell, isn't it?"

"Yes—and, say, Betty, we're going to have a little party here tonight. Come over early and stay all night. The Farnsworth girls are coming and are going to bring their cousin who is visiting them. Tomorrow is Sunday and we can stay up as long as we want to and sleep tomorrow morning."

Betty's voice had a new tone in it as she answered distinctly:

"Can't possibly, dear," she said. "The fact is, I'm not going to any more Saturday night parties."

"Why, what in the world has happened?"

"Nothing, only I'm going to church after this with father. No more getting up late for me."

"Oh!"

The telephone clicked abruptly. Her gay little friend at the other end of the line had hung up the receiver—offended. But Betty went away with the same resolute face.

The next morning, as father came out of his room dressed for church, he found a cheerful young lady, quietly and neatly gowned, waiting for him in the hall.

He stopped short.

"Why, Betty!" he said. "Where are you going?"

Betty smiled. "Didn't you know?" she answered. "Why, I'm going to church with my father."

And then, with a great throb of joy, father knew that his prayers had been answered, and that—thank God—he had his little church woman safely by his side once more.—Publisher Unknown.

JENNIE'S DECISION

"Oh, what beauties!" exclaimed Jennie and Anne, as mother drew from the box that had just arrived two wonderful dolls. Aunt Sylvia had sent them as a birthday present to the little girls. Jennie and Anne were twins and were celebrating their birthday together.

"Give me the blue-eyed one, please, Mother," cried Anne.

"No, give her to me!" and Jennie made an effort to take her from mother. And just at that moment, mother was wondering what she could do to settle the matter, when an idea came suddenly.

"Now, girls," she said, "I tell you what I shall do, hold two straws, a long and short one, behind my back, and the one who draws the long one gets Dolly Blue-Eyes!"

"Good," said Jennie.

A moment later she was dancing about the room in an ecstasy of delight; she had drawn the long straw, and Dolly Blue-Eyes was hers!

Now Dolly Brown-Eyes was also as pretty as could be, yet tears of disappointment rose to Anne's eyes as mother placed her in her arms.

The little gathering was a very merry affair, and when it was over the children said it was a grand success, but somehow Jennie hadn't enjoyed it; every time she looked at Dolly, her blue eyes seemed to say, "Aren't you sorry for Anne? Poor Anne! She wanted me too!"

Yes, she was sorry for Anne, and she knew what she was going to do about it too. As Jennie laid Dolly Blue-Eyes in her little bed that night, and tucked her in, the pink blankets all around her, she whispered, "Good night, Dolly Blue-Eyes; you are mine tonight, but tomorrow night you are going to be Anne's; I couldn't be happy if I kept you, when I know how much Anne wants you!"

And with that decision, Jennie was happier than she had been all of the day.

I wonder if you know the reason why?—Olive Plants.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. H. L. Blakely, Laurens, S. C., 5 new tams and one new scarf. Mr. J. G. Rogers, Denton, 6 dozen pair hose for boys. Mr. W A. Davies, Hillsboro, 2 bushels of walnuts. Rockingham, 11 quarts of canned fruit and vegetables and one bushel sweet potatoes. Woman's Auxiliary, Moriah, 2 sittings of eggs Mr. A. A. Moser and family, and Mr. Roy Hauser and family, Winston-Salem, one fine young registered Holstein cow.

We are profoundly grateful for all these gifts of money and service.

The Moser and Hauser families of Winston-Salem not only gave us the cow reported above, but delivered her here free of cost to us. A very fine and a very timely gift.

Under the unavoidable conditions which came upon our herd, we need three more cows. We have bought five and had this one given to us, and that makes an even dozen in our barns now. We should have 15 at least. We cannot buy any more at present. We had a scheme by which we hoped to buy more, but our scheme has failed us.

Are there other families or communities who will do as the Mosers and the Hausers did? Some calves or yearlings would also help wonderfully. We have a splendid pasture where they could live without cost for the next six months.

We also need one good mule for the summer's work.

A Fine Trip to Asheboro

On last Sunday evening we had a most delightful trip to our wide-awake and progressive church in Asheboro. The good people spread a supper for about 30 of us. We thoroughly enjoyed the supper and the fellowship. Then at the close of the evening service they took an offering to enable them to double their regular offering for March, and though they contribute $30 per month, they more than doubled it. They did it joyfully. Dr. Taylor and his people seem happy together. God bless them and all His dear people.

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

AN URGENT APPEAL

Several years ago, when we were riding the waves of prosperity and high prices, a number of our congregations throughout the conference undertook building projects which later proved beyond their financial ability. Appeals were made to the Board of Church Extension from many of these congregations for help. The matter was brought before the Annual Conference and the board was instructed to borrow quite a sum of money to be expended in helping as many as possible of these demands until they were in position to help themselves. The money was borrowed. This naturally increased the current demands upon the board in the form of interest and several appealing requests for help have had to be declined from year to year, simply because it has been necessary to refund and refinance these loans.

The board is reducing these loans as rapidly as possible, but on account of the small receipts for the past two or three years has been unable to do as much as its judgment prompted. We are appealing to the churches that have not already done so to please raise the money for church extension and forward promptly to Mr. Allen, treasurer. Our loans are held by loyal Methodist Protestant people, but some of them are needing the money we are due them for actual living expenses. The matter is urgent. Pastors will please take notice and handle promptly.

W. L. WARD, Treasurer,
Board of Church Extension.

I MIGHT HAVE BEEN

I might have been a merchant
If on profits I'd been bent,
With chains of stores to oversee
As ruling president.

I might have been a doctor
If I had planned to be
A man of old-school kindly type
That patients like to see.

I might have been a lawyer
If I had been inclined,
Trained in the art of eloquence
To sway the jury's mind.

I might have been so many things
And soared aloft like birds;
But I am what I wished to be—
A gardener in words.

MRS. WHITSON WAS THERE

Brother W. D. Reed calls my attention to the fact that while the name of Mrs. Hattie Whitson, the delegate from Porter church, is listed in the Roll of Delegates, there is no figure opposite her name to indicate whether she was present or not. I have looked up the original roll, and find she answered each roll call. I very much regret the error, and the loss of credit that is due her. I would appreciate it, if those who read the Journal are that much interested, if they would put a "6" opposite her name.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson, N. C.

Topic for Sunday, March 31, 1935: "Why Join the Church?"

Scripture Lesson: Ephesians 1:22, 23; 2:19-22.

"The only cure for the troubles we are in are the ideals of Jesus," said the leader of the communist sailors speaking to Dr. Poling when he was in France last summer. The young fellow continued, "That Jesus' plan and his way can give us equality and love for all people."

The church is the only institution which stands solely for the Christ-like way of living, and seeks to emphasize through precept and example the pattern of life conduct as demonstrated by the Man of Galilee.

Significant, isn't it? Kings live and die, kingdoms rise and fall, civilization passes through its various periods of change and decay, but the church of Jesus "goes on forever." For more than 1,900 years it has been the great motivating influence, serving the needs of mankind and making life the abundant life.

A great deal of criticism has been and continues to be hurled at the church. It is and must needs be inevitably imperfect because it is made up of human individuals with all their imperfections and limitations and weaknesses; striving, however, more and more to that nearest possible approach to perfection.

We should go to church fundamentally to worship. Some say, But cannot I worship at home? Yes, but as a rule it isn't done. Theoretically it is possible, but practically it is impossible.

We should join and attend church because of our need for consistent spiritual guidance. Many millions of church-goers feel deeply the constant need of spiritual guidance, comfort of the spirit, and the strength it gives.

People have been aptly compared to stoves, intended to radiate heat but so likely to grow cold unless the fuel is regularly replenished. The church is like that. It replenishes the fuel. Again people are compared to storage batteries, holding just enough energy for just as much work. The church through its services of worship and devotion fills just this need in the individual's life. It furnishes the contact with the power house.

The church needs young people and young people need the church. The church needs the young blood, the new ideas, the enthusiasm, the zeal and youthful fervor and limitless energy and push.

"The church stands for:

"Christ and His way of life.

"United effort to bring in the kingdom of heaven.

"Making our ideals concrete in action.

"A home for the homeless and a friend for the friendless.

"A better community.

"Can you afford to be outside?"

High Point College News

The elimination phase of the statewide oration-essay contest has been reached. A preliminary contest has been conducted in the following districts with the following results: Henderson, contest won by Miss Nancy Parham; Rocky Mount, won by Miss Dorothea Matthews; Williamston, Miss Wilma Blake; New Bern, Miss Macy Kittrell; Hamlet, Leonard Barnes; Fayetteville, Miss Virginia Pearson; Forest City, Miss Vertie Rayburn. Before the Herald reaches its readers three more district elimination contests will be held, and the finals at High Point College. Several Methodist Protestants have competed, but only Miss Parham has been successful in winning a place. The finals will take place in Roberts Hall Friday night. The subject for the contest is: "Do I Expect My College Education to Make Me More Useful to My Community, or to Increase My Earning Capacity?"

The High Point College A Capella choir made its third annual visit to Statesville last Sunday night and gave a concert in the M. E. church there. It was declared by many in the audience as the best a High Point choir has ever given. Mrs. Eugenia Davis, president of the State Federation of Music Clubs, was pronounced in her praise of the work of the choir.

Next Sunday, March 31, the choir will give programs as follows: Roanoke Rapids M. E. church, 11 a. m.; Stevens Theatre, Henderson, 4 p. m. Methodist Protestants living nearby will, no doubt, be interested in hearing the program.

April 17 the choir will start on a two weeks' southern tour. Concerts will be given as follows: Greenville, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., Montgomery, Ala., Sanford, Fla., Palatka, Fla., Savannah, Ga., Charleston, S. C., and Laurinburg, N. C. Only three concerts will be largely before Methodist Protestant audiences, namely, Atlanta, Birmingham and Montgomery.

In the recent statewide debating tournament the High Point College team won the state championship, and was judged the second best in the south. The college orator won second place in the state oratorical contest. All of these contests were held at Catawba College, Salisbury.

Another honor came to High Point recently when the basketball team won second place in the race for the championship of the state.

A careful study of the history of the college will, it is thought, reveal that she has won more state honors than any other small college in the state during the same length of time.

The college will be sadly disappointed and greatly hurt if the conference does not rally to her support these last few weeks and raise the college assessment to the extent of meeting the conditions of the General Board of Education for the gift of $7,500. If your church has not raised its apportionment, see that it does between now and the first of May.

THE APPRAISAL OF THE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE BY FAMOUS MEN

By N. M. Harrison

A multitude of witnesses, who have climbed the ladder to distinction and fame, have borne witness to the indispensableness of the Christian college. These were looking at education from its larger aspect, not merely as mental development, but moral as well. They knew that a one-sided education would produce a warped generation of citizens.

Emerson said: "Character is higher than intellect." Macauley declares that "Nine-tenths of the calamities which have befallen the human race had no other origin than the union of high intelligence with low desires." The testimony of Sir Robert Pell is included in these words: "Secular education is only half an education with the most important half left out." "To educate the reason without educating the desire is like placing a repeating rifle in the hands of a savage," proclaims Herbert Spencer.

How have you parents, who have children ready for college next fall, looked at this matter? Does the testimony of these men have any significance to you? Surely you have high hopes for the adult days of your child! No doubt, because of the Christian influence and inspiration of the parental fireside, he has high ideals for himself. What is going to become of those ideals and hopes when that young life steps out into the larger life of the college campus? I would say that the emphasis of that campus will determine what becomes of them. If the emphasis of the campus is a religious emphasis, then it is not likely that the father's hopes will be blighted. Most likely the student will continue to strive for these noble ideals. If the emphasis of the campus life is void of religion, George A. Coe says: "To receive no religious impression at all is exactly equivalent to receiving an impression that religion is unimportant," and down comes the ideals.

A college founded by the church, maintained by the church, controlled by the church, whose faculty are all members of a church and professed Christians, would not as likely, in the classroom or on the campus, radiate a spirit which would undermine the religious ideals of youth, as would the college or school which does not look to the church for support, which is not subject to the church for its conduct, and whose faculty are not necessarily required to be connected with the church.

"The small Christian college is the hope of America. Character is essential to statesmanship and these colleges are vital factors in the development of sterling character," is the appraisal which James J. Hill has placed upon the church school. Henry L. Smith speaks of them thus: "The Christian college is the manufactory which takes the finest raw material the church can furnish, multiplies its value a hundred-fold, and returns it to the church in a life-giving stream of intelligent faith, trained power, and consecrated leadership."

High Point College is the college of the Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina. It is there to serve the youth and to assure a greater future of the church tomorow. It is your college. Will you let it serve your boy and girl, and through them the church which gave it birth?

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

NOTICE TO AUXILIARIES

This is to remind you that the N. C. Branch meeting will be held in Asheboro April 10-11. And just as soon as you have elected your delegates, send their names to Miss Lollie Jones, Park Street, Asheboro, N. C. These names should be in not later than April 7. If delegates want to stay together, say so when you write. Asheboro is looking forward to your coming and they will appreciate it if you will let them know when you will get there, and if you want entertainment overnight.

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD,
Publicity Chairman.

AN S. O. S. CALL TO AUXILIARIES

It seems that we are far short of what we paid on our budgets at this time last year and something must be done about it.

As you know, we are not able to apportion more than half of the Branch budget to the auxiliaries because we give them just what they agree to take, and then if the auxiliaries fail to raise the amount they accept, you see where we are.

If you have any thank-offering or quilt money on hand, please send it in at once. The books must close the 31st and what you do must be done quickly. Possibly you can do something at your churches Sunday, and although that day is the 31st, if you collect your money Sunday and send it to me Monday I will give you credit for it.

We just must not fall short of last year, so let's make a desperate effort Sunday to raise all we can and send to the treasurer very promptly, and then we can all go to Branch meeting in Asheboro April 10 and 11 feeling happy over having done our best.

MISS BRONA APPLE, Treasurer.
222 North Edgeworth St., Greensboro, N. C.

TO AUXILIARY MEMBERS

Let's help High Point College secure the $7,500 offered by the Board of Christian Education on condition that the North Carolina Conference raise $5,000 by May 1.

This is what we are asking you to do: send your apportionment for High Point College to the Branch treasurer by March 31. Then raise an equal amount which will count on your budget for next year, and send by your delegates to Branch meeting in Asheboro for the special college service to be held on the night of April 10.

Please don't embarrass your delegates when they are asked to present your gift by failing to do this. Come on, let's make this a wonderful service. MRS. H. A. GARRETT.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Stony Knoll, West Forsyth Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, has filled all his appointments here this year. He always brings us a very helpful message. Congregations have been good, and we feel that Bro. Ferree is going to do much good here this year.

Rev. D. R. Williams was our pastor last year, and everybody would have enjoyed Bro. Williams back again, but he was called to another field of work. Our best wishes are with him.

One of our former members, Claud Shore, passed away in a Winston-Salem hospital last week. His body was brought back here for burial. He had moved his membership to the First Church in Winston-Salem. He very often came back to visit friends and relatives in this community, and will be missed by the people of Stony Knoll church. We extend our sympathy to the family.

Our protracted meeting is to begin the first Sunday in July. We are planning to have a home-coming on that day. We extend an invitation to all former pastors and all friends of this church. Please come; we will be so glad to have you.

MARY SPEASE, Reporter.

New Hope, Mecklenburg.—For the past week we have had preaching at our church each night. Rev. J. M. Smith, from Charlotte, was spending the week in the community with friends and was asked to preach for us. He gladly accepted the invitation. There were large crowds out for the services. Our pastor was present in the services and he and the visiting minister did all they could to warn sinners and to persuade them to turn from their wicked ways. We trust that the seed sown may spring up and bring forth an abundant harvest.

Rev. P. E. Bingham filled his appointment Sunday morning. Two united with the church. One was baptized. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed. We feel that the New Hope people were really blessed by the meeting. We are still praying for the regular revival meeting which will be held in August that many souls may be saved.

FAYE AYCOTH, Reporter.

Alamance Charge.—Young people's services were held at each church on this charge during the months of January and February. Misses Edith Guthrie and Bessie Holmes were the speakers at Bethel, Messrs. Reid Brown and Tyree Lindley at Rock Creek, and Rev. J. W. Braxton at Center. Pastor and people are grateful to these persons for the splendid addresses. The engaged speaker for Sapling Ridge could not come, so the pastor was the speaker. Special music was a feature for all these services.

Just recently Bethel church has been painted on the outside, two new stoves purchased, and new flues built. Center church has built two new stove flues for the Sunday school rooms, and purchased new song books. About two years ago Rock Creek church built a vestibule and tower, including two classrooms, leaving a small indebtedness of around $200. We are pleased to report that this has been paid since conference. Sapling Ridge is a beautiful brick church, all the windows being memorial windows, an honor to those who built it. Each church has ample auditoriums and adequate Sunday school equipment.

During the next few weeks we are concentrating on the McCulloch Memorial Fund and the High Point College apportionment. Already a good start has been made.

Bros. Amos Richardson and Arlendo Lindley, who have been sick, are again occupying their pews at Center. Mrs. R. S. Thompson, who was very sick for a number of weeks, is back at her place at Bethel. We trust others who are sick will soon be better. Former pastors will remember the faithfulness of Bro. O. N. Hornaday to Rock Creek church. Although 86 years old, he seldom misses Sunday school and worship services. A fine example for those who are younger.

Learning that the pastor is fond of corn bread, Bro. George Bishop recently presented him a bag of corn meal made at his own mill. He has our thanks. H. L. ISLEY.

Gray's Chapel, Randolph Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. G. L. Reynolds, filled his regular appointment here Sunday with a very inspiring message to the church. We hope this sermon will do a great deal of good. Our attendance Sunday was better than usual.

We are expecting our Sunday school attendance to be better in the future, as there has been so much sickness in our community during the past several weeks.

Aleese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Lineberry, is seriously ill with pneumonia at this writing. We hope for her a complete recovery soon.

We are glad to report that Garland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brower York, is recovering from pneumonia. H. B. U., Reporter.

Rehoboth, Granville Charge.—I have not been reporting lately, but that does not mean that I have not had anything to report, for we have been right on the job.

Bro. Spencer has been bringing us splendid messages each Sunday, and as the days go by we learn to appreciate him and his dear wife more and more.

Last Sunday was thank-offering day. The program was splendid and we had a large crowd and a fair collection. Taking all things into consideration, we were well pleased.

On last Wednesday the Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. H. L. Wright with 19 members present. The officers were elected for another year. The treasurer reported that our budget of $100 had been raised, thanks to the women and the old hens. Sometimes I wonder how the world would get along without these two items, "women and hens." Our Sunday school is getting better every Sunday, our attendance has about doubled, and more interest is being shown than in a long time.

The Easter program is coming along in fine shape under the leadership of Mrs. H. P. Wright and Miss Lucy Rogers. We are taking a part in the fifth Sunday rally to be held in Henderson church next Sunday.

May God bless us and fill our bodies with strength and our hearts with zeal so that we may carry on the good work for the advancement of God's kingdom.

MRS. H. L. WRIGHT, Reporter.

West End, Thomasville.—The Senior C. E. Society has charge of midweek prayer service for March and seems that the attendance has increased greatly.

We have made some changes in Sunday school. The men's class has been given the large room in the basement, and the young married ladies have a class to themselves.

The Ladies' Aid served supper at the American Legion hut with splendid results. We cleared the most we've ever cleared.

Rev. Edw. Suits preached a wonderful sermon Sunday morning, at the close of the service opening the doors of the church. At this time we added one member to the church.

MRS. L. C. GODBEY, Reporter.

North Davidson.—We are still living, and trying to do something for the Master's Kingdom, yet not doing all that should be done. Our services are well attended. We are hoping this year will close favorable to us, with all claims paid and many souls saved.

We were glad to have Rev. C. E. Ridge, of Shiloh, preach for us at the quarterly conference March 16. He brought us a splendid message, enjoyed by all present.

We are looking forward to the fifth Sunday district rally at Mt. Pleasant, expecting a large crowd present.

On March 16 the people of Canaan came to the parsonage. They just walked into the dining room and loaded the table with many good, useful articles for our comfort. I will not take space to mention all the articles, as they were too numerous. May the Lord bless these givers for which we so much appreciate.

Brethren, pray for us that we go forward.

C. L. GRANT.

Friendship Station—Sunday, March 24, was a glad day for the Friendship folks. The pastor has been working on a splendid program for the church, and this was presented Sunday morning. A "car race" was started, the cars "driven" by Mrs. O. L. Hatley and P. B. Herlocker, and members on each side are to see that the "gas" is furnished. For every $2 paid on conference claims the car moves two miles. We have one month to reach the goal, but one was heard to say, "This race may be over in one week." Some folks still have the old-time faith. So glad to have the visitors line up with us, too. Marvin Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Herlocker, Geneva and Luther Hatley, Luther Burleyson and family, and Andy Harwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Drye and family. Most of the above are members of our Sunday school but have their church membership elsewhere. How glad we are to have their assistance!

The sick ones seem to be improving since the balmy spring days have arrived.

An Easter program is being prepared under the direction of Misses Edythe Hatley and Wilma Lowder.

Friends and neighbors of Mrs. Lucy Hatley gathered at her home last Sunday and gave her a surprise birthday dinner. A splendid talk was made by the Rev. W. D. Reed, her pastor, after which a bountiful dinner was served. Guests included relatives and friends from Albemarle, Badin, Salisbury, Charlotte, Shelby, and New London. Rev. A. D. Shelton and family, of Greensboro, spent Saturday with their daughter, Evelyn.

Friendship-Porter's.—Since our last report the spirit of giving has continued to be manifest. The ladies of Friendship presented a nice quilt to Mrs. R. H. Shoe as an expression of appreciation for her faithfulness to her Sunday school class. Lest there be coldness felt in the parsonage, a nice quilt and pillows were presented to the inmates thereof.

Our poultry yard has been supplied and the production is 100 per cent. We wonder if Bro. Powell, in his gusto of praise for his fine brood, can excel this.

Yesterday we started our special drive for Annual Conference budget. It started with an enthusiastic whoop, and we expect to raise the last dollar by April 30.

We are indebted to Mrs. Rosa Fultz for the most beautiful setting of handmade flowers we have seen. We wonder if nature itself could excel her delicate touch.

The work is moving on nicely, and the future brightens for a good year.

W. D. REED.

P. S.—This report does not take the place of our efficient reporter's, but says things that her timidity would not let her say.

Burlington, First Church.—March 24 was a red letter day for our Sunday school. This was Philathea day and the Philatheas were present 101 strong. Miss Swannie Coble, president of the Philathea Class, presided and a very good and worthwhile program was rendered. The Philathea Class is our largest class in the entire Sunday school. Under the leadership of their beloved teacher, Mrs. M. A. Coble, this class has grown in numbers and in the Christ-like spirit. The Philatheas can always be depended upon to render any service in the extension of God's kingdom. The Philatheas were delighted to have Mrs. Walter Sellers, teacher of the Philathea Class at the Christian church, to teach them.

Our Sunday school attendance was 464, and there was a large crowd present at the morning preaching service.

The Baraca Class is growing in numbers too. There are 60 on roll in the Baraca Class and there were 70 present on March 24. Our Baraca Class can be depended upon to support the program of the church. The writer believes that under the leadership of the president, Mr. Walter Smith, the class will soon number 100 active members. All classes are doing good work. Our pastor and his wife have large classes of young men and young ladies. With thankful hearts we praise God for our daily blessings and the manifestation of His spirit among our people.

Our people were glad to have Mrs. L. W. Gerringer with them last week. We were glad to have the Jarvis quartet of Greensboro with us last Sunday.

At a meeting of the second quarterly conference the officials endorsed the following recommendations made by Dr. Paschall: (1) special work of pre-Easter services; (2) several officials promised during the pre-Easter services to tell the story of Jesus to someone in sin and to try to get them to give their life to Jesus; (3) pray daily for the whole church program; (4) several officials promised to go through the church roll and pray for ten members every day until our church is 100 per cent in daily living for God.

The treasurer's report to the second quarterly conference showed that all bills were paid to date with a small balance in the treasury.

We pray for God's blessings on His work and workers everywhere, and we desire that you remember us in your prayers.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—We are all proud to say that the sick folks in our community are improving. Our pastor, Rev. J. H. Trolinger, brought us an interesting sermon the third Sunday in this month. Everyone enjoyed it. We are getting along very well with our conference claims. We were divided into two sections and one side represented a Chevrolet and the other a Buick. The Buick went across. And the other side is going across before next Sunday.

We are planning to get up an Easter exercise. I think everyone will enjoy working, trying to get up an Easter program. The young men of this community are asked to meet at the church Monday night, March 25, to organize a prayer meeting. We are hoping it will be successful.

Kistler's Union, Cleveland Charge.—Since our editor has been receiving more material than he could print easily, I have hesitated in sending a letter from our church. I am indeed glad to say that the work of our church is still moving along nicely. Greater interest is being shown since spring has opened. Bro. Troxler never fails to be present on the first and third Sundays with his very helpful and inspiring sermons. We also enjoy having Mrs. Troxler and children worship with us on these Sundays. Mrs. Troxler usually favors the Ladies' Class with an excellent discussion on the Sunday school lesson.

We are more than glad to report that our church is almost ready for dedication. On March 10 the chairman of our building committee, Bro. Velus Ivester, stated that a small debt of $72 was against the church. In just a short time the amount was almost all raised. We are indeed proud of our new church, and certainly appreciate the fine co-operation we have had in building it.

Sunday school is progressing nicely. Our attendance is still increasing. We hope to reach the 100 mark soon. A short Easter program is being planned.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held its regular meeting on March 10 in the Ladies' Class room. A good many members were present. The general work of the Auxiliary was discussed. New officers for the year were elected. Some time ago the Auxiliary formed a Sunday Egg Club and began to piece a quilt in squares. Each square was sold at 10 cents each. These two activities so far have helped greatly. We have realized $17.56 from eggs and $17.75 for the quilt, a total of $35.31, with two quilts being made instead of one. Electric lights will be put in the church with the money and the quilts will be donated to the Children's Home. Next Thursday the ladies will meet in the Ladies' Class room and quilt the quilts.

Flat Rock Charge.—The second quarterly conference for Flat Rock charge will be held at Bethel church on Saturday, April 13, beginning at 2 o'clock. We trust that there will be a full attendance of the officials and many interested members of the different churches. Election of nominees for delegate to the Annual Conference and other important business will be transacted.

The people of Flat Rock charge continue to remember the pastor and family with nice gifts for our dining table. We very greatly appreciate these gifts, and thank the following persons for the donations: Mr. and Mrs. George Thacker, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Humphreys, Mrs. A. L. Lemmons, Mrs. Coy Angel, Mrs. R. B. Angel, Mrs. J. W. Flynt, Mrs. C. J. Angel, Mrs. R. C. Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Pegram, Mrs. R. W. Pegram, Mrs. Ode Jones, Mrs. Ira Johnson, Mrs. D. E. Wilson, Mrs. E. M. Parrish, Mrs. John Wray, Mrs. J. H. Pearman, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Middleton, Mrs. J. J. White, Mrs. R. J. Sharron.

Rehoboth, Creswell Circuit.—Some time has passed since I made a report, but owing to circumstances I've not been able to do so. I have been down ever since November with rheumatism; while I've been up and down, the pain has been and is still very severe. My general health otherwise is good. Mr. Davenport has been and is still suffering so much. He went to Norfolk on the 13th of this month for treatment and returned on the 16th. For several days was very hopeful that he had been benefited, but the relief was only temporary, so he has had to get back to bed. Mrs. Aumock stayed with me while he was away.

Our little Sunday school has been kept alive by our faithful few, J. B. White, his sisters, Wheeler and Laddie Swain. Yesterday Mr. Davenport and I went out, also Mr. C. V. White; by the way, he will be 80 years old, March 31. We then went to the Baptist church, heard a good sermon. We will be very glad when our preacher can be with us. Pray that we old folks may be situated so we can attend the services and Sunday school.

Our M. P. Herald is very good each week. How we enjoy it! How I'd like to see the Whitaker-Lovett Sunday school class! Compare it with our whole attendance, last Sunday we had eleven, but the few are faithful. Laddie Swain and wife lost their infant baby a few weeks ago. This was so sad for them, but they are resigned to God's will. I was unable to attend the meeting at Creswell church March 20. Mr. Davenport went and enjoyed every moment. Then some of the delegates wanted to go to the sound, drove through my yard, hence I saw a good many of them. It was good to meet them; sorry the sound looked so desolate. The storm a year ago blew the nice fish house and other buildings away; in fact, there was only one fish house left standing on the sound. No one living at the sound now. Hope when they come again to have things fixed up.

I failed to mention while Mr. Davenport was in Norfolk he was entertained at our members', Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Everetts. Mr. Everett took him over to see Mrs. J. T. Clayton, who was Annie Tarkington before her marriage. Mr. Clayton died very suddenly December 5. She is still deeply grieved. He also went to see Mrs. Biggs, whose children are in our Children's Home. I must close, will try and report each month.

MRS. G. L. DAVENPORT, Reporter.

Pensacola Church.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. We wish to thank Messrs. M. H. Blankenship, L. B. Silver, A. G. Wilson and W. W. Gardner for the work they have done toward putting a new roof on the parsonage here.

We have sent an offering to the Children's Home every month during this church year.

The young people a few Sundays ago put on a program stressing the need of the church members taking the Herald. Mesdames C. W. Robertson, W. G. Blankenship and Messrs. A. G. Wilson and M. H. Blankenship are now taking the Herald, and we hope several more will be taking it soon.

We are glad to say that our Church Extension quota is paid in full.

MRS. W. G. BLANKENSHIP.

Calvary.—So far this year I have depended on our faithful correspondent, Mrs. Howard R. Neece, to do the reporting for Calvary church while I have written about the work of the conference in general. Now I want to turn aside and be a pastor for a little while. And here I have the advantage over the rest of the brethren as there is nobody sitting back with a pencil ready to cut out anything I may say. Anyway, the articles that have come in have fared very well and there has been very little trimming done.

While the work at Calvary is not going by leaps and bounds, yet it is moving along fairly well. The pastor has given as much time as possible to the work, though it is not possible to give as much time to it as it deserves, owing to the work of the Herald. The Sunday school under the leadership of Brother Howard R. Neece is going forward and there is an attendance of more than 200 most of the time. The Woman's Auxiliary is very active and can always be depended on. The Senior Christian Endeavor has been having good attendance of late and is having interesting meetings. The Junior society is doing good work also. The pastor is talking to the children each Friday afternoon in preparation for Decision Day and an Easter ingathering. There has been much serious sickness among our families for the past several months; however, the church congregations have been very good.

Our finances are considerably behind, but we have launched a tithing campaign for the months of April and May and we are hoping this will help us catch up. The Woman's Auxiliary has paid its Branch budget and is about out on its local work. The Church Extension assessment has been paid by the church, the McCulloch Memorial Fund has been raised, and some has been paid on the church debt. We are hoping to pay our assessment to High Point College during the month of April.

J. E. PRITCHARD, Pastor.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Rev. T. J. Whitehead filled his regular appointment at our church last Sunday morning. He delivered a helpful and inspiring message on the text, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." At the close of the sermon the Lord's Supper was observed. We noticed a few new faces in the audience at the morning service. It was indeed a pleasure to have them, and we invite them to worship with us again.

Plans are being made for an Easter program to be given at our church on Easter Sunday night.

The Woman's Auxiliary will serve a supper in the hut next Saturday night, March 30. The Hopedale String Band will furnish music during the entire evening. Everyone is cordially invited to come out for supper and enjoy an evening of fun.

We are making an effort to pay our part of the McCulloch Memorial Fund. Quite a bit has been collected, but we are not yet on the honor roll. May we strive to meet all our obligations in full.

Miss Carrie Nicholson had the misfortune to fall and sprain her ankle a few weeks ago. We hope that she will soon be recovered sufficiently to take her place in church again.

One of our Sunday school teachers, Miss Hallie Loy, was married to Mr. Arthur Ingle in February. They have moved to Gibsonville and are housekeeping at the home of the bridegroom's parents. Mrs. Ingle is greatly missed in this community and, especially in the church. We extend to them many wishes for a happy life together.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Holt are the proud parents of a daughter, Rebekah Kathryn, born in Burlington February 26. REPORTER.

Oak Grove, Cleveland Charge.—Rev. R. S. Troxler held his regular service at Palm Tree M. E. church Sunday, March 24. A large crowd attended. Mr. Troxler is planning to hold his next service in the new church April 28.

The Women's Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. R. S. Troxler Sunday evening, March 17. The meeting was opened by Mrs. J. L. White, with the devotional by Mrs. R. S. Troxler; a short story, "Love Seeks Expression," by Blanche Gettys; poem, Marie Whitehead; missionary work, Mrs. T. S. Peeler. The main subject was "Love, Service, and Sacrifice."

Fifteen members were present. The offering was $1 and Sunday egg offering $1.87. Officers were elected for the next year, as follows: President, Mrs. T. S. Peeler; vice president, Mrs. J. L. White; secretary, Mrs. T. J. Whitehead; assistant, Mrs. S. E. Haynes; corresponding secretary, Blanche Gettys.

The women are doing fine on their block quilt. They have decided to give an oyster supper Saturday, March 30, at Polkville. The proceeds go on the new church.

Miss Vesta Troxler spent last week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Troxler. Miss Willie Pendleton spent the week-end at her home near Polkville. Mr. Summie White, of Rutherford College, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. White, Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Powell and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Griggs, of Gibsonville, visited friends and relatives here last week.

Mrs. W. C. Gettys has been sick for the past few weeks but is improving now.

BLANCHE GETTYS, Reporter.

First Church, Winston-Salem.—Dr. Bates' sermon Sunday was a wonderful one. His main idea, around which his sermon was built, was "Judge not, lest ye be judged." If the listening congregation takes to heart the good things Dr. Bates suggested in this inspiring message, surely the ugly and un-God-like things will not be done to and said about their fellow men.

Miss Mary Margaret Bates, of High Point College, spent the week-end with her parents. Miss Bates' roommate visited with her over the week-end.

Mrs. H. O. Sapp attended the morning worship Sunday. It was delightful to have had her there.

The Auxiliary has been invited to the parsonage on Tuesday for a called meeting. Mrs. Bates is going to serve lunch at 25 cents per plate at noontime and then the meeting will be held immediately afterward. Officers for the coming year are to be decided upon at this time. It has been intimated that Mrs. Bates may be the new Auxiliary president. Won't that be fine? She is a very capable leader and has a good personality.

Bethesda, Halifax Charge. — Our church work is moving along nicely. The Woman's Auxiliary gave their thank-offering program the fourth Sunday afternoon in February. Mr. Loy gave us a very inspiring talk at this time. Miss Mary Glen Lee, of Hollister, favored us with a very pretty solo, "Tell Me the Old, Old Story." Collection amounted to $7.15. The last meeting of the Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Taylor. They held the election of officers. They ended up their year's work in a very satisfactory way, more than paying their budget. Some of our members are planning to attend the meeting at Asheboro in April.

Our Sunday school is beginning to show some improvement since spring opened up. We have added several new members recently. We were very glad to have Mr. Marvin Taylor, who is studying at State College, with us at Sunday school Sunday.

We observed Young People's Day the second Sunday morning in March at our 11 o'clock service. Mr. Loy gave us a very good and appropriate talk. We enjoyed the beautiful duet, "Living for Jesus," given by Miss Mary Glen and Edward Lee, of Hollister. We thank these young people for their hearty co-operation. Our offering for Young People's Day was $6.

The project for beautifying our church grounds is still in progress under the splendid leadership of Mrs. W. R. Neville. We are very proud of our beautiful shrubbery and more has been added this spring.

We are planning an Easter service to be given Easter Sunday morning.

REPORTER.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—The attendance at Sunday school Sunday was nearly 100 per cent and the offering was very good.

Brother Loy filled his regular appointment Sunday morning with another very interesting and helpful sermon. All of Mr. Loy's sermons are good and we enjoy hearing him preach.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Loy in the loss of her grandfather, who died recently. May God's blessing be upon the bereaved.

The Woman's Auxiliary met on Friday afternoon, March 15, at the home of Mrs. Mae Alston. We had a good meeting. We are grateful for the work our Auxiliary has done. We have paid our budget in full and our college assessment for next year. We have adopted a child in the Children's Home to clothe this year. We are glad to say our Auxiliary has been made a standard Auxiliary and we hope to make it an honor auxiliary next missionary year.

Plans are being made to repair our church very soon.

Preparations are being made for an Easter program to be given on the second Sunday evening. The pageant "Easter Victory" will be presented.

Asheville.—With the advent of Miss Spring we are all becoming more ambitious in the "Land of the Sky." Our men are setting the pace by cleaning up the church grounds, and no one could help noticing how much better they look; for once the women are going to have to do some stepping to keep apace. Bravo, men! To the following go our sincere thanks for assisting Rev. J. F. Minnis in this task: Messrs. J. W. I. Boling, H. L. Hanner, D. J. Eller, J. R. Moore, L. S. Neville and J. H. Bailey. Mr. Eller is planning to enamel the tables in the Sunday school room this week too, so we shall soon be so dressed up we shall not know where we are. It remains now for the women to set a day for a general spring cleaning of the entire church; the men have promised to assist, so let's go, women!

The Woman's Auxiliary meeting held at the home of Mrs. Y. D. Eller last week was well attended. Everyone seemed happy and enthusiastic over the new officers and the plans which are taking shape for the ensuing year. Mrs. Baker, the outgoing president, expressed her sincere appreciation to all the members for their loyal support, then led the members in pledging to Mrs. Minnis and her group of officers the same unstinting loyalty. Mrs. L. M. Joyner was elected delegate to the Branch meeting; Mrs. G. P. Younginer, alternate. Our budget was oversubscribed, not by such a great margin, but sufficient that we will have a small sum with which to begin the new year. It is generally felt that the year just closing has been the best for many years, and we are expecting to make the ensuing one better still. The following secretaries were also elected at this meeting: Missionary education, Miss Frances S. Cunningham; memorial, sustaining memberships, Mrs. T. L. Pratt; scholarships and workers, Mrs. Y. D. Eller and Miss Joan Capehart; young people's work, Mrs. Robey Wilson; literature, Mrs. J. R. Moore; thank-offering, Mrs. J. S. Williams; spiritual life, Mrs. H. O. Charnock; Christian education, Mrs. E. A. Bolick; temperance, Miss Eula Taylor; pastor's aid, Mrs. L. M. Joyner; benevolences, Mrs. U. S. Miller.

Miss Frances S. Cunningham, superintendent of our Sunday school, was unable, because of illness, to be present Sunday last; so also was Miss Melle Smith; both have improved somewhat at the present writing, so will probably be back with us again this coming Sunday. Here's hoping.

Mrs. Sam Hendricson took her class of Intermediate girls on a hike to Sunset Mountain after church Sunday. All report a glorious time. Mrs. Hendricson is doing wonders with these girls; there were 15 present on Sunday; they led the entire Sunday school in number present, although Mrs. Bolick's Beginners numbered 14. It is no easy job to be the leader of a bunch of Intermediates, and one who does it as well as Mrs. Hendricson deserves from us all a rising vote of thanks.

A business meeting was held after the close of the church service on Sunday morning and all members were earnestly urged to do everything possible to catch up financially before the end of the half-year term. I still believe it can be done if each of us will do his part. Are you doing yours? M. L. B.

Piney Grove, Why Not Circuit.—Even if there has not been much writing from Piney Grove lately, it is still existing, and even if we have been tossed from place to place, we are on the uphill pull. We have a very good number in Sunday school, with good interest, and the number is increasing since the opening of spring. The superintendent, Hal Gallimore, is planning an Easter program which is of much interest to the little folks and young people.

Rev. C. H. Hill filled his appointment Sunday morning and delivered a splendid sermon, found in Matthew 11:3.

Pray for us that we may make this the most successful year in winning souls to Christ. GOLDEN DELK, Reporter.

Liberty.—My delay in reporting has been due to the fact that my mother has been very ill for more than two months, almost helpless. She is very much improved now, for which I am truly grateful, and I praise the Lord for sparing her life to us.

The work of our church is going on in a good way. The attendance at Sunday school, church services and prayer meeting are on the increase as the beautiful springtime is here. Our good pastor, Rev. Fred R. Love, gave us another excellent sermon Sunday morning. It was indeed a soul-stirring gospel message. His text was based on Matthew 12:30. Rev. T. F. McCulloch, of Greensboro, brought the message for the evening service. We were so glad to have our beloved Mr. McCulloch.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. Mamie Smith, the retiring president. The devotional was conducted by Rev. Fred R. Love. The following officers were installed: Mrs. F. A. Shepard, president; Mrs. J. A. Clapp, vice president; Mrs. J. E. Cox, secretary; Mrs. Mamie Smith, treasurer. The delegates elected to go to the North Carolina Branch meeting at Asheboro April 10 and 11 are: Mesdames F. A. Shepard, Wade Hardin, A. D. Gregg, B. J. Gregson, F. R. Love, Mamie Smith and A. J. Brower.

Circle No. 1 meets with Mrs. Fred R. Love Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Margaret King Shepard, head of the home economics department in the high school, and one of our Sunday school teachers, planned and supervised a formal dinner for the Board of Education Tuesday evening.

Three more of our girls, Helen Dameron, Marjorie Elkins and Mary Bowman Shepard, of High Point College, were home for the day Sunday.

Pray for us.

BERTINE SHEPARD, Reporter.

Kannapolis.—It seems as if spring is good for us, because since warm weather has begun our Sunday school and church attendance has increased greatly. We are now making efforts to reach the quota for the church paper by the first of April.

We were very glad to have Mr. T. E. Strickland, from High Point College, to fill our pulpit during the absence of Rev. Mr. Smith.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its quarterly meeting on Monday, March 11. At that time the new officers were elected. Mrs. J. S. Marshall was elected president, succeeding Mrs. W. T. Kisar, who served efficiently during the past year. The budget of the auxiliary was completely reached.

The Christian Endeavor societies are very active. A new president and vice president have been elected. Arthur Tutterow will serve as president, succeeding Edward Sides Irene Benfield will be the new vice president. The Intermediate society very recently enjoyed an early morning hike. REPORTER.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

It is remarkable how often when traveling you meet someone that you never heard of before and yet they soon tell you of someone you know, and in that way one finds himself talking to the stranger just met as if they had been acquqianted for years. An extended acquaintance is always a valuable asset in traveling. Ofttimes through someone you have known you become acquainted with another in such a way as to get more information, enjoy your otherwise dull hours on the road, and enlarge the circle of your friendship. Sometimes you may run up with a "sharper," but that is not likely if you are alert to your safety.

Taking the train out of Shelby one day for Charlotte, I was seated by a commercial traveler, who engaged me in conversation. He wanted to know if I was a traveling man. I told him I traveled some. Then he wanted to know what line I handled. I told him that I would have to reply in the words of a great preacher, who being asked this same question, replied: "I represent the biggest firm on earth, Lord and Church." "What line, dry goods?" "Well, yes," replied the preacher, "they do say my sermons are dry sometimes." Then my companion of a few minutes asked what church I represented, and I told him. He immediately said, "You have a minister in your church by the name of Moton, do you not?" I replied by saying, "Yes, do you know him?" "No, I do not," he replied, "but I have heard him preach." Then he stated the following: "I was in the little town of Fallston one Sunday—that was before the days of the automobile, and drummers often had to wait over to see their customers—and some one proposed that we go to church. I went, not having much interest but to pass away the day. I shall never forget the text, 'Adam, Where Art Thou?' I was listening casually, not always paying close attention up to that time. Something was said that caused me to look back at the pulpit, and I could hear the man talking but could not see him. He was down behind the pulpit, illustrating how Adam hid from God. I never shall forget the impression made upon me. I shall never forget that day and that man and that sermon. I am a member of a church that does not believe in doing things that way, but they are effective, all right." That was natural for this man of God. He was not afraid to be himself, and that made him an effective preacher. Doubtless there were those who were shocked many times by his actions, but the number that were impressed and that were led into a life of usefulness by his natural way of doing things was compensation for him.

Perhaps there are too many, though it may be necessary for them to be that way, that are "man formed" instead of being rugged, original characters as God sent them out. I often wonder if we do not need more men of the John the Baptist type, that are absolutely independent of the opinions of the cold and formal. That like Jonah preach the same gospel of repentance to the king on his throne, as to the suburbs and slums. This preacher went in with the same message to all. John the Baptist did what has been insisted upon of late, be positive, and he had a positive gospel. He flayed those who had been exacting more than was meet, and did not fail to tell those who had not lived true that they must repent. It was one message to all alike. Jesus himself condemned the hypocrisy of his day (read Matthew 23) in the most scathing language that you will find anywhere. It was a positive gospel, and He was positive in preaching it.

Would it be right for us to so forget ourselves in preaching sometimes and think only of the souls that are in danger instead of what someone may say about our utterances? To let the people hear that the preacher is sent of God to preach to them and not for them?

Perhaps the writer has gone far afield from the subject, but if you remember, in one of my first articles the statement was made that there would be some comparisons made as we go along, so that we may see if we have grown in grace as we have in knowledge. There may be gracefulness in the pulpit without grace. There may be knowledge without a personal knowledge of salvation. In Sunday school convention work in the past many times the work of the school has been stressed so much, the Sunday school I mean, until even teachers pick up and go home and leave the church service. Is that Kingdom building?

THE GOAL

By Victor P. Hammer

Others think of you often,
Others vie in each deed,
Others help you in striving
To the point you succeed.

Many live for the present,
Many steer to the past,
Many sail for the future,
Whether calmness or blast.

All the actions we order,
All the service we give,
All the works we ennoble,
Are the portraits we live.

By our going and comings,
By our minglings and arts,
By our thinkings and plannings,
We discover true hearts.

In the sea of affections,
In the fountains of love,
In the rivers of goodness,
Life reflects from above.

So the goal is the climax
Of each venture and art;
The reward, the summation
Of the good we impart.

BEER VS. MILK

Upton G. Wilson, writing in the Reidsville Review some time ago, quotes the Christian Science Monitor, which told the story of a dairyman who complained to a friend of the poor outlook in the milk business. When the dairyman made his complaint, he failed to get any sympathy from his friend. The reason, as told by the Monitor and passed along by Mr. Wilson, was that the friend had lately passed the dairyman's place, and there on his silo, in great glowing letters, was a beer advertisement. Of course, the friend refused to waste any sympathy on any such a dairyman. The friend thought that if the man had no more foresight than to advertise the business of his keenest and most unscrupulous competitor, he did not deserve the sympathy of anybody.

Mr. Wilson comments further:

"Both beer and hard liquor are competitors of milk. Thousands spend for beer and liquor the money they should spend for milk. Moreover, farmers are among the number guilty of such unwise spending. When farmers learn to patronize more liberally those industries which consume in quantity their own products, they'll become more prosperous as a class. And they shouldn't forget that cows use more hay and grain than brewers and distillers."

The editor of the Health Bulletin is in entire accord with the position assumed in the foregoing by Mr. Wilson and the Boston paper. We have all heard of the meanest man in the world, but this man that Mr. Wilson and the Boston paper describe we think is the world's biggest fool. The old toper who needs a chaser for his hard liquor, and therefore eulogizes beer for its food value, in order to provide an alibi for the situation he finds himself in, deserves little sympathy. The family who is rearing growing children, but proceeds, as some of them are reported to do, to reduce the milk ration in the family in order to provide funds for increasing the beer, particularly for father, is robbing the children of the family of one of the most essential foods, a food for which there is no substitute whatever for growing children. The head of a family who will do this is foolish; but he is in no way any such fool as the dairyman who is trying to make a living selling milk to his fellows for their good, and for his own, and then undertakes to advertise the products of a brewery, which will reduce his business and eventually destroy it if the beer-drinking habit becomes prevalent enough.

There may be some food value in beer. We do not know. Impartial, unbiased chemists say that the food value in a quart of beer cannot be more than one-half the food value in a quart of milk. Moreover, the quart of milk possesses a great many exceedingly important vitamin and mineral elements which are conducive to good health, none of which a quart of beer will contain. But the beer has enough alcohol in it to bring them back for more and more.—The Health Bulletin (N. C.)

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Gray

On January 31 the Methodist Protestant church lost one of its most loyal members and one of its most humble servants in the death of J. A. Gray, of High Point, N. C. Mr. Gray was a grandson of the Rev. Alson Gray, one of the founders of the Methodist Protestant church in this state. His life and service in the church and community were such as to add glory to the splendid family heritage of which he could boast.

Brother J. A. Gray joined the First Methodist Protestant church of High Point in 1895 under the pastorate of Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk, the first minister of that church. As long as his health permitted he was very active in all the organizations of the church and held practically every church office that a layman can hold. In 1895 High Point and the First Methodist Protestant church were both in their infancy. Their growth has been greatly influenced and enhanced by the industrious service of this public spirited Christian citizen. However, the genius of his life did not lie in a colorful career but in the consistency of his daily living.

Funeral services, preceding interment in Oakwood cemetery, were conducted by Dr. George R. Brown, Dr. P. E. Lindley, and the pastor.

J. C. MADISON.

Voncannon

Mrs. Naomi Reynolds Voncannon departed this life on Tuesday, March 5, 1935, at the age of just a bit past 47 years. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Reynolds, of Montgomery county, near Troy, N. C., and the wife of Mr. Charles H. Voncannon, of the same community.

In early life Sister Voncannon united with Love Joy Methodist Protestant church on profession of faith in Jesus Christ and remained a faithful and consistent member of this same church until she was called home.

She leaves to mourn her going her husband, C. H. Voncannon; five children, Mrs. Jason Blackwell, Mrs. Audy Morris, Guy, Deward, and Wytzel Voncannon, and one grandchild, Evon Voncannon; her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Reynolds; three brothers, Hobart, Newton, and Craig Reynolds; and one sister, Mrs. Anna Adkins, with a number of nephews and nieces and other relatives and a great host of friends.

She was a consistent Christian woman, a faithful and congenial companion, a loving mother, a dependable neighbor, and a true friend. She will be sadly missed in the community and in the church, but especially in the home.

Her funeral was conducted by her pastor, the writer, at Love Joy M. P. church on Thursday afternoon, assisted by the following ministers: Rev. Mr. Singleton, of the M. E. Chrch, South, and Rev. Mr. Mills, of the M. E. church, and Rev. Mr. Hamilton, of the Presbyterian church, all of Troy, N. C. All were neighbors and friends of Mrs. Voncannon, Brother Singleton being the pastor of Brother Voncannon, the husband.

The great concourse of friends that gathered at the church for the funeral services, many of whom could not gain entrance into the church, and the great floral offerings attested the esteem in which Sister Voncannon was held.

Our heart-felt sympathies and our prayers are extended to the loved ones that remain

E. G. COWAN. Pastor.

Hayes

Mrs. Cora Bell Hayes departed from this life March 19, having reached the age of 53 years, 1 month. She joined the church at the age of 13 years and continued a faithful member of Chestnut Ridge church until death, after 40 years of faithful service. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Revs. T. A. Williams and R. C. Stubbins March 21 at Chestnut Ridge church.

A large congregation of relatives and friends was present for these services. Near relatives remaining are her companion, S. N. Hayes; two daughters, Lelia and Elivene; two sons, Homer and Tyson; two sisters, Mrs. J. W. Sykes and Mrs. J. G. Jobe; four brothers, E. R., R. S., D. F. and N. E. Sykes. May God comfort them.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Barker

Mrs. Virena Caroline Julian Barker was born September 5, 1848, and departed this life March 12, 1935, aged 86 years, 6 months and 7 days. She was married to James A. Barker January, 1898. Her husband died September, 1910.

Mrs. Barker was the daughter of Alfred and Mary Ward Julian and had spent most of her life at the old homestead, Millboro, Randolph county. She was the eldest of five children and is survived by only one sister, Mrs. Eliza Jane York, of Ramseur, Route 2. One sister, Mrs. Mary Ann Wood, preceded her to the glory world just four weeks before.

In early girlhood she joined the Gray's Chapel Methodist Protestant church and until her death she cherished the memory and liked to recall the old-time camp meetings here which as a girl she often walked four miles to attend. When Bethany Methodist Protestant church near Millboro was organized she became a charter member, and at the time of her death was perhaps the oldest living member.

Her funeral was conducted at the church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. George L. Reynolds, pastor, assisted by Revs. A. O. Lindley and Edward F. Suits, former pastors.

Clapp

Sometime in the early part of the afternoon on Monday, February 18, 1935, while the other members of the home were away at work, the angel of the Lord came and took away the spirit of Miss Bessie Clapp. She was born at Kimesville on September 3, 1882, and lived 53 years, 5 months, 15 days. She was the daughter of Milton and Elizabeth Greeson Clapp. In early childhood she united with the Mt. Pleasant Methodist Protestant church, and later in the year 1916 when the family moved to Graham she placed her membership here, where she remained up until the time of her death a faithful and earnest church member. Much of her Christian service and work was unobserved by her fellows, yet those who knew her most intimately knew how well she lived and how loyal she was to the cause of the church. Such as she will be missed when we go to make up our reports. In spite of many years of bad health she continued to grow in grace and the knowledge of the Lord.

The funeral service was conducted at the Mt. Pleasant M. P. church Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. E. Harrop, the pastor of the Graham Presbyterian church, and Rev. J. W. Braxton, pastor of the Mt. Pleasant church.

May the great God above who sees beyond the grave comfort and sustain the loved ones.

J. CLYDE AUMAN.

—One of the interesting things about getting out the Herald is writing fillers when the forms are being made up on Thursday morning. Men who are expert in making up forms claim that it is not artistic to begin a new article near the bottom of the column, hence some short article, sometimes only one line, sometimes more, must be prepared. The printer sets the type and it is put in place within a very few minutes. Some organizations prepare fillers and mail them out to papers. Our frequent references to 4-H Clubs and work of farm agents are prepared at Raleigh and mailed out to weekly papers.

—The editor was called to Giles' Chapel, his old home church, last Sunday afternoon to assist in the funeral of Mrs. J. L. Winningham, who lived near Central Falls. She was the mother of Brother A. R. Winningham, of our church in Asheboro, and was a good woman.

CALVARY	91
BURLINGTON, FIRST	87
ROBERTA	79

We welcome First Church, Burlington, into our column of honor this week. Calvary holds on to first place but she is being hard pressed these days and cannot hope to win unless she gets to work. Roberta moves up a few points from last week.

Now, let us look at the receipts for this week. There is First Church, Burlington, without a rival for first place. And if we had held back their offering of last week and had run it all the same week, how it would have astonished the natives! Mrs. Gerringer was there last week assisting Mrs. Durham, the agent, and they certainly did send us in some new names. And while Burlington does not have a contender for first place this week, it is true that there are several who did well. Mt. Pleasant, Graham, First Church, High Point, Friendship, Glen Raven, Gibsonville, Orange, Siler City, Alamance, all send in more than one subscription. That is mighty fine and we appreciate it very much. You will notice that the thermometer passes the 900 mark this week. In 18 weeks we have received 908 subscriptions. That is going some and we hope you will keep it up.

Again, there is no subsidy this week. We presume it is due to the many other pressing matters these days. But subsidy will come in later.

Our receipts this week amount to $111.78. You will notice also that we are not acknowledging anything from Asheboro this week. We have decided to wait until the canvass is completed and not divide the offering. But next week we are expecting a fine offering from Asheboro.

LEAGUE OFFERS AID TO CHURCHES

In a movement to quicken and expand the observance of the Easter-to-Pentecost season—April 21 to June 9—the Family Altar League, 189 West Madison Street, Chicago, announces that for the fourth successive year it will provide free help to any church in the United States or Canada. This year it has prepared material for an Easter-to-Pentecost campaign, adaptable to any city or country church, under the title of "Faith Marches On," and will send a copy to any pastor or church official who writes for it, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The League points out that Pentecost should be the most glorious day of the year, commemorating the birthday of the church; that the church, instead of virtually quitting at Easter, should be only beginning its intensive work then. It visualizes the day when Pentecost again will come to the church through faith and prayer. The League material contains sermon suggestions, daily readings, and other plans.

RANKIN MEMORIAL METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH, HIGH POINT

Methodist Protestant Churches in High Point

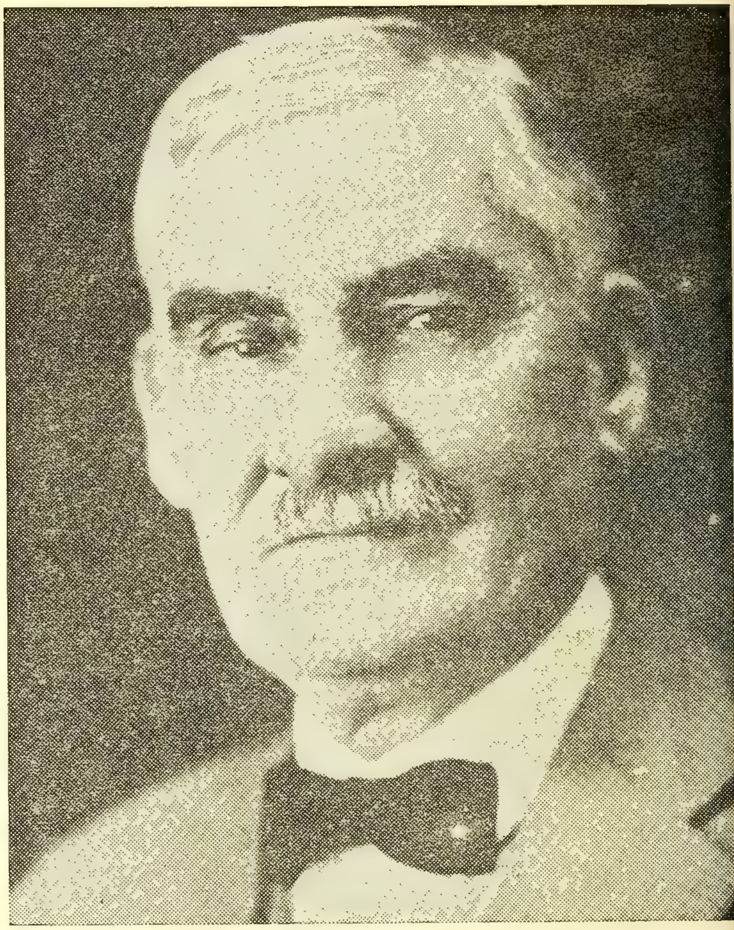
Through the courtesy of the High Point Enterprise and Tyson T. Ferree, Architect, we are presenting on the first page of the HERALD a picture of the new church which is being built in High Point, the name of which is the Rankin Memorial, in honor of that noble layman and big-hearted friend, Captain A. M. Rankin. And while thinking in terms of this new church we want to look at our other churches there also, though we cannot this week run pictures of them.

The Rankin Memorial church is the successor to the English Street church. As we remember it, the English Street church was bought from the Reformed church several years ago. The building was never large enough to meet the needs of a growing congregation and there was not ample space upon which to erect the kind of building needed. Finally it was decided to remove to a new location about a couple of blocks away. Under the able leadership of the pastor, the Rev. Edw. Suits, a new church is under construction, at the present time the walls being slightly above the ground. While the picture we are showing is only the architect's conception of how it will look, yet architects have a way of making things look very much like they will look when they are finished. Judged by our limited information, it would seem that the building would be ample for church purposes for years to come.

But we started out to write about our churches in High Point. There are four of them in the city proper and others so close to the city that some day, perhaps, they will be considered in the city, also. There is the First Church, Rev. J. C. Madison, pastor, that is one of the largest and most influential congregations in our Conference. The building is one of the best in the entire denomination. If we are not mistaken, this congregation was organized by the late Rev. W. R. Lowdermilk in the nineties. It was served by him for several years and since then has been served by a number of the ablest men of the Conference. By virtue of its location, its membership, and the fact that it is the church where the most of the college family attend, it is perhaps the most outstanding appointment in our Annual Conference.

Then there is the Lebanon church in North High Point. This church has been established long enough for us not to think of it as being a new church and yet it is not old enough to be weary with age. Just now we cannot give the date of its organization, neither can we give the name of the first pastor; however, we do know that it is one of our dependable churches and that it has been served by several of our ablest men. At the present time the pastor is Rev. J. M. Morgan, who is serving his first year there and, judging by the reports, the church is prospering under his ministry. Before he went there as pastor, this church was ably served for two years by Dr. S. W. Taylor, who went to this church when he retired from the presidency of the Conference in 1932. We understand that a church hut is in contemplation if not already started. Next week, Mrs. Gerringer is to be at this church in the interest of the HERALD, and we trust they may go over the top with flying colors. It is always a pleasure for us to welcome into our family of readers a lot of people who have not formerly been with us.

Next we move down into the southeastern part of the city to Welch Memorial, a church that was named for one of the outstanding families in High Point. This church, like Lebanon, is not too old nor too young to be of great usefulness. While the membership is not as large as it is at the First church, yet we think of Welch Memorial as being a wide-awake church. Like First church and Lebanon, it too has an able leader in the person of Dr. J. D. Williams, who for a long period of years has easily ranked as one of the ablest preachers among us. He is popular with his people and during his ministry there many things have happened to send this church on its way rejoicing. We shall continue to expect good things from this growing congregation. The plan now is for Mrs. Gerringer to be with this congregation week after next and we are fully expecting this congregation to live up to its reputation and do its part.



Captain A. M. Rankin, of High Point, N. C., for whom the Rankin Memorial M. P. Church was named. He has been a member of every General Conference of the M. P. Church for the last forty years.

And now, having circled the city, we come back to where we started from, namely, the Rankin Memorial. This church also is being served by one of our very best men, the Rev. Edw. Suits. He is a hard worker, a good scriptural preacher, and we are not surprised that under his leadership a new building is being erected. This church is located in a section of the city that is constantly developing, and under his wise leadership we are expecting the Rankin Memorial to come to the front very rapidly. The plan is for Mrs. Gerringer to be at this church also next week and we are expecting to address a goodly number of people there each week that we had not been addressing when writing these articles.

And now, a word in general about our cause in High Point. It is safe to say that we are relatively as strong or perhaps stronger in High Point than in any other city in North Carolina. Owing to the fact that for a long period of years our people were content to remain in the rural sections, we do not have the hold on the cities of North Carolina that some other denominations have. And in a great many places we are dreadfully overshadowed. As we understand it, in High Point our people are able to tell other people that they are Methodist Protestants without any embarrassment or any fear that they will be thought of as belonging to a small church. Our Children's Home and our college have added considerably to our prestige in High Point and at the same time these institutions have helped to strengthen our churches there. Wherever people have responsibilities they naturally develop more rapidly. The fact that these institutions are in High Point has made our people there take a pride in them that they could not have had if the institutions had been elsewhere. As these institutions grow, our church will gain in influence. As our churches gain in influence, they will be able to help the institutions, so both go hand in hand.

Dr. Plyler Comments on Hailstones

Last week, Dr. A. W. Plyler, editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, made the statement that in the spring of 1899 or 1900 he saw hail stones fall in Asheboro that measured nine inches in circumference. We do not doubt Dr. Plyler's seeing this wonderful sight, but we think he is mistaken in the date. To be exact, we think it was the 30th day of May, 1898. It so happened that Dr. Plyler, Prof. O. J. Coffin of the School of Journalism at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the editor of the HERALD, and perhaps others who do some writing occasionally, were living at Asheboro at that time. And along with the multitudes, the most of us were somewhat frightened. However, we were not in as bad a way as a man who was coming in to Asheboro driving a team of spirited mules. The mules became frightened and were about to run away, when the man's hat blew off, leaving his perfectly bald head exposed to the hail stones.

Who Sent Us the Money?

On last Saturday evening somebody from Mt. Pleasant church on the Mt. Pleasant charge left $5.00 for subscriptions to the HERALD with some one living near McCulloch and Swain's printing office, but the name of the person leaving the money was not on the correspondence. Our system of filing correspondence concerning subscriptions calls for the name of the person turning in the money. Can some one tell us who left the money?

CONTENTMENT

By GRENVILLE KLEISER

There are more trite sayings how to achieve happiness than you can shake a stick at. The United States Constitution does not guarantee us happiness, nor peace, nor wealth, nor health.

The Constitution says that we shall be able to pursue happiness. That Congress shall declare war. That we shall be respected in our property rights. And when you figure that Paule Revere, a silversmith, made false teeth, you get an idea about health in those days; health and convenience.

But what about happiness? What about contentment?

Oh, you may say, that's all right to talk about for one who has plenty. Well, what is plenty? Is it ten dollars, a hundred, a thousand, a million? Is it many children well married, a lot of fine family connections? Is it a good job, is it owning a rowboat or a yacht, a home or a kingdom?

What is happiness, what is contentment?

Here is a right nice outlay of the proposition submitted to The Post by Grenville Kleiser, educator, and you can believe it or you can disbelieve it. He remarks:

Many persons scoff at the idea of living a simple life. It's too slow, too tame, too monotonous. They want life on a big scale—two or more motors, a town and a country house, annual trips abroad, a great abundance of material things.

They want activity, speed, excitement—go!

Does it pay? Does it bring happiness? Does it build character? These finer things most people really want, but sacrifice them in the incessant pursuit of pleasure and personal power.

When you choose to live a simple life, subtle influences will constantly work to lead you away from it. Circumstances will conspire to lure you into a bigger world of strenuous activity, where great fortunes are made and the bitter contest for supremacy transcends all other considerations.

Simple things of the world still confound the wise.

Have you ever thought how simplicity has characterized the lives of noble men of all time?

There is Simplicity of thought. Satisfied with simple truths and principles, it does not clutter the mind with abstruse problems or philosophical vaporings.

There is Simplicity of taste. The desire for right appearance, but not for vulgar show.

There is Simplicity of habit. Satisfied with simple food, simple occupations and diversions.

There is Simplicity of purpose. Free from overweening ambition, but with a clear desire to achieve something worthwhile.

There is Simplicity of speech. The use of the short, crisp word. A desire to be clear rather than brilliant.

There is Simplicity of religion. A belief in God and His beneficent rule over mankind. It does not concern itself with doubtful dogmas. A simple faith that sustains one through storm and sunshine.

Cultivate the greatness of Simplicity. It is the golden key to contentment.

"IT CERTAINLY HAS BEEN A LIFESAVER"

You know what a lifesaver is. He, or it, is somebody, or something, that rescues people who are in danger of drowning. What has that to do with the McCulloch Memorial Fund? Well, a good deal, apparently. I was talking with Jim Swain one afternoon last week while I was in Greensboro. And that's what he said the McCulloch Memorial Fund had been to the firm of McCulloch and Swain. "It certainly has been a lifesaver. I don't know what we would have done if the Conference hadn't undertaken to pay this debt. It was money due us, and absolutely necessary if we were to continue in business. But we couldn't collect it unless the Conference recognized it as an obligation that it was in honor bound to pay." And having been "on the inside" for about six years, I knew that Jim was speaking the truth. He wasn't, and isn't, trying to put something over on us.

So, while we have been collecting a fund to honor Dr. McCulloch, we have with that fund saved the boys from bankruptcy. And in doing that we have made possible the continuation of the HERALD. And that, if we can count straight, is killing three birds with one stone.

"All I know is what I read in the papers or somebody writes me." I've received only four dollars since my last report, and that came this morning from Brother Henry Powell. (By the way, did you know they mistook him for a preacher at the last session of the Annual Conference?) But a letter from Brother J. Clyde Auman—who is a sure-enough preacher—informs us that the amount apportioned to his church, Graham, has been raised and would be sent to me this week. But I don't count my chickens until they are hatched, and I don't count any money until I see the long green. So I'm not reporting that amount this week. This letter has to get in the mail Tuesday afternoon if this report gets in this week's paper. So that $50 will have to wait until next week.

So the Fund stands as follows:

Amount previously reported	$1,094.79
Henderson (additional)	4.00
Total to date	$1,098.79

Almost $1,100. If I had gotten about among my folks who have subscribed, but haven't paid, we might have made it even money. But I didn't, and they didn't, so it didn't. BUT WE WILL.

C. W. BATES, Chairman.

N. B.—Will those who pay by check please make the checks to "C. W. Bates, Chm. M. M. F." Leave off the titles fore and aft. It won't take so much ink if you'll observe this simple request. C. W. B.

SINGING IN THE DARK

Is is not great to be able to sing in the dark? The lark sings in the bright morning sunlight as he rises toward the sky. But the birds of sweetest melody, such as the nightingale and our American mocking bird, prefer to sing in the dark.

It is easy to be happy and brave when all goes well. When health is good and bread is plentiful and friends are true, it is easy to sing. But did my readers ever dwell in thought upon Paul and Silas singing in prison; upon John's fair vision of the new Jerusalem while in exile on lonely Patmos; upon Bunyan, the author of Pilgrim's Progress, lifting up his voice in song when an inmate of a foul prison? That is what only Christians can do.—Fuel for the Fire.

Wayne Hornaday on the Air

On Monday evening of this week, Wayne Hornaday, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Hornaday, of Grace church, Greensboro, took part in a vocal program originating in the studios of the radio station, WBIG, Greensboro. He gives promise of becoming a good singer. We congratulate both the young man and his parents. It is great to be able to sing.

Evening and Not Afternoon

Last week, in mentioning the fact that Calvary church will celebrate its eleventh anniversary soon, the types made us say that Dean Lindley would speak at the banquet on the afternoon of April 25th, when we tried to say the evening of the 25th. Verily, errors will creep in.

Rev. R. C. Stubbins Speaks on Birds

Rev. R. C. Stubbins, pastor of Gibsonville and Fountain Place churches, is quite an authority on the subject of birds. Last week he spoke to one of the clubs in Greensboro on the subject of birds, and the address was highly spoken of.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Meeting of 15th District, Rev. D. I. Garner, Chairman

This meeting was held in our Concord church. The following charges are in it: Midland, Roberta, Concord, Kannapolis, Albemarle, Friendship - Porter. All pastors were present during the day. At the morning service, Revs. Cook, Trolinger, and Reed were present; the others came for the afternoon program.

It was a full program, beginning with 11 a.m. and concluding with a sermon by Brother Cook at night. The congregation at the morning service fairly filled the church auditorium and appeared interested. The afternoon program had on it Dr. Humphreys, Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, Mrs. C. D. Sides, Brother Trolinger, and special music from Midland church members. Brother Efird from Albemarle led the congregational singing.

Chairman Garner reports that all the churches in his district have paid their apportionment for the McCulloch Memorial Fund and will pay in full their High Point College apportionment. Our Concord church appears to be ahead on finances, according to their bulletin, having paid all the claims in the Annual Conference budget except Superannuates, and has paid pastor in full.

Meeting of 16th District, Rev. G. H. Hendry, Chairman

This meeting was held in the Stallings church, Mecklenburg charge. I arrived there at 3 p.m. when the program was over except my address. The chairman had gone to conduct a funeral, so I could not learn the condition of the churches in this district. Only a small number of people were present.

The Value of the District Meeting

The question is raised by some doubting Thomases as to the real value of such meetings. We can reckon this only by the same standard we judge the value of a preaching service—it depends entirely upon what you have put into it as to what you get out of it. I confess that I have attended such meetings when I felt the time was really misspent; i. e., I could have profited more by going to something else; but sometimes we have felt that way about a preaching service. Calling a meeting by a religious name does not sanctify it and make it holy and worth-while. Those who conduct those meetings must give them their value out of their minds and souls; it must be a pooling of personalities, a consciousness of the Holy Spirit's presence, a resolving of righteous souls to dare and to do some worth-while enterprise, to make such a gathering worth-while.

We are confident that if these meetings should be held statedly, with programs emphasizing things other than the obvious and the trite, by those who are realy and truly interested in the work of the church, there would be few, if any, who attended them who would question their importance. There are so many places for people to go these days, and the automobile makes it possible for them to go, that unless we put on a real program it will be difficult to make these sojourners tarry at our meeting. Another fact, the majority of our church members have yet to attend one of these meetings, so they do not know whether they want to go there or not. Our problem is first to get the people who need our program to hear it. And the words of St. Paul are apropos here, "And let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

Remember the Pastors' School May 29 and the Midyear Meeting May 31

Put these dates on your calendars and plan ahead for them. Let's see how many churches will send their pastors to the Summer School. It will cost about $10.00 for the ten days, including the Midyear Meet. Remember, too, our attendance goal for the Mid-Year Meet is every church in the conference represented by one or more lay members. Now we have the time to plan for it, let's put this over with a great push.

Plan of Appointments

April 7—Draper, 11 a.m.; St. Paul at night.

April 14—11 a. m. at Center church; afternoon at Sapling Ridge, Alamance Circuit.

April 21—Siler City, 11 a.m.; Hope church at night.

April 28—Denton Charge.

May 5—Fallston charge.

May 12—Anderson and Yarborough charges.

THE GOOD STEWARD

No character more exactly agrees with the present state of man, than that of a steward.

A steward has no right to dispose of anything which he has in his hands, but according to the will of his lord.

For the steward is not the proprietor of these things, but is intrusted with them by another and can dispose of them only as his master orders.

Eternal things only, are our own.

Temporal things are intrusted with us on the express condition—as our Master's goods—according to directions which He has given us in His word (Luke 16:10-12).

"If ye shall ask any thing in My Name, I will do it" (John 14:14).—The Repairer.

Neither Knew the Other Was Writing

Last week both the editor of the Methodist Protestant Recorder and the editor of the Herald were writing on the same subject, and neither knew that the other was writing. The subject under discussion was, The Methodist Protestant church is not dying. Both spoke of the large number of references coming into the office of building new churches, repairing old ones, paying off debts, and other encouraging signs. When two editors agree on a thing there must be something to it.

THY KINGDOM COME!

A consummation devoutly to be desired, the answer to this prayer—"Thy Kingdom Come."

Ten thousand spires point symbolically upward. From ten thousand bowed heads arises a desire its fervor undiminished by seemingly endless repetition, the petitioners unabashed at non-fulfillment.

Desire (the way more excellent than covetousness) is prayer; but answered prayer demands steps further than desire.

Faith and hope are buoyed up by the promise of the kingdom. They shall hunger no more, no want, failure, poverty, lack or limitation because of abundance, harmony and dominion; the enough in the divine economy for all.

The kingdom is close at hand; so close that it has been overlooked in expectation of fulfillment from a Power beyond ourselves. The light we had we hid and would not let it show the way we realized must be traveled.

The place where God indeed dwells and governs every event is within you; and you know that there can be no sin, sorrow, sickness or want where God reigns and man has dominion.

At various times and places we pause awhile to appraise advancement. Progress has been made, but it is never the end of the trail; neither is humanity a species of hitch-hikers waiting for someone to lift it automatically the rest of the way.

Petition alone will not bring mankind into the kingdom nor hope-bolstered faith bring the kingdom down to earth. It must be reconstructed out of the materials at hand.

It is a fascinating and practical use of history and of experience, which is current history, to endeavor by their aid to unearth the roots of those influences on behavior which collectively we call civilization; and then and now utilize the findings to project a more effectual and secure future.

The measure of civilization enjoyed at any one time is not necessarily to be a joy forever. Present experience is loaded with a debt to these influences of the past and should be rightly advantaged to liquidate our relative debt and responsibility to the future.

Civilization can withstand its trials and progress throughout the periods of its testing only as men follow the light. It should be a thing of beauty and desirable; but the beauty of civilization is usually only skin deep. Civilization is a mask which barely covers dis-eases which if not voluntarily and speedily corrected may in an instant tear aside the deception and reveal the real social structure in all its crude ugliness. It is not what you can make people believe, but realities that are of moment.

Abundance, instead of insuring prosperity and higher standards of living, has resulted in poverty and dire need. Amidst plenty we have virtual famine. It is not so much a matter of the unequal distribution of wealth as of unfaithful stewardship—the consequent sheer inability to convert potential earning power into the power to purchase. Willingness and ability to work have no weight. The surplus fruits of labor's past intensive endeavor have been depleted, hoarded or stolen. Values are measured in proportion to material gain. Accomplishment has outstripped necessity. Mechanical mass production has become a promise of permanent cessation of the earned purchasing power of a large section of the people; and that cannot be called civilization which has made no provision for their needs nor indeed promises any such provision for the future.

The broadening of social insecurity and severity of the prolonged depression are not due to lack of wealth, for this country is today the wealthiest of any in recorded time. Nearly everything on earth has been blamed; but Nature has been lavish in the bestowal of its gifts and except sectionally the elements have all co-operated to produce in abundance. The real roots are in human nature and are, therefore, subject to ready correction now! Recurrence should be rendered impossible.

An economic depression prolonged is apt to emphasize the real causes for social depression and as they are stirred up to the surface the economic crisis develops quite naturally but speedily into a social crisis.

It is a fact that nothing is so precarious as the position of the wealthy when economic and social conditions precipitate a crisis. That which was so intensely depended upon to save may become the cause for destruction. The character no less than the treatment of the majority will determine whether the crisis will result in successful oppression, intelligent evolution, or violent and destructive revolution; hence the importance of removing the illusions of the depression that the feet of youth, and the coming generations, will be directed into the right way. The acquired ability to produce in abundance should ultimate in that ideal state of social security in which none shall be oppressed nor want any good thing; the social status for which millions have prayed daily throughout the passing centuries.

The first step in the sound reconstruction of society is a right thought so held that it becomes a vision of achievement and thus permits the advanced steps toward realization. If the millions who daily pray, "Thy kingdom come," would individually advocate, strive for, and in every practical manner accord social justice, the state of dominion, which each and all have in their own manner desired and envisioned, will through this practical faith in their convictions be rapidly realized. Only then will an otherwise idle petition be replaced by the grateful affirmation: "Thy kingdom is come, Thy will is done on earth as it is in heaven."—Harry E. Grant, in Supreme Council Bulletin.

OUR STORY PAGE

APPLYING IT

"Well!" Annette looked after Margaret in blank surprise. "Now whatever made her do that? I have not done a thing to offend her, so far as I know." She looked just ready to take offense herself at the abrupt departure of her dearest girl friend.

Usually they sat together at the young people's meeting, went out together, and walked home together in blissful harmony of word and thought. Tonight Margaret, coming in after the seats were pretty well taken, had sat down near the back of the room. When the meeting closed, instead of coming to Annette or waiting for her, Margaret had hurried out.

Annette followed slowly. In the vestibule she found Margaret, not waiting for her but talking eagerly, charmingly, to a couple of strange girls.

"* * * And we'll love to have you come to every meeting," she was saying, as Annette came out. Then the strangers were gone, and Margaret was slipping an arm through Annette's in the old loving way.

"Don't be jealous, dearie," she whispered, half laughing, half in real pleading. "I seen green lights in your eyes. But, honestly, Annette, I am glad I came near being late tonight and that I had to sit back there. It gave me a chance to catch those two strangers, talk to them, and get their promise to come again. It was my first chance to apply the advice our pastor gave us in his sermon this morning—don't you remember?" She quoted softly, as Annette shook her head:

" 'Let us be brave enough to neglect each other, whom we meet so often, to cultivate the acquaintance of one whom we have never met. Let us study the art of making the stranger feel at home with us.' "

"You dear!" Annette gave her arm a repentant squeeze, "and I thought—"

"Stop thinking it, and help me apply the rule," laughed Margaret.

"I will," promised Annette cheerfully.—The Girls' World.

READING TO GRANDPA

An old herdsman in England was taken to a London hospital. He was very ill, and the doctors gave no hope of his recovery. His grandchild used often to come to see him, and she would then read to him out of the Bible. One day she came to the words, "And the Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin" (I John 1:7). The old man raised himself up and stopped the little girl, saying with great earnestness:

"Is that there, my dear?"

"Yes, Grandpa," she replied; "it is."

"Then," said he, "read it to me again. I have never heard it before."

She read it again.

"You are quite sure it is written there?" he said again.

"Yes, quite sure, Grandpa," was the child's answer.

"Then take my hand, and lay my finger on the passage, for I want to feel it."

She took the old blind man's hand and placed his bony finger on the verse, when he said, "Now read it to me again."

With a soft, sweet voice she read, "And the Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin."

Again he asked her eagerly, "And you are not making a mistake? You are perfectly sure that is in the Bible?"

"Yes, perfectly certain, Grandpa."

"Then," said the old man, sinking back on his pillow, "if anyone should ask how I died, tell them I died in the faith of those words, 'The Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin.' " Soon after that he passed away, peaceful and happy in the sense of all his sin being put away by that one perfect sacrifice.

The writer of this story asks us to do something for him. Let us follow his instructions:

"Get your Bible and open it up at the passage the little girl read to her grandpa. Have you all got your Bibles handy? Now open to the New Testament and to the Epistle of John, not the Gospel of John. Get Epistle number one, and chapter one. Now run your finger down the verses and stop at verse seven. Are you there? Then hold your finger on the verse and let us read it together.

" 'And the Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin.'

"Will you believe that? Will you accept this love offering that Jesus Christ made for you? Say 'Thank You' to Him for it, and believe that He has cleansed you because you have faith in the work He did.

"Have you said 'Thank You'? Then let us read something else. 'As many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God.' That passage is in John also, but in the Gospel of John. It is in chapter one also, but verse twelve, not seven.

"Is it not wonderful that God gives us the privilege of becoming His children? This is made possible through the shed blood of Jesus for sinners. Let us now go out to tell everybody how happy we are that we are children of God through faith in Christ Jesus."—Evangelical Christian.

ALONE WITH JESUS

Alone with Jesus! What a sweet and holy spot! What a blessed refuge to which the soul may betake itself from the charge of Satan, the accusations of the world, and the sorrows of life! Sweet spot for the heart to unfold itself, to tell its hidden tale in the ear of Infinite love, tenderness, and compassion. Alone with Jesus!

How different a front would Christianity present to the world if the Lord's people were oftener there! What humanity and gentleness and love would characterize all their dealings! What holiness stamped on every brow, that all might read! What few judgments passed on others—how many more on ourselves! What calmness and resignation and joyous submission to all the Lord's dealings!

Be much "alone with Jesus." Then will the passage of glory be one of sunshine, whether it be through the portals of the grave or through the clouds of Heaven.—Unknown.

CONFERENCE COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

T. J. WHITEHEAD, President
Burlington, N. C., R. 4

ATTENTION, PASTORS

The Conference Council of Religious Education is to hold its annual Leadership Training School at High Point College June 24-29. We need your support to make this school a success. Our goal for this year is "Every Church in the North Carolina Annual Conference Sending at Least One Student to the Leadership Training School at High Point College June 24-29." This does not mean that you have to limit the number of students to one from your church. You can send as many to the school as you can get to go. We are anxious to touch the entire conference with the Leadership Training proggram. That is why we want you to co-operate with us by sending at least one pupil from each of your churches. Are you willing to help us realize this goal? Talk this matter over with your church, Sunday school, and Christian Endeavor officials. If you are willing to co-operate in trying to make this 100 per cent for your charge, please send me a card stating that your charge is backing the Conference Council of Religious Education goal for the 1935 Leadership Training goal. An honor roll of all charges co-operating will be published in the order received.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING CLUB

Already I have heard of a number of clubs which have been organized and are making their plan for a good attendance for the High Point Leadership Training School the latter part of June. Many young people were at High Point last year that otherwise could not have gone had it not been for the Leadership Training Club. Pastors, encourage your leaders and future leaders to organize and get plan going for High Point in June. For further information regarding the organizing of a club write Rev. J. Clyde Auman, Graham, N. C.

If you have a club in your church, tell the Herald about it that it may inspire others.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson

Topic for Sunday, April 7: "The Consecration of Jesus."

Why not go to a little trouble and plan a very impressive consecration service. The C. E. World Quarterly suggests a candlelight service. The unique arrangements, with a reasonable amount of quiet music and the soft glow of the candles, will add color and impressions that will be permanent.

Let there be no lights except candles used throughout the entire service.

Have as your prelude a number of short selections, not more than a verse of familiar hymns. Those that will be recognized and loved by those present. Then let me suggest at least two minutes of silent prayer, followed by a hymn of consecration such as "Savior, Thy Dying Love."

The Scripture lesson: Matt. 3:13-17; John 17:17-19.

Have two members of the society discuss the following topics:

1. "Jesus publicly recognized His allegiance to God the Father."

2. "His Father acknowledged Him before the world as His beloved Son, in whom He was well pleased."

Let the leader's talk come near the end of the program, where he can give careful and explicit instructions for the candlelight service, encouraging all to participate. Provide candles for all present, and let them at the proper moment light them from the leader's candle; form a friendship circle, using the hymn, "Where He Leads Me I'll Follow," with prayer of consecration by pastor if possible.

This is the last call for a good attendance at the Women's Missionary meeting in Asheboro next week. Extensive preparations are being made for entertainment, and the program promises to be one of the best ever. Plan to come and bring other women—bring your best plans and pass these on. Miss Bettie Brittingham, Associate Secretary of the Board of Missions, will be present and speak. She will also preside over the installation service. Asheboro is the center of the state and easily reached by motor. Send names of delegates to Miss Lollie Jones, Registrar, Asheboro, stating whether or not you will spend the night and when you will arrive. The program is full and sessions will begin on time. Luncheon will be served in the church and entertainment will be provided for all who come. Just tell us when you are coming, and come with intention of helping and being helped, which is co-operation. Pray that this meeting may meet the needs of the future in our work.

We trust that a large congregation will be present to share the enthusiasm of this meeting. J. C. MADISON.

HENRY WHITELY MAKES RECORD

Brother Henry Whitely, of Tabernacle Methodist Protestant church, near Greensboro, made a remarkable record recently with young chickens. He bought more than three hundred day old chicks and marketed more friers than he bought. This is explained on the ground that the man from whom he bought them threw in half a dozen for good measure.

GROWING OLD?

By Luther K. Long

I admit
I'm past seventy.
But what of it?
California redwoods are older.
So are the Pyramids of Egypt.
And long before these were built,
The Rock of Gibraltar
Towered above the sea.

Life grows richer with years.
New knowledge is attractive,
Nature is revealing her secrets,
Men are progressing,
Youth is stepping forward,
God draws nearer.

My surroundings are enjoyable.
Birds sing for me,
Flowers yield their fragrance,
Children laugh and play,
Young people make love.
I enjoy simple foods and Wholesome drinks,
Sunshine on sea and shore,
Night drawing down over mountains,
Royal palms and spreading maples,
Fields of waving grain,
Orchards laden with fruit.

Work is attractive.
Though it wearies
It rests and satisfies.
Growing a few vegetables and fruits,
Cultivating flowers,
Reading and writing—
Involving some
Downright study—
Speaking in public,
Contending for the right,
Encouraging the hard-pressed,
Brightening gloomy lives—
These fill the passing days.

People go by
My house by the side of the road.
Their life-stories interest me,
Their struggles and achievements
Thrill me,
Friendship with them
Is the life of my life—
My heart is enlarged toward folks.

BROTHER WARD'S FAMILY IN DISTRESS

Almost as soon as we heard that Mrs. W. L. Ward, of Asheboro, had undergone a major operation in the hospital, the news came that Robert, son of Brother Ward by a former marriage, had been seriously injured in an automobile accident. We extend sympathy to this splendid family. Brother Ward is the very efficient Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension. In the car at the time of the accident was Ruby Holder, also of Asheboro, a grandson of the late Rev. J. N. Garrett. Ruby was not hurt.

JOHN CURTIS, OF LIBERTY, PASSES

The daily press on Tuesday announced the passing in Liberty of Brother John Curtis following an illness of several weeks. Mr. Curtis was an undertaker and was widely known in the central part of the state. The funeral is being held in Liberty today (Thursday).

Help the Boys

We have a fine Boy Scout troop. At the annual jamboree of Uwharrie Camp, near the Home, our boys always carry off some of the prizes. They have held the jamboree cup for two years. Our boys have never had Boy Scout suits. So we wish to interest our many friends in saving the labels from cans of Libby's evaporated milk. With these labels we can secure Boy Scout suits provided we get enough of them. Our boys are greatly interested in this and will be asking on every hand for labels from Libby's evaporated milk. Save yours and send them along. Any contributions of money from people who are fond of boys and outdoor sports will help us to buy the suits all the sooner, and then we can use Libby's labels to keep suits for our Scouts.

Help the boys. Thank you.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

MRS. BULLA PASSES IN RANDOLPH

Mrs. Mattie McCrary Bulla, mother of Brother Earl F. Bulla, of our church in Asheboro, and wife of Dr. Jeff Bulla, of near Trinity in Randolph county, recently passed to her reward.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Fairfield, Lincolnton.—We are glad to report that our church is on the upward road now. Or at least our Sunday school is. We have had an increase in attendance, and everybody seems to be taking an interest in the work. Our Sunday school was small and consisted mostly of young folks, so we organized a young people's Sunday school. We now have it in the form of a program. We have Bible talks, talks on different characters mentioned in our lesson, special songs and various other items on our program. Each member that does not do his or her part is to pay a fine. But I'm glad to say that we haven't had to collect any yet, as everyone seems more than willing to do their part.

We have a quartet, consisting of four young boys, which we call our Sunday school quartet. They are planning to sing for Rev. Mr. Anderson next Sunday afternoon, as that is his regular appointment at Fairfield. We hope that he will be pleased with them, as this is the first time we have asked them to sing for him.

We are planning an Easter program but don't know yet what time in the day it will be given. AGNES PROCTOR, Reporter.

Brower's Chapel, Richland Charge.—We feel that we were fortunate indeed to have Rev. R. M. Andrews, D. D., president of the conference, with us Sunday morning, March 24. He delivered a wonderful message and we wish it were possible for him to visit the churches more often. Dr. Andrews, having written to the Herald last week, mentioned the work that has been done in our church and did not leave much for a reporter to say, but I could go further and state that the Young People's Society of Brower's Chapel placed the chairs in the choir, while the Ladies' Aid had the church painted inside, the pews painted, and a new altar rail built.

Mrs. M. C. Henderson and son, Billy, and daughter, Alma Ruth, have been visiting Mrs. Henderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Love, of Concord, for the last several days.

Siler City.—Since my mother, Mrs. J. A. Cooper, who is church reporter, has been ill for the past six weeks and has not been able to send in a report, I will endeavor to write a short report for her. All the church work has been going along very nicely with Sunday school doing good work and the pastor, Mr. Burgess, filling all appointments. Young People's Day was observed in January and also the regular February thank-offering.

In the March meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary new officers were elected for the new year as follows: President, Mrs. T. L. Smith; vice president, Mrs. Emma B. Siler; secretary, Mrs. B. E. Fox; assistant secretary, Mrs. D. L. Johnson; treasurer, Miss Minnie Cooper; assistant treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Cooper. Delegates nominated to the Branch meeting to be held in Asheboro on April 10 and 11 are: Mrs. Emma B. Siler, Mrs. D. L. Johnson and Mrs. Duncan Welch. The treasurer's report showed that all claims had been paid in full with a nice bank balance.

Miss Sallie Smith was able to be in Sunday school on the fourth Sunday morning after having been confined to her room since December 8 with a fractured hip.

In the past few days Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Cooper, Mrs. V. Max O'Connor and Mrs. Leslie Duncan, of Greensboro, visited in the home of Mrs. J. A. Cooper. MINNIE COOPER.

Roberta.—Our spring revival is now in progress and will continue probably through next week. Everybody invited to attend.

The second quarterly conference will be held Saturday, April 6, at 8 o'clock. All officials are urged to be present.

EARL A. COOK, Pastor.

Rockingham.—We were glad to have our pastor, Rev. H. W. Bell, with us at Sunday school Sunday. A business meeting was held at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. We decided to begin our revival meeting the fourth Sunday in May.

Rev. Mr. Bell delivered a wonderful message Sunday night. The Christian Endeavor led the devotional exercise of this service. We were favored with a quartet by four of the young people and a solo by Mrs. Nettie Fields. The Scripture lesson for the night service was taken from II Timothy 2:20. The theme was: "The Vessels of Honor and the Vessels of Dishonor in the Great House." Without doubt I think this was one of the most interesting sermons I've ever heard. I am sure everyone present enjoyed this message.

The Easter program is being prepared under the direction of Miss Luvenia Perkins. I think this program is going to prove a great success. ELLEN MARTIN, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—During the past month our church has been filled every Sunday. The enthusiasm of the church members can be seen in every organization. It seems our new pastor has put a ray of hope in the church members.

On Wednesday night, March 13, the women of the church held a covered dish supper at the church. A summary of the study book, which is used in the circles, was given. A questionnaire has been made out concerning the work of the Mission Board both at home and on the foreign field, with the names of the officers of the various branches of mission work. At the meeting a match was held to see which circle could answer the most questions. At that meeting we heard from the new president of the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. C. C. Robbins, who asked for the support of the women of the church. Mrs. John Pickett, the general treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary, gave an interesting report. Mrs. M. P. Harrell, secretary, gave a report of work accomplished by the Auxiliary.

The Senior Christian Endeavor Society has recently been revived. We are hoping for a great work to be carried on by these young people. The officers are: President, Mr. Basher Wall; vice president, Miss Myrtle Davis; secretary-treasurer, Mr. William Snotherly. On Sunday night, March 10, we were delighted to have as our speaker Miss Grace Leigh Scott, world traveler and singer in France during the World War, who spoke on the subject, "Taking the Wreck Out of Recreation."

During the rush of the Easter season Mr. Thomas Strickland, a ministerial student at High Point College, will be assisting the pastor in the work of the church. Our pastor has called for volunteers to assist him in our pre-Easter evangelistic campaign.

On Sunday morning, March 31, Rev. Mr. Madison preached on the subject, "The Adequacy of Jesus Christ." Miss Margaret Neese and Mrs. J. C. Whitesell sang a duet, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

On Sunday evening, March 31, a colored choir of 35 voices from Bennett College, Greensboro, N. C., gave a program at our church. The church was filled to capacity. We heard them render the negro spiritual as it is made to live again.

We extend a hearty welcome to the following members who united with our church last Sunday: Mr. R. R. Blackburn, 404 Montlieu Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Worth Ivey, 1200 North Main Street.

Albemarle.—Since our last report several of our members have been on the sick list. Mr. H. L. Lowder has been in a Charlotte hospital receiving treatments. Miss Margaret Gantt underwent an operation for appendicitis in a local hospital, and also Mrs. J. H. Harkey has been seriously sick but from all reports they are better.

Mrs. J. W. Hornbuckle and Mrs. J. P. Green have charge of our Easter program. We are looking forward to a splendid program.

Our Christian Endeavor is still progressing. We have already organized a senior and a junior society and are planning to organize an intermediate within the next week. The senior group enjoyed a weiner roast at Snugg Park last Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Helms and Rev. and Mrs. D. R. Williams chaperoned the group. Everyone reported a very nice time.

We are planning to have our annual revival begin the third Sunday in May.

Since our last report Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harkey have joined our church. We welcome you. REPORTER.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C. E. Society continues to be a wideawake young people's organization. Mr. Protus Koonts, who is our efficient president, always conducts our meetings with that spiritual atmosphere that is necessary in obtaining and keeping reverence among young people.

There are approximately 50 members, with different ones who volunteer acting as leader each Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The lesson for Sunday evening, March 31, was led by Miss Grace Evans. After the lesson was partially discussed Miss Evans introduced Rev. J. L. Levans, of Beulah Reformed church, who spoke to us, taking as his subject "Youth and a Changing World," and using as his Scriptural basis, "Choose you this day whom you will serve." The speaker urged that youth must become more stable and more serious-minded. Youth must choose sometimes very quickly, therefore it is necessary for them to have Christian training in the home. The Christian youth have to select the kind of literature they read, the kind of amusements in which they participate, and the kind of radio programs they listen to.

Everyone enjoyed the address and hopes Rev. Mr. Levans will come again.

C. E. REPORTER.

Grace Church.—Every phase of the church work is in the best condition at present that it has been in several years. This is said without any intention of comparing the present administration with the past. It can be said because the state of the present affairs is not due to administration, but a thorough co-operation on the part of an encouragingly large percentage of the entire membership.

The Woman's Auxiliary has closed a successful year with an increase in membership, enthusiasm, and a paid-in-full budget. The budget may not appear so large when compared with that of some of our other churches, but our women have raised for local items just as much as they have for mission work. Mrs. Ernest W. Teague has been reelected president of the Auxiliary.

Our Sunday school, under the leadership of Superintendent J. Norman Wills, is making an excellent showing. Just last Sunday we had a record attendance for the previous three years. We passed our goal for attendance, so now are setting a higher one. As a means of stimulating our offerings and also of training in systematic giving, we are using this year in all departments up through the Intermediate and envelope system for each child. This system is working beautifully. (I shall not explain it in detail, but if you are interested, write me about it.) Our Workers' Council meets regularly each month and is making some real progress in study, planning, and improvement.

The Herald campaign put us over 100 per cent on subscriptions. The praise goes to Mrs. W. G. Starr and Mrs. L. W. Gerringer. We are also practically over in our campaign for Missionary Records.

Finances for this year are really becoming happiness-producers! We started out with our budget and pledges about the same for this year as for last. We struggled along at the same slow rate of speed until on March 17, when we launched our six weeks tithing campaign. This program had been well planned through word of mouth publicity and the distribution of tithing literature. On the day the tithing period opened we had about ten volunteer speakers from the floor of the congregational meeting. All those who would tithe for six weeks were requested to stand, and the congregation rose in a body! It was the most cheering event of many months. That was not the end—the beginning! On the first Sunday of the tithing period our offering quadrupled! Five more weeks to go, in which we hope to balance our budget for the first half of the conference year.

Our extra session of Sunday school is continuing a success. Mrs. Carroll has had charge of organizing and developing this work. An encouraging number of our Sunday school children remain for the extra session. It is not only an opportunity for extra activity and teaching of the children, but freedom for the adults to worship without being disturbed by children.

Church attendance has been very fine for several months. Many visitors are noticed in the congregation each Sunday. Our own members are more regular in attendance. The increase in attendance seems to have been due largely to a wekly "I-missed-you-Sunday" card which is sent to the absentee members.

The Young People's C. E. Society is holding its own despite the romantic call of spring to youth. These young people meet on Sunday evening and have supper together, which is followed by worship and discussion. Several of our members attended the C. E. rally held in Burlington last Wednesday.

Our revival services this year will be held during the first week of June with Dr. Fred G. Holloway, president of Westminster Theological Seminary, as the preacher.

J. ELWOOD CARROLL.

First Church, Lexington.—As I have been elected new reporter for First Church, I expect to keep the readers posted as to what we are doing. Although we have not had any reports lately, we have been doing fine work. Our Sunday school has been increasing and is close to a hundred more members than a year ago. Our preaching service has also greatly increased in number. The following is a report of the proceedings of First Church in the past two weeks:

On Tuesday night, March 26, all members of the Sunday school who have not missed a Sunday or more than one Sunday were the guests of Mr. H. C. Koonts, superintendent of the Sunday school, at a very interesting program in the auditorium of the church. The number of members present, including a few visitors, was forty-five. A short devotional service was held with very inspiring talks by Mr. H. C. Koonts, Rev. C. E. Ridge, of Shiloh charge, and Rev. C. G. Isley, of First Church, Lexington. Rev. Mr. Ridge, who had charge of the choir in our last fall revival and who has also been to our church on many other occasions, does not seem like a stranger to us, rather he seems more like a member. We are always glad to have him and Mrs. Ridge and their son, James, with us. One of our members, Mr. Herman Yates, a member of the Young Men's Class of which his father, Mr. J. H. Yates, is teacher, has not missed a Sunday in 15 years, according to the record that Mr. Koonts has kept since he has been superintendent of the Sunday school. Herman does not remember missing but one Sunday since he has been going to church. This is a marvelous record and we hope that there will be other fine records like this one. This gathering has become an annual affair and we wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to Mr. Koonts, Mrs. Koonts, Mrs. J. J. Mallard and the others who assisted in preparing the program and refreshments.

Members of First Church, Lexington, who were present at the district rally held at Mt. Pleasant church Sunday, March 31, were Rev. C. G. Isley and mother, Mrs. C. M. Isley, Mrs. L. B. Koonts, Mr. and Mrs. Phonse Bean, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Lane, Miss Lucille Lanning, Miss Eliza Hamilton, Margaret Hamilton, Dotsie Koonts, Paul Wallace and Mr. John Beck. The program for the day was very interesting, and talks made by Rev. R. L .Hetheox and Mr. A. J. Koonts, of High Point, were very inspiring as well as the other talks made. Mr. Phonse Bean, Rev. C. G. Isley and Mrs. L. B. Koonts represented First Church with talks. Mrs. O. L. Lane and her sister, Miss Lucille Lanning, assisted by Rev. C. E. Ridge, rendered two beautiful hymns as special music for the program.

Miss Lucille Lanning and her sister, Mrs. Lane, have had charge of the choir at First Church for the past two weeks and have been very successful in teaching the music to the choir. They are wonderful teachers and have made many friends in the church and in the city. Miss Lanning is a graduate of the Shenandoah Conservatory of Music in Virginia. These two are going to direct the choir at First Church during spring revival. This revival begins April 7 with Rev. B. M. Williams, of Orange charge, as pulpit help. We hope and pray that we may have a great revival and with God's help we can do so.

Asheville.—Do the men look better because of working on the church grounds, or do the grounds look better since the men have been working? This question was asked by one of our members and I answered, "Both." I do think when one is keenly interested in any project, he or she has a lighter step, an enthusiastic manner and a real optimistic outlook on life in general. Look the men over next Sunday and tell me which one looks the most interested and I feel sure you will find he has been the hardest worker in this project. Grass seed is being sown this week and soon we shall present to all the world a really beautiful lawn. I am a great believer in pretending to be what one would wish to be; in other words, "We grow like what we contemplate"; so also do churches. If a church looks prosperous, it usually becomes prosperous. A velvet lawn, a cheery, inviting outside will cause people passing by to say, "They must be doing things at this church, look how clean and neat everything is around it." Grounds around a home usually tell one the kind of people who live within; grounds around a church also tell something of the character of the people who attend. What does our church and its grounds say to the people who pass by?

The children were thrilled over the tables in their room. Mr. Eller will add another coat of enamel this week, and then we shall shine. Thank you, Jarvis! Our Junior girls are helping in a very practical way each Sunday morning now. Since Miss Josie McNeil left us to go to High Point, where she is in school we have had no regular pianist in the children's department, so this past Sunday morning Betty Jane Pratt played the quiet music and also the hymn. She did splendidly and has promised to do the same next Sunday. Following that, Jennie Bolick and Shirley Parker are to play. We are mighty pleased with these children and appreciate their willingness to help out.

Another announcement of special importance is that Mrs. Robey Wilson has been chosen assistant superintendent of the children's department. We have not had one heretofore for some reason or other, and when the necessity for an assistant arose recently, it was decided to ask Mrs. Wilson because of her ability and enthusiasm. She is one of our newer teachers, but has certainly shown that she is a natural born teacher. Her class of Primaries has led the entire Sunday school in number present many times; they led this past Sunday, and they do not come one Sunday and be out the next; Mrs. Wilson keeps the interest up all the time. We are proud of Mrs. Wilson. Miss Hilda Brownlow and Miss Helen Brown are the new teachers for the first-year Junior Class and will take over the class this coming Sunday.

The Fawcett Bible Class will hold their regular monthly business meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hanner, 48 Soco Street, Tuesday evening. Mr. H. A. Charnock, president, will preside.

Mrs. J. F. Minnis, Mrs. J. R. Moore and Mrs. L. M. Joyner were each unable because of illness to be present for services on Sunday. We trust they will be able to be out next Sunday. The rest of our folk seem to be enjoying good health, we are thankful for this blessing. M. L. B.

Weaverville.—Our last Auxiliary meeting was held at Bethel Home March 14, which was last meeting of the year. We had a real interesting program and delicious refreshments. We owe Bethel Home many thanks for their splendid co-operation in the work and their kind hospitality. We were all in fine spirits since our budget was paid in full, which is $55.00. Please note we only have about 15 members. With much credit to our president, Mrs. Guy Edwards, the year has been very successful. All special services were observed except one.

"World Day of Prayer" was observed March 8 from 3 to 4 p. m. Auxiliaries of the other denominations co-operated with us.

Our work is still moving forward, since our pastor's family are all interested in the work and we like them very much. Some repair work has been done at parsonage due Clark's Chapel; also we are planning to start repair on our church real soon. We sincerely ask the prayers of all Christian people that all our enterprises may continue to be successful. MRS. N. T. HOLCOMBE, Reporter.

Kernersville.—The March meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held at the parsonage March 12. Rev. O. B. Williams read the Scripture and gave the invocation. A brief business session followed, at which time plans were made for a luncheon which was served March 14. During the social hour the hostess, Mrs. Williams, served delightful refreshments.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society's first social of the year was recently held at the parsonage with the superintendent, Mrs. O. B. Williams. During this social hour the little folk played games and refreshments were served.

Our Easter program is under the direction of Mrs. A. N. Linville and Mrs. O. B. Williams. The members of the pageant are zealously practicing every Wednesday evening and we are anticipating a splendid program.

Readers of the Herald who knew Mrs. Lucian Helpler will regret to learn of her death. Mrs. Helpler was at one time an efficient president of our Ladies' Aid Society.

We regret that Miss Ellen Dean is still seriously ill in a Winston-Salem hospital. Miss Dean suffered a fall while in her garden a few days ago, and since then has been dangerously ill.

It's lonesome at the parsonage. Rev. and Mrs. Williams are spending a few days at their home at Hillsboro, N. C.

Spring Church Auxiliary.—So many things have happened since our last report that we hardly know where to begin.

On Wednesday, March 6, the Spring Church Circuit Auxiliary met at the parsonage in an all-day meeting. A number of the ladies spent the forenoon in working on the scrapbooks. A picnic dinner followed, after which the regular Auxiliary meeting was held with the newly elected president, Mrs. G. J. Mitchell, in charge. Mrs. Neese had charge of the devotional program. There were 15 active members, 2 honorary, 3 Precious Jewels and 3 visitors present. Delegates and alternates to Branch meeting were elected and the names have been forwarded to the entertainmnt committee at Asheboro. Secretaries were appointed to correspond with the Branch secretaries.

Some time ago a movement was launched to raise money to paint the parsonage. Quite a number reported money had been received for that purpose.

On Wednesday, March 27, at 2 p. m. the Auxiliary met in the home of Rev. and Mrs. H. S. B. Thompson near Hawkins Chapel on the Littleton work. The newly organized Auxiliary of Hawkins Chapel were invited guests at this meeting. On March 10 Mrs. Rupert Robinson, assisted by the writer, organized an Auxiliary at Hawkins Chapel and they were anxious to see an Auxiliary in operation. In the absence of the president, the vice president, Mrs. M. L. Crewe, presided. Mrs. H. E. Vassar conducted devotionals. Song 158, M. P. Hymnal, was sung, followed by Scripture reading by Mrs. Vassar. Prayer was offered by Rev. R. L. Vickery. Our missionary hymn, "Launch Out," was sung. Others who assisted in the devotionals were Mesdames M. L. Crewe, W. W. Grant, Rupert M. Robinson and William H. Neese. Prayer by Mrs. Vassar. There were 12 active members, 1 honorary, 3 Precious Jewels and 11 visitors present. The treasurer reported budget for the year paid in full. Amount received at this meeting from all sources was $24.36. The paint fund seems to be growing, and it is hoped that at an early date the parsonage may be wearing a new dress.

I forgot to mention before that at the March 6 meeting the temperance play was given and it proved to be so effective that the ladies gave it last night in the Pleasant Hill church. We were very glad to meet in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Thompson. At the conclusion of the program the society joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," after which Rev. Mr. Thompson led in prayer. Mrs. Thompson served delicious refreshments.

We cannot close without saying something about our trip to Creswell. We are expecting Mrs. Z. A. Hardee to report the rally in full, but we just want to tell how much we enjoyed the trip and also the inspiration we gained from the rally. For years we had heard of and had always had a desire to visit that place. On March 20 our desire was fulfilled and we can say we thoroughly enjoyed every minute of the day. The welcome Mrs. Davenport and the other ladies gave us made us feel at home. Rev. Luther Medlin's address on "Our Responsibility to the Foreign Field" was fine. Rev. O. C. Loy's review of the study book was very interesting. Rev. Mr. Neese spoke briefly of our college and insisted that all auxiliaries pay their budgets. Right here I want to say that both the circuit auxiliary and the Lebanon auxiliary have paid their college budget and have doubled it for next year. Mrs. Peeler explained the quilt block. Our district chairman, Mrs. Rupert Robinson, had put much time and thought on the rally and deserves much credit for its success.

We are looking forward to the Branch meeting in Asheboro with much pleasure.

MRS. WM. H. NEESE, Cor. Sec'y.

P. S.—Mr. J. W. Magee, of Pleasant Hill church, who has been ill for some time, continues right feeble. Rev. William H. Neese returned home today after spending eight days at Brown Summit, where he assisted Rev. J. L. Trollinger in a meeting at Mizpah.

Calvary, Greensboro.—Preparations are being made by our delegates to attend the Missionary Branch meeting next week at Asheboro.

Our missionary circles met Monday afternoon and evening with very good attendances. These were the first meetings of the new missionary year. Mrs. Harry Julian is our new Auxiliary president.

Our choir will present the Easter cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," by Wensley and Maunder, Palm Sunday at 8:00 p. m., in the church.

The seat of our dear friend and helper, Rev. T. F. McCulloch, was vacant last Sunday because of his very serious illness. We hope it will be our Heavenly Father's will to make him well again.

W. W. Oakes conducted a very helpful prayer service at the hut last Wednesday evening.

The Boy Scouts of Troop No. 7 are rejoicing again over the fact that their troop was awarded the Scout flag that is being given by the Greensboro Rotary Club to the troop that has the best attendance at the monthly Court of Honor. The Scoutmaster stated last Sunday that the troop officials were not only pleased because the troop won the flag but they are gratified to know that many of the boys are advancing in Scouting. Some have received their second class, some their first class, and others their merit badges. Four Scouts from the troop are planning to attend the Scout jubilee at Chapel Hill April 25-28. One Scout will also be selected to attend the national jamboree in Washington, D. C., in August.

The sympathy of our church is extended to Mrs. Carey Kirkman in the passing of her sister, Mrs. Brown, near Julian.

MRS. HOWARD R. NEECE, Reporter.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—The writer was unable to be at the rally last Sunday at Concord at our church, but understands that everybody had a nice time and enjoyed the day. Many from our church were present.

We appreciate all that has been said about our charge paying up the Annual Conference claims for the year. And I hope all that had a part in it will not forget to give the Master the praise for it. As it was done in His name, I am sure that He, not we, deserves the praise. For the best we can do in this life is through His mercy. And I am sure if we only reaped what we deserved, we wouldn't get the blessings that we do get. We are pleased with the work our charge has done so far this year. And we mustn't forget our good pastor as we go along. Let's all put forth a strong effort to pay him his salary just as soon as we can. If we get the entire amount paid in thirty days, then we will have one more of our duties done. So many times we put these things off until a later date, and when that date comes we are in worse condition to meet the obligation than when we made the promise for this later date. He has to meet his daily obligations as well as we do. And I said this because I am afraid we are not doing our best along this line. Being a steward enables me to know a little where we stand. I believe the stewards are doing all they can, but so many of the members put us off. You see them buying other things, such as tobacco, snuff, etc. Let's divide with the Lord's work more liberally.

First Church, Charlotte.—The goal set by the church school—300 members by Easter—has already been attained with 319 present one Sunday during March and an average attendance of 286 for the month. The Wilma Shaw Bible Class expects to reach their goal of "one hundred members by Easter." This class, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. H. L. Jones, is doing a great work for the church and the Kingdom. Many new members have been brought into the church through this class. Mrs. G. H. Hendry is president, Mrs. H. G. Garrison secretary, and Mrs. M. L. Tadlock treasurer. The class is divided into eight groups with the following chairmen: Mrs. G. H. Hendry, Mrs. H. G. Garrison, Mrs. Paul Colson, Mrs. J. J. Faulk, Mrs. S. L. Craig, Mrs. R. S. Garmon, Mrs. G. W. Steagall and Mrs. C. H. Daughtry. This class has just finished a memory name quilt from which they realized $45. The Baraca Class bought it for $15 and presented it to Mrs. Hendry.

Our hearts have been saddened by the death of Mrs. G. W. Smith. She was one of our many new members, but one of our most faithful and a good woman, and a good worker.

The Woman's Auxiliary held the last meeting of the year at the home of the president, Mrs. B. W. Little, on Crescent Avenue. Officers for the year were elected. Mrs. B. W. Little was re-elected president, Mrs. G. H. Hendry vice president, Mrs. C. H. Dewese secretary, and Mrs. J. J. Faulk treasurer. Circle chairmen were appointed as follows: Mrs. G. W. Stegall and Mrs. C. H. Daughtry; Mrs. D. A. Horne, chairman of the Business Women's Circle, and Mrs. S. W. Conder, chairman of the Young People's Circle.

Several members of the Woman's Auxiliary are planning to attend the Branch meeting in Asheboro.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society, under the leadership of Mrs. Paul Colson. is doing splendid work with the first-year memory work. There were 33 members present at the meeting last Sunday evening.

An evangelistic group headed by Jesse L. Clark is holding prayer meetings in the homes in the community. Persons are being saved and added to the church through their efforts. Prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Daughtry, on Thomas Avenue, on Monday evening.

The following have been present for every church service, both morning and evening, and the midweek prayer service since the beginning of the year: Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Garmon, W. W. Bailey, Mrs. Hendry and Louise, M. D. Frink, the church school superintendent, and Miss Nell Richards. Records of attendance are carefully kept. These show that many others have an almost perfect record of attendance.

Of interest to their many friends in the two Carolinas is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Sara Butler, of Greenwood, S. C., and Robert E. Stegall, which took place on March 10 at the home of the bride in Greenwood. They will make their home here and we wish them a long and happy journey through life together.

Of interest to many throughout the state is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Grace Graham, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edward M. Graham, to Rev. Robert Lee Phillips, of Old Fort, N. C. The wedding will be solemnized on Easter Sunday at high noon at the First Methodist Protestant church. The bride's father will perform the ceremony.

REPORTER.

West End, Greensboro.—With definite signs of fair and warmer weather ahead, all departments of our Sunday school are expected to pick up in interest and attendance. A lively contest is on between the girls and boys in the Intermediate department, ending on Easter Sunday. It is hoped that several new members will be gained from the community who are not in Sunday school.

Dr. Bethea started a series of sermons on "The Seven Churches of Asia," beginning with the 11 o'clock hour on Sunday, using Rev. 2:1-7 as Scripture lesson and "Ephesus" as the first church. At 7:30 "The Church of Smyrna" was the subject, and we were reminded that the exhortation of Paul to these churches might well be applied to the Christians in our own churches today.

Circle No. 1 met with Mrs. F. S. Stockard Monday afternoon. The following were elected to serve for 1935-36: Chairman, Mrs. J. K. Osborne; assistant, Mrs. O. F. Stafford; recording secretary, Mrs. R. R. Wright; teasurer, Mrs. F. S. Stockard. Plans were made to help raise the apportionment of the church to High Point College.

Circle No. 2 will meet Tuesday evening at the church, and will report their activities later.

Dr. Bethea is helping Rev. H. F. Surratt with revival services at his church in Thomasville this week. Our prayers go with him in this effort.

REMINISCENCES

By Victor P. Hammer

Across the world of yesterday
I look and much allow;
For once I saw it as a dream—
How changed the scene is now!
From yonder valley far below,
Behold! I saw the heights,
And many peaks in vision cast
Reflected their delights.

Across ambition's star,
And in that struggling soul of mine
I set my goal afar.
To that objective in my course
I sped with strength and grace,
Until I saw the old things gone—
And new ones in their place.

All things are changed, not for the worse,
I trust and, too, believe;
But with the dust lies cherished hopes
Which make me sometimes grieve.
Yet, may I live to crown the pride,
Innate from cradle joy,
Of always doing what seemed best,
Courageous as a boy!

In order to complete a list of Journals of our conference, I am in need of the following copies: 1908, 1906, 1905, 1900, 1896, 1895, 1894, 1893 and 1892.

I also desire the following copies of the Herald: November 29, December 27, February 29, July 26 and August 30, all of 1934, and a copy of December 28 of 1933. My copies of these dates have been given to prospective subscribers. I can use almost all copies of 1929 and 1930.

Do not send copies until you drop me a card, as I only want one copy of each issue, and I don't want you to swamp me with these copies. I shall be glad to pay anyone for any one or more of these copies wanted, especially the Journals, besides all mailing expenses. I have several extra copies of recent dates of Journals I shall be glad to give to anyone who needs them. Just drop me a postal describing what you have.

"REV." WITHOUT THE INITIALS OR MR. IS TABOO HERE

While we are not over particular about expressions that people use, there is one which we cannot tolerate. That is "Rev. Smith" and "Rev. Jones" without using the initials or "Mr." If people do not know the initials, they can say "the Rev. Mr. Smith or the "Rev. Mr. Jones." Almost all authorities on English tell us that "Rev." without the initials or Mr. is bad.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

Perhaps some have thought that my experiences back in Polk county were not worth the space as it seemed that what was done there did not amount to anything so far as the denomination is concerned. I do not contend for that. But I am sure of this: It caused some of the church people in that section to quicken their pace as they seemed to think that we might get hold and they would lose. After all, it might have done good, besides the experience it gave to the writer that will never be forgotten. And then those leaders, a large number of them, might have taken into the mountains of Kentucky something that has already helped people there. We never know in doing our best where the seed sown will produce the biggest harvest. I am sure this writer learned some things in that section that could have never been picked up elsewhere. This one more incident: An old Confederate veteran, who had lost an arm following Lee, kept insisting on my spending the night with him and his wife. I was afraid of it, but finally promised to go. It turned severely cold that night. I always carried a heavy buggy robe and a heavy-caped raincoat with me in those days, for my buggy was open. Could not afford a top buggy. Two reasons: First I did not have the money to buy it. Then if I had, it was too heavy to pull over those roads, and would not have lasted long as rough as the roads were.

I soon found that my covering was insufficient. So I slipped out of bed, got my heavy robe and coat, and tried to make myself comfortable. But the under side of the bed was too thin. Prairie feathers. I was too cold to sleep soundly. About two in the morning I heard muffled voices, and of course that aroused my curiosity. The light was gleaming through the cracks in the house; it was a log house. So I raised up and these two dear old people were up sitting by the fire—they had plenty of fire wood. Then I was sure they had put all they had on my bed, which was scant enough, or most of what they had, and they could not sleep as the mercury dropped. I stayed in bed till early morning, for I did not want them to think I was uncomfortable.

Next morning for breakfast it was corn bread, the built kind, and black coffee and fat bacon, not the breakfast kind. Yet these dear old souls were just as cheerful as if they had the best of things to eat. They seemed so glad that the preacher was with them. They never made any apologies; I felt better that they did not. Cheerfulness? I have never seen such a spirit. They were just as tender with each other as if they were on their honeymoon. My, how I enjoyed that breakfast! All except the coffee. I drank from the spring nearby, cold but pure. The wife showed the marks of better days. The man, crippled of course, made a living after a fashion. Not much pension money, a few dollars once a year.

But the thing that impressed me more than anything else was the way they talked about heaven and the other world with all of its enticements. I have been in all kinds of homes. I have eaten with the Bankers Club in New York City, 34 stories up—the highest meal I ever ate—and I had the privilege of sitting down with British royalty, taking tea with the governor of Palestine, and with some of the best folks in the Methodist Protestant church, but this was my happiest meal out. Why? "The servant is not greater than his Lord," and that home with scarcely any furnishings, homemade beds, all so crude. But Jesus was there! I shall never forget that night. "It takes a heap of living to make a home!" We spend so much upon our homes and spend so little time in them. We have the best so far as comforts are concerned, and are always complaining. Yet we fail to have Him who is the Maker of the true home to lead and guide us in our home life. To enjoy Him does not take the best that earth can yield. It takes the spirit of humility. These dear old saints have long since gone Home where they are free from privations, and their spirit of expectancy helped one poor preacher to have a better idea of happiness here upon earth.

THE NEW PREACHER

By VICTOR P. HAMMER

Comes a man in our midst
With credentials to date
Who exemplifies work
As the parent of fate;
Having chosen good deeds
As a requisite task,
Lets his conscience lead on—
Out from under the mask.

Says a man at his post,
Of determinate mind,
And acts cautiously fair
With his forces combined,
That the task for the pew
Might, from evident art,
Be assembled in form,
Where each one has a part.

Goes a man, here and there,
To the rich and the poor;
Leaves the greetings of home
Like he'd been oft before;
And the next Sabbath day
At the open church door
There's a sea of bright eyes,
All to welcome him more.

From the pulpit he speaks
In both kindness and love,
Just reflecting the works
Of the Father above,
'Till a picture is drawn
Where the Master of men
Did good deeds for the week—
Then again! and again!

"WHAT MY PRESENCE DID"

1. It caused people to have confidence in me.
2. It made people know that I regarded my spiritual welfare as a matter of great importance.
3. It had a good effect on the services.
4. It made my friends feel more welcome.
5. It encouraged the brethren, and helped the preacher to preach.
6. It caused others to come to the house of God.
7. It made my life stronger for another week.
8. It removed stumbling blocks from the sinner's path.
9. It pleased God and I was happy.
10. It caused others to say, "He practiced what he preached."—Author Unknown.

"WHAT MY ABSENCE DID"

1. It made some question the reality of religion.
2. It made some think that I was a pretender.
3. It made many think that I regarded my spiritual welfare and that of others as a matter of small concern.
4. It weakened the effect of church services.
5. It made it harder for the preacher to preach.
6. It discouraged the brethren, and therefore robbed them of a blessing.
7. It caused others to stay away from church.
8. It made it harder for me to meet the temptation of the week.
9. It gave the devil more power over lost souls.
10. It encouraged the habit of non-church going.—Author Unknown.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Hayes

The seemingly merciless hand of death has visited our ranks again and claimed another one of our faithful members of Chestnut Ridge church, Mrs. Cora Bell Hayes, wife of S. N. Hayes.

She was born February 18, 1883, and died March 19, 1935. Cousin Bell had been in declining health for some time but wasn't confined to her bed. She was ill for only a few hours before her death. Kind hands and loving hearts did all they could to stay the icy hands of death.

She professed faith in Christ and joined Chestnut Ridge church when she was 13 years of age, and has lived a faithful Christian life.

Her quiet, unassuming ways, her kind deeds and goodness of heart will always be remembered. Her home life was industrious, painstaking and true. Her devotion to husband and children was unlimited.

She was married to S. N. Hayes May 20, 1903. To this union six children were born. The deceased is survived by her husband, S. N. Hayes; two daughters, Lelia Hayes, of Durham, and Elevene Hayes, of Mebane; two sons, Homer and Tyson Hayes, of Mebane; and two sisters, Mrs. John Sykes and Mrs. Julian Jobe, of Mebane; four brothers, Ed Sykes, of Raleigh; Steve and Fletcher Sykes, of Mebane, and Norman Sykes, of Graham.

The floral bearers were Misses Rodemi Brawsell, Edna Sykes, Annie May Murdic, Essie Smith, Vergie Crawford, Gertrude Johnson, Mary Elizabeth Jones, Mildred Allen, Colleen Thompson, Ione Jobe, Mary Scott, Annie Squires, Thelma and Lucile Andrews, May Dodson, Lucile and Doris Sykes. Pallbearers were Ernest Sykes, Curtis and Dewitt Pender, Roy and Ralph Dodson, Ollie Frank Jones.

Funeral service was conducted Thursday morning at 11 o'clock from Chestnut Ridge church by her pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, assisted by Revs. T. A. Williams and R. C. Stubbins. Then the body was laid to rest in the church cemetery beneath a mound of flowers. She will be missed in the community, in the church, but most of all in the home.

She is gone, your precious mother,
To her home beyond the sky;
But we know if we are faithful
We shall see her bye and bye.

We would not recall your mother
To this world of sin and woe;
Though we loved your mother dearly,
Thou, O Lord, didst love her more.

Farewell, Bell; we may never
See thy face on earth again;
Yet we have the Master's promise
Up there sometime we'll understand.

Robinson

After an illness extending over a period of six and one-half weeks resulting from pneumonia, at the hour of 1:30 a. m. Wednesday, April 5, 1933, God called and the spirit of George Ira Robinson answered. The third son of the late George F. Robinson and Mrs. Margarette Norwood Robinson, he was born September 12, 1881, being at the time of his death 51 years, 6 months and 23 days of age. In young manhood he professed faith in Christ and united with the Methodist Protestant church at Spring church on Spring Church circuit, N. C. Conference, in Greensville county, Virginia, near Spring church. On March 21, 1928, he was united in marriage to Lillian Brown Smith. To this union were born two children, Helen Virginia and Mallory Dean, who are left at a very tender age fatherless, but we pray that the God whom Ira trusted will be a Father to his little ones. Ira was of a quiet and unassuming disposition, loved deeply in his home and family and by his neighbors. His going seemed as the breaking of the second link in the golden chain of the family, his father having preceded him to the Great Beyond a little more than ten years. He leaves to mourn his going, and yet we humbly bow in submission to God's will, mother, six brothers, John L., Joshua D., Richard M., Eugene M., Joseph C., W. Ashburn; three sisters, Mrs. Ida V. Rook, Mrs. Velina Ross and Mrs. Effie R. Vassar; also the wife and two children and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were conducted on Thursday afternoon, April 5, in Spring church by his pastor, Rev. William H. Neese. Then his body was tenderly laid to rest in the churchyard near his father. Pallbearers were P. I. Rook, Henry Moore, J. B. Collins, J. P. Allen, Walter Jordan and Charlie Dimick. The lovely offering of flowers bore silent testimony to the esteem and affection in which he was held by relatives and friends. The life of one we loved devotedly has closed, and we know we shall miss him, but we try to feel that God doeth all things well, and the following lines we feel express our feelings:

"There is no flock, however watched and tended,
But one dead lamb is there;
There is no fireside, howsoe'er defended,
But has one vacant chair.

Let us be patient! These severe afflictions
Not from the ground arise,
But ofttimes celestial benedictions
Assume this dark disguise.

We see but dimly throughout the mists and vapors;
Amid these earthly damps
What seem to us but sad funeral tapers
May be heaven's distant lamps.

There is no death! What seems so is transition:
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portal we call death.

In that great cloister's stillness and seclusion,
By guardian angels led,
Safe from temptation, safe from sin's pollution,
He lives whom we call dead.

Day after day we think what he is doing
In those bright realms of air;
Year after year his quiet steps pursuing,
Behold him grown more fair.

Thus we walk with him, and keep unbroken
The bond which nature gives,
Thinking that our remembrance, though unspoken,
May reach him where he lives."

His devoted sister, MRS. H. EUGENE VASSAR.

GETHSEMANE

By M. O. Everett, in M. P. Recorder

O the passion and the pain
Of all those love-filled hours
When Christ brought to spirit birth
A helpless world like ours.

The torture and the travail
No one may ever know;
The bloody sweat and anguish,
As Jesus bore our woe.

The lonely loving Savior
Was crushed beneath the load
Of all our sins and sorrows:
The cruel thorn and goad.

The cross and tomb—then triumph
On that Resurrection day!
Glory throughout all ages
Forever and for aye!

He knows my cross and sorrow:
He felt it all before
My pressed and burdened spirit
And friends that love no more.

O Savior in the garden!
I am no more alone
For Thou dost walk beside me,
And claim me for thine own.

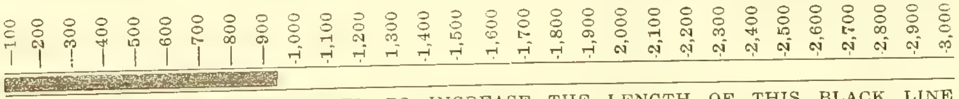
HERALD CAMPAIGN FOR 3,000 SUBSCRIBERS



YOUR CO-OPERATION IS NEEDED TO INCREASE THE LENGTH OF THIS BLACK LINE

Herald Directing Committee: C. W. Bates, chairman; E. L. Douglas, J. E. Pritchard.

AHSEBORO	119
CALVARY	101
BURLINGTON, FIRST	90

Those of you that need spectacles, please get them on quickly and look at the percentages. Asheboro is certainly running away with the performance. Calvary crosses the goal line with a little to spare. ' First Church, Burlington, comes up into third place and is within easy reach of the goal. The normal supply of renewals between this and the end of the year will enable them to reach the goal easily.

Now let us look at the subscription receipts column. There is no doubt about who stands at the head. Mrs. Gerringer was in Asheboro last week helping to put over the campaign and they did not stop when they had reached the goal. And what a fine list of new names she did bring in. We hope they like the Herald very much.

And while we are raving over Asheboro, let us not forget what Kannapolis did. Last week, after the books had been closed and the financial returns had been given to the printer, Mrs. D. A. McLaurin called saying they were sending Kannapolis' offering by telegraph. It was just too bad it could not be acknowledged last week, but it is just as valuable this week as last. And then, there are the offerings from Mt. Pleasant, Seagrove-Love Joy, Creswell, Community Church, Albemarle, Mecklenburg and Concord. All of these send in more than one subscription.

Now for the subsidy. Look at the list, West End in Greensboro, First Church, Thomasville, and Yarborough. Thanks, thanks, thanks.

Look out for next week. Next week will be the twentieth issue under authority of the Annual Conference and we fully expect to reach the 1,000 mark in subscriptions. We lack only thirty-seven. Help us reach that number. Our receipts this week are $113.46 on subscriptions and $15.50 on subsidy.

We should have said earlier in this article that the reason Burlington moves up this week was due to the fact that they failed to get credit some time ago for two subscriptions.

Mrs. Gerringer is at Tabernacle and Moriah this week but we are not acknowledging anything from there until the canvass is finished.

Our Church at Mebane

We are giving over our front page this week for a picture of our church at Mebane. For quite a while we have thought of this church as being one of the most active in our conference. Whatever programme the conference launches, Mebane usually does its part. Some churches have the reputation of always doing things while others are not quite so willing. This church entertained the Annual Conference in November, 1917. It also entertained the annual meeting of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work in April, 1922. The pastor, Rev. E. L. Ballard, has given us a few facts concerning the historical side of the church which we reproduce here. ''The church was organized in 1903 by Rev. W. D. Fogleman, father of Mrs. H. C. Nicholson. The present pastor is the thirteenth. Five of the pastors have been President of the Annual Conference. These are: Bros. R. M. Andrews, G. W. Holmes, C. L. Whitaker, T. M. Johnson and W. E. Swain. The membership numbers 270 and the Sunday school 200. The church and parsonage are without encumbrances and the Ladies' Aid Society has a growing fund in the building association for a new edifice.'' And now, having had this historical background, let us see what this pastor and this church are doing with the opportunity which they have. Here is what Brother Ballard says about it:

''It is with a considerable degree of satisfaction that I take the typewriter in hand to write you, Fellow Methodist Protestant, concerning the work at Mebane, for I am persuaded that I have something to write about.

''Although this has been another hard year financially, due to the limited work available at the main source of support for our church as well as the town, the White Furniture Company, the people have done their part nobly. No, the pastor's salary has not been met in full to date, but it is not so far behind that it should be alarming. Not all conference demands have been paid, but the prospects are that these will be paid by the end of the first half of the year.

''The Woman's Auxiliary closed another successful year, under the leadership of Mrs. A. H. Jobe, with all apportionments met, and with the additional amount requested in advance for High Point College. Another capable young lady, Mrs. Callie Nicholson, takes the leadership of the Auxiliary for the coming year, with a hopeful outlook.

''The Sunday school, with a young man as superintendent, Bro. Dewitte A. Pender, is fulfilling the requirements of such an organization effectively. Surely no more faithful corps of officers and teachers may be found anywhere else in the conference. The offering on the first Sunday, which is sent to the Children's Home, is often half again as large as that on other Sundays.

''By next Sunday this church will have raised its apportionment for High Point College and the McCulloch Memorial Fund in full, or $50 for each. No special campaign was launched; the people were just urged to give liberally. With these two claims met, it will not be difficult for the others to be paid.

''Judging by the way the Laymen's Fellowship has started, it promises to be an effective organization in the interest of the men. Our highly regarded member, Bro. H. C. Nicholson, is president. This month's meeting will mark the fourth that has been held. Gradually definite plans and responsibilities are being assumed by the men, to correlate with the women's work.

''One of the livest organizations among the young people is the Leadership Training School Club, which is preparing to send a number of delegates to the school this summer. An account of this club's activities will be given by one of its members in a subsequent issue of this paper.

''This is a church of faithful, co-operative members, who are alert concerning the program of their conference and general church, always ambitious to assume their part of the responsibility.

''E. Lester Ballard.''

Palm Sunday

Throughout the Christian world next Sunday will be observed as Palm Sunday. Methodist Protestant churches in this part of the country have not formerly celebrated Palm Sunday with the same enthusiasm that churches of other denominations have; however, all churches seem to be making more and more of Palm Sunday as the days come and go. What is the significance, then, of Palm Sunday? It commemorates the triumphal entry of our Lord into Jerusalem on the Sabbath before his crucifixion, when he allowed the people to cast palm branches into his pathway and to cry, ''Hosanna, blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest.'' We might ask the question, Why did our Lord allow this? It was so different from his usual way of doing things. In all the other cases where the people showed signs of proclaiming his greatness, Jesus restrained them. Is it not true that Jesus was waiting for his work to be finished in the way that he had planned for it to be finished? Any demonstration on the part of the people would naturally bring on the crisis and our Lord did not want it to be brought on too soon. But now that his work was being finished, he no longer restrained the people and they did what they had wanted to do on other occasions. While it is true that within a few days the multitudes were crying, ''Crucify him,'' yet it gave these people an opportunity to ascribe unto him the glory which rightfully belonged to him. We sometimes say that the same people were crying out in a few days for him to be crucified, yet we do not know that it was the same crowd. Some may have turned traitor but it is possible that the ones who cast palm branches in his pathway were sincere, but knew they could accomplish nothing by defending him against the rulers of the people.

Calvary church had most gracious results from the Decision Service conducted in the Sunday school last Sunday morning. The pastor had been talking to the boys and girls about the Christian life on Friday afternoons for some weeks, and on last Sunday morning those who wanted to take Christ as their Savior were asked to come to the front. The chancel was soon filled with fine looking boys and girls who evidenced a seriousness of purpose. The pastor will meet with those who wish to join the church, for further instruction, on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and the opportunity to join the church will be given next Sunday morning.

A Special Delivery Letter

This morning, while we were at breakfast, there came a loud knocking at the front door. Fearing whoever it was might break the door down, I hastened to it, opened it, and there stood a special delivery boy. Now, special delivery letters and telegrams always make my heart jump up in my throat. This time it leaped for joy—the letter was from Brother J. D. Ross, of Asheboro, inclosing a check for $150.00, Asheboro's apportionment for the McCulloch Fund in full! And with the check this note:

DEAR DR. BATES:

Please get this reported in this week's HERALD. Asheboro M. P. Church.

J. D. ROSS.

I am happy to oblige Brother Ross. And I'll do the same for any other brother, as a man once said to me when I buried his wife.

Well, that gives the Fund a big boost. I can send the boys a check for $200.00 along with this report. Which makes it $1,231.80 for them, and a little nest egg to hatch another hundred—when you folks send me some more.

Well, I'm in a hurry. I've got to get ready to carry a load of women to the Branch meeting tomorrow morning, and am head-over-heels in work. So I'll make it short this week.

The Fund stands as follows:

Previously reported	$1,098.79
Asheboro	150.00
Maple Springs, Forsyth	10.00
Total to date	$1,258.79

The check from Asheboro is the largest payment from any one church. Some others have as large an apportionment, but they haven't come across yet. But we're getting along. Send in yours, and swell the total. I want to get it all in, so I can quit this. If you want me to quit, say it with dollars.

I saw a partial proof of the Certificate the other day when I was in Greensboro. You'll be proud of it. Especially of the signatures of Brothers Andrews, Bates and Rogers. (Mine looks like a million dollars, but isn't worth quite that much. I don't know what price the other brethren put on theirs.

JUST TWENTY DAYS LEFT

For what? For the conference to raise its monies on assessment for college indebtedness in order that the college can meet the conditions of the General Board of Education relative to its appropriation.

Many pastors have reported that the churches they serve have raised or will raise their assessments before May 1. These statements have been made in district rallies and elsewhere. That is fine. But please bear in mind these monies must be raised and sent in to Treasurer Allen by the end of this month. So far, this has not been done. Here is Mr. Allen's report of monies received from February 1 to April 2, inclusive:

Thomasville, First (Feb. 1)	$ 1.00
Thomasville, First (Feb. 6)	2.00
Lexington, First (March 2)	5.00
Thomasville, First (March 30)	6.00
Mebane (March 30)	25.00
Mt. Pleasant (March 30)	18.75
Lexington, State St. (March 30)	20.00
Mebane (March 30)	10.00
Forsyth, Maple Springs (April 2)	8.75
Total	$96.50
Results from May 1, 1934, to April 2, 1935:
Previously reported (Feb. 21)	$1,510.47
From the Branch, to Feb. 1	602.43
From the Branch, Feb. to April	36.40
Grand Total	$2,149.30

Grace church sent direct to the college February 1 $25.00 not included in the above figures.

In addition, some churches since last May have made contributions through individuals who have paid on the Loyalty League pledges. In the next issue of the HERALD I will list these amounts by way of the Loyalty League, giving credit by churches. All such pledges paid will bring credit to the charges and swell the total towards the $5,000 goal.

The balance needed, as you can see, will total nearly $2,800, if we are to meet the challenge of the General Board.

When payments are sent in to Dr. C. R. Hinshaw, High Point College, Treasurer of the Board of Education, intended to apply on Loyalty League pledges, please tell him your name, your church, what charge your church is a part of, and the pastor's name; this information will enable him to give due credit.

Pastors, "the time is short" to evidence just how much interest you and your people have in the welfare of the college. And "the time is short" for you to make possible for the college to cash in on the offer of the General Board.

Raise the college assessment this month. Then it will be out of the way so that other worthy interests can be handled from April to conference. There are some important results depending on the response that the churches make to the Board's challenge.

And the auxiliaries can greatly help by remembering, first, see to it that the amount levied on each for the year ending April 1 is paid in; second, if the amount levied for the year ending April 1 has been paid, then see to it that your apportionment for the coming year is paid during April. This will get it out of the way early for each auxiliary on the new Branch year, and at the same time swell the total for the college and greatly help to meet the challenge before us. By the time this article appears, the Branch will be in session at Asheboro, and the reports will be in, but there will still be about twenty days left for the auxiliaries to greatly help.

We are on the way—let us see just how far we will go.

One Thing We Have Learned

Twenty weeks is a comparatively short time, yet in the twenty weeks which we have been editing this paper we have learned at least one thing, namely, that we can print a better paper when we have an abundance of material on hand. At first, when the material began to come in in such large quantities, we almost became frightened. We wondered what we would do with it all. We were afraid some people would become offended if we did not print their articles immediately. Now, we no longer become alarmed. We have found out that we need that abundance of material to select from to make up a well-balanced paper. No paper depends on its own editorials exclusively. It must have the best thoughts of others.

Some weeks a perfectly good article is worth more to us than at some other week, for this reason: It may be needed to balance up the material in the paper, whereas the next week we may be well supplied with that kind of articles. What we are trying to do is to put out a well-balanced paper with something in it for everybody. The fact that the tastes of people are different makes it necessary for a paper to have a variety. The skilled dietitian wants an abundance, but more than that, a variety. A dinner would not be complete with all meats. There must be the vegetables and the dessert. Just so, some people like a lot of good, solid reading matter while others like church reports and short news items. We are trying to give you both, so that there will be something for everybody. So send in your articles. Let them come in abundance. Give us some of the best sermons you have preached, provided they are not too long. Let people write on subjects of general interest to our church and to the cause of Christ in general. Let people write on the subject of temperance, let the reporters continue to send us the best things that have been done in the local church. Let no one hold back any article, thinking there will not be room for it. If it is a good article there will be room for it either this week or the next or the next. Send it in.

In His Accustomed Place

Last week we heard a minister say of a man whose funeral he was conducting, that when there were services in the church, he was in his accustomed place. The thought immediately came to us, how fine that is. What better tribute could be paid a man than to say that he was present in the house of God when there were services being held. It means that a man is a believer. The unbeliever goes to church sometimes, perhaps through curiosity. But the man who goes through all kinds of weather, through heat and cold and sunshine and rain, when things are going at flood tide and when they are running at a low ebb, goes because there is something deeper than curiosity. He goes to meet God in the sanctuary. To him the church building is a place of worship, a place of prayer, a place where Christians get new strength for the new tasks. The man who goes to church regularly knows that he is better able to withstand temptations by going there. And he knows also that in the going he is helping somebody else to go. Man needs nothing better said of him in his funeral than that he was in his accustomed place in the church.

Sunday School Rooms for Welch Memorial

The building of new churches or new Sunday school rooms is getting to be such an ordinary occurrence that pastors hardly remember to tell the editor about it. Last week Dr. J. D. Williams, the pastor of Welch Memorial church at High Point, was in the editor's office, seemingly very composed. He said nothing about any plans for any new building at his church. On Tuesday morning of this week the Greensboro Daily News carried a story from its High Point correspondent to the effect that a permit had been granted to Welch Memorial church to build additional Sunday school rooms at a cost of approximately $1,200.00. To see churches building more Sunday school room is the best evidences we know that they are using the opportunities that are given them.

John Henry Brewer Passes

The editor of the HERALD was called to Winston-Salem Sunday afternoon to be with Dr. Bates in the funeral service for Brother John Henry Brewer. Brother Brewer was sixty-nine years old and was the father of four members of our First church in Winston-Salem. They are O. W. Brewer, Mrs. F. D. Voss, Mrs. C. H. Sheffield, and Miss Dorothy Brewer. While Brother Brewer was a member of the Baptist church, yet the pastors of our First church have thought of him as belonging to their flock. We extend sympathy to Mrs. Brewer and the children.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

In Bad Hands

I am in bad hands. Last Tuesday I fell into the foul clutches of Bacillus Influenza, alias Bonebreak Fever, alias La Grippe, alias an Upper Respiratory Infection, etc., etc. The initiated know these aliases are none too kind to those so unfortunate as to fall into their hands. Hence, I failed to meet my Sunday appointments, which I regret exceedingly.

When Friday came and my doctor had set his veto upon all my further attempts at ex-mural navigation, Dr. Humphreys agreed to go for me, but in the meantime, old Jupiter Pluvius being considerably aroused, drenched the earth with a misty formation of H2O while Boreas knocked Mercury down to the top of the cellar stairs; so in this grand melee I excused the good doctor that he might keep his home fires burning until there come better days. And I am lingering on this Monday in a quiet room, gazing upon a blooming earth with some of the pent-up emotions of a prisoner behind iron bars.

If memory did not play its recalls so nearly in circles and emphasize each episode alike, as a jazzband playing for a Holy Rollers' convention, one could get more pleasure out of some of the reminiscences drawn through a hot blanket of a one hundred plus temperature and really "enjoy being sick." But with my limited experience, I am not one who believes a person derives much benefit from being punctured with pain or tortured with fever; benefits other than those which make his day of deliverance more like an Israelitish jubilee than it would have been without so much torture. And now, forgetting those things which are behind,

It's Seven Months to Conference

How much better condition the churches are in now than last year at this time, I do not know. But the pastors' second quarterly reports which will be due about the middle of May will reveal. However, what we are most interested in just now is that no one shall fail to do his and her part as member, church official or pastor for the remaining four weeks. There is yet time for those churches which have not raised their apportionment for High Point College to do it. If this is out of the way, and there yet remains a balance due some other claim of the church or the pastor, please bestir yourselves until these shall be met fully. We want to exhibit every church which has met its obligations to W. S., A. C. budget or pastor in some forceful way at the midyear meet. In other words, we want to recognize what has been done and by whom done at this meeting. There will be other items in these pastors' reports which will be exhibited, such as members received, number of conversions, the extent and amount of repairs on churches and parsonages, etc. This is all to be done in a little more than one month, the meeting is May 31. And so with this good work done the first six months we shall find it much easier to end well our year's work on November 5.

Plan of Appointments

April 14—Alamance charge, Center and Sapling Ridge churches.

April 21—Siler City, 11 a.m.; Hope church at night.

April 28—Denton Charge.

May 5—Fallston charge.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

A missionary visited a poor woman living alone in a city attic, whose pittance of half a crown a week was scarcely sufficient for her bare existence. He observed a strawberry plant in a broken teapot which stood at the window. He remembered from time to time how it continued to grow, and with care it was watched and tended. One day he said, "Your plant flourishes nicely. You will soon have strawberries on it." "Oh, sir," replied the woman, "it is not for the sake of the fruit that I prize it! But I'm too poor to keep any living creature and it's a great comfort to me here—that living plant; for I know it can only live by the power of God. As I see it live and grow from day to day it tells me God is near."—A. B., in Gospel Herald (Scottdale).

OUR DEEP NEEDS

When once you have put your mind in the true attitude of prayer, then the Holy Spirit will help you. That is one of the ways in which to prove to ourselves the action of the Holy Spirit. He kindles our aspirations, and does not let us rise from our knees until we have said something that is worth saying to God. Do you want nothing from God?

Do you need no Divine help in increasing your control over yoursef, in bridling that tongue of yours which has in its time wrought so much unhappiness to yourself and others, in getting rid of that selfishness which has been such a curse to you, or in practicing that self-denial which is the secret of your happiness?—Archdeacon W. M. Sinclair.

STATE LEGISLATORS HEAR HIGH POINT COLLEGE CHOIR

Raleigh, April 8.—High Point College A Capellas sang themselves into great gubernatorial favor today when they took his excellency in the House hall and sang four numbers.

Professor N. M. Harrison and Miss Margaret Sloan, piloting the singers, were with them. Governor Ehringhaus is a fine musician with both knowledge and love of the art. He is a good singer. He has seldom heard such voices and good throats abound in his family on both sides. So charmed was the executive after the singing that he went downstairs and had himself pictured among the 30 beautifully robed singers.—Greensboro Daily News.

CHURCHES OF THE WORLD CALLED TO PRAYER FOR PEACE

An appeal to the Christian people of all nations to join in a world concert of prayer has been issued by the Federal Churches of Christ in America, in collaboration with the Universal Christian Council and the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches. Describing the present as an "ominous hour when the spectre of war again haunts the world," the call urges the churches, beginning in Holy Week, to pray for peace in every service of public worship and to continue this practice "as long as the threat of war remains." Recalling the suffering of Christ, the message declares that "the world for which He died seems ready to crucify Him afresh" and expresses the judgment that only the spiritual power which can be released by a united fellowship of prayer "is adequate to stay the rising current of selfish nationalism and bring peace to a disordered world."

The appeal for a world concert of prayer is being made not only to the churches of this country but also to all the Protestant bodies of Europe and of Asia. Through their membership in the Universal Christian Council, the Eastern Orthodox churches are also comprehended in the invitation. Virtually all the non-Roman churches of the world are included and since His Holiness, the Pope, has independently issued a message to Roman Catholics, the movement of prayer for peace is expected to embrace Christendom as a whole. Among the religious bodies to which the appeal has been sent are:

The Evangelical Free Church Council of Great Britain
The Church of England
The French Protestant Federation
The German Evangelical Church and the Confessional Synod in Germany (made up of the protesting pastors)
The Synod of Waldensian Churches of Italy
The National Christian Council of Japan
The National Christian Council of China

According to the announcement made by the office of the Federal Council of Churches, the "world concert of prayer" may continue for several months and, if so, a series of concrete suggestions for prayer and intercession will be issued at the beginning of each month.

The text of the call to prayer for peace is as follows:

"To All Who Love Our Lord Jesus Christ:

"At this ominous hour, when the spectre of war again haunts the world and we almost hear once more the tread of marching feet, we invite all followers of Christ, of whatever land or name or creed, to unite in earnest prayer for peace. Only a new and united will to peace, born of a deep faith in God and fellowship with Him, can save the world from threatened tragedy. Only the spiritual power derived from a united dedication to seeking and following God's will for mankind is adequate to stay the rising currents of selfish nationalism and bring peace to a disordered world.

"The time draws near when in all lands the churches will be united in the observance of Holy Week, recalling the suffering of our Lord for the sins of the world and His triumph over the forces of evil and death. Today the world for which He died seems ready to crucify Him afresh. Today the Body of Christ, His church, made up of those in every nation who confess allegiance to Him and carry on His work in the world, is threatened with dismemberment through fratricidal strife.

"We therefore appeal to our fellow Christians, both in our own country and throughout the world, to join in a universal concert of prayer for peace. Beginning in Holy Week and continuing as long thereafter as the threat of war remains, we urge upon all ministers of Christ that in every service of public worship they lead their people in prayer for peace.

"Let us unitedly seek forgiveness—for the self-seeking national ambitions, the economic competition and the injustices that have been breeding the germs of war; for our proneness to suspicion of other peoples, to fear and ill-will;

for our lack of trust in the redeeming power of love and our delusion that we can have security through reliance on great armaments and military force;

for our blindness to the truth of our Lord's words that 'they that take the sword shall perish by the sword'; for our apathy toward the constructive agencies of international co-operation through which a new world order might be achieved.

"With hearts thus purified and with a heightened sense of the sinfulness of war, let us join in united intercession—that all of Christ's people in every country may have a fresh vision of God's purpose of righteousness and reconciliation and peace for the world; that there may be a courageous determination among all peoples to resist the ominous drift toward war;

that all may be willing to pay the price of peace in intelligent efforts to create a public opinion that will demand the settlement of international disputes by peaceful means;

that those who for the sake of selfish profit would foment hostility among the peoples and see the world drenched in blood may be restrained;

that to all who hold positions of responsibility in government the guidance of God may be given to formulate policies that shall make for peace.

"We urge also that Christian people in their homes join daily in private prayer for the peace of the world and also that in their own lives they so truly have the spirit of peace that they can be co-workers with God in building a peaceful world.

" 'And let the peace of God rule in our hearts, to the which also we are called in one body.' "

President, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

OUR STORY PAGE

MARGARET'S BEAUTIFUL FAITH

Margaret was an African woman with face as dark as the shadows of night, and black, kinky hair. She never had a chance to go to school, and could not read or write. One day as she was passing the mission she was attracted by the singing and praying, and went into the little church. Soon she yielded her heart and life to Jesus and became a very earnest and faithful Christian. She went home and told her husband and the family of her newfound joy, but they were not interested and gave little heed to her story.

A little while after this, Margaret's faith was put to a very severe test. Her husband asked her to engage with him in some of their heathen practices. Margaret had lost all her love for these things, for she knew they were not according to the teachings of Jesus. She told her husband that she could not do it because she was now a Christian. Then he became very angry with her and drove her away from home, telling her never to come back, for if she did he would punish her severely.

Margaret returned to her father's home and told them the story, but they refused to let her stay there, knowing that if they did they would have to return the "price money" which the husband had paid for her and also a price that he might demand for keeping her while she was with him. They did not have the money to pay back, so they refused to let her remain. Poor Margaret! She was now an outcast for the sake of Jesus. Where could she go, and what could she do? Her thoughts turned to the mission, and her footsteps followed her thoughts.

When her story was heard, one of the Christian families of the church agreed to let her have a room in their humble home. So she went to live there, and was very happy. She did everything she could to help in the home that had shown her such kindness. After a while Margaret became very sick, and was found to be paralyzed from her hips downward, and would always be an invalid. Her condition was pitiful, but her faith in Jesus was triumphant. The Christian family in whose home she lived did everything they could for her, and Margaret rejoiced in the wonderful love and presence of Jesus.

I shall never forget the first time my husband and I went to visit Margaret. Her body was full of pain, but her faith was strong and an unearthly glory seemed to shine out from her face. After that we went often. How happy she was that she knew Jesus. She said, "How good He has been to give me kind friends to care for me and to visit me and help keep me patient and trustful and full of hope." She always wanted us to read, sing, and pray, and we always went out from her room blessed by the contact with her beautiful life.

One day a messenger came from Margaret asking us to come as soon as possible. We walked the distance (about two miles), and upon our arrival we found out why she wanted us to come. As we entered the room we saw her lying upon the ground. We knew what that meant—she was very near the end. She was so glad to see us, and turning her pitiful face toward us, she greeted us with a smile. Her body was terribly racked with pain, and we wondered that she had lived so long. She thanked us for our kindness to her and told us that she wanted to tell us good-bye and have us pray and sing again before she went away to be with Jesus. Well she knew that before another day would dawn she would be at Home with Him.

With tears in our eyes, but joy in our hearts to see such a victory in the midst of suffering, we sang and read and prayed. Then she told us how good God had been to her, how He had given her kind friends, helped her to bear her pain patiently, and had taken all fear of death away from her. As we left she said, "Good-bye. I will see you in the morning, with Jesus."—The Friend.

THE PRAYING SAILOR BOY

I must tell you of a feat performed by a sailor boy at the height of a storm. He was a young boy, and better fitted for thumbing Webster's spelling book than furling a sail in a storm; but his mother was a widow, and the boy wished to earn a living for himself and his mother at sea. The ship was rolling fearfully. Some of the rigging got foul at the main masthead, and it was necessary that someone should go up and fix it. It was indeed a perilous job.

He hesitated in silence a moment, then, rushing across the deck, he pitched down into the forecastle. Perhaps he was gone two minutes; when he returned, he laid his hands on the ratlines and went up with a will. My eyes followed him, until my head was dizzy, when I turned and remonstrated with the mate for sending the boy aloft. He could not come down alive.

"Why did you send him?"

"I did it," replied the mate, "to save a life. We sometimes lose men overboard, but never a boy. See how he holds like a squirrel—he is more useful; he will come down safe, I hope."

Again I looked until tears dimmed my eyes, and again I was compelled to turn away, expecting every moment to catch a glimpse of his last fall.

In about fifteen minutes he came down, and straightened himself up with conscious pride of having performed a manly act. He walked aft with a smile on his countenance.

In the course of the day I took occasion to speak to him, and ask him why he hesitated when he was ordered to go aloft.

"I went, sir," said the boy, "to pray."

"Do you pray?"

"Yes, sir. I thought that I might not come down alive, and I went to commit my soul to God."

"Where did you learn to pray?"

"At home; my mother wanted me to go to the Sunday school, and my teacher urged me to pray to God to keep me; and I do."

"What is that you have in your jacket pocket?"

"My Testament which my teacher gave me. I thought if I did perish I would have the Word of God near to my heart."

SUVARTA HOSPITAL OPEN

Word has come to our office that the Suvarta Hospital was opened on February 1 and that patients are beginning to come for treatment. It is our understanding also that there is quite an epidemic of smallpox in India. Our own missionaries have been inoculated so they should be safe as they have to administer to some of those who are ill. Pray for our missionaries and our medical work in India.—Missionary Record.

TWO OF EACH

Some weeks ago we received two church reports from the same church the same week and each report mentioned practically the same things as the other. About the same time we received two obituaries of the same person and both mentioned almost the same things concerning the deceased. This week we received two obituaries of the same person and both of these mention a great many things that are in common to both. We presume that in each case one did not know that the other was writing. What we usually do in cases like these is to use the one that is received first. We usually turn the material over to the printers as quickly as it can be edited after it is received. When once it is set to type we cannot afford to discard it, as it costs money to set type.

IT ISN'T A BAD OLD WORLD AFTER ALL

(Upton G. Wilson, of Madison, N. C., author of the accompanying article, which is reprinted from "The State," has spent 23 years in bed but refused to give up. "And we'll guarantee," says the editor of that paper, "that after you get through reading his article, you'll feel just a little bit ashamed of yourself.")

I have spent almost 23 years in bed.

At Crewe, Va., on July 24, 1912, I was shot through my left arm, and through both lungs and spine by a man whom I had just discharged from his job as cook on a Norfolk and Western Railroad commissary. He was drunk and disorderly and it became my duty to get rid of him.

In a Roanoke hospital a little while afterwards, surgeons looked me over and shook their heads. Not only was I totally paralyzed below the ninth vertebra, but pneumonia had developed from my lung injuries and I was gasping for breath. The verdict was that in three days I would be dead.

After seven weeks in the hospital surgeons again pronounced the death sentence on me and I was sent home to die. My lungs had cleared up, it is true, but I was still paralyzed and, in addition, had developed terrible bed sores, which had become infected.

But even the best of physicians make mistakes sometimes. They always mean well, of course, but occasionally their predictions fail to pan out. This is more likely to be the case when they send a man home to do his dying. For an ill man going home is like unto an army's defense falling back on a second line of defense.

Home! What a fortress of strength and courage it is to one who has been fighting a losing battle in a hospital! I was too happy at home even to consider dying. I might not fully recover but I would at least hold on as long as possible in order to be with my mother, father, sisters and brothers.

And in the more than 22 years that I have been with them they have not forsaken me. Their love and self-sacrificing devotion have so sweetened my life that the cross I took up when I laid down my good health has been transformed into a crown. I do not regret my more than 1,144 weeks in bed.

There have been days, weeks and months of suffering, there have been times when my spirit weakened and would have welcomed oblivion, but there has not been in all these months and years a single complaint from those who have devoted their lives to caring for me.

That is why I laugh at people who ask me if I do not tire of lying in bed. I do not mean to imply, of course, that it would not be a tremendously joyful experience to get up and walk, but that there is work and happiness to be found in bed when loved ones are kind.

How I used to pity myself! Here I was in bed when others were having the time of their lives doing this, that or the other thing. And worst of all, I told myself, I would always be in bed. There would never be any walking for me. Really, I laid it on thick. And the more I laid it on the more I pitied myself.

Finally the thought came, as come it would to one in my condition, that I didn't have to lie in bed, that always there is a way out for distressed mortals. I could, if I wished, try lying six feet down in the ground. Then is when I began to take more interest in work and to pity myself less. That six feet down business didn't appeal to me.

What strength I have had I have used. As a newspaper columnist and feature writer, I estimate that I have written more than 2,000,000 words for publication. I use a typewriter while lying on my right side in bed. I cannot lie on my back, nor can I use a typewriter while lying on my left side, though I can use pen or pencil while in this position.

It was several years after I had been shot, however, before I took up newspaper work, as my convalescence was anything but rapid. There were stays of varying lengths in different hospitals, a dreadfully painful operation on my spine which crushed all my hopes of walking again, and a decided craving for the soothing solace of drugs to be overcome.

There was also the matter of readjusting myself to life in bed. Only those who have been compelled by the pitiless force of circumstances to make such an adjustment know how cruelly hard this is. But it can be done. In my case it was done.

With all of this out of the way, I was ready to begin writing—as soon as I learned how. I did not know any more about newspaper writing than a bedbug knows about the Einstein theory of relativity and at times it seemed to me I didn't have any more ability to learn. But finally what I wrote began to find its way into print; only, however, because some editors are kind.

Of those who were kind to me in those early days the late R. J. Oliver, of the Reidsville Review, and Santford Martin, of the Winston-Salem Journal, stand out in my memory. But for their kindly encouragement and sympathy I know I should have failed.

Gradually, I began to get more and more of my articles published. Today, I am interested wholeheartedly in my work. I have something to live for: I'm glad that I'm alive—and I am again finding out that this is a mighty fine old world after all—providing we don't take up too much time with self-pity. I have also found out that regardless of the difficulties and handicaps which I may think myself confronted with, there's always somebody who is much worse off than I am.—The Christian Sun.

NEW NOTE IN MOTHER'S DAY

Mother's Day this year, May 12, will be marked by an effort on the part of the welfare and philanthropic agencies to draw attention to the needs of the destitute mothers and their children. A Mother's Day Committee, composed of prominent men and women, is being created by the Golden Rule Foundation, which seeks to enlist country-wide aid and service in behalf of agencies caring for the aged and dependent. The aim is to get away from the commercial concept of Mother's Day and to make of it a spiritual and broadly human observance, leading people to remember neglected, ill, old or poverty-stricken mothers, as a loving tribute to their own mothers.—Federal Council Bulletin.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

Perhaps one of the most trying experiences in the life of a young preacher is to be sent to a place where there is no church building, and know that the conference has sent him there expecting, it seems in some instances, the impossible. It is true that the conference does not think it an impossibility to build, but sometimes they listen to people who are visionary, and with their eyes only half open, "seeing men as trees walking," put the burden upon the man who undertakes the job.

This was not an impossible task, and yet there were times when this preacher wondered if the thing was going to be done. It was a trial of faith. The building had been started and all seemed to go along for a while as if there would be no difficulties. After a while money gave out, and material could not be bought any further without cash, men who had been working refused to work longer without regular pay. No one would make a loan, money seemed to be the only thing just now. A business meeting was held. The pastor was asked to make a canvass of the membership. That was done. They seemed to have lost faith. Not enough was collected to pay for two days' work. The saw mill man, who before this was anxious to sell his lumber, seemed to reach the point that he could go no farther. He lost one of his mills by fire. Another denomination wished to build and wanted to buy us out. The saw mill man belonged to that church. What will the result be?

The pastor spent extra hours in prayer. He felt like he was ruined in the estimation of the conference if he lost out here. So faith loomed up to that point if it be God's will to lose out here it is all in His hands.

The next Sunday was time for service at this place; the town hall was being used. Service was held as if there was no danger. Nothing was said about losing out. There was a calmness that only comes when faith wins out. The service closed in the usual way. No signs of anything unusual. Before leaving the pulpit the bookkeeper and paymaster of the wealthiest man in the community stepped up and said: "Mr. Bethea, I have been wanting to see you for several days. Where have you been?" I told him I had been very busy between the saw mill man, the carpenters and the membership. "Well, I have been instructed to pay you a certain sum" (more than enough to relieve the strain and keep the work going). "When and where can I see you tomorrow?" I replied by telling him I would be at his office door next morning when he opened for business. He would not have to hunt for me any longer. WAS I THERE? You may be sure. Standing waiting when the office door opened. Then is when I needed a flying machine. But the horse did the work, for then we had never dreamed of what we have now. I put that money in my pocket with the doxology in my heart, and it was not long before I was at the saw mill, 12 miles away. Calling the man by name, for he was a good friend of mine, I said, "How much money do you need to relieve this strain and keep this work going?" He named his amount and I paid it over with a good margin left over.

This man knew what kind of a strain I was in. I had told him a few days before that he could have my horse and buggy for the debt if he would take it. But he would not think of doing that.

Well, there was never another strain. We had to sacrifice, to be sure, but it was wonderful how the Lord helped us out of every difficulty after that. The church was built, paid for, has been enlarged since that time, and I had the privilege of going back there and preaching the dedication sermon in the spring after the conference moved me away in the fall. Hundreds of people have been converted in that church. Some are in the ministry in different churches that I could name, some in places of prominence in different places. I run across them occasionally. Thank God for trials of faith that have proved God a helper in time of trial. To you folks at Caroleen who read these lines, it was your church that had its beginning under such unfavorable circumstances. Many of those who helped have gone on to their reward. Thank God for their faith.

REV. G. W. HOLMES

The March number of the Duke University Alumni Register has some interesting information concerning Rev. G. W. Holmes, who is one of our honored superannuates. Listen to what it says:

"Rev. George W. Holmes, Route No. 1, Graham, N. C., is a superannuated minister in the N. C. Methodist Protestant Conference. He served for twenty-seven years in the active ministry. Prior to entering the ministry he was engaged in school work. He was a member of the Education Board of Alamance county and also of Davidson county. Mr. Holmes was elected four times as a delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant church and served for two years as president of the North Carolina Methodist Protestant Conference. He married Miss Elizabeth Forest and they have five sons and three daughters."

ASHEBORO COURIER'S EDITOR ILL

The Asheboro Courier of last week referred to the illness of its editor, Mrs. H. H. Walker. Here's hoping she is soon on her feet again. By the way, we might say that the Courier is the greatest weekly news gathering agency that comes to our desk. For forty years it has been in the hands of the Hammer family who have distinguished themselves in many lines for a long time. Mrs. Walker, the present editor, is the only daughter of the late Congressman W. C. Hammer and Mrs. Hammer, who is so well known throughout our church. The grandfather of the present editor, Rev. W. C. Hammer, was one of our most original and outstanding ministers for many years. It is no wonder the Courier is a great weekly paper.

MEETING OF EIGHTH DISTRICT RALLY

S. W. Taylor, D.D., Chairman

This meeting was held in the Charlotte church, Richland charge, March 31. The following charges are in this district: Randolph, Randleman, Richland, Asheboro, Why Not, Seagrove-Love Joy.

In the morning Rev. M. C. Henderson, of the Richland charge, presided. Worship led by Rev. J. B. Trogdon, of Randleman. The sermon was by Rev. E. G. Cowan, of Seagrove, his subject being "Christ's Challenge to Youth." Dinner was served on the grounds after adjournment at noon.

The afternoon session began at 1:30. Rev. S. W. Taylor, of Asheboro, presided. Scripture was read by Miss Sallie McCain and prayer offered by Mr. C. Earl Bulla. The Level Cross choir furnished music. Mrs. W. F. Redding, Jr., district chairman of the Women's Work, made a few remarks, introducing Mrs. Ray McCain, the newly elected district chairman, and the new secretary, Mrs. E. G. Cowan, Seagrove. She then introduced Miss Lollie Jones, who spoke on the Women's Work, dealing with the budgets, where our money is used, how divided, and a brief sketch of our various phases of work. Mr. J. G. Rogers, president of the Laymen's Fellowship of the conference, spoke most interestingly on the Laymen's Fellowship. He urged an organization in every church and offered his services in the organizing. Mrs. D. S. Coltrane, of Greensboro, supplied for Rev. N. M. Harrison as speaker for High Point College, telling how to make $5,000 yield $12,000. She spoke very earnestly for the college, asking all Methodist Protestants to stand by the college and support it in every way possible; for all churches and auxiliaries to pay their apportionments by May 1 and help North Carolina Conference raise $5,000, thereby getting $7,000 from the Board of Christian Education. Mr. J. D. Ross spoke of the McCulloch Memorial Fund and the Herald. He gave a brief history of Dr. McCulloch's life and of the fund being raised throughout the conference in his memory. He urged all to support the Herald. All charges represented were assured their apportionment to the McCulloch Memorial would be paid.

"The Essentials of a Growing Church" was led by Rev. G. L. Reynolds. This proved to be a very sincere and helpful discussion. He stated several essentials which a church must have to grow; power was one very important essential, several others were named by people in the meeting. The Level Cross choir gave several selections and Rev. E. G. Cowan and Miss Comer, of Seagrove, sang a beautiful duet.

A program committee was elected and an invitation extended and accepted to meet at Seagrove next year. There was good attendance and all thought the meeting a success.

Burlington, N. C., R. 4

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson, N. C.

Topic for April 14, 1935: "What Welcome Do We Give Christ Today?"

Scripture Lesson: Matt. 21:1-11; John 1:11, 12.

Most of us are indeed very careful about being polite and courteous to our friends and associates. No reproach can be made against our manner of conduct when it comes to our dealings even with strangers. We like to be adjudged, polished, refined, cultured and of good "manners." Yes, we even look with disdain upon the person that acts crude, uncouth and tactless. We like to be hospitable. Which, of course, is all very fine. But what can be said for the welcome that we give to Christ today?

Are we sincere when we sing, "Come into My Heart, Lord Jesus"?

"At the door of my heart
Long the Savior did stand,
And He knocked many times
With His nail-pierced hands.
But at last I gave in,
And I opened it wide,
And I asked Him to enter
And with me abide.

Behold, at the door, he doth stand and knock,
If any His voice will hear . . .
And heeding the call, will their door unlock,
He'll enter nad bless them there."

The constant knocking at the door of the human heart by the Savior of men, who ever retains His love for them, so often falls on ears made deaf by greed, selfishness, idle pleasure, economic graft, hypocrisy and sins much too numerous to mention. Consequently is never heard, or if heard is lightly passed by.

If Christ should come today in the physical form, would we welcome Him? How many would even recognize Him? If Christ should actually walk down the aisle of your church today and take a seat opposite you, or just in front of you, or just back of you, what would happen? Would it make any difference to you? What would your reaction be? Would you welcome Him as a loyal friend? or would you treat his presence as you do many strangers that drop in your church? I wonder how many would even recognize Him.

At this point in the meeting the leader might have a special speaker to discuss the question, "If Christ Came Today Would We Welcome Him?"

Let this address be followed immediately by the prayerful singing of

"Into my heart, into my heart, come into my heart, Lord Jesus;
Come in today, come in to stay, come into
my heart, Lord Jesus."

The leader will do well to assign before the meeting to four competent young people for discussion the four points of the Christian program:

1. Absolute Honesty.
2. Absolute Purity.
3. Absolute Unselfishness.
4. Absolute Love.

An attractive feature of the program would be to follow with a solo, "I Gave My Life for Thee." Let the soloist repeat softly one stanza of the hymn, while the society engages in a period of prayerful meditation, seeking to truly welcome into their hearts and lives absolute honesty, purity, unselfishness and love, and the Christ who personified each of these fundamental principles of Christian living.

WHAT THE LAST PAGE CREDITS MEAN

Some people have a mistaken idea in regard to the credits which we give for subscriptions, on the last page. Some think these credits mean the number of subscribers on the charge. It does not mean that. It simply means that so many subscriptions have been sent in since the Annual Conference took over the paper November 23, 1934. It is possible for a charge to have a dozen papers coming to it and yet not have any credits. If subscribers were not in arrears, or if the subscriptions were new ones, then all subscribers who sent in as much as $2.00 between this time last year and November 23, 1934, are still getting the paper, but the charge is getting no credit for that money, as that was in last year. New quotas were made after the Annual Conference took over the paper, and we are now trying to get that in full. Each $2.00 sent in counts as one subscription in our received column. Last week the thermometer registered 963, whereas we actually printed 1,892 copies. The thermometer tells you from week to week how many subscriptions have been sent in since November 23, 1934.

Coupons

You will find in last week's Herald a new and complete list of coupons which we can get redeemed. Please clip the list and keep it so as to be able to tell the women of your community what coupons to save and send to us.

Help the Boys

Labels from cans of Libby's evaporated milk, if saved and sent to us, will help our boys to get Boy Scout suits. If you can send us a baseball, a bat, a mitt, or any equipment for outdoor games it will be of great help to us. The weather is rough today, but spring is upon us, and school will soon be out. About 50 per cent of our larger boys and girls have to work very faithfully but they must also play some. The other 50 per cent, who are smaller boys and girls, must play a great deal or do worse. Something to play with out in the open will help wonderfully. What will you send?

Twenty-fifth Anniversary

The 25th anniversary of the Children's Home will be observed on the last Thursday in August. It seems a long way off, but it will soon be held. Let every church community in the conference begin planning for and working toward an offering for the Children's Home on that day which will put us in sight of "$25,000 for the Children's Home During Its 25th Year of Service." It can be done, and it needs to be done. We thank you because you are going to help do it.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Concord, Saxapahaw Charge.—We have finished painting our church on the outside and hope to get it painted inside soon; also the church grounds have been beautified by planting flowers and shrubs.

Pastor Loy met his regular appointment with us Sunday morning. He used as his text "The Rewards of Evil." We know when we do a good deed we receive a reward, and likewise when we sin.

We were very glad indeed to have Bro. Roy Roberson, our church treasurer, back at church with us Sunday after spending some time at Rainey hospital. Wilbert Johnson is a patient at Duke Hospital at this report. Mr. J. L. Davis is also on the sick list.

Sunday school attendance is not what it should be; hope to get the people back to Sunday school. The Auxiliary is doing some splendid work. We have C. E. each Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Everyone is welcome. Were glad to have visitors for service Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pickard, of Burlington, were among the visitors.

This church plans to celebrate its 100th birthday at a later date.

We are planning our Easter program for the third Sunday afternoon.

Asheboro.—The Asheboro church is very busy these days. All organizations are functioning and growing in numbers as well as interest. The women are always busy in the Auxiliary work. Before this report is printed the N. C. Branch of women's work will have met in our church for its sixth annual meeting. We are hoping this will be a success in every way.

The Sunday school is growing rapidly. Several classes have had on contests. The Young Men's Class, Robert T. Lloyd, teacher, of which the picture appeared in the Herald recently, is still doing fine work. At the close of the contest the losing side gave a supper in the social room of the church. The Philathea Class prepared the supper, which was a great success in every way. One hundred and twenty-six are on roll.

The Women's Bible Class, Mrs. D. A. Henley, teacher, has closed a contest. The old members entertained the new members at a "pot luck" supper in the social room of the church last Friday evening. Fifty-five of the members were present, only a few being absent. The pastor and the Sunday school superintendent were also present. Everyone had a good time. The Philathea Class has closed a visiting contest among the members and prospective members. At the class meeting held at the home of Mrs. Euclid Auman the number of visitors was announced. The group led by Mrs. E. F. Bulla made 470 visits and the other group with Mrs. N. M. Harrison leader made 472, almost a tie. The losing team will entertain at an early date.

The class gave Mrs. Auman a handkerchief shower as an expression of her loyalty to the class as teacher. She and Mr. Auman are going to High Point to live real soon. We regret very much to see this family leave Asheboro. Mrs. Robert Ferree, a recent bride, was given linen.

Our church enjoyed having the children from the Home the fourth Sunday evening. A picnic supper was served them in the church at 6 o'clock, with several visitors. The program of song was well rendered to a large audience for a rainy evening. The offering of the day was more than doubled for March, $77 in all. Since our last report much sadness has come to our church. We extend sympathy to all these. Our pastor lost a brother, T. J. Taylor, by death at Lexington; Mr. Amos Winningham his mother, Mrs. M. L. Winningham, near Central Falls; Mr. E. F. and Jack Bulla their mother, Mrs. Mattie McCrary Bulla, of the Mount Vernon section of the county, and Mrs. John Swaim her brother, John W. Curtis, of Liberty, who was buried last Thursday afternoon.

The budget for High Point College was raised in full yesterday and some over to apply on interest. We are grateful to Mrs. Gerringer for going over the top on Herald subscriptions.

Asheboro.—The financial report at our second quarterly conference, held March 21, was highly gratifying. We had raised up to that time a total of $2,000, which lacks only $488 of being our total budget for the year.

Yesterday morning, at the opening of the Sunday school, we attempted to raise our college allotment of $95. In about 20 minutes we had the amount, and a plus of $35. This included, of course, the $50 that our Auxiliary pays to the college, which is a credit on the church's college allotment.

We have raised to date our allotments for the following causes: Annual Conference Expense, $80; Herald Subsidy, $20; Journals, $3.75; McCulloch Memorial, $150; College Allotment, $95. And only $126 remains unpaid on our W. S. budget.

Through the good work of Mrs. Gerringer we have more than secured our Herald allotment of 42 subscribers.

The spiritual condition of our church is good. Our Easter program is having thoughtful and prayerful attention, and we are hoping to have several additions to the church on that day.

Our people are looking forward with gladness to the Branch meeting Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Blessings on every pastor, every charge, and every conference interest.

Union Ridge, Forsyth.—As I have been elected reporter for Union Ridge church I will try to keep the readers posted as to what we are doing. Although we have not had any reports lately, we are getting along fine. Every phase of the church work is in the best condition at present that it has been for some time. Our Sunday school, under the leadership of Superintendent C. A. Cranford, is making an excellent showing. Church attendance has been very fine for some time, many visitors are noticed in the congregation each Sunday. Our pastor, Rev. R. A. Hunter, has filled all his appointments here this year. He always brings us a very helpful message. We feel that Bro. Hunter is going to do much good here this year. The Christian Endeavor societies are very active. New officers have been elected, Mrs. S. E. Kinnamon, president ,and Mrs. S. L. Tesh, leader for the Juniors. The Woman's Auxiliary sponsored an old-time singing last Sunday at our church. They received a nice offering. The Woman's Auxiliary held their first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Ed Davis April 4. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. W. E. Marbry. Opening prayer was by Rev. R. A. Hunter. Fifteen members were present. The offering was $25. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. L. B. Mock. Mr. J. L. Martin, from our church, preaches at Oak Grove the fourth Sunday in each month at 11 o'clock. The second quarterly conference of Forsyth will be held at our church Monday night, April 15, at 7:30 o'clock. All official members are urged to be present. We regret to report that Mr. Lee Charles, Mr. Hoyle Perryman and Mrs. Charlie Myers are still on the sick list. We hope they will soon be able to be with us at church again.

The stewards and trustees of our church met at the home of Mr. J. F. Snyder Tuesday night.

Mr. Joe Tesh was able to be with us last Sunday, we are happy to report. Mr. P. W. Mock, one of our oldest members, is present every Sunday at all the services.

First Church, Lexington.—Although the weather was very cold and rainy Sunday night, April 7, our spring revival began with a goodly number attending. A most interesting sermon was delivered by Rev. C. G. Isley, of First church. His text was taken from John 3:7, which reads: "Ye must be born again." Brother Isley has a way of delivering his sermons that goes to the heart of everyone listening. We love him and his mother very much and hope that they may stay with us many years to come. Rev. B. M. Williams, of Orange charge, who is to be pulpit help during this revival meeting, will begin his series of sermons Monday, April 8 and we hope that we may have a great revival.

On Saturday, March 30, dinner and supper was served uptown by the ladies of First church for the benefit of a hut which is to be built at the church very soon. This hut will be used by the Boy Scout troop of which we have a fine troop. Mr. Ernest Hamilton is the Scoutmaster and he is very efficient for this position. The hut will also be used by other organizations as well as for the serving of dinners and suppers in the future. Around $20 was cleared on the meals served March 30, and this raised the amount received on the hut to around $80. The Ladies' Auxiliary has already made money enough to place water in the church and in the hut. We wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to the Ladies' Auxiliary and to those who assisted in cooking and serving the meals March 30. May God bless them.

The atmosphere of the auditorium in the church has been brightened very much by some beautiful flowers brought to the church by ladies. Mrs. L. B. Koonts brought a very beautiful pot of Easter lilies, as did Mrs. J. J. Mallard. Two beautiful white Easter lilies in a pot were presented to Rev. C. G. Isley and mother, Mrs. C. M. Isley, and are to be used during the revival meeting. A very beautiful bouquet of artificial flowers was brought by Mrs. E. Koonts. We appreciate these very much. A new floor of hardwood has been placed in the auditorium and this helps the looks of it very much. We wish to take this opportunity to thank those men who helped in putting the floor down.

An error on my part in last week's report should be corrected. Mr. Lane's initials, which read "Mr. O. L. Lane" in the last report, should read "Mr. E. O. Lane."

Alamance Charge.—In spite of the falling rain and extremely cold weather for this time of the year, a gratifying number were present at Sapling Ridge and Center last Sunday for Sunday school and worship services. Four young ladies sang very effectively "The Old Rugged Cross" during the worship service.

On reaching Center for the afternoon service the pastor was agreeably surprised to find that new rubber matting had just been places in the aisles, a donation of the Young People's Class. Brother C. C. Richardson is the efficient teahcer of this interesting class.

The second quarterly conference will meet at Sapling Ridge next Saturday afternoon, April 13, at 1:30 o'clock. Mr. Tyree Lindley is expected to be present to make a brief address just before the business is transacted.

Easter programs will be given at each church with pageants at Rock Creek and Sapling Ridge.

We are looking forward to having Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of our conference, with us at Center and Sapling Ridge next Sunday.

H. L. ISLEY.

Burlington, First Church.—The work here is progressing splendidly and we thank God for His loving kindness and tender mercies.

Our Sunday school attendance last Sunday was 256 and the offering was $20.95.

Our pastor, by his preaching and life, reveals to his people the beauty and joy of the Christian life. His message Sunday was one of the best that I have ever heard. The writer believes in sharing with others the beautiful things and hopes that the summary of this message will find lodging in the hearts of the Herald readers.

The text was John 6:66, "And from that time many of his disciples went back and walked no more with him." The points emphasized were: (1) Tragedy of starting out with Jesus and then turning back to serve the devil and to live a life of sin. Why do people turn back? (1) Evil associations. You cannot go with the wrong crowd and be true to Jesus. (2) The desire to get money. People turn away from Jesus for material prosperity. (3) An easy religion. People do not want to live a life of self-denial and sacrifice. (4) Doing nothing for Jesus. People slip into sin because of inactivity.

(2) Tragedy of those who follow him for the loaves and fishes. Some people belong to the church for what they can get out of the church and not to serve.

3. The beauty of a faithful life. People are faithful because they love Jesus. Anyone can be faithful. Let's live so that the world may see that there is something to religion. May we with Paul say, "I must be faithful to him." Jesus was beaten, mocked, and led to the cross, but He was faithful to the end. O soldier of the cross, accept the challenge to live beautifully for God.

Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to the friends and relatives of Mrs. Thomas Smith, who went home March 31.

The Woman's Auxiliary has beautified the parsonage grounds with shrubbery.

Mission Band, Gideon's Grove Church.—The Mission Band of Gideon's Grove church, Flat Rock charge, held their regular April meeting at the home of Doris Lemmons last Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The program was under the direction of Misses Mary and Olivia Lemmons. There were 28 members and 6 visitors present. We were greatly pleased with the number present, considering the inclemency of the weather and condition of the roads. We were pleased to have with us as visitors Mr. and Mrs. Irvin West, of Asheboro. It is gratifying to report at this time a membership of 40 in our Band. At the conclusion of the program Mrs. S. G. Lemmons and her daughter served delicious fruits and Easter candy. A picnic will be given the members of the Mission Band on Saturday before Easter, from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be a picnic supper and an Easter egg hunt for the enjoyment of the boys and girls. The picnic occasion will be given by the Blues to the Reds as a result of a contest between the two groups of members which closed last month. The next meeting of the Band will be held at Gideon's Grove church the first Saturday in May, at which time we will entertain the fathers and mothers of the members of the Band.

Lincolnton Charge.—Our very efficient reporter keeps up with what is going on at Lincolnton, but there are some things that are of a personal nature that she can't know how much I appreciate. For instance, the pounding the other night. When I came back from prayer meeting on Wednesday night it looked like someone had started up a first-class grocery store in my kitchen. The secret was so well kept, and no names on the packages, that I do not know who to thank. So I will just thank everybody, for it looked like everybody had something to do with it. Then there is another thing that the reporter can't know how much I appreciate; besides, her modesty would keep her from expressing it as I want to, for she has a part in it. And that is the loyal and faithful and sacrificial spirit of both the Sunday school and the church. Most of them come, rain or shine, and give till it hurts, and then right on. Of course, we have here, like everywhere else, some members that are not worth killing, but for the most part they are spiritual, co-operative and uesful in the Kingdom service.

Last Sunday was a red letter day in the Sunday school. The superintendent announced that they needed $60. Someone said, Make the goal a hundred dollars and see how much each class will raise. The report showed $99.21. Of course, the other 71 cents was easily raised. The Young Ladies' Class raised more than any other class, the amount being a little over $27. The reporter will tell you about that, but I just could not help but say a few words about it. We plan to begin our spring revival meeting Easter Sunday, the pastor doing the preaching. Our second quarterly conference will be held at the Lincolnton church April 21 at 3 p. m. We urge the official members of all the churches to be present. There are some things that concern you very much that will come up in this conference.

The church at Bessemer City in all departments is making steady advances. The Fairfield church has a splendid Sunday school, a fine crowd of young people. But the church has been hard hit with the depression. Most of its members have moved away, many out of reach of the church. The remaining few are very much discouraged. But we feel like if the church could have more attention there is still a chance for it to grow and do great good in that section, for there are numbers of people there that are not members of any church. But no church can do much on one Sunday afternoon appointment a month. And we cannot give it more without the other churches on the charge suffering from the same cause.

J. R. ANDERSON, Pastor.

Tabernacle-Julian.—On last Sunday we had our new printed bulletins which greatly improves our worship services.

Our people at both churches are preparing for Easter services. The regular programs will be observed by the children and young people, at Julian at the morning hour and by Tabernacle in the afternoon. The young people will render a dramatization at Tabernacle Easter Sunday night. Communion service will be observed for both churches in Tabernacle church on Thursday night before Easter. Early Sunrise service will be observed in Tabernacle cemetery on Easter morning.

A mother and daughter banquet was observed in the home of Mrs. W. T. Hanner recently when the mothers and daughters of the Julian community were invited in to enjoy the hospitality of the home and the good things Mrs. Hanner and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth, know so well how to prepare. The report of the occasion was of the highest order. Thanks to the Hanner family.

Mrs. L. W. Gerringer has been in our midst working in the interest of the Herald. We are not in a position at this writing to give exact results, but we do know that the work was encouraging. We thank Mrs. Gerringer and Miss Nova Fields and Miss Ollie Mead Reynolds, who assisted her in helping to drive the car and showing the roads.

On last Friday the Julian Woman's Auxiliary met in the parsonage. When the time arrived it was noticed that the attendance was quite good. It was also noticed that the ladies all had packages in their hands and that one lady carried a very large paper sack such as we get from the pressing club with our newly pressed clothes. It all meant that at the end of the meeting of the Auxiliary the ladies proceeded to the dining room and spread a wonderful picnic supper such as the Julian ladies can do so well. And in the midst of it all the big sack was opened and out came the most beautiful quilt—all for the "Preacher Woman." We certainly do thank these good people for so much that is nice and good. May the Lord bless them richly.

At the home of Mrs. Ora Garrett on March 24 and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Coble on April 7 we were invited to dine. "We" is not used editorially, but it means the whole family, and "dinner" does not mean lunch either, but in the true sense of the word we had dinner at both places. Good eats were in abundance.

The auxiliaries of both churches are to be well represented at the Branch meeting at Asheboro this week. And in each case they are to report paid in full and then some.

Miss Virginia Jackson, of Star church, Baltimore, is visiting with us at this time. We are always glad to have Virginia.

Miss Lizzie Hardin, of Julian, is among our sick. It is hoped she will soon be well again.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Yarborough's Chapel, Yarborough Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. K. G. Holt, filled his regular appointment here Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. He read the sixth chapter of St. John, using as his subject "The Sifting of His Followers." As usual, he brought us a wonderful message.

Our Sunday school has increased about a hird since January, and there are still others in our community that we hope we can get to join us as the spring days are coming. Our offerings are still increasing.

We held our second quarterly conference at our church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Due to bad weather there were no representatives from the other church.

We pray for God's blessings on His work and workers everywhere, and we desire that you remember us in your prayers.

REPORTER.

Vickery Church, Guilford Charge.—We do not make a report very often, but we are till alive and growing. Our Sunday school, under the leadership of Superintendent M. L. Holm, is making excellent progress. We ave an average attendance of nearly 100, which we think is fine for a church of this ize. We feel that the interest of the community is centered in the church.

The Jamestown township Sunday school onvention was held here Sunday afternoon, March 31. The worship program was in harge of the young people of Oakdale M. E. hurch. Rev. T. A. Williams welcomed the onvention. There were some inspiring talks during the session, and I'm sure the Sunday school leaders and teachers were filled with new courage and a greater desire to succeed in their particular field of endeavor.

There is to be an all-day service at this church Easter Sunday. There will be Sunday school at 10 o'clock, preaching at 11 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, and a picnic dinner on the church grounds. Immediately following dinner there will be a community singing under the leadership of J. W. Johnson. The public is cordially invited.

MRS. JOHN ARMFIELD, Reporter.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—Rev. J. W. Braxton filled his regular appointment Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour. It was an uplifting message. Since we have received our new hymn books we have changed the order of worship.

The pastor's call for the church quota for the college was responded to very readily and we have raised our amount.

Pre-Easter services will begin in our church Sunday evening and will continue each evening until Easter. The messages will be brought by the pastor. We hope a deeper consecration will be gained by all who attend.

The officers and teachers are to meet at the parsonage Tuesday night for the purpose of mapping out a definite program to be carried out soon.

Misses Annie Lee Spoon, Kathrine and Della Carr Causey have returned to the Woman's College of the University after spending the spring holidays at their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Braxton, Misses Sally Amick and Ola Stafford and Mrs. Carl Curtis attended the Branch meeting at Asheboro last week.

REPORTER.

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—Despite the unfavorable weather yesterday, several came to church for the afternoon services. Rev. Mr. Grant was in the pulpit at his regular appointment and read the 34th Psalm. He used as his subject "Moses Facing a Great Task." This was an uplifting message to all present. We are always glad to welcome visitors to worship with us. Among those yesterday were Prof. B. L. West, of Hasty High School, and Mr. John G. York, First M. P. church, High Point.

The eleventh district rally was held at Mt. Pleasant church Sunday, March 31, with a large number of people present from the different charges. Honor is due Rev. C. E. Ridge, chairman of this district, for the large attendance, good dinner and very interesting program. The program was as follows:

11 o'Clock Sermon, Rev. R. L. Hethcox.

Afternoon Services—Devotionals, Rev. C. L. Grant; special singing, Mrs. O. L. Lane and sister, Miss Lucille Lanning, assisted by Mrs. Ridge; Why Raise Our College Assessment? Mr. A. J. Koonce; The Worship Period in the Sunday School, Mr. Harvey Berrier; The Place and Duty of the Class Leader in the Local Church, Mr. R. B. Sink; The Place of the Sunday School in the Church Program, Mr. Milford Byerly; All About the Woman's Auxiliary, Mrs. Lester Koonts; The Pastor's Part in the Church Program, Rev. C. G. The Young Girls' Sunshine Circle and Ladies' Aid Society will hold a joint meeting with Mrs. Clyde Hedgecock Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Spring Hill M. P. church and Mt. Vernon Missionary Baptist church will sponsor an old-time exhibition, all-day Easter Monday at Eagle Hill, which is four miles west of Wallburg. An interesting program will be rendered, consisting of negro dialogues, spirituals, humorous recitations, and band music from several bands. Good edibles will be for sale and the proceeds will go for the benefit of the churches participating. The public is cordially invited to be at Eagle Hill and enjoy the day.

The play, "Easter Victory," will be given at Spring Hill Sunday morning, April 21, at 10 o'clock. Mr. Grant will preach at the 11 o'clock service.

Asheville.—Teachers in the children's department are bubbling over with enthusiasm over the progress their classes are making. Mrs. Robey Wilson offered a prize to the member of her class of Primaries who answered all of the review questions perfectly, and we are pleased to report that little Dorothy Ann Lindsay was the winner.

Mrs. J. S. Williams reports increasing interest on the part of all the Junior boys. This class had the highest per capita offering on Sunday; there were six present and $2.11 collection. We are pleased with the work Mrs. Williams is doing with these boys.

The Intermediate boys and Intermediate girls have a contest on for the next month to see which class can have 100 per cent attendance each Sunday and the largest number of new members. I am rooting for the boys this time since they are in the minority. Come on, boys, show those girls what you can do!

The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class led the entire school in amount of collection this week, and the Fawcett Bible Class led in number present. Throughout the entire Sunday school greater interest is being manifested.

Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Minnis, Mrs. L. M. Joyner, Mrs. J. S. Williams and Mrs. G. P. Younginer are off to Asheboro this week to attend the Branch meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs. Joyner is the delegate from our Auxiliary, and I just imagine she will be the oldest delegate present. She celebrated her 72nd birthday last Friday. She is the youngest-old person it is my pleasure to know, and my hat is off to her. She certainly proves that it is not necessary to be old. We all unite in wishing her many, many more happy birthdays. We have another young-old lady among our members; she was 86 in January. She is alert, interested in all that goes on, and virtually is still the head of her family. She is Mrs. M. F. Taylor, the mother of Mrs. H. O. Charnock and Miss Eula Taylor. It is fitting that we thank God for the influence of these young-old friends in our midst, Mrs. M. F. Taylor and Mrs. L. M. Joyner.

Prayer meeting services are scheduled for each night this week in preparation for the special services to be held each night next week. It is hoped great spiritual help will be received by all who attend these meetings.

M. L. B.

Roberta.—We have been in the midst of a meeting and have been having some inspiring messages this week. The Rev. Mr. Fink, from Westford Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Concord, has been holding a meeting and he has done some very able preaching. It is time for the people to become awakened. The Lord is manifesting His power in various ways the past few weeks and unless we change our ways and become as little children, as the pastor, Rev. Mr. Cook, stressed in his message this morning, the worst may not have come yet. May God bless and extend His mercy and help us to see the need of serving and worshipping Him in spirit and in truth.

We were very glad indeed to welcome into our midst Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Cline and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Barbee. We are glad to welcome them and hope to make it pleasant for them to worship with us.

Mrs. Ida Smith, a former member of our church, was buried last Sunday. Mrs. Smith had a sweet and lovable disposition and was loved by all who knew her. The beautiful floral offering showed the esteem of her many friends. May God bless the bereaved family and fill the vacancy in their hearts.

The Ladies' Auxiliary gave a noodle supper a few weeks ago and the sum of $12 was realized for the purpose of paying for the range that has been placed in the parsonage.

The second quarterly conference was postponed from the 6th until the 12th on account of the meeting. All officials are requested to be present.

Fogleman presided over the afternoon session. As a part of the program, Miss Nathalie Lackey, of Friendship church, presented the achievements and needs of High Point College.

On yesterday afternoon, Sunday, the Fallston Circuit Auxiliary held a joint meeting at Hebron church. Mrs. F. B. Toney had charge of the program and Mrs. George Hoyle, of Central M. All officers were re-elected to serve for the coming year.

Our church recently lost through death one of our most highly respected members, Mr. S. R. P. Glenn. Our sympathies go out to the bereaved family.

REPORTER.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—For the past several weeks this humble servant has purposely been silent. Knowing that the columns of our paper were crowded, and feeling that many other matters of importance needed the valuable space, we have submitted no report. But our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, has been preaching splendid sermons, and we are glad to report the work moving on. There's room, of course, for improvement. We are still striving to reach a higher plane.

Many of the women (probably a few men) are planning to attend the Branch meeting in Asheboro this week.

We are pleased to have Mrs. Gerringer in our community this week working in the interest of the Herald.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Fred Pritchard is convalescing very satisfactorily in the City Memorial Hospital, Winston-Salem, where she recently underwent an operation. Her class of little girls went to the hospital to pay her a visit Sunday afternoon. They enjoyed the trip.

The Senior C. E. Society presented a play, "A Southern Cinderella" last Friday night in the auditorium of Oak View school. The proceeds of this entertainment go into the hut fund. Lumber for the hut is being sawed. The weather having been unusually disagreeable for such work, it was decided not to push this project until a little later.

The midweek prayer service, with Mrs. V. P. Hammer leader, last Wednesday night was an unusually enjoyable service. Mr. J. A. Jones will be leader this Wednesday night. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Our S. S. superintendent, Mr. C. A. King, is taking his vacation this year during the month of April. Each Sunday he will visit some other Sunday school. In this way he will not only enjoy worshipping with other congregations but will be able to gather new ideas and find renewed inspiration in mingling with other groups of Christian workers. Mrs. Ida G. Lambert, assistant superintendent, is carrying on the work here in Mr. King's absence.

Mrs. Clarence Pierce's friends were delighted to see her back in church last Sunday after an extended illness which deprived her of the privilege of church attendance.

Miss Iris Hammer, of Gibsonville, spent the week-end with her grandmother, Mrs. W. L. Guyer, who has been ill but is better now.

REPORTER.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Rev. T. J. Whitehead filled his regular appointment at our church last Sunday morning with another of his helpful messages. Because of the bad weather the congregation was small.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Although our reports don't appear so often, we are still working and everything seems to be going fine. The Sunday school is moving fine. For the first quarter, which ended the last of March, the average enrollment was 274 with an average attendance of 223. We started anew Sunday with 210 on roll and 212 present.

The prayer services which are held the fourth Sunday of each month are proving a live organization in our church. The last service was conducted by the Young Men's Class with an attendance of 150. It is very important to the spiritual growth of any church for the young people to show such interest as do our young people. We also have a wonderful group of young people who make up our C. E. Society of 50 members. For the month of February the average attendance was 47 and for March 58. An Easter program, a pageant entitled "The Cross of Light," is being prepared for presentation by the society on Easter Sunday night.

Rev. C. E. Ridge filled his regular appointment Sunday morning. He made a few brief remarks which were followed by our communion service which proved very helpful. His next appointment here will be on Easter Sunday. Every church member who can possibly attend is urged to do so and if possible make a small contribution at this service.

The work on the parsonage which is now under way is moving as much as possible considering the rainy weather which has somewhat hindered the progress of the work. $1,327.75 has been pledged and $886.75 paid to date.

Our weekly choir practices are being conducted with different families. The practice for this week is to be with our pastor and family.

The Workers' Council held its monthly meeting Monday night. The reports were good and the work service encouraging. Still we want to urge everyone to pray for us that God's will may be accomplished in our church. MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

Henderson.—No, the Henderson church has not been asleep, but just trying to help our editor to get his desk cleared of the flood of reports that we know he has had for some time.

We have had the privilege of sharing several good programs that have come to our city within recent weeks.

On March 19 we entertained the Vance county Sunday school convention, with about 100 young people in attendance for the entire day. Rev. Shuford Peeler and his corps of workers from the state office in Salisbury came to us bringing a very fine program based on the theme "Blazing New Trails." The hundred young people in attendance were instructed by expert leaders in the field and challenged by inspirational addresses consistent with the general theme.

Then on March 28 our young people cooperated with the other young people of the county in bringing to Henderson Mr. Robert S. Nance, field secretary for the Kansas Christian Endeavor Union, in a one-day program of three meetings.

The Henderson church was host to the fifth Sunday district rally of the second district of the North Carolina Conference. The program was under the direction of the district chairman of the program committee, Mr. C. B. Baskett. The theme was "Greater Things Than These," as it applied to the work of the church, its budgets, the Sunday school, young people's work, our women's work, missions, High Point College, the Children's Home and, in fact, all interests of the church. We had called to our attention some of the accomplishments within our district thus far this year and were then challenged by the pastor of the Henderson church in speaking on the theme.

A special feature of our afternoon program was the appearance of the High Point College A Capella choir, under the direction of Miss Margaret Sloan, that gave a program that delighted an audience that filled the Stevenson theater, the largest auditorium in Henderson. The members of the choir came to us on Saturday, spent the night with us, and went to Roanoke Rapids on Sunday morning for a program there, returning to Henderson for the program in the afternoon. We enjoyed the program by these young people, and are already looking forward to their return next year.

We are greatly pleased with the work of our ladies during the missionary year just closing. They, through an intensive program characterized by diligent and efficient work, have raised their entire budget of $410. A number of our ladies will attend the annual Branch meeting held in Asheboro, N. C.

We are encouraged by an increased attendance and increased interest in both Sunday school and Christian Endeavor and are expecting even greater attendance with the definite arrival of spring.

We are planning an evangelistic campaign beginning the latter part of May.

While we haven't raised our assessment for the Herald fund, we have raised most of it and feel confident the other will be secured. PASTOR.

Creswell Church.—It has been a long time since a report from us. Our work is not doing much. We have been without a preacher since conference. We are looking forward to the third Sunday in May, as Bro. Mabry is coming then, and we are praying that we will have a good year and much good will be done. Our Sunday school is going on very good although we are small in numbers. Our Auxiliary is very weak but we hope we will do more this year. We have the guide book and study books. We hope to meet our assessment this year. The district meeting was a great inpsiration to us, as it was the first meeting we have ever had of the Auxiliary. We hope they will soon come again and stay longer. We will be glad to have you all. We are trying to get our members to subscribe to the Herald and the Missionary Record so they will be better informed about the work. I have enjoyed Bro. Bethea's writing and also the editor's column. We watch the marks grow. Wish our church could reach the goal. It could be done; let us try. REPORTER.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Lineberry

Aleese Lavern Lineberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Lineberry, of Gray's Chapel community, died at the home of her parents Friday, March 29, 1935, at the age of 11 years, 3 months and 19 days.

About two years ago she professed religion and joined the church. From that day to the time of her death she lived a good Christian life and won many friends by her kind and gentle disposition. This was clearly proven by the large audience that attended the funeral service and by the many beautiful flowers that surrounded the casket. This writer does not recall ever having seen so many children of about her age who seemed so heart-broken by the loss of their friend and schoolmate. Her short life has not been lived in vain, for the impressions she has made, we feel sure, will live on in the lives of her playmates.

She is survived by her father and mother, one brother and one sister, also by her grandparents and a very large circle of friends. The parents feel this stroke most heavily, and while there are a large number of sympathizing neighbors and friends, yet it is difficult for them to understand why she has been taken. Some day we will understand.

The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, assisted by her former pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits. The music was furnished by a quartet from Greensboro, with the exception of a solo sung by Mr. Robinson. All the songs were appropriate and well rendered, and helped to make the service more impressive. We pray the blessings of our Heavenly Father upon all who mourn, and may they be resigned to His will. In the language of the immortal Longfellow, we close:

"There is no flock, however watched and tended,
But one dead lamb is there!
There is no fireside, howsoe'er defended,
But has one vacant chair!"

He closes this beautiful poem with these lines:

"There is no death! What seems so is transition:
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portal we call death."

G. L. REYNOLDS.

First, let us apologize to Kannapolis for giving their credits to Kernersville last week. We had to drop down only one line to do this and it was easy. We first tried to put the blame on the printer, but when the manuscript was put right under the nose of the editor, he could not deny it. Maybe we will do better by them next time.

This week we do not have any charge to rave over for having reached its quota; however, we do have several that are getting within striking distance of the goal. Burlington, First and Tabernacle and Roberta are getting mighty close. Then there are a lot of other places that are pushing on toward the goal.

Now, turn to the subscription receipts column and take a look. Mrs. Gerringer was at Tabernacle last week and you see what was done. Brother Curry had everything in readiness for her and furnished someone to go with her. While they did not reach the goal, Tabernacle is coming yet. Moriah also sends in a fine batch of subscriptions this week. This is followed by First church, High Point (they have set their goal at 150) and Charlotte and Kernersville and Lincolnton and Asheville and Orange. All of these turn in more than one subscription.

Now you ask if we reached the ONE THOUSAND SUBSCRIPTIONS IN TWENTY WEEKS. Yes, yes, yes, with fifteen to spare. That is going some. Keep up the good work.

Our receipts this week are $103.90 on subscriptions and $7.50 on subsidy, making a total of $111.40.

PASTORS' SUMMER SCHOOL

The pastors' summer school—extension work for our Theological Seminary at Westminster—will open at High Point College Wednesday, May 29, and will close Saturday, June 8. The faculty from the Seminary will constitute the teaching force for this school. Six courses will be offered.

The total cost for the school, including room, board, and registration fee, is $8.00. It is hoped that every minister in the conference can attend this school.

The pastors will meet separately from the Leadership Training School. Thus the opportunity for fellowship among the brethren and the exchange of jokes and experiences will be greater.

Facing the Facts

Inasmuch as there is considerable interest in the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD these days and since the question has been asked at least once if the McCulloch Memorial Fund would have to be put on each year, we have decided to lay bare some facts in order that each one may see for himself just what we are trying to do and how we are doing it. We might suggest, also, that it might be a good thing for those who wish to do so to save this issue of the HERALD for future reference, especially so if anyone wishes to debate the question of the HERALD on the floor of the next Annual Conference.

To begin with, let us say that forty years ago Dr. J. F. McCulloch started what we now call the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD as a private enterprise. During the past eight years a considerable deficit in the printing of the HERALD accumulated. The estate of the late Dr. McCulloch transferred to the printers, McCulloch & Swain, certain machinery which offset part of the indebtedness, and the Annual Conference assumed the remainder and bought the paper, having provided for the sum to be paid to the printers through the McCulloch Memorial Fund. So much for the beginning. But the question came, How shall we carry on? Calvary church in Greensboro came to the rescue by allowing its pastor to use whatever time was necessary in getting out the paper. In other words, Calvary church agreed to pay the salary of the editor and business manager of the HERALD for one year. So this does not cost the Annual Conference anything. But since there is an abundance of work that must be done on Tuesdays and Wednesdays each week and since the Annual Conference had made no provision for any assistance for the editor, it was decided by the HERALD committee to employ Miss Mary C. McCulloch, the late editor's daughter, to assist with the bookkeeping for the sum of $4.00 a week. We also have a contract with McCulloch & Swain whereby they print the HERALD at the following rate: For the first 1,500 copies the price is 4½ cents a copy, which would be $2.50 a year. For each additional copy the price is 2 cents a copy, which would amount to $1.00 a year in that we print only 50 issues each year. Postage is paid by the month, a sufficient standing deposit having been made at the postoffice in Greensboro to cover the amount in case for any reason we were to refuse to pay the bill. On 1,500 the postage is about $7.50 each month, which would be about $90.00 a year. The committee decided that we would notify all subscribers before their subscription expired. This is done on a printed U. S. postal card which always cost $1.00 for each one hundred. This, of course, does not include the printing on the card.

Last week we printed 1,872 copies of the paper, but it is not worthwhile to make any calculations on that number, as only 1,015 of these have been received since the Annual Conference took over the paper. The new management does not realize on those whose subscriptions were sent in before November 23, 1934, except in the sense that it is easier to get a renewal than it is to get a new subscription.

Having received more than 1,000 subscriptions the first twenty weeks, let us suppose that we will receive 2,000 before the conference year ends. With 2,000 subscriptions, here would be the weekly and yearly expense as well as total receipts. Our weekly expense would then be figured on this score: 1,500 copies at 4½ cents a copy, $67.50; 500 copies at 2 cents a copy, $10.00. Thus you see that the cost of printing 2,000 copies would be $77.50 a week. Multiply this by 50 and you have $3,875.00. The postage on 2,000 copies for the year would be about $120.00. Now, we are ready to add up the cost. We would say printing 2,000 copies $3,875.00, plus postage of $120.00, plus bookkeeping of $200.00, plus notification postals of $20.00, making a total of $4,215.00. This would leave a deficit of $215.00 a year. But let us make the calculations for 2,500 copies. Then the cost would be: 1,500 copies at 4½ cents each, $67.50; 1,000 copies at 2 cents each, $20.00. This multiplied by 50 would give a total printing cost of $4,375. The postage would be about $150.00. So we would say printing $4,375.00, plus postage of $150.00, plus bookkeeping of $200.00, plus postal cards $25.00, and we have a total cost of $4,750.00. With total receipts of $5,000.00, there would be a profit of $250.00. All of this without any subsidy. If you wish to make the calculations on a basis of 3,000 subscriptions, you can do so. The postage will increase about $30.00 for each 500 copies.

Now what are we driving at? It is this: Until we do get a larger subscription list we must depend partially on the subsidy. The total amount which the churches are asked to pay is about $935.00. The boards and institutions are also asked to contribute certain sums for the upkeep of the HERALD. Last year the amount coming in from the churches was $427.23. So far this year we have received on subsidy from the churches $175.00 and have not received anything from the boards and institutions. But, after all, here is the solution: A LARGER SUBSCRIPTION LIST. Somehow we must make our people HERALD MINDED. We must make them see that it is not a useless institution but that it is a very necessary one if the people are to be informed about the programme of the conference. Information about the HERALD must be given from the pulpits, it must be discussed in the district meetings, in pastors' federation meetings, in auxiliary meetings, in quarterly conferences, in the Branch meetings and in the Annual Conference. And somehow it must be so presented that those who hear shall be fired with a determination to go home and get their neighbors to subscribe. After having some experience with the paper, we have decided that setting aside a few minutes for a report of the committee at the Annual Conference session is not enough. Henceforth the HERALD must be treated like we treat High Point College, the Children's Home and Bethel Home. It must no longer be considered a stepchild of the family. It must not be allowed to remain on the back door steps, eating such crumbs as may be cast out, but it must be allowed to enter the dining room and sit down at the table with the other members of the family. If the HERALD is to serve everybody else's cause and be friend of all, then it is but natural that it shall be treated as one of the important agencies of the church. We are asking nothing for ourselves, but we are asking something for that which we represent. When the editor or his representative goes to any of our promotional meetings, he should not be made to play the role of an humble supplicant, in the hope of getting in a word in behalf of that which boosts the programme of everything else in the conference.

It is not to be expected that any church will be willing to pay its pastor and let him spend at least two-thirds of his time working for the Herald, and it is not likely that any pastor can be found who has physical strength sufficient to carry on two all-time jobs. If the Herald is worth anything it is worth supporting, so that it may go on to do the work it is intended to do. This cannot be done with a paid agent in the field, but it must be done by the local Herald agent and the officials of the local church.

Easter

To say that next Sunday will be observed as Easter would be superfluous. For it has had such a prominent place in the thought of the religious world for such a long time that we naturally think in terms of Easter. Christmas and Easter have greatly enriched the lives of a large per cent of the people who live in our world. Christmas with its joy and Easter with its hope go hand in hand. And it is also true that neither could mean as much as they do mean without the other.

In last week's issue of the N. C. Christian Advocate Editor Plyler urged the preachers to throw away their musty sermons dealing with arguments to prove the story of the resurrection and let the Easter joy have the right of way. This caused us to have a few thoughts. We wonder if we have not been so much concerned about an argument that we have failed to catch the spirit of joy. Easter is a time of joy. It is one of the most joyful stories ever told, for if Christ had not risen, He could not have been the Savior. The world did not and does not now need a dead Savior. What it needs is a living Savior, one who can walk with us in our trials and give us a foretaste of victory over death. He conquered and gave us hope. We, too, if we trust in Him, will conquer this thing called death.

Easter ought to be a time of consolation to all who have lost loved ones. And how many there are in that class! Scarcely a home can be found that has not experienced death. This hideous monster comes along and robs us of that which is dearest. Death is no respecter of persons, but it claims the young and the old, the rich and the poor, the wise and the ignorant, the good and the bad. But death shall not reign forever. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death," says St. Paul. What a grand and glorious time it will be when the hideous monster that comes along to claim our precious loved ones shall be dethroned forever!

On this Easter day may we all have joy that is full and complete.

Our New Feature

This week we are beginning a new feature for the Herald from the pen of Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D., the pastor of State Street church in Lexington, on the general subject, "What the Bible Says." This week the discussion concerns what the Bible says about man. Each week one phase of the subject will be discussed. Dr. Johnson is well qualified for this work and we predict that it will be a very helpful department of the paper.

SOUTH REGIONAL YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION

For Young People and Church Workers

High Point College, High Point, N. C.
May 29-31, 1935

Location

High Point, N. C., is a great center of industry in the South. In this great city we have four Methodist Protestant churches, the Children's Home, and High Point College. In the other cities surrounding High Point are to be found some of the most beautiful Methodist Protestant churches in the denomination. Certainly at our own college in this city is a fine location for the convention. The authorities at the college have arranged unusually low rates for the delegates who will attend for the purpose of giving them a hearty welcome to this center of Methodist Protestantism.

Features of the Convention Program

The program is being arranged to meet the needs of all who share in the work of the local church. Five commissions will be organized studying the New United Youth program, "Christian Youth Building a New World." There will be a coaching conference for leadership training deans and instructors and a commission for leaders of young people. There will also be a commission for the women on Auxiliary work. Worship services will be conducted by young people and great missionary and Christian education addresses will be heard from outstanding denominational and interdenominational leaders.

Who May Attend?

All those fifteen years of age and up, especially those who now hold places of leadership in some organization and prospective leaders.

Cost of Entertainment

By generous arrangements on the part of college authorities, delegates will be housed in the dormitories and receive meals in the dining room for $2.00 for North Carolina delegates and $1.50 for delegates from other conferences. This covers the entire stay. Delegates bring their own linen and bed clothing.

Advanced Registration Campaign

Each delegate registering will pay an advanced registration fee of 50 cents. The goal for this convention is 600. The conferences participating and their goals are as follows:

North Carolina	295
Alabama	150
Georgia	100
Florida	20
South Carolina	20
Tennessee	10
Virginia	5

Plan now to meet young people and their leaders from the other conferences of your area in this great fellowship May 29-31. REGISTER NOW WHETHER YOU CAN ATTEND OR NOT. The Convention Souvenir Booklet will be sent to each one registering.

Help your convention and conference realize its goal. Send advanced registrations to F. L. Gibbs, 3267 W. Liberty Ave., Room 208, Pittsburgh (16), Pa. F. L. Gibbs.

Two Questions

Since this campaign started, I have been asked two or three questions that may be in the minds of a good many. Perhaps I ought to answer them for the benefit of any others who may be wanting to ask them.

The first question is: "Will those churches that raise the McCulloch Fund in full be asked to raise some more next year if the full amount isn't secured this year?" I think I can speak for the committee with a positive, No. It is our expectation and confident hope that the whole amount will be raised this year. Whether it is done or not will depend, of course, on the response of the churches yet to be heard from. But we are not disposed, in any case, to make the charges that do raise their apportionments responsible for the failure of those that fail to do so. We hope there will be no failure.

The second question is: "Will the same deficit, which we are now paying off through the McCulloch Fund, occur from year to year so that we will have to repeat the raising of this fund from time to time?" There are two parts to the answer to that question. The first is: The McCulloch Fund is being raised to cover a deficit that accumulated through eight years; that is, prior to the death of Dr. McCulloch. There has been no deficit this year. And, if we can keep the subscription list to 1,500 paid subscribers or more, and can secure the amount apportioned to the churches as a Subsidy Fund, there will be no deficit in the future. You will understand, of course, that Dr. Pritchard is working as editor without salary—for which the conference owes him a great debt of gratitude—and that some provision will have to be made for that office, which will add to the expense of publishing the paper. That, I hope, answers the second question.

Now, getting to the report for this week: It looks good, although it isn't as good as I had expected. I understand Burlington, First church, raised their $150.00 last Sunday, and that it is on the way to me. But I haven't got it, and can't report it. But we're getting close to the halfway mark. We'll soon be sliding down on the other side.

Brethren, when you send in money, please indicate if it is the quota in full for that particular church. I was informed at Branch meeting that two of the churches, for whom—or which—money had been sent in should have gone on the Honor Roll. But I have no way of knowing how the money is divided up on circuits. And there is another reason for wanting to know: the certificate will carry the amount sent in from the church. We want to know how much it is.

Well, not to make this too long, I am reporting the receipts to date, and then saying "So long until next week."

Previously reported	$1,258.79
Graham	50.00
Winston, First (additional)	2.00
West End, Greensboro	25.00
Cedar Falls, Richland	5.50
Center, Alamance (additional)	1.00
Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw	1.00
Total to date	$1,343.79

The following churches go on the Honor Roll this week: Graham, Level Cross, Worthville, West End, Cedar Falls. And the total reaches 51. Not so bad; but it could be better. And it will be if you—whoever you are—will do your bit to put it over. And you may be pastor or you may be layman; it doesn't make much difference, so far as the responsibility for putting it over is concerned. It will take the help of all of you—or us.

Shiloh Church, Liberty Charge, to Launch Herald Campaign

Next week Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, our agent, will be at Shiloh church on the Liberty charge to try to put the Herald in every home. While we have never held a meeting at Shiloh, neither have we ever been pastor there, yet we have known this church by reputation for quite a while. Some fine church workers have grown up in this church. We have known those better who have gone out from there, but we are sure that there are lots of fine ones there now. We trust the campaign may go over splendidly and that we may have the pleasure of making our weekly visit into their homes through the Herald. We shall watch the campaign with a great deal of interest.

McCulloch Memorial Certificate

Next week we expect to run a reproduction of the McCulloch Memorial Certificate to be given to churches raising their quota in the McCulloch Memorial Fund.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Working Out a Divine Plan

It becomes the Christian's privilege and task to work out the plan which God makes plain to him in life. As Moses was to make the ark after the plan shown him in the Mount, so every disciple of Christ has no choice in the matter when he seeks to serve. It is not our will or our plan nor our message. We are not the planner but the workman in whose hands the plan becomes real, vital, effective. We carry the message—did not give it or send it; it is our task to carry it, therefore our concern is to be sure it is effectively delivered. God is in the world today in the most vital way only as He moves His people to do His will. And it is only through His own that He can change the world. He has had to wait through centuries at times until there arose some leader who could and would work out His will among men. He is depending upon people today to exhibit His love, to declare His purpose in the lives of men. If you are silent, then who will speak for God? If you are inactive, then who will do His work? Christ has no hands but ours to do His work today. If ours are therefore idle. then His work must wait for someone who is willing to do His will. If we are more concerned in making a living than in making a life, then the body takes precedence over the soul in all of our thoughts and deeds. We may grow sordid and selfish and prejudiced and sensual all the time we are attending church services and paying off budgets and hearing sermons. Materialism completely insulates those lives it possesses from all spiritual contacts. The materialist in the official ranks of the church becomes the bane of the church membership, the barrier in the way of spiritual progress. If the pastor thinks more of money than of souls, then the church dies while he serves it. If the official boards are more concerned about church buildings, budgets, etc., than in the salvation of the unsaved, there is not much hope of a revival there. We repeat, it becomes our task when we profess faith in Christ Jesus to give our thought, our energy and our means to the furtherance of His plan—that alone should be our task.

High Point College Month

We have kept all other conference claims off the slate this month that the apportionment for the college might be raised. We know that many churches have already reached their goal, and scores of others will yet arrive before the end of April comes. But lest there be some pastor or church which has delayed to start on this claim, we urge you now without a moment's delay to begin at once on this task. Select good leaders for such work and get them out among the people, or go yourself and see if the goal cannot be reached within the remaining days of this month.

Alamance Charge, Rev. H. L. Isley, Pastor

This is Brother Isley's first year on Alamance; he is starting off well with the work; the people are greatly pleased with his ministry, and we predict for pastor and people a good year.

I visited Center and Sapling Ridge churches; it was the regular appointments at both churches and we had very good congregations at both services. Center has paid apportionment for church extension, expects to pay all of High Point College claim before May 1, has paid most of Annual Conference expenses. With good weather for the next few Sundays we expect good reports frim all the churches on Annual Conference claims. I believe all the churches are preparing to hold appropriate Easter programs and we trust the offerings for World Service will be large.

Plan of Appointments

April 28—Denton Charge.

May 5—Fallston charge.

May 12—Anderson and Yarborough charges.

THE TRUE KNOWLEDGE

"To know the love of Christ," even though it "passeth knowledge," was a special gift of grace which Paul sought for the Ephesians. But if we would know, we must learn; and if we would learn, we must diligently seek.

It cannot but be according to the will of God that we should "search the Scriptures," in order to know more of His love to us, and of that which He requires of us in return; nay, rather of that which He will give us, shedding abroad in our hearts the love of God by the Holy Ghost, and leading us, even while we are giving our minds to the subject, to love Him more.

If "we love Him, because He first loved us," then the more we learn and experience of His love to us, the more shall we love Him in return.—Rev. F. Bourdillon.

WITNESSING FOR CHRIST

To witness for Christ is the supreme task of every Christian. Some can do it better than others, but we can all do it if we will. The late Charles M. Alexander was taken to task after one of his services by a Christian who said: "I admire your spirit, Mr. Alexander, but I don't like the way you do your personal work."

"Neither do I very well," replied Mr. Alexander; "how do you do it?"

"Well, I—I—I," stammered the man, "I don't do it very much."

"Well," said Mr. Alexander, "I like the way I do it better than the way you don't do it."—The Pilot.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT MAN

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

Man is a puzzle to himself, "fearfully and wonderfully made." Ps. 139:14. "The proper study of mankind is man," someone has said. The Presbyterian catechism asks: "What is the chief end of man?" and answers: "The chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever." "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (I Cor. 10:31) is given as a proof text. To this might be added, "Even everyone that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory." Isa. 43:7.

In the Image of God

"And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness." Gen. 1:26. Verse 27 says: "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him." Not in the physical form of a man, as the child would imagine, rather than in the form of a horse or any four-footed beast, for God is a spirit and has no physical form. But in the likeness of God in mind and spirit, that is, capable of thinking as God thinks, experiencing as God experiences, not in degree but in kind. The astronomer, thrilled in contemplation of the laws that govern heavenly bodies, exclaimed: "Oh! God, I am thinking thy thoughts after thee!" The worshiper in spirit and in truth, thrilled in communion with God, exclaims: "Oh! God, I am thinking thy thoughts with thee!"

Man's Immortality

Is another feature in the image of God. When God "breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Gen. 2:7), He endowed him with that which lifts man out of the realm of the brute and makes him man—in the image of God.

But in contemplating this we should not think of man as having a soul. The soul is not a possession, not a part of man; the soul is the man and he has a body. "Man became a living soul," and man is a living soul, not has a soul. This leads to the suggestion that man is in the image of God in that he is, the soul is, immortal. "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." Matt. 25:46. The phrase "eternal life" or "everlasting life" is used with great frequency in the New Testament. John 3:16, 36; 6:47; Gal. 6:8, etc.

Man's Rank

Is a little lower than that of the angels. "For thou hast made him (man, not Christ, as some have supposed) a little lower than the angels." Ps. 8:5. As evidence of man's high rank the Psalmist points out, "Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet." Ps. 8:6. This evidently means, in addition to sheep, oxen, beast, fowl, fish, enumerated, the forces of nature—water power, steam, gas, compressed air, electricity in its varied uses discovered anl yet undiscovered.

But Man's Right of Dominion

Is limited. It is things, not people, put under man's feet, over which he is to have dominion. Paul declares that God "hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth." Acts 17:26. Peter rebukes those who make themselves "lords over God's heritage." I Pet. 5:3. "Jesus called them unto him and said, Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them, and they that are great exercise authority upon them. But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be greot among you, let him be your minister." Matt. 20:25, 26. "Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth." I Cor. 10:24.

Were those teachings practiced, it would transform every politician into a statesman, seeking the public good rather than self-aggrandizement. It would transform every exploiter of resources and of his fellow men for his personal benefit into an equitable distributor of good in honesty and fairness to all. It would dethrone greed and enthrone God. It would change two-footed hogs into two-handed helpers. It would change robbers and passing-by-on-the-other-side priests and Levites into good Samaritans. It would change chaos into law and order and love. It would be "Paradise Regained."

ANTI-SEMITISM DECLINES IN GERMANY

Germany to all intents and purposes now admits defeat on the Jewish question. And the change of heart came about, not because the Nazis were convinced the policy itself was in error, but simply because foreign boycotts and economic difficulties forced them to abandon the cause of anti-Semitism. How far it is proposed to carry the reforms was not made clear, inasmuch as no action along that line has been taken, merely a statement that such was the latest intention of the Hitlerites. Clear evidence they still consider the Jews in the same light as previously was presented at the time the news policy was enunciated. The speakers at the meeting of political leaders and Nazi party members in Berlin referred to them as "vampires and exploiters," and in the same breath gave vent to the following: "It may be asked of you why the administration undertakes nothing more against the Jews. It cannot, for foreign political reasons, since further boycotts, foreign exchange difficulties and many other troubles are thereby threatened. Therefore, you must go about and spread what you have been told here and act accordingly."—M. P. Recorder.

Dr. Paschal Speaks to Greensboro M. P. Ministers

Dr. F. W. Paschal, pastor of our First church, Burlington, was the speaker for the Greensboro Methodist Protestant ministers in their monthly meeting Monday morning in Grace church. The subject under discussion was "Religious Education" and was handled in a very helpful way. Dr. Paschal is very conservative in his ideas of religious education and does not make the same kind of statements that some enthusiasts do. In his remarks Monday he said that the family altar ought to be included in the programme of religious education.

Following the address the women of Grace church served a bountiful luncheon. These women have the happy faculty of serving a luncheon, even without chicken, which meets the needs of most preachers.

A LITTLE GIRL AND THE LIONS

(A True Incident as Related by Rev. E. H. Richards)

She lives in Africa, not far from Pakule, a lovely little paradise close to the spot where the Tropic of Capricorn dives into the Indian Ocean on the east coast. Her full name is Xidedevela Mtimasana (She-day-day-vay-lah M-teemah-sah-nah), which in England is Miss Watercress Littleblack.

She was about ten years old when this story begins, delightfully black, and as full of energy as a buzzing bumblebee.

A few miles from her home a native Christian convert named Angiazi (glass) and his wife, Mabumbi (ear of corn), had opened a station where they were teaching "everything that the white man knew," so far as they understood it, and that was clear into the Kingdom of Heaven in one direction.

The children on this station went out two by two—in real Bible fashion—calling on all the people within five miles of the meeting house, and one day came to the kraal where our small friend Xidedevela lived.

She was wide awake to all they had to tell and went home with them at once to see and hear more of what was doing. She saw that each of the station girls had a good denim gown, while she still wore only a suit of peacock oil and sunshine.

The music touched her so deeply that tears ran down her shining cheeks. The story of Daniel in the lions' den was just the thing for her, for she knew where the lions were, and still worse, they knew where she was. She was glad to learn that there was One who could make even the roaring lions behave themselves.

When she went home she told her mother that she was going to be a Christian and begin right away. But this announcement did not make the mother happy. If her little girl were a Christian she would never grind corn to make beer nor tend the still where strong drink was made; nor would she join the dance any more, nor be but the "one wife" of any man. And was it not the glory of women to distill rum from plantains and whiskey from corn? Could she ever be anything if not chief dancer in the national game? And to be the first or only wife meant poverty for her whole family, where she would have all the work to do and her husband be known as "a man of less than grasshopper size."

Now the mother of Xidedevela, whose name as nearly as we can recall it was Mrs. Ignora Muss, believed all these things and was desperately in earnest to save her child from the "medicine" of the missionary. This foreign witch-M. D. might be well enough for his own tribe and country, but not for Africa.

Meanwhile the little girl returned to the mission and finally ran away and lived there. This aroused her mother, who went after her, brought her home and whipped her enough to drive out any sort of new spirits, she thought.

But as soon as chance offered, away went the brave child to the mission again; and again the mother brought her home—this time calling in the witch doctor, who whipped her well but in vain, as she would not consent to leave the station.

Then he tied her feet to the limb of a tree with her head hanging down, hoping that her religion might ooze from her mouth, but hers was not the oozing-out sort.

Following this he gave her dreadful doses of his medicine, calculated to destroy the "religious germs," but all in vain. Xidedevela lived, and by eating corn meal mush seasoned with peanut gravy and thickened with powdered caterpillar, etc., she gained strength to make a safe rush to the mission station again.

She did not report the dreadful treatment of the witch doctor, nor her mother's unkindness until some time after her final tribulation, which she must now endure. For her mother determined to save her child from heathendom.

She appeared again at the station and took the little daughter home with her. Toward evening she prepared some bark rope, took Xidedevela to the forest, where with her own hands she bound the little arms behind her and then tied her to a tamarind tree, hoping that lions would come and either frighten the religion out of her or, if the worst must come, that they would eat her up. Was it not better so than to have her lost to everything in the home, the tribe and the nation?

No one knows what occurred in the dark, dismal forest that night, but one can believe that the little black martyr bound to a tree was not left alone.

In the early morning a small boy went out to pray, as is the usual custom on all the stations in these parts, and as he began his petition, Xidedevela heard him, and knowing that it was the voice of a Christian at prayer, though she did not know who it was, she called to him. He heard her, came and untied the bark rope which bound her, and brought her to the station.

The teacher says that lion tracks were within fifteen feet of where the child was bound. Lions had lain down, sat down, stood and walked about till they had meditated their toothsome morsel at every point, with never a nearer scent than their fifteen feet of solid distance permitted.

Instead of scaring the religion out, the dark night had proved to be the greatest help to its rapid growth.

When questioned later as to her sensations within this den of lions, she remarked with all the confidence of a modern Daniel, "You taught that the Great God made the lions and that He also made me; and He would never have let us eat each other up."

Who can think calmly of enduring such an ordeal? Let the philosopher try to explain if he will, but we prefer to believe that the angel who "shut the lions' mouths" in old Babylon was very near to Xidedevela that night in the African forest.—South Africa Missionary Advocate.

HIS BUSINESS

A man in a covered wagon, driving through a western town, stopped and hailed a man on the street. "Hey, any saloons in this town?" he asked. "Yes, four," was the answer. "Giddap," said the stranger, moving on. "I can't locate here; I've got three boys in this wagon." "Stop a minute," yelled the stranger, "what's your business?" "My business is to save these boys," came back the answer, as he disappeared around a bend in the road.—Publisher Unknown.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

THE EASTER MEETING

L. R. Medlin, Henderson, N. C.

Topic for April 21, 1935: "Why Do Christians Believe in Life After Death?"

Scripture Lesson: I Cor. 15:20-23.

Harry Thomas Stock, D. D., writes in the Christian Endeavor Quarterly the following reasons for the Christian's belief in life after death:

"Christians believe in life after death because of Jesus. He believed in it. The testimony of the early Christian that Jesus arose from the dead is part of Christian history and faith.

"Christians believe in it because it seems most reasonable—more reasonable than to believe that while stars and sun live on, the human soul, the highest development of life, should be extinguished after a comparatively few years.

"Christians believe in it because there seems more to be done than can be accomplished in one short life."

Christians believe in it because our idea of God demands it.

Christians believe in it because it is in accord with natural process.

A seed is planted in the ground. It seems to die, but awakes in a more glorious form. The snows come and seem to kill all of its natural beauty, but beyond the winter is the spring when everything becomes more glorious than before. It is quite in accord with these processes that the "natural body" should die and be born again in a more glorified and useful form.

Have three young people discuss, after careful thought and study, the following three kinds of immortality:

1. "A man lives in his children."
2. "A man lives in the influence he has had upon others."
3. "A man himself lives forever in the radiant Christ."

HE STILL LIVES!

"The world cannot bury Christ.
The earth is not deep enough for His tomb;
The clouds are not wide enough for his winding sheet.
He ascends into the heavens,
But the heavens can not contain Him.
He still lives . . . in the church which burns unconsumed with His love;
In the truth that reflects His image;
In the hearts that burn as he talks with them by the way"

—Edward Thompson, in the New Hymnal for American Youth.

The leader and program committee should put forth very special effort on the program for this Easter meeting. Plan it most carefully. Be sure that everyone knows full in advance just the part he is to take on the program.

Select the songs that are in keeping with the occasion. But let them be songs that are familiar. This is no time to begin to learn new ones.

Have the prayers consistent with the theme.

Have the publicity committee do a good job for this meeting; posters, newspaper, telephone, church announcements and personal invitation. Invite the older folk of the church to come and witness the program.

Begin on time and let everything move on orderly, quietly, reverently, with precision and without the slightest hesitancy or confusion. All of which will contribute to the impressiveness of the program.

There is no better time for a decision service than on the Easter program. Impression will likely be made through a carefully prepared young people's program on this subject that should be directed toward a decision to follow the Resurrected Lord.

DR. J. D. WILLIAMS ILL

Word reaches us from High Point that Dr. J. D. Williams, pastor of Welch Memorial church, is ill with "flu." He went to Danville, Va., the first of last week to hold revival services there. He was taken ill and had to return home. Rev. J. L. Trollinger, the pastor of Haw River charge, finished out the week. We trust that Dr. Williams may soon be well again.

REV. R. S. TROXLER IN DANVILLE, VA.

We have learned that Rev. R. S. Troxler, the pastor of Cleveland charge, is in Danville, Va., for the second week of the revival services at our new church there. Brother Troxler is a good preacher and is one of the hardest workers in revival services in our conference. He has special talent for evangelistic work. We trust the meeting may be successful.

A CORRECTION

The Herald of last week makes us say (for Asheboro) "which lacks only $488 of being our total budget for the year." What we were trying to say is "which lacks only $488 of being two-thirds of our total budget for the year."

THE COLLEGE CAMPAIGN

We had a wonderful meeting at Asheboro April 10 and a splendid offering. There were, however, a few auxiliaries which didn't take part and it's not too late for them to be included. We are very anxious for this campaign to succeed 100 per cent. It will help the college and it will help the local auxiliary to have this item complete. If your auxiliary for any reason was not among those that sent their quota to Branch meeting, please raise the amount at once and mail to Miss Brona Apple, Branch Treasurer. But remember, in order to count on the challenge of the General Board of Education, all money must be in hand by May 1. SO PLEASE HURRY. Every auxiliary will do something during April. Let that something include the college apportionment.

MRS. P. S. KENNETT, Chairman.

ANNUAL MEETING OF N. C. BRANCH OF WOMEN'S WORK

The annual meeting of North Carolina Branch of Women's Work of the Methodist Protestant church convened in Asheboro April 10 for a two-day meeting, the president, Mrs. William C. Hammer, presiding.

Mrs. J. T. Bowman, of Denton, conducted a most impressive devotion for the opening session, using for her theme "Comradeship With Christ in Prayer." Other devotional themes during the meeting were "Comradeship With Christ in Service," "Comradeship With Christ in Trials and Sufferings," "Rewards of Comradeship With Christ." Dr. S. W. Taylor, pastor of the convention church, extended greetings to those attending the meeting. Following this, reports from all officers and secretaries were given during the meeting. All these showed increased interest from every department. Fifteen new auxiliaries had been organized. Nearly all auxiliaries raised their budgets in full. Some overpaid, aside from the regular budget. Special work was done. All auxiliaries were asked to raise money by means of a quilt square, to open the hospital in Duhlia, India. The amount sent in was very gratifying and the news came to us that a part of the hospital is now open and that soon the necessary funds will be provided to carry on all departments of the hospital. Another special was for High Point College. One thousand dollars was the goal set for this, and an offering was taken at the evening hour which amounted to $600. Those auxiliaries which were not represented were asked to send in their offering soon.

One of the highlights of the convention was the president's message. Her theme was "Life in Partnership With God." If we are to carry on this great missionary work, we must walk with God, be in harmony with His plans as we work together to help extend the gospel to those in need. God wants our hearts as we walk with Him.

Mrs. H. T. Stevens, wife of the pastor of the Baptist church, brought greetings from the Baptist Missionary Union of the state.

Mrs. T. Wingate Andrews, of High Point, made a stirring address on "The Need of Foreign Missions." She said the best things that had been done for Japan, China and all other countries were done by the Christian missionary, and challenged us to be more missionary-minded, and go tell others.

Miss Bettie Brittingham, associate secretary, Board of Missions of Baltimore, Md., addressed the convention and brought greetings from other branches, also from the general church. We were glad for this inspirational message.

We would like to give reports in full but space will not permit. However, it was one of the best Branch meetings yet, and largely attended. The entertaining church served lunches in the dining room and royally cared for us in their homes.

The convention closed with the election of officers and departmental secretaries. Miss Brittingham installed the new officials in a most impressive ceremony. After this the delegates to attend the general convention in Indianapolis, Ind., May 15-20 were elected.

Officers elected were: Mrs. William C. Hammer, president, Asheboro; Mrs. J. M. Millikan, Greensboro, first vice president; Mrs. M. A. Coble, Burlington, second vice president; Mrs. George C. HELP HIGH POINT COLLEGE

This is an appeal to the auxiliaries who did not send in their apportionment for High Point College at the Branch meeting.

The offering taken the night the college put on their special program amounted to almost $600. Since we need the co-operation of every auxiliary, we feel sure you want to share in helping to reach the goal of $1,000. This must be done by May 1.

If you have already paid your auxiliary apportionment, then you can assist your pastor in reaching your church's apportionment for the college. Please make every effort possible to help High Point College at this time.

If North Carolina does her part by raising $5,000, then the General Board of Education will give the college $7,500. Let us do our part and show our appreciation by giving most gladly at this time.

"So when two work together, each for each
Is quick to plan, and can the other teach;
But when alone one seeks the best to know,
His skill is weaker and his thoughts are slow."

So with all of our auxiliaries and churches working together, may we create a new interest, more enthusiasm, greater determination to reach our goal and thereby help our college.

MRS. L. W. GERRINGER,
Secretary, High Point College.

WOMAN'S BIBLE CLASS HOLDS BANQUET AT ASHEBORO M. P. CHURCH

Some weeks ago a drive was put on to increase the number of members on the roll of the Women's Bible Class at the Methodist Protestant church. The number grew from 20 to 62 members.

As a climax, the old members of the class invited the new members to a banquet, to be given in the social room of the church on Friday evening, April 5. The room for the occasion was attractively decorated with spring flowers, making indeed a lovely setting for the occasion.

Fifty-two ladies, together with Dr. S. W. Taylor, pastor, and C. E. Bulla, superintendent of the Sunday school, enjoyed the feast. The tables were loaded with tempting food, well prepared and attractively placed by the hostess.

A social hour followed. Many interesting and amusing games were used, adding much mirth to the occasion. Contests were used also. Those excelling in these were Mrs. R. D. Lowdermilk, Mrs. Raymond Allred and Dr. Taylor.—Asheboro Courier.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

Many amusing experiences came to the man who traveled with horse and buggy, perhaps, that the man in a car never has the opportunity of enjoying. I suppose the main reason is that there is not much time taken upon the road as in those days. There was time for reflection and meditation as the horse jogged along, and then when feeding time came, one who was thoughtful of his beast would never take less than an hour to give time for the last blade of fodder to be eaten. The driver, of course, could finish his meal in a much shorter time than could the horse. Many sermon outlines were made and plans for the services for the next day as the preacher moved along at the slow pace and the times to rest the "motor" of those days.

While I was stopping one day under the shade of a tree, a hot summer day, an old darkey was working with a hoe nearby. He looked up and raised his hat, I raised mine, and that brought a broad smile from him as he asked about my health, etc. though he had never seen me before. I asked him about the folks who lived in the pretty house nearby, and if they were home, how many in the family, and all that goes with it—just to hear this old negro talk, while my horse cooled off. "Sho a nice looking gal in dat house, boss, ef you are out looking for one." I assured him that was not my business. He said, "Well, with a purty critter like that you driving and a nice new buggy like dat, what you ridin' in, you sho ought to make a hit wid de purty gals." He was feeding me taffy because I had been polite to him. Then he looked at me kind of shyly and said: "Boss, you sho do look lak youse goin' out on a courtin' spree." Then I said, "No. uncle, I am going over in the country to preach tomorrow." Then he looked surprised sure enough, for I did not have on the regulation clothes that were so much in vogue for preachers in those days, but a business suit, for I had just come out of the store where I had been in business till just before conference. This was the following summer. He dropped his head and with that characteristic chuckle that cannot be put into print said, "Is you, boss, sure enough?" I never did believe that he thought I was in earnest. I was not surprised. I never did have but one stranger to take me for a preacher, and I found out afterwards that he had spent some time in the asylum. So I have had that disadvantage all my days, of proving it, and even then I could not, because not every one you meet or that hears you knows what a sermon is, after all. At least I have consoled myself by thinking that, anyway. Then there may be this consolation which was expressed by the man who said: "Good thing all do not see alike, or they would have all wanted Sally." You have heard the reply, too. There are two sides to it.

One of the great blessings to mankind is that we all do not see alike. We, our family, were taken for a ride into the country once by a very critical lady. She found fault with about every house or home we passed. Finally I asked her if all the houses were built according to her taste, would not the scenery become monotonous along the way? She finally agreed. One day in crossing the Cedar Creek mountain between Marion and Rutherfordton, dark caught us and we had to seek shelter in one of those typical mountain cabins right by the creek. I was not at ease, for the looks of the place were anything else but inviting. We were put in an off house to sleep. I never told them who we were, only we wanted a place to stay all night. We were tired, had driven from beyond Asheville that day. We were given our supper and sent to our sleeping place. We put our valuables under our pillow that night, for we were in doubt about things. Next morning the man showed a curiosity to know what our business was. So he said: "Are you a merchant?" "I was at one time but not now." "Are you a doctor?" "No." "Are you a teacher?" "No, never taught any." "Well, what are you then?" I told him I kind of passed for a preacher at home but never told anyone I was out this way, for there were so many trying to beat their way. Well, he knew what a preacher was. Had grace at table at breakfast. Filled my buggy with corn and fodder, would not take one penny for lodging. Said he never charged anyone in his life. Glad to have company. This proves that you cannot always go by appearances.

FROM THE BOARD OF MISSIONS

Dear Brother Pastor:

The missionary year will close with the last day of April. Our income for the year is considerably behind last year to date, and your Board of Missions is considerably in the red.

Will you do your best to help in this emergency by making a special effort to increase your Easter offering this year in the spirit of Easter joy? Also, induce your church people to raise in full the amount apportioned to your charge for General Conference interests. Please do your best for your missionary cause and see that your money reaches Mr. H. C. Staley, the General Conference treasurer, not later than April 30 next.

This year's program is based on the actual receipts of last year, and we must not raise less money than a year ago.

Anxiously and prayerfully yours,

G. W. HADDAWAY.

REV. T. F. McCULLOCH HAS OPERATION

Rev. T. F. McCulloch, who has been a member of the North Carolina Annual Conference longer than any other man, was taken to a hospital in Charlotte, N. C., last Saturday morning and on yesterday (Wednesday) underwent an operation. He stood the operation splendidly, the physician saying that his strength was equal to the strength of a man of sixty-five years of age, though he is eighty-three. He is at the Charlotte Sanitarium and perhaps will be for two weeks. Pray for him and write him.

WHY A DISTRICT RALLY?

Today I attended the district rally at Welch Memorial church. To say I enjoyed the program is to put it too mildly. In fact, I came away with something of a thrill of helpfulness and inspiration. So impressed am I with the occasion that I feel like trying to analyze the meeting to see, if I can, what elements really appealed to me in the splendid services.

To begin with, I was impressed with the talent that appeared on the program. Two or three splendid speeches were made by persons I did not even know existed. It is indeed refreshing to behold these new people coming along with such a fine part on such a program. I was really glad to see and hear them. One purpose of any church is the development of its members, and all services in which these members participate contributes that much to their religious upbuilding.

I was also impressed with the quality of thought and preparation shown in the speeches. It seemed that everyone had made special and studious preparation for their addresses. They were in earnest and had taken the matter seriously. The trouble was that three or four times as many people ought to have been there to hear them.

Another fine element of the meeting was the variety of viewpoints presented by the speakers. I found that a district rally is a good place to go to learn of the other fellow's way of seeing things. It prevents a person from becoming extreme on any one point. There are always other good views besides your own, so such a discussion as we had would certainly warm up one's appreciations for a fuller understanding of any question presented for consideration.

Again, I felt a powerful wave of spiritual sincerity in the meeting. There was no foolishness. Every speaker went directly to his or her subject and treated it in a sober, serious manner. Much use was made of Scripture. It seemed to me that everybody was seeking to know what Christ would have us do in our present conditions. It was a rather short meeting, 'tis true, but I feel that it was well devoted to the highest interests of the Kingdom in our day.

Then, finally, I had this feeling: I had a longing to do better things in the future. The past seemed all too small, and I could see greater plans ahead. I could fancy myself rendering a finer service, using my little talents to greater advantage. In other words, I was dissatisfied with myself and caught visions of what I would like to do and be. This, I judge, is something of a vision. It might be what some would call a blessing. Well it was a blessing, for any service that opens up finer thought and brighter hopes is a spiritual blessing.

It is for such reasons as I have named that I favor the district rally. There is help there, inspiration there, and a broadening of one's feelings and purposes. There is great possibility in such meetings. My hope is that the attendance on all such services can be greatly increased. P. E. LINDLEY.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman Charge.—We were glad to have Mr. J. M. Page with us. He gave a very interesting temperance lecture to a right large audience which everyone enjoyed very much.

Mrs. Dwight Brady and Mrs. J. B. Trogdon are getting up an interesting Easter program.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Barker Tuesday evening and complimented them with a supper at 6:30 in honor of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Supper was served in picnic fashion. Rev. J. B. Trogdon offered thanks and presented a gift to the couple from the church and society. Mrs. Trogdon received a box of handkerchiefs from the society, it being her birthday anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Barker have been faithful members until Mr. Barker was taken sick, but he is improving now.

MRS. J. M. KIRKMAN, Reporter.

Union Grove Church, Mocksville Charge.—Last Sunday at 11 a. m. Rev. R. L. Hethcox, our pastor, filled his regular appointment with a wonderful sermon. His text was taken from Jude, 21st verse: "Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life." "Keep" is what Mr. Hethcox stressed most of all in his beautiful sermon. We are very sorry he can't fill his next appointment, but we wish him the best of luck while in South Carolina.

Our Sunday school is still very active, although these cold, rainy Sundays have cut our average attendance down quite a lot.

The rainy weather has kept our C. E. members at home twice, until last Sunday night we met and reorganized. The officers are as follows: President, Flora Mae Wooten; vice president, Bennie Williams; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Joe Martin; captains, Bennie and Dock Williams; reporter, Lois White.

FLORA MAE WOOTEN.

Bethesda, State St.—Our pastor, Dr. T. M. Johnson, preached a very interesting and helpful Palm Sunday sermon at the 11 o'clock service. He will talk to us each evening this week at 7:30 on what Jesus did and said each day of His last week.

We were glad to have Mr. W. B. Clinard, professor of Granville school, Winston-Salem, worship with us Sunday. Also the Ladies' and Men's Bible classes enjoyed the splendid talk he made during class period.

Two of our ladies, Mrs. D. D. Brinkley and Mrs. John Everhart, attended the Branch meeting at Asheboro last week. They reported a nice time but will give a full report at a later date.

Our young people are planning an Easter program to be given Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

We were all made sad a few weeks ago when God saw fit to take one of our most faithful members, Miss Minnie Grubb, to be with Him. She is missed in her home community and Sunday school class, for she was always there unless hindered by sickness or severe weather. For the past year her health was failing and lots of times came when hardly able. Although our hearts are sad and we miss her so, let's remember that God knows best and be willing to submit to his will and by her going may we strive to live a purer life, so that when our time comes to leave this world we will meet her in her heavenly home.

MRS. J. O. EVERHART, Reporter.

Union Ridge, Forsyth.—Rev. R. A. Hunter filled his regular appointment at our church last Sunday night with another of his helpful messages.

The prayer meeting services which are held the first and third Sunday nights in each month are proving a live organization in our church. For the last month Mr. S. E. Kinnamon has conducted the services.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of our church met at the home of Mrs. C. A. Cranford last week and gave Mrs. Claude Knight a miscellaneous shower.

The pastor's call for the church quota for the college was responded to very readily and we have raised our amount.

H. L. MILLER, Reporter.

Charlotte, Richland Charge.—Rev. M. C. Henderson filled his regular appointment the first Sunday in April. The attendance was rather poor on account of the weather, but was more than doubled last Sunday.

The Woman's Auxiliary held a very interesting meeting last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. S. E. Henley. Our new chairman, Mrs. A. B. Bulla, presided. The theme used was "Our Risen Lord."

A short Easter program is being planned for next Sunday morning, with Mrs. Ray McCain and Miss Loula Andrews in charge.

A great many needed improvements have recently been made on the parsonage.

REPORTER.

Mebane.—We closed another successful missionary year. We raised our budget and held twelve meetings, both Auxiliary and in each of the eight circles. All were interesting and helpful. Quite a few of our ladies attended the Branch meeting in Asheboro. Some of us felt that it was a most helpful meeting if not the best ever. We anticipate a good year here with our new president, Mrs. Callie Nicholson. The Easter service is being prepared by a capable committee, with Mrs. George Wyatte chairman. The pastor is holding services this week, observing the Lord's Supper Thursday evening. We were pleased to see Mr. C. C. Smith at church Sunday after having been absent for a time on account of illness. The Baraca Class has bought a dining room suite for the parsonage. The Ladies' Class bought a mattress for the parsonage. These things and others have been needed for some time, but due to economic conditions just were not undertaken. Our pastor and wife have seemingly understood and waited. We have wanted to do more, and if our people can work, our church usually does very well for both pastor and the church work. We appreciate the good work they are doing here. Mr. Dewitte Pender is proving himself a very wide-awake superintendent for our Sunday school, and with the faithful group of teachers the school is doing well.

Pensacola Church.—We are going to reorganize Sunday school next Sunday. Mr. L. B. Silver and his son, Frank, are to be complimented on their not missing Sunday school a single Sunday during the last quarter.

Two of our members, Althea Rice and Charles Silver, are graduating at Burnsville High school this week. Althea Rice has made an excellent record in attendance. She has not missed a single school day in eight years. Three others in our immediate community who are graduating are Reba Robertson, Laurence Wilson and Benjamin Wilson. Reba's mother is a member of our church.

We are glad to hear that Rev. D. T. Huss is getting along well with his work at Bess Chapel. We are also glad to hear that Rev. Earl A. Cook is getting along nicely with his work at Roberta. We hope they have great success with their revival. They are both former pastors of ours.

Mr. Cornelius Silver and his family have moved to another community. We were real sorry to have them leave our Sunday school.

We wish to thank Messrs. Kell Wood and M. H. Blankenship for cleaning off our church grounds.

MRS. W. G. BLANKENSHIP.

Pleasant Grove.—The second quarterly conference of Pleasant Grove was held Sunday, March 31. The reports showed an improving interest in the church work. The young men's and young women's Sunday school classes are working on the college allotment and hope to have it up right away.

The young men's class visited the English Street Sunday school last Sunday. They enjoyed being with the class and especially enjoyed the lesson.

As a result of Mr. Powell's talks to the children each Sunday, several children have decided to unite with the church.

An Easter program will be rendered by the children next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Sunday evening the Christian Endeavor Society will present an Easter pageant.

On the fourth Sunday of April Rev. Mr. Powell and Mrs. Powell are planning on visiting Mrs. Powell's people, and Mr. B. L. West, principal of Hasty school, will be the speaker at the 11 o'clock service. It is hoped a large number will be present to hear Mr West.

The children will give their Easter program next Senday evening. The Junior Choir has prepared the music for the service.

Asheville.—Our Sunday school seems to be doing first rate. I was thrilled on Sunday that all the men seemed to score. The two-star classes, star because of having 100 per cent attendance, were the first-year Junior boys' class and the Intermediate boys' class. The Young Men's Class had the highest per capita offering. Hurrah for the men and boys!

The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class continues to lead in amount of offering for the entire school and also led in largest number present this past Sunday. Mrs. Wilson's Primaries lacked only one member of being up with them.

Teachers of the children's department are planning Easter parties for their children during this week, with the exception of Mrs. Williams, who will entertain her Junior boys when she returns. She and Mr. Williams left Monday for a vacation of two weeks.

Junior Christian Endeavor group met with Betty Jane Pratt on Friday last for their business and social meeting. These little folk, under Mrs. Bolick's able direction, are trying to help all they can in the church program. They recently donated 75 cents toward the grass seed for the lawn.

The Busy Bees sold candy last Saturday and as a result were able to turn in on the church budget $3. Mrs. Hendricson deserves a lot of credit for this, since she made nearly all the candy; the girls did splendidly, for Saturday was a cold, dismal day, and to stand on a street corner and sell candy on such a day was not much fun. They need to be complimented for their perseverance.

Mr. T. E. Davis is seriously ill at his home, 356 Broadway.

Those of our members who were in Asheboro last week report a grand time. Made some of the rest of us wish we might have gone too.

Special services are being conducted each night this week at the church. Mr. Minnis is urging all to attend and seek a blessing from this worshipping together.

Woman's Auxiliary is to meet with Mrs. G. P. Younginer, 91 Elizabeth Street, Thursday at 3:30 p. m. This is the first Auxiliary meeting of the new year and Mrs. Minnis, the new president, desires that all members be present. A report from the Branch meeting will be given by our delegate, Mrs. L. M. Joyner.

Conder; vice president, Sigsby Tadlock; secretary, Miss Gray Stiles; treasurer, Miss Nell Richards; chairman of prayer meeting committee, Miss Sally Hollifield; chairman of social committee, Louis Garmon; chairman of lookout committee, Miss Rachel Tadlock. These will serve for the ensuing six months.

The Nursery and Beginners' departments of the church school will have an egg hunt at the home of Mrs. A. F. Love on Clement Avenue on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. G. W. Stegall will entertain the Junior Christian Endeavor Society with an egg hunt at her home on Kentucky Avenue.

Grace, Greensboro.—On last Sunday we were happy to welcome into church membership seven boys from the Junior and Intermediate departments of the Sunday school. Ralph Coltrane, Marshall Brittain, J. W. Tysinger, Donald Poole, James Millikan, Bobby Moore and Wallace Robinson were received into full membership.

The Greensboro Fire Department maintains at its central station a Bible class for the firemen and others who may visit them. It is their custom to invite teachers of other classes to attend, with their classes, the visiting teacher giving the address. Last Sunday the Baraca Class, taught by Mr. Carroll, met with them.

Our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, continues to preach good sermons. For some time he has been presenting Christ in His relation to different phases of modern life.

The meeting of the Workers' Council on Monday evening was well attended. Mr. and Mrs. Carroll are giving reviews of books that are very helpful to teachers who are desirous of doing more effective teaching.

On last Sunday evening the choir, under the direction of Bynum R. Clapp, presented a beautiful Easter cantata, which was greatly enjoyed by the congregation. Mr. Clapp secured the services of a number of visiting singers, among them Edgar Clapp and his daughter, Miss Phyllis Clapp, of Winston-Salem, as well as a number of Greensboro musicians. The service was given a week in advance of Easter in order to have the benefit of these additional voices.

The Sunday school is preparing for its Easter service next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. A special effort is being made to secure a good offering for our Board of Missions.

Thomasville, First Church.—Many things have happened since our last report. The reporter seems to be the only one who is laying down on the job.

Our pastor filled the pulpit at two churches recently on the Greenville charge. In his absence Rev. Herman Yokely, of High Point, preached for us. He delivered a fine message, using as his subject "Examining Ourselves."

The Men's Bible Class is still progressing. They recently enjoyed a banquet at the Methodist hut which marked a membership of 127. This was sponsored by the membership committee of that class. They had as their speaker for the occasion Rev. Tom A. Sykes, pastor of Central Friends church, High Point.

Among those from our church attending the Branch meeting at Asheboro April 10 and 11 were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Madison, Mrs. W. A. Leonard and Mrs. T. Alex Lloyd.

Mrs. A. H. Ragan has been a patient at Thomasville Hospital but has returned home. She is still confined to bed.

We had quite an unusual event last Sunday evening. After the sermon Miss Pauline Bailey and Mr. Knox Teague came to the altar and were united in marriage by the pastor. The impressive ring ceremony was used. The bride is the attractive and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bailey, of this city. Mr. Teague is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivey A. Teague, of the Pleasant Grove section. We extend to the couple our best wishes and congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Freedle joined our church last Sunday morning, coming by letter from the Reformed church of Winston-Salem. They moved from Winston-Salem here some few months ago. We are very glad to welcome them into our church.

We are working on our Easter pageant. The title is "Easter Victory." It will be given Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The offering will be taken for missions.

Miss Mae Teague is critically ill at this time. She has suffered another stroke of paralysis. Little hope is held for her recovery.

REPORTER.

Shiloh C. E. Society, Shiloh Charge.—The C. E. Society with an enrollment of 50 made an average attendance of 53 for the first quarter of this year. This was due, of course, to the many visitors who attend. We always welcome our friends and acquaintances from the neighboring churches.

The society is arranging an Easter pageant entitled "The Cross of Light." Misses Alma Koonts and Ruth Sink are the very efficient coaches, and we are expecting this to be an interesting program. Everyone is cordially invited to Shiloh Sunday evening, April 21, 1935, at 7:30 o'clock. Come and bring your friends.

C. E. REPORTER.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Short, gave us two very inspiring sermons yesterday.

The Ladies' Aid held its monthly meeting April 7 with a good meeting and a good number present. The ladies have been quilting more quilts—building up their treasury.

Chicken pox has been in the community but all seem to be well now. Little Junior McClimon, small son of Mr. and Mrs. N. G. McClimon, has recovered from pneumonia. Miss Lula Pearson, teacher of the Junior Class, was sick for several months, but we are all glad she has gotten able to be back with us. Mrs. O. N. Poole, one of our good friends of this community and a relative of many of our members, has been in bed for nearly four months. We ask that you remember her in your prayers. We hope she will soon be restored to health.

Many from here attended the services at Fulton Presbyterian church last Friday night. Mr. Plumer Smith, a missionary from Africa, who is home on a furlough, spoke and showed many things from the Dark Continent.

The Sunday school is planning an egg hunt next Saturday afternoon in Mr. H. R. McClimon's pasture.

The Willing Workers' Class are still working on their brick quilt. If any of the readers would like for us to put their name and address in it, send the name and money (10 cents or any amount you would like to give) to the writer and it will be more than appreciated. We would especially like to have all our former pastors and their families as well as anyone else. The money contributed is added to our bank account. We are saving—saving, still hoping some day for Sunday school rooms.

Our Wednesday night prayer meetings are the life of our church. March 27 the Young Men's Prayer Band from Fairview Baptist church northwest of Greer were invited to conduct the service. They are a group of energetic boys trying to win souls for Christ. God came down in His mighty power and was with us. A group of young girls accepted Christ. Last Wednesday night our service was led by Miss Hortense Foster, one of the fine young girls of our church. This Wednesday night Miss Kate Poole will have charge.

Remember us in your prayers that we may be shining lights for Christ our Savior.

Kannapolis.—Easter is here again and our mission is to go tell someone that Christ died to save him from sin, tell a living, not a dead Christ, and a victorious, not a conquered Christ. It will bring comfort in any trouble and cheer to any sorrowing heart. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." For that reason our revival will begin on Easter Monday, April 22. Dr. F. W. Paschal, pastor of First M. P. church, Burlington, will conduct our revival. Let us hope and pray that it will be a great success.

The members of the church will present an Easter pageant, "Crown the Risen One," on Sunday night, April 21. The pageant portrays the burial of Christ, the visit to the tomb at the early Easter dawn, and the cross on Calvary's Hill. It is directed by Mrs. W. T. Kisar, assisted by Miss Elva Sides.

The second quarterly conference was held on April 6 with a good attendance. All officers gave very good reports.

Our tithing campaign has made it possible for our church budget and pastor's salary to be paid up to date. Also the apportionment to High Point College has been paid.

Our Christian Endeavor societies are progressing nicely. Each society is putting on a campaign for new members. The Junior Christian Endeavor Society will enjoy an outing on April 20.

REPORTER.

Shady Grove, Connelly Springs Charge.—The district rally was held at our church on the fifth Sunday in March with an abundance of good music and some splendid addresses. We were pleased to have a quartet from Fallston, also one from Valdese. At the 11 o'clock service, Rev. J. R. Anderson, pastor at Lincolnton, brought a message which was enjoyed very much. At the noon hour the members of the Ladies' Aid, assisted by others, served a bounteous dinner.

At the afternoon service Rev. D. T. Huss gave a good address on the subject "Helping Our Children's Home." Also at the afternoon service Mrs. Lackey brought us a message on "How to Help the Herald." The services of the entire day were greatly enjoyed.

Rev. J. L. Love filled his regular appointment here the first Sunday in April with a helpful sermon, the text being taken from the first Psalm.

Our prayer meeting is still well attended. Brother Cornwell will lead the meeting the second Sunday night.

The Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. G. W. Braswell Friday night, April 12, and we are hoping to have a large attendance and to receive some new members. We are glad for our Ladies' Aid. We have painted our church and made a new rostrum.

We are very grateful also for Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Love. We feel that they are working for the Lord and in our behalf. We trust they may be permitted to continue their work on this charge for some time to come.

DOVIE BRASWELL.

Union Chapel, Granville.—Our church and Sunday school are both picking up in attendance as spring brings warmer weather. Mr. Spencer has been bringing his usual helpful and inspiring sermons twice monthly, while Mr. Edwards is working equally as hard trying to improve the Sunday school.

The April meeting of the Missionary Auxiliary will be in the home of Mrs. Woodlief. Let's give her good attendance.

All the young people of the church and Sunday school are most cordially invited to an Easter egg hunt to be given on the church grounds Easter Saturday afternoon.

The young people's leaders are getting up an Easter program to be given Sunday morning. Everybody is invited to be present on this occasion.

Our church was well represented at the fifth Sunday rally in Henderson. R. D. Huff made a talk on "The Church" and Flossie Bivens rendered an appropriate piano solo.

Mrs. L. E. Barnes and Mrs. Claude Gay were our delegates to the Branch meeting in Asheboro. The Missionary Auxiliary was proud of its report, which of course, relieved the delegates of any embarrassment.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer's daughter and her children from Asheville are visiting her parents at the parsonage. They are expecting to be here several weeks.

MRS. E. C. HUFF, Reporter.

Gideon Grove, Flat Rock Charge.—Rev. C. B. Way has filled all of his appointments with good sermons since the last report. The attendance seems to be increasing with the spring months. We were glad to have at our services on the first Sunday Mr. and Mrs. West, of Asheboro, who were visiting at the parsonage. On the second Sunday morning the Mission Band with Mrs. C. B. Way as leader had charge of the devotionals at the Sunday school. The parents and visitors were favorably impressed with the manner in which the children led the program, which was evidence of the good training the children are receiving in this Band.

Mr. Carl M. Felts, principal of King High school, and Mr. Thomas, of Winston-Salem, were guests at the parsonage Sunday and visitors at the services. Mr. Felts talked to the entire Sunday school upon the lesson, and delivered an uplifting and inspiring message to both young and old. We hope it will be our pleasure to have him come again. At 11 o'clock our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, brought us a wonderful sermon, using as a text the words from Romans 12:11, "Serving the Lord." Misses Cassie and Mabel Angel, of Winston-Salem, spent Sunday with their brother, Mr. C. C. Angel, and family and were present at the 11 o'clock service. Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to these children of Mrs. Laura Angel, who after an extended illness passed away Tuesday morning and was laid to rest in the church cemetery Wednesday afternoon among a mound or flowers and a concourse of relatives and friends. The Woman's Auxiliary will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. R. W. Pegram Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Since the last meeting members of the Auxiliary have planted flowers and shrubbery upon the church grounds.

MRS. H. R. ANGEL, Reporter.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—Our pastor preached a real good sermon yesterday. He used as his Scripture the 20th chapter of St. John. We had a good congregation both at Sunday school and preaching. Our Sunday school is doing fine. We are still getting new members.

Our Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. D. C. Stallings the first Thursday of this month. Our meeting was opened by a song. Mrs. M. L. Stallings read the devotional. Mrs. Helms and Mrs. Stallings made good talks on the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Bingham led in prayer. We are studying the book of St. Matthew. The 19th chapter was read by several of the members. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll. Number of members present was 11, and collection was $3.75. Mrs. Stallings served delicious refreshments. We were dismissed by prayer. We have paid $50 on the church note this year. Our society is doing fine. We are all working together.

We had a good day the fifth Sunday. We had the district rally at Stallings church. The program was fine. Mrs. Little, Mrs. Garrison and Mrs. Colson made good talks. The devotional for the morning service was conducted by our pastor. In the afternoon Mrs. Jones conducted the devotional. We had our president, Dr. Andrews, with us in the afternoon. He brought us a good message.

Herald readers, pray for us to go forward in the work of the Master.

MRS. M. L. STALLINGS.

West End, Greensboro.—We were pleased to have Rev. J. L. Trollinger with us on April 7 for the evening service. He delivered a helpful message to us in the absence of Dr. Bethea, who was conducting a series of revival services in Thomasville, N. C.

The Young People's Choir had charge of the music at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday and Dr. Bethea continued his series of sermons on "The Seven Churches of Asia." Thyatira, the fourth church, was his supject. Rev. 2:18-29 was the Scripture lesson, and in relation to this he admonished us against letting strange things enter in to sap the life of the church of God. "Your doctrine is what you live," he said.

On Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the Senior Choir rendered their Easter cantata, "King Eternal." It was characterized by its lovely melody throughout and was composed of eight anthems for full chorus and parts. Guest soloists were Mrs. R. B. Boren, Jr., and Mrs. R. W. Davis, sopranos; Mr. Willis Booth and W. H. Simmons, bassos. A large and appreciative audience heard the program.

Members of the church and friends of Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Hall will be glad to hear that their little girl is improving, after having been so very ill with pneumonia. Our prayers and hopes are for a speedy recovery.

Our thoughts have been centered for several weeks on our approaching revival, which will begin with Easter Sunday. To this end cottage prayer meetings have been held each week in the homes and plans of personal evangelism are being used among the young people of the church and community. It is hoped that a great outpouring of God's spirit will be witnessed in this section of the city.

MARRIED

Bailey-Teague

James Knox Teague and Miss Mary Pauline Bailey were united in marriage in the First Methodist Protestant church of Thomasville at the close of the evening service on Sunday, April 14. The vows were spoken in the presence of the entire congregation, though only a few relatives and intimate friends had been informed previously. The ring ceremony of the Methodist Protestant church was used. The pastor officiated.

Mrs. Teague is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bailey, of Thomasville. She is a graduate of Thomasville High school and Edwards Business College of High Point. Although she is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, she is a faithful worker of our Christian Endeavor Society and is now serving as president of the organization.

Mr. Teague is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Teague, of Thomasville, Route 1. He and the family are members of our church. He is a graduate of Hasty High school and is now employed by the Thomasville Chair Company.

We extend to them our best wishes.

T. G. MADISON, Pastor.

TITHING IN HARD TIMES

This is the title of a bulletin published by the Layman Company especially for these times. Layman bulletins on tithing, thirty-two in number, are printed in regular two-page church bulletin size so they may be used by every church issuing a weekly calendar. The two blank pages of each bulletin provide room for the announcements of the local church. This arrangement not only affords valuable instruction, but also saves one-half of the printing cost as well as the paper. Sample set, 20 cents. For further information communicate with the Layman Company, 730 Rush Street. Please mention the Herald, also give your denomination.

REPORT OF CHILDREN'S HOME TO THE BRANCH MEETING

We are asking the editor for space to publish extracts from our report to the Branch meeting in Asheboro last week, that it may have a larger hearing.

The Duties

The Children's Home was established just twenty-five years ago this coming August for the purpose of caring for dependent children. "It is not an infirmary nor a reformatory. The intention of the institution is to receive only indigent orphan children who are sound in mind and body, and who by proper instruction and training bid fair to make good and useful citizens." And everyone placing a child in the Home agrees "to surrender the child to the management and control of the Home until said child is 18 years of age. At 18 the child may be dismissed to relatives and friends, provided always the health and moral conditions justify it." Something like 195 children have gone out from the Home, and 108 remain in the Home. A large number of those who have gone out are making good, and remarkably few have in any way cast reflections upon the Home.

When we took charge over six years ago there were 72 children in the Home, and it was thought to be full, and yet today when we tell our friends that we have 108 they still urge us to take more.

The Responsibilities

The job requires our time night and day for seven days in the week, and the responsibility of caring for 108 children, body, mind and soul, is almost crushing at times. We dare not look ahead, for the cares of today plus the cares of tomorrow would be more than we could bear. We must live just one day at the time.

There is joy in the service, and yet we never served anywhere else where the responsibility was so weighty. Last year was in many ways our very best year. Finances were the best since 1929.

Finances

When our executive committee met in February we had high hopes of being out of debt by the time of the Branch meeting, and suggested then "3 ifs" which would put us out.

1. "If all the Sunday schools will double their offerings for March."
2. "If certain promises materialize."
3. "If we receive as much from the Duke Endowment this year as last."

A number of the Sunday schools doubled, but many did not. Total income for March was $1,142.55, or about enough to run the Home for the month. The other promises have not yet materialized, and the gift from the Duke Endowment this year was $2,085.24. So we are going along just the best we can trying to keep those satisfied who trust us.

What Can We Do to Help the Home?

This question is often asked us. For the immediate present we answer:

1. Pray for us and trust us, and if there are things you do not understand, COME TO SEE ABOUT IT.
2. Gather and send us all the coupons you can.
3. Send us all the money you can, for nothing but money will pay our bills.
4. Let the women of the auxiliaries and other organizations keep up the good work of making clothing for the girls. This helps more than you know.
5. Respond to one or more of our pressing needs.

a. Almost anything used in an ordinary home will help here.

b. We need knives and forks and spoons.

c. We need dishes, plates, large platters, large and small bowls, and sugar bowls.

d. We need sheets for double and single beds, and table cloths.

e. We specially need clothing for boys, or money to buy clothing for boys. Will be so glad for a few Boy Scout suits.

f. We need balls and bats and other equipment for out-of-door games. All our children who are large enough work, but they must also play some.

g. We need at least three good cows. We have just twelve. Messrs. A. A. Moser and Roy Hauser gave us one of those—a very fine cow. If somehow we could get three more we could get along fine.

h. We need a good team of mules. Could make out with one mule or horse, but are almost compelled to have the one for this summer.

These are our present outstanding needs. We appreciate your help. God bless each of you.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Children's Home will be celebrated with a proper program on Thursday, August 23. We are trusting that many of our people will be present, and that every church and Sunday school will begin early to plan and work for a splendid offering. The plan should be to get every Methodist Protestant in the conference and many of their friends to make an offering. The birthday plan as of last year will be used. The offerings for that day should bring us in sight of our goal of "$25,000 for the Children's Home During Its 25th Year of Service."

Faithfully yours,

A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

Y-O-U

By Victor P. Hammer

You laugh, when sunbeams brightly dance and play
With ev'ry little bud that slowly grows;
The flower tries to catch the breeze that blows
To load it down with fragrance on its way.
The zephyrs glide along with naught to say
And leave the gifts obtained from those they met
With others who, perhaps, have joys to let,
As memoirs of a friendly, happy day.

You turn and smile at this most gracious chance
To sip the nectar from life's little bloom
And bear its sweetness to someone afar;
In this your own possessions most enhance
By using means to drive away the gloom,
And scatter light as gently as a star.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Curtis

John W. Curtis, 53, prominent business man and one of the leading citizens of Liberty, passed away quietly at his home Tuesday morning, April 2, 1935, following an illness of two months. Citizens of Liberty and surrounding territory were saddened to hear of Mr. Curtis' passing. Through business associations he was known to practically every home and was well liked and highly respected.

Mr. Curtis was born and reared eight miles west of Liberty. As a young man he engaged in business with his brother in the Liberty Mercantile Company. In 1912 he became a funeral director and entered business for himself, adding a clothing business. In both lines of endeavor he has been very successful and will be greatly missed from the life of the community which he has faithfully served for a period of twenty-three years.

In 1918 Mr. Curtis was united in marriage to Miss Runa Clapp, who survives with three daughters and a son, Mrs. T. E. Painter, Williamsburg, Va., Miss Dorothy Curtis at home, children of a former marriage; Miss Cladora and John W. Curtis, Jr., at home. Three sisters also survive, Mrs. H. J. Frazier and Mrs. Joe Swaim, of Liberty, and Mrs. John Swaim, of Asheboro. Mr. Curtis was active in fraternal and religious circles, being for approximately 20 years a trustee of the Liberty Methodist Protestant church, where he will be greatly missed. He was a former master of the Masonic lodge in Liberty and was a member of the Junior Order.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, April 4, at 2:30 o'clock from the home. The officiating clergymen were Rev. Fred R. Love, his pastor; Dr. J. D. Williams, pastor of the Welch Memorial church, High Point, and Dr. A. G. Dixon, superintendent of the High Point M. P. Orphanage. His body was laid to rest in Fairview cemetery beneath a mound of beautiful flowers.

May God's richest blessings be with the bereaved family and relatives.

Dodson

Mrs. Mary E. Dodson died April 8, 1935, aged 78 years, 7 months, 15 days. She had been a faithful member of Chestnut Ridge for a long period of time. Funeral services were held at Chestnut Ridge church April 9. The pastor was assisted in these services by Revs. E. L. Ballard and C. G. Isley.

A large congregation of relatives and friends was present to pay honor to the memory of this good woman.

Near relatives remaining are as follows: One daughter, Mrs. J. B. Sykes; four sons, George, Lonnie, Samuel and Joe; twenty-two grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

May God's blessings be upon them all.

B. M. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

You will see by the percentages at the head of this column that there are two charges that have moved up considerably, namely, Burlington First and Asheville. We fully expect them to take a long leap some of these days and go over the top. Tabernacle holds on to second place this week by a very small margin. Roberta had to step down again this time.

Now turn to the receipts column and you will see what has been done. Lebanon in High Point is far in the lead. Mrs. Gerringer was over there part of last week and that tells the tale. While they did not go over the top, they did make a good gain. Several other places sent in more than one subscription. We thank everybody who has helped in any way.

Our receipts this week amount to only $78.76, all on subscriptions. This is the smallest since the second week after the conference took over the paper and this is also the first time that our bank balance has diminished since soon after conference.

While we are thanking everybody for what has been done, there is one thing we want to lay on the hearts of Herald agents. There are subscriptions expiring every week somewhere. If they are in your locality, will you not please look up these folks and get them to renew? We do not want to cut anybody off the mailing list. If you agents want a list of subscribers in your community, please write us, giving the various postoffices that serve your territory, and we will send section of our mailing list. Subscribers are listed on our books by postoffices rather than by churches. After everything else is said, we must depend on pastors and agents. Mrs. Gerringer usually does well where she goes, but we cannot send her everywhere. One of the important things is to see that those whose subscriptions are out, renew.

Now you agents that started out with such a vengeance in the beginning of the year, let us hear from you.

Look at the new thermometer that shows how many copies we are printing.

ANNUAL MEETING, BOARD OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

A note from Rev. F. W. Stephenson, D.D., the executive secretary of the Board of Christian Education, brings us the news that the annual meeting of the board will be held this year on May 20-21 in the First church, Pittsburgh.

Methodist Protestant Herald.

ONE IS YOUR MASTER EVEN CHRIST AND ALL YE ARE BRETHREN.

VOLUME XLI GREENSBORO, N. C., APRIL 25, 1935 NUMBER 23

MUSIC STUDIO, HIGH POINT COLLEGE, HIGH POINT, N. C.

After Easter, What?

Now that Easter is a thing of the past, the question comes to us, What shall we do? We have talked in glowing terms of the Christ who did so much while here on the earth. We have gone through the last week with him and many of us have met around the altar of the church in a sacred and solemn communion service in commemoration of his sufferings. On Easter Sunday we assembled in our churches and sang, "All hail the power of Jesus' name, Let angels prostrate fall, Bring forth the royal diadem, And crown him Lord of all." In the sermons throughout Christendom on Easter Sunday men talked about the risen Lord and what it means to have a Savior that is able to conquer death. Just as at Christmas, so it was at Easter, we simply were on the mountain top in our religious experiences. But the question comes to every one of us, What shall we do, now that Easter is over? We do not pretend to have the gift of prophecy in any unusual sense, but we do judge humanity sometimes by what it has done in the past. We are fearful that all too many of those who have been so loud in their praise of the Redeemer are going out now to "crucify the Son of God afresh and put him to an open shame." People have talked a great deal about the great teachings of the Christ, but the question is, Are they going to put into practice that teaching? In our relationships one with another, do we always show the same consideration for others that Christ emphasized when he was here in the flesh. In plain language, is our religion the living kind or is it the talking kind. It is a great privilege to give testimony to the saving power of Christ. We ought to want to testify for him by word of mouth, but we sometimes have a feeling that we have talked enough until we do more. That what we need to do is to prove to the world that we believe what we say.

After our Lord had conquered death, he told his disciples to go and teach all nations. That is our command, just as much as to the disciples of old. He also told his disciples that all power had been given unto him, both in heaven and in earth. He told his disciples to tarry in the city of Jerusalem until they should be endued with power from on high. Unfortunately too many people in our day, when Easter is over, are thinking in terms of the summer vacation to wait for the promise of power from on high. It will not be long until our congregations will be so diminished by the many summer attractions that the strangers who happen to enter our churches would hardly realize that we had received any great commission.

Some years ago we read a poem by some man in Birmingham, England, on the subject "When Jesus Came to Birmingham." We are not able to locate the poem and cannot quote much of it, but the thought is that when Jesus came to Jerusalem they nailed him to a tree but when he comes to Birmingham they simply pass him by and Jesus says, "O give me Calvary." Is it not true that we do pass him by? In our country today we would not nail him to a cross but we do get so much concerned about other things that we think we do not have much time to give to the church. The church is the organized agency of the kingdom on earth. What we do for the kingdom, in large measure will be done through the church.

For the next few months the test will come to each of us. Will we deny our Lord or will we try to put into practice the things he taught during those last days in Jerusalem? If the church would take Jesus seriously, the power would come to us and we would have a glorious outpouring of his spirit and we should be able to lead the multitudes to the cross during the next few weeks, just as the Apostles did in the long ago.

Calvary Church to Have Anniversary

Calvary church in Greensboro is to usher in Anniversary week on Thursday evening with a banquet in the church hut. Greetings are to be brought by a number of visiting ministers and laymen. The principal address of the evening will be delivered by Dr. P. E. Lindley, the dean of High Point College. The anniversary sermon will be delivered on next Sunday morning by Rev. C. W. Bates, D. D., pastor of our First church in Winston-Salem and former pastor of Calvary church. The final feature of the exercises will be a sermon Sunday evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, of Grace church.

Calvary church is eleven years old and is quite a good-sized youngster for one of that age. It was organized April 25, 1924, when Grace church was being relocated. It was thought that a church was needed for South Greensboro, hence Calvary was built. From the first it was decided that all persons who united with the new organization by the time the Annual Conference met in November, 1924, would be classified as charter members. 104 persons were listed as charter members. 407 members have been received in all, although there are only a few more than 300 on the roll at the present time.

This church has had only three pastors. In the fall of 1924 Dr. L. W. Gerringer was sent to Calvary where he remained for three years. In November, 1927, Dr. C. W. Bates was assigned as pastor and remained for six years. At the close of his pastorate in November, 1933, the present pastor, who also happens to be the editor of the Herald, was assigned to this important task. While the church is not a large organization, judged by the numbers which some of the largest churches have, yet it is a very active organization and has always co-operated in everything which the Annual Conference has asked it to do.

Commencement Exercises, Westminster Theological Seminary

As has been previously stated in these columns, the commencement exercises of the Westminster Theological Seminary will be held this year May 5 to 7. As usual the sermon at 11 o'clock will be preached by the president, the Rev. Fred G. Hollaway, D. D., while the alumni sermon on Sunday evening will be preached by Rev. C. W. Bates, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

In the list of graduates we recognize the name of one from North Carolina, the Rev. Eugene Lamb, from Midway church in Guilford county. Brother Lamb has been assigned to Greensville circuit and will take up the work soon after commencement.

McCulloch Fund Gets Big Boost

I suppose that's the way the newspapers would put it. However we put it, it's true. A check for $150 from Brother J. C. Jones, treasurer of First church, Burlington, pushes the fund that much farther on and puts that church on the Honor Roll. Now the rest of you folks go and do likewise.

The editor promises a reproduction of the Memorial Fund Certificate this week. Look for it. It is being signed by Brothers Andrews and Rogers this week. We will then fill them out and have them ready to deliver. I am going to suggest, unless the brethren want them sooner, that we do the delivering at the mid-year conference. It will cost considerable to mail these certificates. They will have to be put in tubes and sent first class. So to avoid that expense, I suggest that we have them ready for you when we meet at the college on May 28. And, if Dr. Andrews will give me permission, I would like to make a sort of ceremony out of it. A calling of the roll of honor churches and pastors, with a little speech of congratulation, and so forth, with the pastors and maybe the delegates from the churches and charges coming forward to receive the certificates. How does that sound to youall? (Is that the way that word ought to go? Or is it "you all"?) If you like the idea, better get busy and send in your apportionment—if you haven't yet done so. I'm like Matthew the publican: I'm sitting at the receipt of custom.

Well, here's the way the fund stands:

Previously reported	$1,343.29
Burlington, First	150.00
Pleasant Hill, Spring Church	4.00
Winston, First (additional)	5.50
Total to date	$1,502.79

We finished getting our quota subscribed at Winston, First church, last week. All paid in but $19.00, and that is as good as the men who subscribed it. So I'm out of that class of folks who say, "Don't do as I do, but as I say." I've been saying a long time now, "Raise your apportionment," but I hadn't done it until last week.

LISTEN TO GEORGE F. IVEY ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION

Suppose you have a son who has disgraced you. He drinks and gambles and consorts with the worst elements of society. You use every effort to reform him, but to no avail. You finally go to him and say, "Son, I have tried hard to make you see the error of your way, but it does no good. I now despair of ever bringing you back into righteous living, but if you will just give me half of what you make while gambling and robbing your fellow men, I will withdraw all objection to your manner of life and bid you Godspeed."

Suppose you have a daughter who has broken your heart. She has gone from bad to worse until she has become a common prostitute. You go to her, or your wife goes to her, and say, "Daughter, you know I have prayed for you and taught you by precept and example to walk in the straight and narrow path, but it does no good. I am now satisfied that you will never reform, but if you will just divide with me your ill-gotten gains, I will co-operate with you in every way possible."

This is just what many of you are saying. You know the drink traffic is a curse to humanity. You freely admit that it has ruined the souls and bodies of millions of people. You know that it may ruin your son, and if it does not, you are absolutely sure it will ruin the sons and daughters of your friends and neighbors. Yet many are willing to divide the profits and encourage the traffic.

There are some things that are fundamentally wrong, and the drink traffic is one of them. The fiat of the Democratic party cannot make it right; the legislature cannot make it right; even an act of Congress cannot make it right. It is evil in every aspect, and if you vote for this evil, it may live long after your death. "Woe unto him that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips, that maketh him drunken." G. F. Ivey, in N. C. Christian Advocate.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Believe Something

Many of the magazines these days carry articles telling why youth is losing interest in the church. I have just read a lengthy one by a young woman which at least has the element of frankness throughout. But among the many accusations brought is that the present leaders of the church are too perfunctory-professional; preach and carry on the work of the church without conviction or enthusiasm.

I fear she has much more reason for this accusation than we can afford to admit. It is a charge thrust into our faces and should cause much heart searching. We can well afford to ask ourselves the question, Are we really and truly more than professional gospellers? Does the present leadership know the meaning of sacrifice for the cause of Christ? Are we really moved by a conviction of some truth enough to die for it? Unless we are, then this critic of the church has made her point and we instead of her are confounded.

Preaching is not to be accepted as a profession which may be followed as some follow the professions of law, dentistry, engineering, etc. It is not in the same category. A man may practice law or dentistry solely because of the financial returns of the profession. But he who preaches in order that he may support himself and his family primarily should not have the privilege of serving a church. Unless he knows something of the feeling of the master preacher, St. Paul, "Woe is me, if I preach not the gospel," he should find another field for his activities. The church would be the gainer even though such a test should decimate its ranks. We must have a leadership in the laity as in the ministry who believe some things so strongly that they cannot be at ease when not trying to do them. It ought to be more than a belief in water baptism or in certain forms of worship, or manner of dress or abstinence from the use of tobacco. Our religious convictions should go deeper than these superficial things. There must be a conviction that man without God, man without Christ cannot attain unto his best self nor render his finest services to his fellows. It would not be a profitless thing for every leader in the church to ask himself the question, Do I really believe any truth of religion enough to die for it? Or make it lighter, Do I believe any truth enough to suffer for it? Am I willing to give up ease, comfort, pleasure for the cause of Christ?

Siler City Charge, Rev. J. A. Burgess, Pastor

Here is a group of three churches with a membership of 202. It is supporting a preacher and paying the conference claims with a loyalty which ought to inspire fresh courage in the hearts of some of the sleeping giants. Piney Grove and Hope have very small memberships and do not have so much opportunity for expansion—for increase. But they have carried on their programs through the years with a faithfulness which is a challenge to our best churches in the North Carolina Conference.

Siler City has more chance for increase in membership. There go to this little growing community from time to time members of our communion from other churches, and doubtless there will come more of them as the years go by, thus making it possible for us to grow stronger here as the years come and go. And if they could have a whole-time pastor the church would grow even faster. Piney Grove has paid the McCulloch Memorial Fund and church extension, will pay High Point College apportionment. Siler City church and Hope have paid High Point College apportionments. I visited the three churches. Piney Grove had an Easter program. The children did well their parts and give hope for a large membership here. At Hope or Bonlee I preached the commencement sermon of the high school, so saw only a few of our own people. But Bro. Burgess is getting on splendidly with the people and we predict for pastor and people a good year. I enjoyed my visit with these good people.

S.O.S. CALL TO AUXILIARIES TO MEET COLLEGE APPORTIONMENT

Join Those Who Have Made Contributions in Full

This is early in the new year for me to send out a call for money, but the college emergency is upon us, and we must "rally 'round" before April 30. As has been stated previously and often, the Branch apportionment of $1,000 for the college has been allocated to the Women's Auxiliaries of the state. A request was made for each Auxiliary to send in their allotment to Branch meeting. The response was splendid, $602 plus having been brought in for the special service. It is a "now or never" opportunity and I am appealing to the Auxiliaries which did not send their college apportionment to do so at once. In this way the womanhood of the church can say, "We did our part," and thereby issue a challenge to the conference through the churches to pay up before April 30, enabling the college to secure the $1.50 for $1.00 offer by the Board of Christian Education. We cannot afford to fail to lay upon the altar of education for High Point College the sum of $5,000, which will be supplemented by $7,500 by the Board of Christian Education. Do your best, as you have always done, women of the Methodist Protestant Conference.

Mrs. Wm. C. Hammer.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT SOCIETY

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

That is, the "collective body of persons composing a community." Whether such community be small or large or larger, the members live and work among themselves. In such groups there are community interests and individual interests. In case of conflict between community interest and individual interest or between individual interests, there must be something abnormal.

What does the Bible say? Does the Bible offer principles which, if used as a standard of normalcy, would do away with all conflict between interests?

A Vision

A few years ago I (not we. I may be a wee, but there is not enough of me for a we) commenced a limited study of "Four Corner Stones of Society." Thus thinking of society under the figure of a building, seemingly in the twilight of thought between the conscious and the subconscious mind, I saw in the distance through a hazy atmosphere the dim outline of a magnificent structure of polished marble, rivaling in imposing grandeur and indescribable beauty any conception I have ever had of Solomon's Temple. Thin, low-flying clouds were flitting by, now making more obscure the sight of the building, now rifting, allowing the full light of the morning sun to shine clear upon portions, rather small portions, of the building, revealing a beauty impossible to describe and beyond the power of even a master artist to paint.

While I longed momentarily for the clouds to lift and the atmosphere to clear, the vision was gone.

A Lesson

Pondering this, to me unusual, experience, for I am not a dreamer of beautiful dreams that may become reality, it left with me this lesson: The great Architect of the universe has a plan, a sort of blueprint with specifications, for a world-society in which all His children of every race and nation may live together hopefully and happily, friendly and fraternally, neighborly and not niggardly, generously and not greedily. A world-society in which everyone has enough and to spare, and no one has too much nor more than his share. What does the Bible say about it?

Rulers

Should be men or women of character. "Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers." Ex. 18:21.

"When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn." Prov. 29:2.

Duties of Rulers

Whether they make laws or execute laws, it must be done in fairness to all. "Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honor the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbor." Lev. 19:15.

"Judges and officers shalt thou make . . . and they shall judge the people with just judgment. Thou shalt not wrest judgment; thou shalt not respect persons, neither take a gift: for a gift doth blind the eyes of the wise, and pervert the words of the righteous." Deut. 16:18, 19.

Class legislation is not allowed. "Ye shall have one manner of law, as well for the stranger as for one of your own country: for I am the Lord your God." Lev. 24:22.

Employers

Must be just toward employes. "He that oppresseth the poor to increase his riches . . . shall surely come to want." Prov. 22:16.

"Woe unto him . . . that useth his neighbor's service without wages, and giveth him not for his work." Jer. 22:13.

"Behold the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of sabaoth." Jas. 5:4.

Oppression Condemned

"Some also there were that said, We have mortgaged our lands, vineyards, and houses that we might buy corn because of the dearth. There were also that said, We have borrowed money for the king's tribute (taxes), and that upon our lands and vineyards (Neh. 5:3, 4) . . . (v. 5) And lo, we bring into bondage our sons and our daughters to be servants . . . neither is it in our power to redeem them; for other men have our lands and vineyards. (v. 6) And I (Nehemiah, the governor) was very angry when I heard their cry and these words. (v. 7) Then I . . . rebuked the nobles and the rulers, and said unto them, Ye exact usury, every one of his brother . . . (v. 10) Restore, I pray you, to them even this day their lands, their vineyards, their olive groves, and their houses . . . (v. 12) Then said they, We will restore them . . . so will we do as thou sayest."

Honesty Required

"Thou shalt not have . . . divers weights, a great and a small. Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, a great and a small. But thou shalt have a perfect and a just weight, a perfect and a just measure shalt thou have." Deut. 25:13-15.

"A false balance is abomination to the Lord: but a just weight is his delight." Prov. 11:1.

Plowshares vs. Swords

"And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isa. 2:4.

So mote it be.

Brother Reiner in Distress

I had a letter from Brother Reiner this week telling me that he has some very pressing obligations to meet at once, and asking if I couldn't send him a check on the Journal account. I have $15.00 in the bank. I sent an SOS to Brother Allen, the conference treasurer, and he has sent me a check for $100. So that's $115. But that leaves a balance of $264.50 still due him. Some of you brethren have that money—or at least a good portion of it. Money! Money! Where is the money? Will you please send it in so I can send it on? Thanks. C. W. Bates, Secretary.

FIVE DAYS MORE—THAT ENDS THE TIME

When you read this, or rather when this issue of the HERALD comes to you, only five days will be at our command to finish the assessment on the churches for college indebtedness fund.

Since the statement appeared in the HERALD of April 11, the following churches and amounts reported raised by them to Treasurer Allen are listed:

Concord	$ 80.00
Mt. Hermon Charge	16.00
Kannapolis	15.00
Richland	50.00
Orange, Hebron	10.00
Mt. Hermon, Cedar Cliff	4.00
Granville, Union Chapel	4.00
Denton, Canaan	11.00
Shiloh	60.00
Winston, First	50.00
Orange	5.00
Mt. Pleasant, Mt. P.	41.25
Mt. Pleasant, Mt. H.	6.00
Tabernacle	11.00
Total	$ 363.25
Reported:
April 11	96.50
February 21	1,510.47
Grand Total	$1,970.22

Some other churches have raised their assessments but the monies have not been sent to Mr. Allen; the treasurer's report is to April 23. Pastors, please see that all monies raised are sent to Mr. Allen by May 1.

As you know, the Branch completed the $1,000 set in its budget of 1934-35 for the college. It has made a great start on the $1,000 set up for its 1935-36 budget by that special offering taken at the Branch meeting in Asheboro—$650.00. Wasn't that great? Reports say that more will come in before May 1; this will mean the Branch will be well on towards its new year's college budget in a few days, and have it out of the way for the many other things the Branch has undertaken to do.

Now, pastors and church officials, there is still time to meet the obligation upon your charge. If there is the will I am sure there is a way.

Twenty-five dollars direct to college from Grace church and $5.00 direct from Union Chapel church swells the total above listed to $2,070.22; this with the $1,000 from the Branch makes a grand total of $3,070.22. (The special offering of $600 at the Branch meeting has not come in yet; it will be listed in due time.)

If pastors will check charges listed in the HERALD February 21, April 11, and in this report, it can be seen at once which charges have made no payment on college assessment, either on last conference year or on this conference year. Brother pastor, are you in either list or in both lists marked "missing"? If you are, don't stay in that column.

Come on—let us make a final charge—and go over the top!

COMPLETING THE UNDERTAKING

By REV. W. A. LEDFORD

The rabbis have a story that Moses, while tending Jethro's flock, went in search of a lost lamb; and finding it tired and weary, put it on his shoulders and carried it home. The act of gentleness, tenderness and kindness so pleased God that Moses was made shepherd of Israel all his long life. There are three stories in the fifteenth chapter of Luke which far surpass the Moses story both in tenderness and human interest. They also increase step by step in intensity of meaning as the number diminishes.

These parables teach both the possibility and the probability of universal straying among men. Some stray away aimlessly, as did the lost sheep; others are caused to stray through the carelessness and neglect of others; while yet others deliberately and willfully go astray, as did the prodigal son, loving the wide world better than the father's house. Some have argued that since one out of a hundred sheep went astray, that only a few actually did go astray; but that view is contrary to what Jesus was teaching, namely, the preciousness of individual souls in God's sight, and the general teachings of the Scriptures. Isaiah wrote: "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every man to his own way." Paul in his letter to the Romans wrote: "All have sinned, and fall short of the glory of God." The universal atonement meets universal straying.

Note that neither the sheep, the coin, nor the son ceased to belong to their owners while lost. The desperate seeking of the shepherd, the diligent searching of the woman, and the patient watchfulness of the father can be accounted for on the ground that all were seeking their very own. The seriousness of the case is seen in that all were fatally and finally lost, if not recovered. Jesus took the matter so seriously as to give His life for the sheep. The most distressing fact in the modern church is the lack of concern for lost souls, and evangelistic passion.

"Until" is a key word in all three parables. The shepherd sought until he found his lost sheep; the woman searched diligently until she had found her lost coin; and the father kept watch until his son returned home. There is no hint of giving up until the lost is found. Difficult tasks, the careful search, and the long waiting, might have led some to say, "Well, I have done my best—all that I can do"; but that is not scriptural Christianity. Jesus said on another occasion, "Go and be reconciled to thy brother," and Paul wrote, "Restore those overtaken in a fault." There is left no doubt about the undertaking being done.

I can say with most evangelical ministers that I have had converts on my works every year of my ministry. But when I recall the number I have gone after and failed to win, and the large number of unsaved souls in my present parish, after four years working among them, I feel more like praying the prayer of the publican than boasting like the Pharisee. Jesus alone could say, "It is finished," while others have come short of the glory of God, and are only sinners saved by grace.

—Next Tuesday will tell the tale whether we have met the conditions necessary to the success of the College Campaign.

TERRY'S CHANCES

Terry Dempster and a good many of the other boys were on their way to school. They passed the first fruit stall at the corner. Terry said good morning to the woman who kept it. He was glad Will Mace stopped to buy bananas, because he liked to look at her. Her eyes and her hair were so black and her cheeks so red, and she wore such big gold hoops in her ears.

She gave Will the bananas, and while he was putting them into his book-bag she held out his change. Terry took it for him. One of the pennies he shoved back across the counter.

''She was giving you a cent too much,'' he exclaimed to Will, as he handed him the others.

''You are good at arithmetic, sonny,'' said Will. ''A penny isn't very much of a mistake.''

''Not if you are an Italian, anyway,'' agreed Terry, ''and aren't used to changing money in English.''

A big, red apple had rolled off the stall and along the street until it had turned the corner. Terry picked it up and ran back with it.

''You might have taken that with you,'' said Will. ''Nobody would have seen.''

Terry laughed. He did not seem to think that Will expected any other answer.

Two or three days later Terry was playing croquet at recess.

The game was getting very exciting. Terry's ball was in a bad position.

''You can move it out from the hedge, Terry,'' said one of the boys who was looking on. ''Wait! Let me show you.''

''Not so far as that I cannot,'' cried Terry. ''That is very far!''

''Oh, yes, you can,'' said the big boy, easily. ''You're all right now. Go ahead.''

''It's more than the length of a mallet,'' said Terry, measuring. ''I was sure it was.''

He moved the ball back six inches, and tried for his wicket. He missed. He lost the game.

''Isn't it a pity,'' said the big boy, ''that you can't cheat a little at croquet just for sport?''

''Don't you like to win?''

''Yes, when it's real,'' said Terry.

One day when school was out, Terry almost reached the corner where the fruit stand was. Suddenly he stopped short in dismay.

''Oh, dear! I'll have to go back. I left my copy-book. Miss Stone said I was to copy at home the page I blotted so much.''

''Tell her you forgot it,'' said Bobby Price.

''But only for half a block,'' said Terry. ''That wouldn't satisfy her, I guess.''

''I guess not,'' said Bobby. And he didn't say another word.

The weeks and the months went by until the first term of school was over and the second had begun. One Saturday afternoon Mrs. Dempster came home from town and hunted through the house for Terry.

''What do you think Miss Stone told me?''

''What?'' asked Terry, who regarded Miss Stone as the most delightful young woman in all the town.

''She said she liked to have my boy for a pupil. She thought the other boys were learning from him to be more honorable.''

''I guess Miss Stone didn't mean me,'' he said. ''I don't see how she could have meant me, because I can't remember ever being honorable before the other boys. I have not had any chance.''—Publisher Unknown.

A LITTLE GIRL'S FIRST DOUBT

A gifted Christian lady tells an interesting conversation she had one night with her children.

''Well, Mother,'' said her little daughter, ''I have had my first doubt.'' ''What was it?'' Mrs. S—— asked in surprise. ''Oh, Satan told me that God did not love me because I was such a naughty little girl, and he said I was a foolish child to believe that God loved me, even if my Mother did say He did.''

''What did you say?''

''Oh, I just said, 'Satan, I am going to believe it, and will believe it, so there'; and then he did not bother me any more.''

To one Satan says, ''God won't love you because you are naughty''; to another, ''You must become good before God will save you''; and to many he says that there is ''plenty of time to be saved.'' Don't believe Satan. Believe God's Word, which shows you that God loves you, whatever you are or have been. He waits to bless and save you. If you come to Jesus, you will be saved on the spot.—A. M., in Joy Bells.

SUCH A MOTHER

After one of the hard-fought battles of the war, a Confederate Chaplain was called hastily to see a dying soldier. Taking his hand, he said, ''Well, my brother, what can I do for you?''

He supposed, of course, the young fellow would want to cry to God for help in his extremity, but it was not so.

''Chaplain,'' he said, ''I want you to cut a lock of hair for my mother; and then, chaplain, I want you to kneel down and return thanks to God for me.''

''For what?'' asked the chaplain.

''For giving me such a mother. Oh! she is such a good mother. Her teachings are my comfort now. And then, chaplain, thank God that by His grace I am a Christian. What would I do now if I were not a Christian? And thank Him for dying grace. He makes this hard bed feel 'soft as downy pillows are.' And oh, chaplain, thank Him for the promised Home in Glory—I'll soon be there.''

''And so,'' said the chaplain, ''I knelt by his bed with not a petition to utter, only praise and thanksgiving for a good mother, a Christian hope, dying grace and an eternal hope in glory.''—Christian Observer.

CONFERENCE COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

T. J. WHITEHEAD, President
Burlington, N. C., R. 4

N. C. AND SOUTH REGIONAL CONVENTION

Upon me has been placed the responsibility of securing 295 delegates from North Carolina for the South Regional Convention to be held at High Point College May 29-31. I am therefore calling upon our pastors and church leaders throughout the conference to give me their hearty co-operation in this undertaking. A letter will go out to each superintendent and Christian Endeavor secretary this week explaining in detail just what is expected of each church. Since this great convention is to be held within the bounds of our conference, it is incumbent that we reach our quota 100 per cent. And this can be done if we take to heart the appeal and begin now to make preparations. Sunday, May 5, has been named as the day when you are to secure registrations and boost the convention.

Who May Go?

All those 15 years of age and up, and especially those who hold places of leadership in the church, and all prospective leaders.

Cost of Entertainment

By arrangement with the college the North Carolina delegates will receive their room and board at the college for $2.00. This will cover the entire stay. Delegates will bring their own linen and bed clothing.

Registration Campaign

Each person registering will pay an advanced registration fee of 50 cents. Those who register and find later they cannot go will receive a Convention Souvenir Booklet. These advanced registrations are to be sent to Rev. F. L. Gibbs, 3267 W. Liberty Ave., Room 208, Pittsburgh (16) Pa.

Convention Theme

"Christian Youth Building a New World." Some of the best that the Methodist Protestant church has to offer will be there to make it one of the most wonderful conventions we hope that has ever been held in the southern part of our church. Many years will intervene before you will ever have another such opportunity. If you are interested in giving to the Methodist Protestant church in the south a more consecrated and intelligent leadership, you cannot afford to stay away.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By L. R. MEDLIN, Henderson, N. C.

Topic for April 28, 1935: "How to Take Part in the Fellowship and Work of the Church."

Scripture Lesson: John 14:11-14.

This meeting affords both the church and the young people of the church an opportunity to talk things over and get a definite understanding as to just what each expects of the other. We often hear young people say the church is run by older people and primarily for older people, and so very often this is true. In so many cases the church program is made with little or no thought for the young people. On the other hand, the older folk are reluctant to trust major projects to the immature judgment and inexperience of the young folk. Frequently older leaders in the church are heard to remark, "We can't depend upon the young people. O, yes, they will promise, and doubtless their intentions at the time are perfectly good, but somehow it's very easy for them to be led away from their obligation. They just don't assume responsibility."

But let's talk it over at this meeting. Let's reach a practical decision. Young folk, let's let the church know that we can assume responsibility, that we can be depended on.

Have a place on the program for some adult leader of the church to tell the young folk what the church would like to expect of them. Then have some young person to speak for the group in saying what the young folk expect from the church and its adult constituency.

Then have a report from a committee previously appointed to survey the church needs and the fields for possible improvement, as to projects within the ability of the young folk to accomplish. This committee should interview the pastor, the different church boards and committees for suggestion. After the report from this committee, adopt at least one of the projects recommended to begin immediate work on.

Select songs and talks that are in keeping with the general theme. Use such hymns as: "The Church's One Foundation," "I Am Happy in the Service of the King," "Give of Your Best to the Master," "To the Work," "Where He Leads Me." Have one or more prayers on leadership into more and greater fields of usefulness in the church.

The C. E. World Quarterly suggests the following pledge: "I will be Christian. I will serve in God's Kingdom and in God's church with a glad heart."

JOHN PICKETT INJURED

The daily press reports the serious injury to John Pickett, one of the leaders in our First church, High Point, on last Saturday evening. Brother Pickett was crossing the street in front of his home when struck by a car. He was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull and other serious injuries. At the last report he was still unconscious. We trust he may be spared for many more years of service, both to the church and to the city of High Point, where he is an important city official as well as a business man of considerable proportions.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

Helping in a meeting in a certain mountain section of our conference, I was taken to the home of one of the members for the night while the pastor went home on some business.

It was a one-room cabin with a big fireplace. Everything was nice and clean. I began wondering where I was going to sleep after going in the house, for there was only one room. A big room and two old-fashioned high beds in the rear. I cast glances at the loft, but saw no signs of a way to get up there. The white sheets on the beds concealed what was under them. They made up a fire, for it was in October. The lamp was an old-fashioned kerosene burner, without any globe. There was a table near the fireplace and soon the pots were put on the fireplace and supper started. Well, it was a good supper. Plain food but well cooked. I might say deliciously cooked, as all who remember the old way of cooking made it good. After supper I again began to wonder if I was to be hung on a nail, for the two beds, mother and father, two girls about grown, and two smaller children, boys. I wondered if I were going to have to sleep with those boys after all the good supper they had eaten. I knew they would be "seeing things" in their sleep.

After prayer the mother and the two girls began to get things ready for sleep. They took off that top covering and pulled out two trundle beds from under these big old fellows that began to look so inviting to a tired preacher. I drew a sigh of relief. They stretched a curtain between my bed and the one upon which the parents and the girls slept. The boys were between me and the fireplace. I was too high up to notice whether they were restless or not. Suppose they were accustomed to big suppers. Well, I pulled in, the light was dim, and knew nothing of surroundings till next morning early, when I was awakened, everything was cleared up. The boys were out helping their father about the morning work. It was cold and frosty. Those girls were helping about breakfast barefooted. I got up, took my shoes and sat down by a big oven on the hearth, put on my shoes and made myself at home. That was my first of many experiences of wholesale sleeping and dressing. The breakfast was soon "taken up," for then it was not taken off. Big white, puffy biscuits, big as a grapefruit, yet thoroughly baked, squirrel and butter and honey. Fine breakfast? Do you ask me? Plenty of it and it was not necessary to have any doubts, for everything was spotlessly clean. Such a meal would put to shame many of the more formal breakfasts that one runs up against these days. I say that advisedly. Laborious? To be sure. But they knew how to do right with what they had. To my mind that was a regular Mary and Martha home. They were righteous folks and showed their good sense in many ways that people of better opportunities and facilities for doing better fail.

Another novel way I found on some of those old beds that are now bringing big prices in the antique shops. They put you perhaps on a cotton mattress and in the winter time covered you with feathers. It was a fine arrangement in those open houses to keep one warm if he had a partner—bedfellow. But woe be to you if you were alone, as I was in those days, for that was my first experience; for if you happen to be restless and turned about much in bed, the feathers would divide before morning and you had something like saddle bags covering you while the feathers had shaken down to either side. Such changes as have taken place even in the remote sections of our state in the last thirty years. If our spiritual progress had been as rapid as our material, the Prince of Peace would have been reigning over the world and war clouds would not be threatening any part of our world.

It is true we boast of our progress, and we have made it, no doubt, but we are a long ways from keeping an even pace. Mr. Edison made the remark just a little while before he died that he did not believe the Lord would let us make any great discoveries or startling inventions until we caught up spiritually He expressed himself as thinking that we were not evenly balanced. Too much optimism without faith, may be as dangerous as too much pessimism.

MY IMPRESSION OF THE FACULTY OF WESTMINSTER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

By L. E. Mabry

When we contemplate entering any institution of higher learning we always study its catalogue for location, academic rating, etc. But one of the most important things for our consideration upon entering any school is its faculty. The buildings may be the best that skill and money can construct, the equipment may also be to the last word modern, but unless there is along with this physical equipment a competent faculty, the school, however large or small it may be, is greatly handicapped in the best service to its pupils and those it seeks to serve. It is not the buildings and physical equipment, however good they are, that go into the growth and development of strong, scholarly graduates of an institution, but the very life and experience of the different faculty members Let it not be understood that buildings. libraries, and equipment in general do not play a large part in the life of the student; but along with these must go a faculty that is awake to every need of the individual pupil.

Here at Westminster Theological Seminary I feel that we have a faculty of such a nature that none other could be wished for. It is true they have not conquered nor mastered all knowledge, but each one is a scholar in his particular field that will measure favorably with the faculty of other institutions of higher learning. This faculty has come into its present place not because other doors of opportunity were closed, but because there was an urge, a feeling that wonderful service could be rendered, not only to the Methodist Protestant church, but to all churches that wished to patronize this school of the prophets. In this connection a very noticeable thing is apparent here. Not only do Methodist Protestants attend the school, but I find here a dozen or more other churches represented by their ministerial students studying here. All denominations of this vicinity patronize this institution. Just the past Sunday I preached for a Reformed minister in a neighboring town who had received his S. T. D. degree from Westminster Seminary. He spoke in highest praise of the seminary, and in a special way concerning the fine faculty. This, to me, is a fine trait. That we are able to have here a faculty that not only attracts our own men and women here for study from all parts of the world, but other denominations as well.

Another thing that speaks well for this institution and its faculty is the fact that it has such a large family of graduates, all of whom remain loyal to the ideals of the school. This seems to be brought about largely by their great love and respect for the members of the faculty. It seems that these graduates do not outgrow the institution nor the instruction of the faculty, but even after they have gone out into the active ministry they still consult their instructors they had while here.

We have here age and youth. May the mantle of these older members fall worthily upon some responsible shoulder, that the noble work of the faculty of Westminster Theological Seminary may go on.

In the voices of these faculty members there seems to come the words of the Master: "Learn of me."

FIFTH DISTRICT RALLY

The spring quarterly rally for the fifth district will be held at Midway Methodist Protestant church on Sunday afternoon, April 28, at 3 o'clock, with the pastor, Rev. J. R. Hutton, as host.

All departments of our church work will be discussed briefly. "Me and My Church" will be the theme of the principal address to be delivered by Rev. J. Clay Madison, pastor of the First M. P. church in High Point. Dr. Joy Glasscock will give a report on the annual Branch meeting of the Woman's Work, held recently in Asheboro. "The Herald" will be discussed by its editor, Dr. J. E. Pritchard.

Special music will be rendered by a mixed quartet from Grace church and also a solo, "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," by Wayne A. Hornaday, Jr. The chairman, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, will preside at the meeting.

REV. W. F. ASHBURN VISITS GREENSVILLE CIRCUIT

Over the past week-end Rev. W. F. Ashburn, one of our honored superannuates living in Greensboro, visited three of the churches on Greensville charge, a people that he formerly served. While the rain kept most of the people away from church, yet Brother Ashburn reports a good time seeing friends of other days. He returned home on Tuesday.

—Mountain farmers of Graham county have purchased 5,800 pounds of lespedeza seed for demonstration plantings this season.

—Tobacco farmers of Greene county received $170,000 in tobacco parity checks during the past week.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Shoals, Pinnacle-Mt. Zion Charge.—Our pastor filled his regular appointment the past Sunday at 11 o'clock. His message was well received by a very attentive number. We had our first communion service Sunday.

Our Sunday school is improving and we have very good attendance, although there are a number who could attend that do not. So we all wish to give them a hearty welcome to attend.

Everyone, I am sure, is glad to learn that Misses Joyce Hauser and Ozell Scott are walking again. Joyce was at Sunday school Sunday for the first time since the school bus accident. We were very glad to have her back with us.

Mr. Morris and wife took lunch Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Holloway. They also went visiting here in Shoals Sunday afternoon. All were very glad to have them in their homes. They are so friendly, and seem very easy to make friends. I'm sure everyone in our community loves them and can hardly wait for the second Sundays to come so they will get to be with us. Bro. Morris gets better preaching every time he is with us. He has always been grand, but naturally the more we are around him the more we think about him, and become more interested in his preaching. REPORTER.

(This came too late last week.—Ed.)

Tabernacle-Julian.—In spite of the heavy downfall of rain, Easter services were observed at both Tabernacle and Julian in a most beautiful manner. Communion was observed on Thursday night at Tabernacle. Our people had been very busy in their farm work at that time but the attendance was just a bit better than last year. This shows an increasing appreciation of this service with our people. A sunrise service had been appointed for the Tabernacle cemetery and plans for this service were more extensive this year than on any of the services heretofore observed, this being the third. But the heavy rains meant attendance was not so large. There is every evidence that this service has grown in favor. At the morning hour we were at Julian, where an Easter program was rendered in conjunction with the regular morning worship. Special music had been prepared and the program was beautifully rendered. In the afternoon at Tabernacle the Easter program was rendered by the children, and at the night service the young people rendered the beautiful pageant "Easter Victory." All these services were interesting and the programs were well rendered. Easter Sunday was a full day with us, and when bedtime came we were tired and ready to sleep, but we were happy for we felt that we had a good day. Offerings were not what we would have liked for them to have been, but considering weather conditions it was thought that the attendance as well as the offerings were good.

There is now little doubt but that we will be able to reach "over the top" on college by the end of the month. We are then to go into the McCulloch Memorial Fund, which we hope to put "over the top" in due time. For reasons we thought justifiable we have not launched plans to raise this fund until now. It is hoped that this will prove to be the most opportune time for this work.

A new Edison-Dick mimeograph which produces beautiful bulletins for the services at both churches is one of our latest improvements.

Among our sick is Mrs. Mary Trogdon. Mrs. Trogdon's home has been the preacher's home through the years. Her many friends will be glad to know that she is improving

Bro. Grady Coble, of Greensboro, but who is a member of Tabernacle, is in Clinic Hospital because of a fall which resulted in an injured knee. We trust he will soon recover.
GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Orange Charge.—The second quarterly conference will meet with Union Grove church Saturday, May 4, at 2 p. m. All officials requested to be present. Important business.
B. M. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Shelby.—The Shelby church is getting along nicely. We are all very happy over the interest that is being shown. Many of us were very sorry when our revival closed last week. Mr. W. Earl Armstrong, of Gastonia, conducted the services during the revival. To me he is one of the finest preachers I ever heard. He won souls for Christ that made many of us feel more forcibly the power of God. Our church was full each service. Everyone that heard him was inspired. We trust, with the prayers of the Christian people, that these services will continue to live in all our hearts. There were 70 souls won for Christ. Nine people joined the church.

The Western Pastors' Federation will meet with us on May 13. We are very happy to have it here, and hope that each of them will enjoy their stay with us. The church is glad at any time to have visitors.

We ask the prayers of the people to help us on our way for keeping Christ's work continuing.
MILDRED RAMSEY, Reporter.

Flat Rock Charge.—Since the reporters at the different churches have been requested to write the reports for Flat Rock charge this year, the pastor has not been writing much. However, we desire to give a report of our second quarterly conference which was held on Saturday, April 13, at Bethel church. All except one of the churches were represented in the attendance, Bethany church not having any members present. The reports given by the pastor and Sunday school superintendents revealed the usual progress during the past quarter. Finances were not as good as at the first quarterly conference. Among the items of business transacted was the election of nominees for delegate to the next Annual Conference. Bro. T. F. Humphreys, of Bethany church, and Bro. H. M. Combs, of Bethel church, were nominated, and these brethren will be voted for in the elections to be held at each church during the month of June. They are both splendid men and either of them would serve very acceptably at our next Annual Conference.

The pastor and family have been ermembered constantly with appropriate gifts from the following: Dr. and Mrs. V. E. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pegram, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Pegram, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Friddle, Mr. and Mrs. James Payne, Mr. and Mrs. George Thacker, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Troxler, Miss Ida Wray, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sharron, Mrs. Sallie White, Mr. and Mrs. John Albert, and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Middleton.

Plans are being made for the special dedicatory services to be held at Gideon's Grove church the second Sunday in June. Dr. R. M. Andrews will deliver the sermon at 11 a. m., and Rev. J. R. Hutton and Rev. J. P. Pegg, former pastors, are expected to speak during the afternoon. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey, held his appointment at Clark's Chapel on the second Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Taking as his text the ninth verse of the 13th chapter of Matthew, he gave us a splendid sermon.

We voted to change the appointments to the second Sunday evening at 7:30 and the fourth Sunday morning at 11 in order not to conflict with services at some other churches. We are having a good attendance at all services, and a splendid Sunday school. We are hoping to carry out the "Lord's Acre" plan in our church this year.

Our Ladies' Aid Society meets at the church every second Wednesday of the month. We have had a good attendance at the meetings and co-operation in the work.

The Ladies' Aid and Christian Endeavor Societies have had new roofing put on part of the parsonage, and we hope to accomplish many things during the year.
MRS. CLYDE BLANKENSHIP, Reporter.

Asheboro.—The following persons were received into the Asheboro church at the morning service last Sunday: Mrs. Albert Akin, Miss Mae Richardson, Mrs. Delphia Smith, Mr. William Howard Hughes, Mr. Joseph Hughes, and Mr. Burley Trogdon. We gladly and prayerfully welcome them to our communion.

The day was a good one with us, although the weather conditions were not conducive to large congregations. However, our attendance, upon the whole, was gratifying. "Easter Victory," the drama provided by our Board of Missions, depicting the resurrection of our Savior, was pleasingly given in the evening service.

Our sick are still improving, although still confined to home and hospital. Mr. Clarence Lovett is at home again after several weeks' treatment at our local hospital. So are Mrs. W. L. Ward and Robert. Mrs. Ward was in the same hospital for an operation, and Robert because of injury sustained in an automobile accident. Mrs. L. F. Ross has just undergone an operation at the same hospital. Her condition is good, and everything seems favorable for a timely recovery. Miss Louise Swaim, our efficient chorister, is still confined to her room. We trust that she is gradually improving. Bro. R. R. Ross, our veteran church member and honored citizen, is enfeebled from age, and able to be up but little. He is always glad to see his friends.

The Branch meeting left us with happy recollections. Blessings on the work and the workers for the new year.

It was a pleasure to us that Bro. E. G. Lowdermilk, one of the three surviving charter members of this church, could be with us in a recent service. He offered the opening prayer. We want him to come again.

S. W. TAYLOR.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—Sunday, April 14, our pastor, Brother Trolinger, started a series of sermons leading up to and including Christ's crucifixion and resurrection Services each evening at 8 o'clock. I never heard any better explanations on this series of Scripture in my life. I certainly have been helped along the narrow way, and am sure many others did also from their testimonies. Many didn't attend that we feel should have attended. But we have no complaint to offer, as it is for them and their God. Excuses and reasons are two different factors; most of us have excuses.

Sunday (Easter) we had a sunrise service. Although it was raining, we had a most wonderful experience. We didn't get to carry out the program as intended on account of the rain, but I can say I hope never to pass another Easter morning without being in a service of this kind. I hope I have the privilege of going to one somewhere. There is something thrilling I cannot explain about it.

At 11 o'clock Easter we had an Easter program, which was carried out very nicely. Some of the children were absent on account of the rain, but it was nice. A very good collection for missions also was taken. Sunday evening the series of sermons was ended with the subject "Christ's Resurrection." I wish we had the privilege of such Biblical instructions more often than we do. We thank Brother Trolinger for this extra work. Don't forget our service Sunday, April 28. Sunday school 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. Everybody is invited.

L. W. McCOY, Reporter.

Denton.—We are indeed proud of the fine work which is going on in Denton church. Mr. and Mrs. Bowman are putting forth every effort possible to make this year a success.

Last Sunday was the regular preaching service. Our pastor used for his subject "The Power of an Endless Life." A special song was sung by Mrs. Bowman entitled "I Know My Redeemer Lives."

An Easter pageant entitled "Easter Victory," directed by Max Rogers, was given Sunday evening at 7:30. The characters in this pageant were: Abigail, a widow of Jerusalem, Marjorie Cranford; Judith, her daughter, Annie Lee Floyd; Ruth, another daughter, Kathryn Sexton; Caleb, her son, Exell Surratt; Mary of Bethany, Mrs. J. T. Bowman; Martha of Bethany, Mrs. John Michell; Lazarus of Bethany, Dexter Short; Joses, a wealthy landowner of Bethany, Marshall Floyd; Cornelia, Jerusalem girl, Ruth Floyd; Eunice, Jerusalem girl, Mrs. Dexter Short.

After the pageant "He Arose" was pantomimed, which was very impressive.

Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of our North Carolina Conference, will be with us at 7:30 the fourth Sunday, April 28.

A special Mother's Day program is being planned by the Junior Philathea Class. It will be given at the 11 o'clock service. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Inza Hill, Jacqueline Cameron, and Wesley Morris, students at High Point College, were home during the Easter holidays.

REPORTER.

Pine Bluff, Midland Charge.—It has been quite a while since a report has gone in from our church. We are proud to say that our pastor, Rev. J. H. Trolinger, was able to fill his regular appointment last Sunday. We had a very interesting program. I think everyone enjoyed it.

Our Sunday school is getting along just fine, and we hope it will remain that way We had a very large crowd at church last Sunday, considering the weather. We are still trying to improve our Sunday school and we hope it will be successful.

BESSIE VONCANNON, Reporter.

Kistler's Union, Cleveland Charge. — The work of our church has been moving along nicely since our last report.

The second quarterly conference of this charge was held in our church Saturday afternoon, March 30. Official members from each church were present. Several ladies came out, which showed the interest they held for this work. Good reports were given and everyone seemed interested in his or her church's welfare.

We are indeed glad to report that new lights have just recently been installed in our new church which adds much to the church auditorium.

Bro. Troxler remembers us each first and third Sunday with his wonderful sermons.

Our Sunday school is still on the increase. The children's department rendered a short Easter program Sunday morning.

We are glad to report our part of the college claims paid in full, and we are hoping to be able to raise other claims in the future.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met at its usual hour. A very good program was given. Several members failed to be present. We hope as the weather gets better interest will grow.

TULA IVESTER, Reporter.

Gibsonville.—Rev. R. C. Stubbins delivered an Easter message Sunday morning at 11 o'clock with special music by the choir. We were happy to welcome six members into the church, Ruth Ellen Yow, Betsy Neil Hammer and Agnes Adkins from the junior class in the hut on profession of faith, and Mr. and Mrs. Adkins and their daughter, Iris, coming by letter from the M. E. church in Schoolfield, Va. This makes 11 members received into our church during the last three months.

The fellowship dinner sponsored by the stewards of the church was held Saturday evening, March 23, in the high school cafeteria. About 150 people were seated at the tables. Dr. R. M. Andrews and Dr. P. E. Lindley were the special invited guests. Dr. Lindley gave an interesting and instructive talk about the work of the church. Two song selections were given by our local talent. Many interesting and amusing games were used. All present had a happy time together. The amount realized from this dinner paid our Annual Conference claims in full with the exception of a part of our college assessment. We are sorry to report that Mrs. D. M. Davidson, president of our Auxiliary and teacher of the Woman's Class, was carried to Wesley Long Hospital, Greensboro, for an operation. We wish for Mrs. Davidson a speedy recovery. Rev. Mr. Stubbins conducted the funeral Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock of little Jimmie Donald Beckom, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Beckom. Our sympathy goes out to these grief-stricken parents. May they look to the Heavenly Father for comfort.

REPORTER.

First Church, Burlington.—Our Sunday school attendance was 196 last Sunday. The children of the Primary department gave a good program during the Sunday school hour. Special music was rendered by Mrs. Floy Rogers, Mrs. Paul Cobb, Mrs. Melvin Wilson, and Miss Carlene Crutchfield.

During our week of pre-Easter services our pastor used for his messages the last sayings of Jesus on the cross.

We extend a hearty welcome to the following people who united with our church last Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Pickard, Mr. C. N. Forrester, and Mr. Vernell Murray.

On Easter Sunday a Bible was presented to the church in memory of Langston L. Wilson, a deceased soldier, by his comrades.

MABEL THORNBURG, Reporter.

Albemarle.—Our second quarterly conference was held last Wednesday night a week ago with a large number present. Mr. D. F. Helms and Mr. C. L. Hatley were elected nominees for the Annual Conference.

Our pastor preached a very inspiring sermon Sunday morning, using for his subject, "When they came to the place called Calvary, where love met sin." A very impressive communion service was also held. At the evening service a splendid program was given, including a play which characterized the death and the resurrection of Christ. The program was under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Hornbuckle, Mrs. C. B. Efird, and Mrs. J. P. Green.

Rev. Mr. Williams is planning to hold a revival in Enfield this week. Mr. Pat Leonard and his orchestra will bring us a sermon in music next Sunday at 11 o'clock in the absence of our pastor.

Mr. Ira Smart has been a patient in the Yadkin hospital but has returned home now. We are sorry to report that the condition of Mr. H. L. Lowder is not much better.

DORIS HATLEY, Reporter.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Rev. A. D. Shelton filled his appointment Sunday morning. The Easter program was held Sunday night. The weather was bad and the congregation was not so good.

Our revival meeting will start the first Sunday in May. Our pastor has been preaching some inspiring sermons, and we feel like we will have a good meeting.

Last Tuesday night quite a few of the members met at the church and went from there to the home of Rev. and Mrs. G. F.

Millaway and gave them a very nice pounding, consisting of things that are good to eat. We all love Mr. and Mrs. Millaway very much.

Mrs. Martindale made a very interesting talk Sunday morning at Sunday school. She is the teacher of the St. Martin Class.

The Royal Blue Class held a business meeting last Thursday night and elected new officers.

There are plans on foot now to cover the church. We hope it goes through, for it is badly needed.

Sorry to report that Mrs. R. C. Lineberry remains quite ill. Her condition seems to be growing worse in the last week. Mr. J. S. Wade has been on the sick list for the last four weeks but is better at this time.

Henderson.—The Henderson church observed Passion Week and Easter with programs appropriate for the season. The program for the week got under way with a special arrangement for Palm Sunday. A small cross made of palms was given each person attending the morning worship service. Our church co-operated with the other churches in the city in a union effort that was decidedly gratifying. Each morning of Passion Week at 8:30 o'clock a 30-minute service was held in one of the churches with a different minister delivering the message each morning. Each service was well attended and very favorable impressions made.

The pastor was especially pleased with the Easter services. In spite of unfavorable weather good attendance was had for the services of the day. The very beautiful cantata, "From Death Unto Life," by Stults, was offered by the combined young people's and adult choirs of the church. This program was under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Fox, the director of our adult choir. Our choirs worked diligently for several weeks on this program and the presentation reflected creditably upon both leader and the members of the choirs.

The pastor and four delegates attended the very fine Branch meeting recently held in Asheboro.

The fourth Sunday in April is designated as College Sunday in the Henderson church and we are hoping to raise our college assessment.

Winston-Salem, First Church.—Dear Folks: We are very well and hope you are the same. As an evidence of good health, I will cite the following:

One of the best Easter exercises, or services, that I have been in in spite of the bad weather. The Junior choir sang, the children recited, six new members were received into church on confession of faith, and an extra good attendance at the Unified Easter service.

We have completed getting our McCulloch Fund subscribed. We have paid our college apportionment in full.

We began some weeks ago a financial campaign in which we are using as a slogan: "Half way out at the half way date." That, of course, means May 28. The campaign was a bit slow getting started, but it's taking on momentum, and looks now like we might make it all right.

The Sunday school attendance has been running from 10 to 15 above the attendance a year ago.

I don't know whether it is a sign of good health or not, but at the quarterly conference last week it was voted to discontinue the night services until fall. Knowing the conditions under which we are forced to hold our evening services and the poor attendance which naturally results, that isn't as bad as it sounds. We will concentrate on the morning service, with the expectation that that will more than offset the failure to hold an evening service.

This preacher is to be away the next two Sundays. Brother C. H. Whitaker will fill the pulpit the last Sunday in this month, and Dr. P. S. Kennett the first Sunday in May. On the second Sunday in May I will be back in the pulpit for a Mother's Day service.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—It seems that much work has been done since our last report. The Branch meeting which was held in Asheboro was well attended by the women of Shiloh. Thirteen members of our Auxiliary attended this meeting and hope by the information gained that we will be able to make this our best year of worthwhile accomplishments.

The second quarterly conference of Shiloh charge was held at Friendship church April 13. Shiloh was well represented by 16 official members. The reports were encouraging. Sunday school attendance was fine—an average of 223 for the first quarter. The prayer services are proving a live organization in our church. One of our class leaders, Mr. Jeff Fritts, keeps a record of the attendance. The average attendance at prayer meeting for the first quarter was 75. Mr. Fritts began his work as one of the class leaders only a few years ago. He reported that at the first prayer service he attended at Shiloh there were 15 present and the last prayer meeting held there were 149 present. Not only has the number grown, but the increased interest is encouraging. The prayer meeting next Sunday will be in charge of the Intermediate Boys' Class, of which Mr. Ira Koonts is teacher.

The trustees reported to the conference the progress being made on the parsonage which is also encouraging. The stewards' report read as follows: Paid C. E. Ridge, pastor, 5 months' salary, $375; paid to J. H. Allen, treasurer, A. C. expense, $33; college, $36; superannuates, $18; A. C. deficit, $15; church extension, $15; local church expense, $28.25, thus making a total of $520.25.

Two marriages have taken place at Shiloh during the Easter season. Mr. Floyd Leonard and Miss Sylva Fritts were united in marriage at the home of the groom's pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, Thursday, April 18, 1935. Mr. Leonard, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Leonard, of Lexington, is one of Shiloh's promising young men, now serving as church choir director. Mrs. Leonard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Fritts, of Reeds. Our best wishes for much success go to these young people.

Mr. Paul Swicegood and Miss Alma Koonts were united in marriage at the home of their pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, Saturday, April 20, 1935. Mr. Swicegood is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Swicegood, and Mrs. Swicegood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Koonts, all of Shiloh. These young people seem to take a great interest in the work of the church, and we hope that they may have the best of success together.

The C. E. Society presented an Easter pageant entitled "The Cross of Light" Sunday night. The program proved successful and a very large crowd attended, considering the rainy weather.

This report seems rather lengthy, but I must take space enough to say that Rev. C. E. Ridge filled his appointment Sunday morning. His subject was "The Christian's Hope." Text, John 14:19. He seemed to have driven the truth to the individual's heart. The fact of the Resurrection of Christ is to be shown to the world through the assurance of the resurrection in the individual heart.

Christians, continue to pray for us in the work of the Kingdom.

Pleasant Union, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—On Sunday, April 21, we observed our Easter services. This being the third Sunday, Rev. Mr. Braxton could not be with us. Our program included two items, a pantomime and a dramatization. This pantomime was given by the Primary department and Ruth Bowman, teacher. The pageant was given by members of Pleasant Union Sunday school. The title was "Easter Victory." Those taking part were: Frances Causey, Wella Shepard, Anne Mae Keck, Ruby Shepard, Ruth Staley, Julia Mae Curtis, Frances Curtis, Russell, Dwigh and Howard Bowman. This program was directed by Florence and Ruth Bowman.

We are glad to say that we are now using our new song book which we received last month.

Lincolnton.—Well, here we are with a good report for the last month. Our Sunday school collection each Sunday has been as follows: April 7, $21; April 14, $22.85, and April 21, $22.06. Attendance was good.

Our Easter programs were good. The young people conducted a sunrise service, and the children an evening service, and the offering was good.

Our revival meeting started Easter Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour, the message running along the line of the Resurrection of our risen Lord. We are expecting a soul-stirring and soul-saving revival. We realize prayer changes things and that is why we are asking you praying people to pray with us that this meeting may be a glorious success in the sight of God and man.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our Easter program was carried out splendidly last night, Sunday, April 21. Although the attendance was not so large, we greatly appreciate the interest of those present.

On the second Sunday, our regular preaching, Rev. T. J. Whitehead brought us a very inspiring message. An offering was also taken for High Point College.

We are sorry to say that Mr. Mike Payne has been seriously ill again, although he is somewhat better now.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Morris

Mrs. Julia E. Morris, widow of the late T. C. Morris, was born 62 years ago, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. T. Butler, 1015 South Main street, Tuesday, April 9, 1935. She was born in Randolph county June 3, 1873, and was the daughter of Noah and Jane Crotts Morgan.

When 14 years of age, she professed religion and joined Piney Grove Methodist Protestant church. In 1891 she was married to T. C. Morris and moved away from Piney Grove community. Sometime thereafter she transferred her membership to Liberty M. P. church, this church being more easily accessible than Piney Grove. Some 17 years ago, after moving to High Point, she transferred her fembership to Welch Memorial church here. Of this church she lived a consistent member to the time of her death.

Surviving are three sons, T. F. and N. F. Morris, of this city, and Pearl Morris, of Knoxville, Tenn.; two daughters, Mrs. T. C. Talbert, of Pinson, N. C., and Mrs. J. T. Butler, of High Point; three brothers, I. L., T. C. and S. B. Morgan, of Seattle, Wash.; two sisters, Mrs. Mattie Sechrest, of this city, and Mrs. Early Loflin, of Thomasville. Also 16 grandchildren and one great-grandchild survive. Many friends and neighbors join the bereaved family in mourning her departure. While all are saddened because of her going, none feels the stroke more heavily than the daughter with whom she lived—Mrs. Butler. May the Lord bind up all these broken hearts, and may this loss of mother draw the children closer to Him, and some day may this be an unbroken family in that land where there is no death.

In the absence of the pastor, Dr. Williams, the writer and Rev. C. E. Ridge, of Lexington, conducted the funeral, which was largely attended. Her body now lies beside her husband in the family burying plot in Oakwood cemetery, in High Point.

> "The pains of death are passed,
> Labor and sorrows cease;
> Life's long warfare is closed,
> And Mother is home at last."

Angel

Mrs. Laura Frances Angel was born in Guilford county December 27, 1872, and was the daughter of P. H. and Mary Lasley Pegram. Most of her life was spent in Rockingham county, where she lived happily with her husband, Penn Henley Angel, to whom she was married on February 4, 1892. Her husband preceded her in death on March 29, 1927. Since 1928 she had made her home in Winston-Salem where she was well known, not only in her religious life, but in the business and civic activities of the city.

It became evident about two years ago that her health was failing, and for the past ten months her condition had been serious, she being confined in a hospital during that period. The end of her physical suffering came on the morning of April 9 at 8:20 o'clock when she peacefully fell asleep. Her age was 62 years, 3 months and 12 days.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Cassie Angel, of Winston-Salem, and Miss Mabel Madeline Angel, of Washington, D. C.; one son, Coy C. Angel, of Stokesdale; her mother, Mrs. Mary Lasley Pegram, of Stokesdale; three sisters, Miss Alice Pegram, of Greensboro; Mrs. J. H. Wilson, of Madison; Miss Era Pegram, of Guilford College; two brothers, J. W. Pegram, of Guilford College, and S. A. Pegram, of Stokesdale. Two grandchildren also survive, besides a large number of nephews and nieces and other relatives.

Mrs. Angel was a charter member of Gideon's Grove Methodist Protestant church, on Flat Rock charge, and remained a faithful and consistent member until her transfer from the church militant to the Church Triumphant. We are told that she was one of the most active members during the early years of the church and remained loyal and devoted to the church until her change of residence from the Gideon's Grove community to Winston-Salem. Her interest in her church never failed and she attended its services when it was possible.

Funeral services were held from the residence, 2028 Queen street, Winston-Salem, April 10 at 1:30 p. m. and at Gideon's Grove church at 3 p. m. Assisting the writer in the service at the church was Rev. J. B. Trogdon, of Randleman, a former pastor of the church. Bro. Trogdon conducted the funeral service for Mrs. Angel's husband while he was pastor of Gideon's Grove church in 1927. Special music was rendered during the services for Mrs. Angel by the Vogler male quartet at the service in the residence, and by the Angel male quartet, Mrs. J. B. Trogdon and Wilson Angel at the service in the church. Mrs. Trogdon and Wilson Angel each rendered a solo. The church was filled to overflowing, all available space being crowded, and many people remained outside during the service.

If Mrs. Angel could speak a message to us she would say:

> "Beyond the dear hills we shall soon pass away,
> A bright heavenly country to view,
> Where Jesus awaits at the pearly white gates,
> I'd like to live there with you."

And to those who may not have hope in Jesus she would say:

> "The years are so many to spend in that home,
> And happiness there ever new,
> Oh! won't you prepare now that bright home to share,
> I'd like to live there with you."

And to all of us she would say:

> "We have passed many milestones together down here,
> Up there we will pass them anew,
> And sing songs of love in that city above,
> I'd like to live there with you."

WHEN CHRIST USED A WHIP

By Karl Stein

Once when Jesus was in Jerusalem during the Jews' Passover, he found in God's temple merchants and people who sold oxen, sheep, and doves, and who handled money for profit for themselves. With a whip which he made from knotted cords he drove them out of the place, and with them he put out their merchandise. He set the doves free. He cast out all of the evidence of the material, mercenary transactions which had been in the temple. In the 16th verse of the second chapter of St. John are the words that he used: "And he said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house a house of merchandise." And in the next verse it is written: "And his disciples remembered that it was written, The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up."

The people in the Lord's temple had become so zealous in their work of promoting the financial and business side of the church they served that they were too busy to remember and to do the things they should have done. Because of their work the once glorious church of the Almighty now possessed not the slightest resemblance to what it had been. Holiness had fled. Money exchanges had replaced it! The temple had become something like a stock exchange.

No wonder Jesus drove them out and turned over their tables. What that church stood for was so far removed from his principles that it was not of him.

God's church is meant to be a church of power, a church potent in the work of saving souls, ministering to humanity, and promoting Christian programs for God and for humanity. God's church is meant to be a church of progress. It stands for the finest ideals and programs. It stands for all of the things which are best for man.

But if the Savior returned now, might he not again employ a scourge? He would find churches in which prayer rooms are replaced by kitchens, and tithing and free-will giving replaced to a great extent by bazaars, suppers, and entertainments under the auspices of church people for the purpose of raising money for the church. Yet, so long as it does not become the greatest concern, raising money is all right. But some of the means for doing it are subject to questioning. And Jesus would find that the great modern automobiles are often taking men, women and children away from the churches on Sunday to places which should not be open on the Sabbath, the day—the one day—that God has reserved for himself, and the day that is to be kept holy.

And there are many other secular things that occupy the attention of church members. Of course, we are living in an age that is not the first century. Many things have changed indeed, but man has not changed a great deal. His needs are to a great extent the same. Human nature is as it was even in the time when Jesus was living in person among men.

Man still has a soul, even though it seems some persons have greater souls than others, and the soul still has to be saved. There is still an eternity facing every person, despite the fact that both heaven and hell are now being condemned by some great men as superstitious beliefs and as things that do not exist. Yes, there are yet souls to be saved. There are even now opportunities for Christian service.

It must not be true of our churches that "the zeal of thine house hath eaten me up." However, it will be true if the center of greatest interest and attention is not removed from secondary, more mercenary affairs and problems to increased spiritual devotion and zeal of a different kind than that possessed by the men whom Jesus drove out of the temple.

The very atmosphere in some churches today breathes of the thing that Christ expelled from his temple, although it is a milder, less spectacular or unusual form There are too many forces of antipathy at work. There is more discussion as to whether the Ladies' Auxiliary shall sell this brand of cleaning material or that this time than there is concern about whether our children are being at all times furnished with an example such as we should want them to have to lead the purest, fullest, most noble and serviceable lives. If conditions were as they should be, this phase of their work could be entirely dropped, and valuable energy turned to more useful channels. Is there no solution?

Too much zeal for these things, which are like the very things Christ condemned, will take the place of Christ if care is not exercised. The signs (symptoms) of the approach of these things will be a lack of family prayer in the homes of members, lack of testimonies in the services, a decline in attendance at church, and a peculiar lack of the overflowing joy and matchless emotion that comes from intimate companionship with the Father through careful study of his word, the truth, and quiet meditation alone with him. The services are apt to become "dry."

The vital question for all church members to consider is: Does the introduction into the present-day church of questionable activities and plans which are not a little partial to the world hinder the spiritual growth of the church and tend to draw the members away from the real ideals of the church?

I have not said that the conditions in the church today are entirely like the one which Jesus cleansed. But there is a marked similarity, and a grave danger of its becoming like that. It is not wise to venture too near the border line, for some might be in doubt as to which side the church belonged, as to whether the church had Christ, or a zeal for balancing budgets and procuring money by means other than the collection plate and "love" donations, by such means as a chicken supper, which is to say, the church, its members not paying, has to feed them to induce a gift of money for religious purposes. Even then the real sacrifice is made by the sponsors of the feast; the patron gets his money's worth, and feels satisfied because it "benefited" the church.

Perhaps some disagree and think that it is all right to do this. Maybe it is. But doesn't it sway just a little bit toward the temple back in Jerusalem where similar business was carried on? That is what we should be afraid of, and what we must avoid.

MARRIED

White-Edwards

Mr. Robert Edwards and Miss Vera White were united in marriage by the pastor of Alamance charge at his home last Saturday evening, April 20, at 7 o'clock. They were accompanied by a number of their special friends.

Mrs. Edwards is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian White, of the Sutphin Mill section of Alamance county. She is a loyal member of Center Methodist Protestant church. Mr. Edwards was reared near Siler City.

They will make their home in Burlington.

H. L. ISLEY.

Cothran-Murray

Robert E. Murray and Elizabeth Lloyd Cothran were united in marriage by the writer April 20 at M. P. parsonage in Efland.

Mr. Murray is a member of our Efland church and is a promising business man of Hillsboro, N. C. Mrs. Murray is a member of the M. E. church, South, and a popular member of Efland high school faculty.

We wish for this happy couple much success through life. B. M. WILLIAMS.

Graham-Phillips

At high noon Easter Sunday Miss Grace Naomi Graham, of Charlotte, N. C., became the bride of Rev. Robert Lee Phillips, of Old Fort, N. C. The nuptial event took place at the First Methodist Protestant church, Charlotte, N. C. The church auditorium was filled with a capacity audience of relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The church was attractively decorated. About the chancel were Easter lilies with a background of weigelia, amarylis, spirea, jonquils and iris. The ceremony, quite simple but impressive, was performed by Rev. Edward M. Graham, father of the bride, assisted by Rev. G. H. Hendry, pastor of the church.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. A. L. Haigler sang "I Love You Truly." Then to the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" the bride and bridegroom entered together, and were met at the altar by the officiating ministers. Miss Gray Stiles played softly "Meditation" while the vows were being spoken. Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as recessional.

Mrs. Phillips, second daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edward M. Graham, of 411½ South Clarkson Street, Charlotte, N. C., was dressed in a lovely model of navy blue crepe combined with pink trimmings, a smart hat of blue stitched crepe and harmonized with blue accessories. Her very attractive costume was completed by a shoulder bouquet of sweetheart rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

The bride, an attractive young woman, prominent in church and religious activities, received her education in the public schools of Gastonia and Charlotte, and took special training in nursing. She is also a talented singer.

The bridegroom is a young minister of the North Carolina conference of the Wesleyan Methodist church, and is at present pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist church in Old Fort, N. C. He received his education in the public schools of Gaston and Mecklenburg counties. He took his theological training in God's Bible School in Cincinnati, Ohio.

After the ceremony the couple left by automobile for a honeymoon trip to Winston-Salem and other points within the state. They will be at home after April 27 in Old Fort, N. C.

Out-of-town guests present for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cude, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mrs. J. L. Phillips, Miss Edith Phillips, Miss Ada Phillips, of Belmont; Mrs. A. T. Robinson, Raleigh; Miss Josie Gibson, of Gibson; Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Crockford, Thomasboro.

NEW YEARBOOK OF AMERICAN CHURCHES

The 1935 edition of the Yearbook of American Churches is announced to come from press early in April. It is the only volume undertaking to present a picture of American Protestantism as a whole. There are also summaries of Catholic and Jewish developments.

This is the first edition of the book since 1933, since its plan of publication calls only for biennial volumes. It is edited by Dr. Herman C. Weber, whose work upon the 1933 edition of the yearbook has given him wide recognition. Dr. Weber's standing as an interpreter of religious life and work is attested by his being invited each year to prepare the section dealing with Protestantism in the American Yearbook, which is published annually as an encyclopedic record of American life.

The new Yearbook of American Churches includes surveys of trends in major fields of religious interest, a record of denominational and interdenominational work, a complete roster of all religious bodies, with a listing of the officials of the various denominational agencies, and other material which makes it invaluable as a reference volume.

A pre-publication price of $1.75 postpaid is offered by the Federal Council of Churches, 105 East 22nd Street, New York, until May 1. After that date the volume will be sold by the publishers, Association Press, at the regular price of $2.00.

ASHEBORO CHURCH SADDENED

Our church family and the city of Asheboro have been greatly saddened by the untimely death of Miss Edna Mae Holder, which occurred Sunday morning, April 14. The funeral service was held Monday at 2:30 at the Holder home, and the body laid to rest in the city cemetery.

The deepest sympathy of the community goes out to the family. S. W. TAYLOR.

MRS. E. R. WARD'S FATHER PASSES

W. A. Bingham, of near Mebane, age 75 years and father of Mrs. E. R. Ward, of Calvary church, passed away yesterday morning. The funeral will be held at Science Hill Friends' church in Randolph county tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Herald extends sympathy to the relatives.

It seems to us that somewhere we have read that Napoleon, at the Battle of Waterloo, was expecting some reinforcements that never came, so he lost the battle. How we have looked for the reinforcements this week. We turned toward Halifax and Henderson and Fallston and Shiloh and First church, High Point, and Haw River and lots of other places, but all along the lines there was a deep silence as if the watchmen were asleep. Notwithstanding our frantic calls for help, very little aid came, hence we have the smallest report since the conference took over the paper. The amount it $30.24, which amount is not more than one-third of our expense. But we know that there are many things that are making it hard to get subscriptions right now, so we will try to be patient.

Now for the receipts this week. Mrs. Welch at Lebanon, High Point, heads the list for the second week in succession. However, the list is not hard to head this time. Mrs. J. A. Crowson, from Shiloh church on Liberty charge, stands second. Rev. E. A. Bingham, on Davidson, is the third largest contributor and we want to say that by receiving papers in bulk and selling them Davidson circuit is steadily climbing and has already gone a long way ahead of itself as compared with last year. We thank all of our agents and contributors. We confess that the heavy receipts the first part of the year rather spoiled us. But we are hoping it is going to pick up again. There are some subscriptions expiring each week and we are earnestly requesting agents to look up the folks and try to get them to renew. We do not want to cut anybody off the mailing list, but we have to pay for every copy printed and if the people do not expect to renew then it is a loss to us to keep sending the paper.

Now that Easter is over and the college campaign is being finished and we hope the bad weather is over, we trust things will move along faster again.

FROM PASTORS AND PEOPLE

We are planning our homecoming or Mother's Day program for the second Sunday in May, which will be the 12th. Since it is to be an all-day service, we will have a speaker in the morning, followed by dinner distributed by all, and singing in the afternoon. Everyone is welcome and we are looking forward to a wonderful day.

Trees

By JOYCE KILMER

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.

A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast,

A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain;

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

Trees

We are presenting on the first page of the paper this week that beautiful poem by Joyce Kilmer called "Trees." While it may seem a simple subject to write about and some people may think we are wasting valuable space thereby, yet we feel that this is the time of the year to think about the beauties of nature with especial reference to trees.

Did you ever stop to think about the many references in the Bible to trees? In Gen. 2:9 we have these words: "And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil." In the third chapter of the Book of Genesis we find God telling Adam and Eve not to eat of the fruit of the tree which was in the midst of the garden. In Genesis 3:8 we have these words: "And Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden. Throughout the Old Testament we have many references to the palm trees and olive trees. Jericho is referred to as the city of Palm Trees. In the New Testament Christ talked about the good tree and the evil tree. When Christ went into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday the people broke the branches from the palm trees and scattered them in his pathway. It was upon part of a tree that our Savior gave his life after having been arrested among the olive trees of the Garden of Gethsemane. Then in the last book of the New Testament we have this beautiful picture: In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month, and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. Rev. 22:2.

Since trees were made by God in the beginning and since they grow now by his permission, let us look for some of the advantages to us of trees. We might start by thinking about their beauty. For they are beautiful. Some people are too blind to recognize their beauty, but it is there whether everyone recognizes it or not. Any person who can look out over hills and valleys at this time of the year and not see beauty in the trees has missed a great deal in life.

Then there is the shade of the tree. This has been immortalized by the poets. What the spring in the desert is to the thirsty traveler, so is the shade of the tree to the one who trudges along over the pathway of life. The shade is a protector from the burning heat. When we want to stop and rest we want also to sit down under the shade of the tree.

But there are other uses for the tree. The trees serve to temper the climate both in summer and in winter. Who has not driven along the road on a bitter day and not noticed the change in the temperature when opposite a forest? The trees hold back the chilling blast and make it more comfortable for the traveler. On the other hand, in the summer time as we pass by the same forest there is a cool breeze that comes as a result of the shade. So the trees are man's friend when the weather is considered.

Not only do trees serve the purposes which we have mentioned, but they are a great protection against storms. It is on the barren plans or on the ocean that storms are most severe. Where there are many trees, as a rule, storms soon lose their fury. One tree standing out by itself would not amount to much so far as checking the wind is concerned, but when you put a whole forest there then it acts as a buffer to every wind that blows.

Great as are the other uses of the trees, perhaps the greatest is to conserve the moisture that falls on the earth in the form of rain. Where there are trees there are leaves. A heavy coating of leaves holds moisture. In time of excessive rainfall the trees and the leaves hold back an abundance of the water that ordinarily would run into the rivers. In times of drought the leaves that have fallen from the trees conserve the moisture so that the land does not become so thoroughly parched. This fact has been known to science for a long time and has been one of the arguments against the slaughter of the trees in our forests. So great is the value of trees that our government now is getting ready to spend millions of dollars in planting trees in the midwest where the drought is so serious to vegetation as well as to man and beast. Somehow there seems to be some connection between the moisture in the earth and the clouds that come to bring rain. Where there is an abundance of trees, as a rule the country is not seriously affected by drought. It would be a tremendous job to grow an abundance of trees in some sections of the country, but here in our state the problem is not so difficult. Our problem is to make people realize the value of the tree. We have so many trees that they are commonplace, and we slaughter them without ever thinking of their value and how dependent we are on trees for the lumber to build our houses as well as to protect us from the storms of heat and cold and drought. But let us remember that God gave us the trees just as he gave us every other good thing and he wants us to appreciate them, yea even to protect them from the careless and the thoughtless. If we fail to preserve our forests it will be poor worthwhile for us to pray for rain. God has arranged for normal life on the earth and when man, either because of thoughtlessness or for mercenary purposes tries to thwart God's plan of doing things, he runs into trouble. So you folks that have eyes with which to see, go out and look at the trees at this time of the year and exclaim deep down in your souls, "See what God hath wrought."

Expresses Appreciation of the Herald

Leon McCulloch, elder son of the late Dr. J. F. McCulloch, writing from his home in Pittsburgh, Pa., says some nice things about the Herald and adds that he and his family think of it as a letter from home. We certainly thank our good brother for these nice things. And while on this subject we might say that we have received similar letters during the past several weeks from Rev. F. L. Gibbs, of our General Board of Christian Education; Rev. W. A. Ledford, pastor of the M. E. church at Paw Paw, W. Va.; Dr. F. G. Hollaway, president of the Westminster Theological Seminary; Dr. F. W. Stephenson, secretary of the Board of Christian Education, as well as from a lot of people here in our own state. All of these things help to make the work lighter and at the same time make us want to get out a better paper.

The Mountain Still Stands

Those of us who live in Winston-Salem, and in the country round about, have only to get out into a cleared and fairly elevated place to see the Pilot Mountain standing against the sky—a beautiful picture. And those of us who know our denominational geography remember that around about the base of that mountain there are three of our churches, with one more not far away. I had about decided they had ceased to exist so far as this Memorial Fund is concerned until this week, when three of them were heard from, and one of them went on the Honor Roll. Hurrah for Shoals church! (I'll save some more hurrahs for the rest of the churches on that charge when they come across, which won't be long now.)

Hebron, on Orange charge, goes on the Honor Roll also this week. In his letter Brother Williams says he lacks only $6.00 of having all his churches out. And knowing Brother Williams, I know that he will soon have the rest of his churches on the Honor Roll.

Well, how do you like that certificate? Won't it look good on the wall of your church in a nice frame? (You can get one—a frame, I mean—at the ten-cent store.) Of course, the best part of that certificate couldn't be printed; it has to be written. That's the signatures. If mine looks like a million dollars, the other brethrens' fists look like a billion apiece. So, you see how valuable that certificate will be.

I'll give you a rest from this next week. I shall not get back from Maryland in time to get in a report. But send in your money. It will be taken care of in my absence. And reported week after next. Remember—we're going to call the roll and award the certificates on May 28. If you want yours, my beloved, get the money in. I'll submit a report of all money raised when we meet at H. P.

And here's how it stands:

Previously reported	$1,502.79
Mt. Zion, Pinnacle	5.46
Winston, First (additional)	.50
Shoals, Pinnacle	12.50
Pinnacle, Pinnacle	3.00
Hebron, Orange (additional)	6.00
Chestnut Ridge, Orange (additional)	4.00
Total to date	$1,534.25

Just a little more and we'll be half way. That isn't the end of the road by a good deal; but it is a long ways from the start. Keep it coming in, and we'll be at the end of the road before we know it. C. W. Bates, Chairman.

Mrs. Michael's Father Passes

Mrs. L. A. Michael of Calvary church is in sorrow over the passing in Durham yesterday morning of her father, B. W. Bobbitt. Until recently Mr. Bobbitt had made his home here with his daughter. Mrs. Michael has recently returned home after spending nine weeks in the hospital. She will not be able to attend the funeral, neither was she able to attend the funeral of her mother five years ago.

Rev. C. H. Whitaker Preaches at Winston-Salem

Last Sunday, while Dr. C. W. Bates was preaching the anniversary sermon at Calvary church in Greensboro, Rev. C. H. Whitaker was preaching for Dr. Bates at First church, Winston-Salem. We are glad to know that Brother Whitaker's health has improved so that he is able to do some preaching again.

Rev. T. F. McCulloch Returns Home

Rev. T. F. McCulloch, who underwent an operation in Charlotte two weeks ago, returned home yesterday in remarkably good condition. His many friends wish for him a complete recovery.

Virginia Curry Graduates

Virginia Curry, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. L. Curry, is being graduated from the Pleasant Garden High School this week. She has made a fine record in school.

Rev. J. R. Hutton to Preach at Calvary

Rev. J. R. Hutton, the pastor of Midway church, will preach at Calvary church next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

The Midyear Meet

The date is May 31; place, High Point College. The program starts at 10 a. m. and is to close at 3:30 p. m.

Who should attend? All pastors, preachers, ministers of the conference. A representative from every church—one or more. We want every church to have a representative at this meeting.

What about the program? Devotions by some minister; Why and What, by president of the conference; Methodist Protestantism before and after unification, by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll; Who's Out? a recognition service in which every church that has paid any claim in full to date for the year will be recognized. Also the certificates for those churches which have paid the McCulloch Memorial apportionment will be given out by Dr. C. W. Bates.

Lunch will be served by the college for a nominal sum, to be stated later. But in view of the fact that we are expecting a great crowd, we think it fine for those who can to bring their lunch and have a picnic dinner on the campus.

Afternoon

Bishop Kern, of the M. E. church, South, will speak on the "Attainable Goals of Ministerial Experience." He will be followed by a speaker yet to be announced on some phase of Christian education.

Closing hymn, 3:30.

Now Begin to Plan to Attend

We just must have every pastor present; we think we ought to have at least four official members from every one of our churches in Guilford, Davidson, Randolph, Alamance, Forsyth and Cabarrus, and from those churches further away we are expecting the leading men and women to be present. Do not disappoint me. Come and get acquainted, learn your problems, and see what good folk you are with in the Methodist Protestant church, so you can go back and put over your local programs 100 per cent before November 5.

Another Call for A. C. Expenses

We are calling upon the following charges to pay the A. C. expenses during May: Alamance, Albemarle, Anderson, Cleveland, Denton, Friendship, Liberty, Lincolnton, Kernersville, and Haw River. Doubtless some of these have already raised part or all of this apportionment at some of the churches, so the task of completing it will not be so hard. And there are some charges which are still behind on the February and March calls. Pastors, please try to complete them as soon as possible. We know that these calls may not come at a time when it is easy to raise the claim; it is hard at some churches all the time to raise a conference apportionment, but they must be raised if the conference is to continue as a conference, so please co-operate in this method and make it go.

Send in All Money Raised at Once

We shall ask Treasurer Allen for his report for the Herald of May 16. It would be too bad if your church or charge shall not appear in it, notwithstanding the fact the money had been paid in. Please form the habit of sending all moneys in to the proper treasurers soon as it is raised. It helps to do it that way; besides, that is the proper way to do it.

Do You Read the Back Page?

If you are a reader of the back page of the Herald, you must have been greatly disappointed in the report of subscriptions it contained last week. The smallest number since the Annual Conference, the editor tells us. Now for a new start and a great rivalry to see which charge can lift itself into CAPITALS next week. We have done fine in both subscriptions and subsidies, but we need to keep up the speed. Our folk need the Herald and the Herald must have the money to keep it going. So here's hoping that we shall see things happening on that back page again, and make the editor exhaust his vocabulary in raving about it.

Denton Charge, Rev. J. T. Bowman, Pastor

We visited Canaan and Denton churches. Mt. Ebal is the third church on this charge. Many of the members live in or near to Denton and could attend the services there about as easily as they attend them at Mt. Ebal, but we are not even hinting that Mt. Ebal be discontinued. The pastor can now give more time to the work and the results have already appeared since two churches were taken off. Canaan has paid the McCulloch Memorial apportionment, the college apportionment, church extension and paid some on World Service, and is now planning to paint their church. Hurrah for Canaan! Also I am told that all the women in the church are taking active part in the Auxiliary, i. e., all who live near enough to attend the church services. That is fine. We had a very good attendance for the morning preaching service. At Denton we spoke at night. It was not the regular appointment. The pastor was a little fearful that the congregation would not be large since there was preaching at the two other churches at the same time. But we had a splendid attendance and fine attention. Denton church heads the list among the churches which have paid the McCulloch Memorial apportionment. It has likewise paid the college apportionment, church extension and some on W. S. There has recently been put down a new carpet in the church, the yard grassed and shrubbery planted; the Sunday school with an enrollment of 150 reported 80 odd per cent present yesterday. That is challenging to other schools. The weather was not propitious, either. There are two flourishing C. E. societies here and a fine spirit of co-operation in evidence. It is a real pleasure to visit such churches.

Plan of Appointments

May 5—Fallston charge.

May 11—Saturday night, Liberty Hill, Anderson charge.

May 12—Fairview, 11 a. m., afternoon and night, Yarborough charge.

May 13—Western Pastors' Federation, Fallston.

May 19—Dedication of Efland church at 11 a. m.; night, Lebanon, High Point.

May 26—Bethesda church, 11 a. m.; Rockingham at night.

May 27—High Point College commencement.

May 29—Pastors' school.

May 31—Midyear meeting at High Point College.

June 2—Friendship at 11 a. m.; Porter in afternoon; Albemarle at night.

June 9—Dedication of Gideon's Grove at 11 a. m.; St. Paul at night.

June 16—Kannapolis, 11 a. m.; State Street, Lexington, at night.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT THE SABBATH

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

In our study of April 25, "What the Bible Says About Society," mention was made of four cornerstones of society. It is now proposed to make a study, one each issue, of the four cornerstnes then in mind but not named. The first of the four is here offered under the above topic.

Origin of the Sabbath

The idea of the Sabbath, though not the name, so far as the Bible record informs us, had its beginning along with other beginnings as recorded in Genesis, the book of beginnings. "God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it; because that in it he had rested from all his work which God created and made." Gen. 2:3.

But the name Sabbath does not appear in the Bible record until the days of Moses. If the institution existed in the thought and practice of the race during the lifetime of Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, or Joseph, the record of it had disappeared, like an underground stream, to emerge while the Hebrews were in the wilderness on the way to the Promised Land. Nor is it mentioned during Moses' forty years in Egypt or the forty other years while tending sheep in the land of Midian. It is first mentioned in connection with instruction given as to gathering and preparing manna for the Sabbath meals.

"On the sixth day they shall prepare that which they bring in; and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily. . . . Tomorrow is the rest of the holy Sabbath unto the Lord: bake that which ye will bake today, and seethe that which ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over lay up for you to be kept until the morning. And they laid it up till the morning. . . . And Moses said, Eat that today; for today is a Sabbath unto the Lord." Ex. 16: 5, 23-25. No one stayed home from church to prepare dinner, not even if they were to have company. No ice was delivered to the Hebrew home on the Sabbath, nor milk, nor ice cream for dessert, nor the daily paper. It was a day of rest.

The Purpose of the Sabbath

Was rest and worship. The word "rest" in the above passage makes that phase of it quite plain. "The holy Sabbath unto the Lord" (Ex. 16:23) plainly implies worship. Just here is the principle in part makes the Sabbath a cornerstone in the foundation on which society is built. Rest is quite necessary to the health and efficiency of the individual. Sleep, which is rest of body and mind, is nature's great restorer of energy and strength.

But the additional rest of one day in seven is needful, just to relax, to get away from the daily routine, to relieve the stress and strain of nerve and muscle.

The privilege of a day of rest was extended to the servant and to the beast of burden. "On the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid." Ex. 23:12.

Even the land was to have its Sabbath year of rest. "Six years thou shalt sow thy land and shalt gather in the fruits thereof: but the seventh year thou shalt let it rest and lie still." Ex. 23:10, 11.

While the reason assigned was "that the poor of thy people may eat," every farmer knows that rested land produces better. When the fertile land in the east rescued from the swamps to agriculture becomes "corn sick," it is allowed to rest for a few years and it "comes back." All of which indicates that the rest feature of the Sabbath has a physical, even a material, basis. Practical men tell us that machinery will last more hours of actual work if allowed to rest at intervals. A razor blade will give easier shaves if allowed rest periods.

The worship phase of the Sabbath will be studied later as one of the cornerstones of society.

Not to Be Commercialized

"In those days saw I (Nehemiah the governor) in Judah some treading winepresses on the Sabbath and bringing in sheaves, and lading asses; as also wine, grapes, and figs, and all manner of burdens, which they brought into Jerusalem on the Sabbath day: and I testified against them in the day wherein they sold victuals. There dwelt men also of Tyre also therein, which brought fish, and all manner of ware, and sold on the Sabbath unto the children of Judah, and in Jerusalem. . . . I commanded that the gates should be shut, and charged that they should not be opened till after the Sabbath . . . that there should no burden be brought in on the Sabbath day." Neh. 13:15-19.

"Lading asses," in our day it's hauling freight on trains and motor trucks on Sunday. "Bringing in sheaves," now it's Sunday trips on trucks loaded with tobacco, in order to be on the market Monday morning, or bringing peaches from the sandhill orchards on a car on Sunday. "That the gates should be closed," now it's filling stations, cigar stands, drinking fountains, ball parks, picture shows, that should be closed on Sunday. Oh, for a citizenship with the spirit and courage of Nehemiah!

Works of Necessity and Mercy

Are allowed. "Jesus went on the Sabbath day through the corn: and his disciples were an hungered, and began to pluck the ears of corn and to eat." Matt. 12:1. This was justified by Jesus, evidently on the ground of necessity.

"And behold there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath days? that they might accuse him. And he said unto them . . . it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath days. Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other.'' Matt. 12:10-13. Work of mercy. ''The Sabbath was made for man.'' Jesus.

Change to the First Day

After the resurrection of Jesus, the first day of the week, by practice, was the recognized day for rest and worship. ''The first day of the week . . . where the disciples were assembled . . . came Jesus and stood in the midst. . . . And after eight days again his disciples were within (another first day) . . . Then came Jesus . . . and stood in the midst.'' John 20:19, 26.

''And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them.'' Acts 20:7. ''Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store,'' etc. I Cor. 16:2.

It was later the word Sunday came into use, as it is not found in the Bible.

LIQUOR! HOW I HATE IT!

If we have no sorrows, it creates them; and if we have them, it increases them and makes them harder to bear. It blights the young man as lightning does the tree, and leaves him stripped of his heritage. It takes from middle age ambition and hope, and robs old age of its serenity and peace. It is the thief of character. It turns men into monsters and women into harlots. It invades the ballot box to corrupt it. It weakens the administration of justice. It is the polluted stream which mingles with the current of public affairs and poisons all it touches. Whenever it comes, it brings sorrow; and whenever it goes, it leaves a remorse. Liquor dulls the edge of endeavor; it dethrones the reason; it enters and stains the cloisters of spirituality, and becomes the foul and stealthy murderer of human souls.

If you would know more of its black and blighting record, look at the long and sad procession of its victims. Go to the courts and see the crimes it has caused and the criminals it has made. Go to the prison and read the story of its tragedies in the listless eyes and hopeless faces behind the bars. Go to the police station and find the derelicts—the driftwood of humanity—as you see them moving and shuffling in the fear and cowardice of misspent lives. Go to the divorce courts and hear the causes which dissolve the holy bonds of wedlock and send families adrift. Go to the homes where the serpent has left its slimy trail on the lintels of the door. Hear the oaths and curses, the reviling and imprecations, from thickened tongles and maddened brains. See the wife and mother as she pales in terror, with a bruised and broken heart. See the children as they huddle and shiver in fright, like birds before the hunter's gun. See the sweet milk of concord sour and turn into the very broth of hell. Liquor! How I hate it'—M. R. Patterson, Ex-Governor of Tennessee.

Rev. R. C. Stubbins to Preach Commencement Sermon

The daily press tells us that Rev. R. C. Stubbins, pastor of Gibsonville and Fountain Place churches, will preach the annual sermon for the Gibsonville High School next Sunday. It is a real compliment to a man to be selected to preach a commencement sermon at home.

JOHN WESLEY AND EDUCATION

The founder of the great Methodist church, a scholar himself, was an ardent believer in education for the masses. He was deeply concerned for the mental, as well as the spiritual, training for his converts. He did not believe that the Christian religion could prosper in ignorance. In his opinion intellectual growth was essential to spiritual growth. ''It can not be,'' he said, ''that the people should grow in grace unless they give themselves to reading.'' It isn't strange, then, that at the very beginning of the Wesleyan movement its great founder and leader set about to establish schools and to write and publish for the people cheap but wholesome reading matter.

One year after Mr. Wesley had received his ''heart warming'' he established his first school, the ''mother'' college of Methodism. It was located at Kingswood, England. The school prospered, and soon outgrew its immediate purpose, which was to educate the children of the miners of that region. Kingswood was the main school of early Methodism, but in other places Mr. Wesley established elementary schools in connection with his churches. He was determined that the poor and less fortunate children of England should have better educational advantages than what they were getting. He was determined, too, that his followers should have intellectual as well as spiritual training. ''The Methodists may be poor,'' he said, ''but there is no need they should be ignorant.''

And there is this important fact about Mr. Wesley's schools that Methodism must not forget. He united religion and learning. One was not incompatible with the other, and neither was complete without the other. Of Kingswood he said, ''I will kill or cure; I will have one or the other—a Christian school, or none at all.'' In an advertisement of the school he wrote, ''It is proposed in the usual hours of the day to teach chiefly the poorer children to read and write, and cast accounts; but more especially (by God's assistance) to know God and Jesus Christ, whom he hath sent.'' On another occasion he said, ''It is our particular desire that all who are educated here may be brought up in the fear of God.'' It was that deep concern for the ''fear of God'' that gave Methodism its beginning, and that was the secret of its growth and power in its earlier days. Modern Methodism, in her institutions, must not depart from that purpose. Unless our church schools are to emphasize religion and education as twin virtues, and twin necessities, it is difficult to find justification for their existence. But with the emphasis here, as Wesley put it, our church schools are indispensable.

Mrs. A. L. Hunter Not So Well

Following the Annual Conference session we made the announcement that Rev. A. L. Hunter, of Pinnacle, had found it necessary to retire from the active work on account of his health. Now the information comes to us that Mrs. Hunter is in failing health and has found it necessary to consult a specialist who advises quiet and careful dieting. We trust this good ''Mother in Israel'' may find complete restoration.

WON A PLACE BY A WHISTLE

He was an odd-looking figure as he came merrily whistling down the street the morning after the big snow. His nose was red, and his hands were bare; his feet were in shoes several times too large, his hat was held in place by a piece of paper on the inside; but he piped away like a steam engine, and carried the big snow shovel much as a soldier carries a rifle.

''How much?'' from an imposing-looking man, who was asked if he wanted his walks cleaned.

''Ten cents.''

''A nickel's enough.''

''It would be if I couldn't do no better; but I got to do the best I can, and business is rushing. Good morning!'' And the merry whistle filled the air as the boy started away.

''Go ahead and clean 'em!'' called the man, whose admiration and better nature had been aroused.

''Just see the little rascal make the snow fly!'' he said laughingly to his wife, who stood at the window with him. ''Why, he's a regular snow plow, and does it well, too.''

''What a little mite! And how comical! I wonder if he's hungry.''

The wife called to the lad as soon as he finished, but he would not take time for more than a cup of coffee.

''Too busy,'' he said.

''What are you going to do with the money?'' asked the man, as he insisted on settling for twenty-five cents instead of ten cents the boy had set as his price.

''I'm going to get Mother a coat. She's wearing one you can see through—it ain't right.''

On he went, with glowing cheeks and his cheery whistle. But they had his name and address. It was the wife who took the coat to the mother, and it was the husband who installed the sturdy shoveler as office boy in a bright uniform, and with permission to whistle when he felt like it.—Unknown.

JUDGE NOT

''Alice is just the meanest, stingiest girl,'' exclaimed Constance when she came in from school one night.

''Why, Constance! That isn't a very nice thing to say about one of your little friends,'' said her mother.

''Well, she is. If it isn't nice to say, it isn't nice to be it, either. She had some candy today. I know, because I saw her come out of the candy store with it. She pushed it down into her school bag where she thought we wouldn't see it, and she never once offered to divide. Before I'd be so stingy! The rest of us always pass it around when we have a treat.''

''Better wait a while before judging Alice,'' advised her mother. ''That doesn't sound like her. You may find you have made a mistake.''

The next day Alice's mother came to see Constance's mother, to borrow a pattern and to visit a little.

That night when Constance came home from school her mother said to her, ''I know why Alice saved the candy and did not pass it around at school! I'll tell you, and then you may tell me if you did not judge too quickly, and without giving her a chance to explain. It was a package of little red spice candies for little lame Peter's birthday cake. Somewhere he had seen one with the name written in red candies on the white frosting, and a red border. His mother said he had been talking about it for weeks. They like to do what they can to please him, because he has so few of the pleasures other boys of his age have.''

Constance looked sober. She had called Alice mean and stingy, when she was saving a treat for her little lame brother! She remembered how she and the other girls who had seen Alice coming from the candy store had whispered about it, until almost all the children in the room thought she was selfish and just wanted to keep her goodies to herself.

''Mother,'' she said, ''may I go over there now and take Peter one of my baby rabbits? I'll tell the girls about it tomorrow, so we can make it up to Alice. They'll be nice to her when I tell them, I know. I'm sorry I didn't know what it was for.''

''Remember, dear,'' said mother, ''that there are always things we do not know, and many times what looks wrong can be explained. Unless we are very certain we know all sides of a matter we should not judge. The Bible tells us, 'Judge not, that ye be not judged.' For others will be just as likely to judge you harshly when they do not understand.''

''When I think anyone else is mean or horrid, I'll just remember about Alice and crippled Peter,'' said Constance. ''Then I guess I'll wait until I find out the truth about it.'' —Dew Drops.

PERRY'S FACES

Emily and Perry had been playing all morning, but Perry was cross, and Emily tried her best to cheer him up. ''Let's draw faces on the blackboard,'' she said.

They drew faces for a while, and when daddy came in they asked him to see if he could tell who drew the faces.

Daddy looked at Perry and then at Emily. Then he put a mark on each of the faces that Emily had drawn.

''Those are Emily's faces, and the rest are Perry's,'' he said.

''Why, daddy, how could you guess every one right?'' Emily exclaimed in surprise.

''That was easy,'' daddy said. ''A little girl with such a smiling face couldn't draw faces with such a drooping mouth, and a cross little boy with a wrinkle in his forehead, and his mouth drooping down, couldn't draw a smiling, pretty face.''

Sure enough, when they looked the faces over, they found that Emily's were all smiling and that Perry's were all cross.

''Now, Perry, I want you to draw ten faces with smiles on them,'' daddy said.

Perry drew the faces, and when he had finished he was smiling, too, and he had forgotten to be cross.

''Look at this fellow's mouth, Emily,'' he said, as he drew another.

Emily looked, and it was such a smiling mouth that she had to laugh.—The Sunbeam.

DAILY VACATION CHURCH SCHOOLS

By Miss Maxine Taylor, 128 Church St., Henderson, N. C.

Are you, vacaation church school workers, planning to be present at the Southern Young People's Convention to be held at High Point College, May 29 to 31?

Miss Douglas Available

To the list of vacation church school workers, published the first week in March, we are glad to add the name of Miss Claire Douglas, Banner Elk, N. C., after the last of May, High Point, N. C. Miss Douglas will be available the latter part of the summer.

I liked the article by Mary J. Gailbraith in he March 1935 number of the New Century Leader so much that I am offering it here in three installments. Be sure to read it. The first installment follows:

ITEMS TO BE CONSIDERED

To those who have never before put on such a school, the question of cost is naturally a main consideration. In some schools this is taken care of by a special appropriation from the church, but a far better method is to let the school finance itself. In one school of 175 children the salaries of director and three superintendents plus cost of equipment amounted to less than two hundred dollars. In this case the staff included many competent volunteer workers. Each child was asked to pay one dollar for four weeks, twenty-five cents for one week, or five cents per day. Yet if a child was unable to pay even this small fee, he was admitted free. Then, at the closing program of the school, a free-will offering was taken to which parents and friends gladly and liberally contributed. The church treasurer always stands ready to make up any deficit in this school's finances, but only once has it been necessary to call on him for this.

Next in order comes the question of curriculum. Shall ours be an all-Bible school or one in which unrelated handwork is part of the program? There is plenty of scope for co-related handwork in the making of illustrated Bible story books, Bible maps, and Bible and missionary posters. Let us not allow ourselves to be turned aside from the main issue of teaching the Bible and its message. The use of unrelated handwork should at least be clearly subordinate

Our daily program will be built around three things—worship, study, and recreation. The worship period should be made truly worshipful, the children having a part in both prayer and song. Thorough training in voicing their own small petitions is invaluable to the juniors. The study periods will include Bible story time for the little tots; Bible study classes for the older children; Bible drills, quizzes, and memory work; various phases of hymn study, and so on—all leading to a certificate or diploma. Closely associated with the Bible classes are the mission study classes, where the children learn how the church has striven to obey the Master's command to "preach the gospel to every creature." On the recreational side we have, besides the usual games, a music period for the singing of folk songs, jolly rounds, and stirring choruses. Some schools have also a surprise period, during which special features are given, such as a recitation or song by some child, a short story, or a talk by an entertaining speaker. The children in one school brought each day small gifts for the needy of the community.

The problem of workers is a most important one. Two classes of teachers will be needed—trained and volunteer. The trained workers will take charge of Bible and mission study classes and the handwork. It may be necessary to pay some or all of these, but if they are the right kind, it will be money well spent. The volunteer workers will be used in the memory work classes, and for secretarial and other duties. One director makes this department a sort of training school for the high school girls of the church.

Last but not least, we come to the problem of publicity. The school should make generous use of the newspaper and the church bulletin, of display posters in front of the Sunday school building and in store windows, and of letters to parents and children. In some cases where the school is a first-year proposition, a house-to-house canvass may be necessary in order to create enthusiasm. After the school is started, however, pupils will be the best advertisers, though publicity must be maintained in the newspapers in order to keep the public interested in the affairs of the school. Snappy write-ups of the growth of the school, of special features introduced, of interesting speakers who address the pupils—all go to lead the public up to the climax of the closing program. When that is safely over with its songs and speeches, its Bible drills and demonstrations, its happy children and proud fathers and mothers, then you will have the joy of knowing that you have put over that most splendid of achievevments, a successful daily vacation Bible school.—Mary J. Galbraith.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By LUTHER R. MEDLIN, Henderson, N. C.

Topic for May 5, 1935: "Vocation Day; How Can I Serve Christ in My Vocation?"

Scripture Lesson: Matt. 5:13-16.

Hundreds of Methodist Protestant young people who stand on the threshold of graduation can be brought through the proper presentation and intelligent consideration of this subject to form opinions that will be both discreet and helpful, as they enter the work of their vovcation or as they pursue advanced study to fit them for the vocation of their choice.

Let us in our society meeting conduct an open discussion period with the young people advised beforehand of the plans. Let us consider from all possible angles the question, "Can I be Christian in my job?"

It's not such a difficult matter to be Christian on Sunday, that is to the extent of attending church and Sunday school, and even the young people's society. It's easy to sing and listen to the sermon. But how many find it a different matter to be Christian while on the Monday job. It is far from the "Jesus" way of living to pray on one's knees on Sunday and then on Monday prey on one's friends, neighbors, and business clientele.

I am taking the liberty of recopying a story from the January number of the Christian Herald, that seems to illustrate clearly the position that a great many young people are in and the decisions they are called upon to make, all because we have built up business and society, a professional and an economic order based upon corrupt and unethical principles.

"Irene threw herself into her job with the joy of a young mother with her first business baby. She was sure her sewing machine was the best on the market. She was so honest about it that she helped to sell quite a lot of machines. Then one day her boss called her to the office. He looked grave. Irene's heart began to thump. What could she have done wrong? She had been so careful.

"Did you tell Mrs. X that the machine we sold her wouldn't do what she wanted it to?" the bboss asked Irene.

"Of course it wouldn't," Irene's honest eyes were puzzled.

"But the salesman told her it would."

"I thought he might have made a mistake," faltered Irene. "You see, I run the machines, and I know."

"I hope after this you will know enough to tell a white lie when it's needed," interrupted the boss sternly. "Remember, business is business, and you are here to sell sewing machines and not to think, that's all."

What was Irene to do? She had to keep her job. She had to eat.

Yet every time she got up to lead Christian Endeavor she thought, This is what I do on Sunday, but what do I do on Monday?

Ask some well-thought-of business man to speak to the society on the spbject.

Refer to the Christian Endeavor World Quarterly for additional helps on the subject.

MEBANE LEADERSHIP TRAINING SCHOOL CLUB

The Leadership Training School Club of Mebane church was organized February 7 at the parsonage, about 15 young people being present. Officers wer elected and plans for the club activities were made.

Two meetings are held every month and an offering taken each time. An amusing entertainment, "The Family Album," has been given twice, and will probably be repeated again. The proceeds from this, together with the offerings, have put over $20 into the treasury. Other plans are under way to raise more money for the club.

Last year this church sent eight young people to High Point, which was the largest number ever going from Mebane. We hope to increase the treasury to $50, and send ten or more delegates this year. Each one will be given a proportionate amount to help defray expenses.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

INDIA

Our thoughts and prayers have been much with India and our workers there in the past few months and we are rewarded with the news that the Suvarta hospital has been opened and is receiving patients. Statistics tell us that the population of India is more than 300 million and a little over six million of these are Christian. There are around 200 mission hospitals, nearly 400 dispensaries, and about 300 physicians working faithfully and tirelessly to Christianize India by trying to heal bodies. Doesn't it thrill us then to realize that one of the much needed 200 hospitals is ours? We are grateful for the small part we have had in helping to finance the reopening of Suvarta hospital, but we haven't done enough yet. Hospitals in India are needed terrifically, for they not only heal diseased bodies. They are driving out fear and superstition and leading men, women and children to trust the Christian God.

Stanley Jones says: "Christ and facts concerning the needs of India not only command us to go, but Christ standing in the East, beckons us to come. He is there—deeply there, before us. We not only take Him to India, we go to Him there." He is there with our workers as tney courageously strive to share Him and their friendship with India, and surely we do not question that He is there with the native Christians when we learn that they, feeling the need of a regularly organized church at the mission farm, are tithing in order to support a pastor. Native Indians tithing! Could we not learn some lessons from them! Mr. Cassen writes that after speaking on stewardship at a communion service, every man, woman and child pledged himself a tither. Our India mission needs our prayers in this new venture of faith.—Mrs. E. L. Ballard, in her report to N. C. Branch Meeting.

OUR MEDICAL WORK IN INDIA

By Bettie S. Brittingham

The Need of Medical Missions in India

The first impression one gets upon traveling in India is that India is a land of sickness and disease. Beggars are plentiful and strangers are often all but overcome by the appearance of those begging. On beggar's day in large towns one sees what might seem to be every known disease. Lepers are to be seen on the streets of every good-sized town and it has been estimated that there are between five hundred thousand and a million lepers in the land. Other diseases are to be found in every village. One must be very careful about touching anyone, and the practice of handshaking is not to be encouraged even by Christian people.

Our Medical Department in India

Our medical department is the latest addition to our missionary work in India. The hospital which is a substantial two-story stone building and will accommodate about 20 or 25 beds with rooms for native nurses, was built in 1923-24 and was used for a school for some time. However, since the completion of the new Girls' School building, the hospital has been equipped and the medical work in India has been more fully developed. Miss Grace Perley, our nurse, did excellent work when she was alone on the field and treated a great number of people. In 1927 Miss Edith Lacy, M. D., was sent to India and since that time many thousands have been treated. Besides the patients who come to the hospital for treatment, the workers make the trips into the villages for the purpose of healing and preaching. Not only has suffering been relieved but the Gaspel had been preached to many hundreds who would otherwise never have had that privilege. Homes which could never have been entered by the missionary are open to the physician that they may relieve physical pain. Thus the ultimate results of our medical work in India can never be estimated.

A few years ago the hospital was closed due to lack of funds, but the need to continue this work has been so urgent that the Board of Missions cabled the mission to open the hospital work in January.

We are happy with the recent news from the field that the hospital was opened February 1 and that four patients came on the first day.

MRS. GERRINGER FINISHES WORK FOR HERALD

We are very sorry to announce this week that Mrs. L. W. Gerringer is no longer actively associated with the Herald as field agent. The committee felt from the first that this venture was an experiment and realized the difficulty of making it a profitable investment, due to the fact that it would not take long to canvass the territory near enough to Greensboro not to make the traveling expenses too great. In the six weeks that she worked she canvassed a great many of the nearby charges while a few others had plans for putting on a campaign of their own.

It is possible that after the school is out, so she can take her children with her without returning home each night, she may be able to work two or three communities. In the meantime and for the most part in the future we must depend on the loyalty of the agents on each charge to get the subscriptions for us.

Mrs. Gerringer is a hard worker and one of the most capable workers that we could have found anywhere.

—J. E. Smith, of Morganton, route 4, Burke county, has sprayed, cultivated and fertilized his apple orchard of 500 trees and reports a full crop of blooms. He used two pounds of nitrate of soda about each tree.

—Person county farmers have purchased all the lespedeza seed their neighbors had, all the stores had, and all the local Mutual Exchange had, says the farm agent.

—Reports from Bertie county indicate that 99.5 per cent of the peanut growers have signed adjustment contracts.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

One of the interesting things that has taken place in the experience of the preacher who was in the work 35 years ago is to see the difference in the way people look at some movements called religious. And they were religious, for one may be that way and still not be Christian.

In my first pastorate a man came to town preaching what was called "holiness." He was an extremist. He had reached that point, he said, where he did not even have to pray the Lord's Prayer, as we term it, for he no longer had any debts to be forgiven. They were all forgiven in his conversion, then he got what he termed a second work of grace called sanctification, and there was no longer any sin in his life.

This preacher gained a hearing on the statement that the doctrine of holiness was being neglected because the preachers were so far from God that they were afraid of it because they did not have it. A neglected theme. It is interesting to note that most cults that come in and get a hearing and in most cases win some followers get in on the grounds of a neglected theme. Take, for instance, one that has gotten hold of people in many parts of our country. I shall not name it, you can do that if you have been a student of movements. The reason I do not mention the name, somebody might want to hear them, and I do not advertise any more any who deny that my Lord arose from the dead. It is dangerous. But this cult got in on a neglected theme—the secong coming of Christ. You know there are always some that are ready to listen and go if they make the charge that the preachers are not doing their duty.

I started out to tell you what happened in this town where this man preached his doctrine of "unusual goodness." One of my brother pastors got so incensed that he swung to the other extreme and began preaching that everything was sin. The water we drank, the air we breathed, the food we ate. Well, that suited the wordly minded, though they did not believe it any more than they did the other, for he was so bitter that he lost his balance, and lost out. People were confused. They wanted to know what to do. There was much confusion. My advice to my folks was: Stay out of the controversy. Things will come back to normal after a while. But in the meantime the devil gained an advantage over many.

The formal charged it up to ignorance. It had that in it, all right. They said it was emotionalism, weakness. They made no charge against the other extreme preached. That did not need any to kill it. They said faith had no such things as had been manifested in this. Educate the folks and they would not take off after things of that kind. Well, there were educated folks among these. That was not the remedy. That never has been the remedy, for education without a new heart becomes a more dangerous weapon. I am a friend to education. I think my record proves that. But here is one of the tendencies that has come out of this movement, as I view it. You may think I am wrong. If so, you have as much right to speak out as I have.

So much stress has been laid on the teaching side that in our Sunday school convention work we have in many cases lost sight of the importance of the preaching of the gospel. Even teachers will march off home after the Sunday school session as if they had performed all that the Lord had for them to do. Teachers have come out boldly attacking the new birth as not being essential to salvation. Just like you could train a child before it is born. Traits are transmissable, it is true. But regeneration is not. Begin, said some one, twenty years before a child is born to train it. Good doctrine! But there must come a time when the best trained must accept Christ or be lost. "For except ye repent, ye must all likewise perish." And again, "Ye must be born again."

I think then as we look back upon some of these earlier experiences that the pendulum is swinging back towards a Biblical way of looking at the way of salvation. The Bible is the sanest book of all that teaches anything about God. We must come to it, not in a modified form, for God has modified everything to just where it should be. Just right if we will do our part. Pardon me if I have seemed to get off rather into a discussion rather than a description. I have more to tell you about these folks.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP ASSOCIATION MEETS AT ULAH

The Christian Fellowship Association met at the Ulah schoolhouse, Ulah, N. C., on Sunday, April 28, at 11 o'clock.

After the usual devotional service Rev. Will Garner made a short talk, stating the object of the meeting. The service was then turned over to the president, Rev. W. F. McDowell, a retired minister of the M. P. church, who preached an interesting sermon on the resurrection and ascension. The meeting adjourned to meet at 1:30 p. m.

On account of the rain, dinner was served in the building. Meeting was called to order at 1:30 p. m. by the president. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting the meeting was opened for an old-time experience and testimony. There were 28 who took part in this service.

At the close of this service an invitation was made to all who desired to make their peace with God to come forward. One man of some years came forward and found peace to his soul. During the experience meeting there was some old-time singing and shouting. These meetings are proving to be a great blessing in spiritual uplift wherever they have been held. This one climaxed all former meetings. The place for the next meeting will be fixed by the advisory committee.

On April 15 our bills were more closely paid up than at any previous time for ovevr three years. At that time we owed a little less than $4,000. But because of rainy Sunoays during April our offerings were greatly decreased for the month. May is now upon us, and we are hoping for bright Sundays with good offerings for the Home.

If the monthly offerings for the Home are kept up well, then we are able to keep more nearly paid up as we go. Please help us to avoid any summer slump in offerings this time. A good offering from each Sunday school every month will enable us to keep up well.

MY IMPRESSIONS OF WESTMINSTER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

By Forrest S. Wagoner

Westminster Theological Seminary, located at Westminster, Md., like all our Methodist Protestant institutions, is a great institution, one which is truly serving a human need and adequately fulfilling a responsible position in our denomination.

My first impressions were pleasant, and throughout my stay they have continued to be such. It has been my experience to visit a number of institutions of higher learning and I have not found at any place a more completely furnished one. The private accommodations are unsurpassed, with newly furnished furniture which is cozy and gives a pleasant effect to those engaged in scholastic research. In addition to the private rooms there are two club rooms beautifully and adequately eqpipped with a lounge, three comfortable easy chairs, an indirectly lighted floor lamp, and radio for those seeking to enjoy their leisure moments.

The seminary has a campus of seven acres on which are located four residences for professors, as well as the main building. The latter being constructed of red brick and Indiana limestone, beautiful, and complete, harmoniously blending with the structures of Western Maryland College. It is well arranged and convenient to those who dwell therein. The administration office, classrooms, chapel, and library are located on the first floor, and dormitories for young men are located on the second and third floors.

The primary aim of the institution is to train students for the Christian ministry. The curriculum is designed for both men and women and for clerical and lay-Christian workers. It endeavors to give to students a general view of the various branches of theology, and in partoicular, to give such instruction that students may become more efficient in their respective fields of service. Furthermore, it attempts to qualify its ministerial graduates to guide the church in this age of mental confusion and religious bewilderment by correctly interpreting the Bible, and judiciously applying the Gospel solution to economic, social, and spiritual problems. Unquestionably, it is a school of recognized high scholastic standing.

This seminary has five full-time instructors. They not only have mastered their specific field of religious study but they have and continue to experience religion as well. Each has a wide range of teaching experience and has done research over a long period of time. They are a group who enter into the student's problems in a sympathetic and confidential manner and are always willing to be of service to the student body when called upon.

The clerical institution has a student body of about 60, of which the majority are college graduates and all of exceptionally high caliber. They represent many denominations, Methodist Protestant, Methodist Episcopal, Church of God, Reformed, Lutheran, and United Brethren.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Tabernacle-Julian.—We are happy to announce that we have gone over the top on our apportionment to the college and we now have a start on the McCulloch Memorial Fund.

Our annual homecoming and Memorial Day service at Tabernacle is the third Sunday in May. We are expecting a great day this year, So far as we know by the records the church is now 105 years old. For this reason we are making this something of an historical occasion. In a special way we will honor the former pastors and the ministers who have gone out from the church. All these ministers who are now living are especially invited to be present. The church has produced 11 ministers, four of whom are still living and are members of the North Carolina Conference. At least eight of the former pastors are living and members of the conference. It is hoped that all these ministers can be present on this day. Dr. Paul Kennett, a son of one of the ministers the church has produced, will preach at the morning hour, and Judge Johnson J. Hayes will speak in the afternoon. At the close of the evening service a cornerstone will be placed in the wall of the church, with appropriate service of the church. President Andrews has been asked to conduct this service.

The cemetery will be cleaned on Wednesday, May 15. It is hoped that all who have loved ones buried here or who are friends to the church will remember this and make a special effort to help in this work. It is hoped that people will try to do a little more than just see that their own grave lots are put in good shape. There are a great many graves here in this very large cemetery of more than a hundred years old who have no special friends nearby to care for them. These must be cared for by those who will volunteer with free labor for the unknown.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

First Church, Lexington.—Our spring revival which ended Wednesday night, April 17, was a great success. A goodly number of people attended the meeting each night and several nights the auditorium was completely filled. There were 15 conversions during revival, several of these being children who were presented at the services held especially for them. Rev. B. M. Williams, of Orange charge, who was the pulpit help during the meeting, brought some very interesting and very inspiring sermons that touched the hearts of everyone listening. We hope that he will come back again soon. Our pastor, C. G. Isley, is going to assist Bro. Williams in a revival soon at one of Bro. Williams' churches at Efland, N. C. We hope that they may have a great revival. Special music during the revival meeting was furnished by Mrs. E. O. Love, another sister, Miss Lucillle Lanning, the Berrier sisters of Shiloh charge and our junior choir which was recently organized by Mrs. Love and Miss Lanning. We enjoyed these songs very much and hope that we may have some more like them soon.

On Wednesday night, April 17, at the close of the meeting, the doors of the church were opened and 20 persons united with the church. Some of these were transferred by letter and the rest by profession of faith. Those joining by profession of faith were Mattie Koonts, Evelyn Mickey, Barney Parker, Doris Parker, Douglas Parker, Roberta Crowe, Lela Lanning, Lula Mackey and Joe Tysinger. Those transferred by letter were Rachael Myers, Mr. C. A. Major, Mrs. C. A. Major, Mr. E. O. Love, Mrs. Ray Brown Mr. M. T. Branblossom, Mr. E. H. Smith, Mrs. E. H. Smith, Mr. R. G. Hendricks and Mrs. R. G. Hendricks.

Ladies of First church who were present at the N. C. Branch meeting of the Women's Work held in Asheboro April 10-11 were Mrs. L. B. Koonts, Mrs. C. M. Isley and Mrs. Glenn Hendricks. The meeting was enjoyed very much by those attending.

Owing to the illness of Mr. C. G. Isley Sunday, April 21, Mr. John Hayes of Thomasville filled the pulpit. He brought a most interesting talk to every one listening and we hope that he will come again soon. Rev. C. G. Isley is somewhat better from the slight attack of flu, although he was confined to his home for a few days. We hope that he will soon be well. Sunday, April 21, was the first appointment Bro. Isley has missed on account of sickness since he has been at First church and that has been almost seven years.

Circle No. 1 will meet Thursday night, April 25, at Mrs. Arvil Parker's home. Several of the girls of Circle No. 2 are selling flavoring to raise money for their work. We hope they may be successful. We also hope to raise and pay our college assessment by May 1.

First church wishes to express its deepest sympathy to Rev. C. G. Isley and mother, Mrs. C. M. Isley, owing to the death of Mrs. R. L. Pugh, of Bonlee, N. C. Mrs. Pugh was an aunt of Mrs. Isley. The funeral was held at Bonlee at 2:30 o'clock Sunday, April 14. Rev. B. M. Williams, of Orange charge, who was the pulpit help during the spring revival, filled the pulpit Sunday, April 14, owing to the absence of Rev. C. G. Isley.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Well, our report is some behind. Of course our church work is still moving. It was not so I could attend church services the first Sunday evening and second Sunday morning. But I am quite sure Rev. R. L. Vickery filled his appointments with inspiring messages.

Our Sunday school is moving pretty well. Mrs. Philip Hawkins, teacher of the junior class, entertained her class in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vincent's Saturday afternoon, March 23, 1935.

Sunday night we had an Easter program with Mrs. Baldy Green leader and Mrs. Philip Hawkins and Misses Maggie and Emma Hawkins.

Mr. C F. Hawkins, our former class leader, has been ill. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Pittard are glad parents of another little girl.

We are sorry to note that Mrs. H. S. B. Thompson and Marvin Hawkins are very ill.

Miss Mary Green, from Greenville College, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Baldy Green, the week-end.

Just before dawn April 22, 1935, God sent a death angel in the home of Mr. Tommie Hawkins and took his beloved wife away. She was 42 years old. She joined Hawkins Chapel church in her young days. She will be greatly missed by her church friends and all who knew her, because she seemed to win friends as she went.

She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, many friends from far and near.

First M. P. Church, Lexington.—We have raised the registration fee of $25 for one boy for the first annual camporee of the Boy Scouts of America. We will name our delegate by June 1. We wish to give recognition to the folks who helped us make this possible. Following is a list of persons who helped in some way: J. J. Mallard, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hamilton, Rev. C. G. Isley, O. L. Koonts, O. F. Johnson, Phonse Bean, Mr. and Mrs. H C. Koonts, Sr., Jasper Koonts, Jr., R. L. Everhart, L. B. Koonts, Ray Hedrick, Glenn Younts, C. B. Hamilton, Ralph Mickey, James Mallard, Roy Hamilton, Rev. Atlas Ridge, James Cecil, Miss Mary Misenheimer, Elisha Allen, Buddy Owens, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Kimbrell, Sr., Willie Kimbrell, Jr., Wilbur Kimbrell, James Kimbrell, Paul Clifton, Frances Kimbrell, W. C. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Koonts, Sr., H. C. Koonts, Jr., Mrs. C. M. Isley, Mrs. W. C. Craven, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Miller, Mrs. Dock Kimbrell, Dickey Kimbrell, Geneva Kimbrell, Jeanette Kimbrell, and Gerald Hege.

We have a live troop, as half of the boys are second class or above.

ERNEST HAMILTON.

Laurel Hill, Fallston Charge.—The progress of our church seems encouraging because of the attendance and interest shown. Some are much interested and deeply concerned about our spiritual growth, while there are others who seem to cause a hindrance. What we want to see at our church is each and every leader to feel his or her responsibility to stand for right rather than so easily compromise with the evil. The burden of the church will not be carried by a faithful few when we all become "of one accord." "Pray for one another" and see if we can't be better prepared to fight our battles, because there is much more power in prayer than most of us realize.

Rev. H. F. Fogleman filled his regular appointment Sunday, April 14, at 11 o'clock, reading for his Scripture the 1st chapter of II Peter. His subject was "Peace in Home Church." At the close of the service the Lord's Supper was observed.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Florence Sain April 18, 1935. The program was opened by Scripture read by Mrs. Fogleman. Mrs. Lucy Brockett read a paper on "How Does God Guide People Today?" Mrs. Carrie Saine read a paper on "Why Join the Church?"

The minutes of the last meeting were read and roll called by the secretary. Officers for the coming year were elected, as follows: President, Mrs. E. Q. Saine; vice president, Miss Minnie Mull; secretary and secretary, Mrs. A. B. Willis. Edith Mull was appointed as program leader for the next meeting, which is to be held at Mrs. Fogleman's May 16.

The Ladies' Auxiliary are working on a play which they hope to be able to give soon. The title is "When Sally Comes to Town." We hope the people will come out to see it. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the church.

We wish that every Christian reader of the Herald would join us in earnest prayer for our church, because we have battles to fight and many problems to solve, which can be done only through prayer. Praq for God's spirit to guide and His will be accomplished, because much depends upon the church today.

What are you doing for its progress?

FLORENCE SAIN, Reporter.

Bethesda, State St.—Our pastor was with us Sunday morning with a very inspiring message.

The Ladies' Auxiliary has started a "God's Acre" plan to raise money this year. We have a poster in our classroom which we call God's Garden and plots are laid off for each lady in the church, and as they sell things and give the money to the auxiliary a picture of what they sold will be placed in their part of the garden. All seem interested and we hope to have a beautiful garden by the end of the year.

Our C. E. Society has taken the entire responsibility of planting, cultivating and harvesting the Lord's Acre of cotton on the parsonage lot. They are proposing two young people's days during the year on which they will take entire charge of the Sunday school and other activities of the day. They are planning to send one or more of their members to the Leadership Training School at High Point College in June.

MRS. J. O. EVERHART, Reporter.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—Easter Sunday brought to a close a week of pre-Easter services which were conducted by our pastor. The sermons were excellent and were well attended. Friday evening communion service was observed in commemoration of the Last Supper.

The Primary and Beginners were given an egg hunt at the church under the direction of Misses Margaret Causey, Ruth Kellem and Una Mae Phillips. Miss Ola Stafford gave a hunt for her class of Juniors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stafford.

We were glad to welcome Mrs. Braxton into our membership. She came to us from the M. E. church in Durham.

We are planning to have a special service in honor of our mothers on Mother's Day.

A death of great sadness occurred in our midst recently, that of Mrs. C. Webb Fogleman. She was a consecrated woman and was loved by all who knew her. The many beautiful flowers revealed the esteem in which she was held. Death seems unusually sad to us when it enters a home and leaves several young children motherless. She is survived by her husband, eight sons and five daughters. The youngest, Shirley Ruth, is only four months old.

Easter Sunday, one of our oldest members, Mr. John Swing, was buried. He had been in bad health for some time and recently suffered a stroke which caused his death. The funeral was conducted by the pastor and assisted by Rev. G. F. Milloway and Rev. A. D. Shelton. He leaves to mourn his going his widow and three daughters and a son, also 14 grandchildren.

Last Thursday morning James Lineberry, one of our boys, passed away at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Lineberry. The funeral was held Friday afternoon. James was only 16 years old and a student of the Nathanael Greene high school. Pallbearers were boy friends, and the flowers were carried by young girls and boys who loved him. Our sympathy goes out to the grandmather who will miss him most. He also leaves his father, Mr. Frank Lineberry, of Lynchburg, Va.

OLA STAFFORD, Reporter.

Lineberry, Davidson Charge.—The Sunday school attendance is very good this spring. On Easter Sunday night an Easter program was rendered. It was directed by Mrs. Bingham, Miss Lillian Lanier and Miss Floda Smith. The Primary and Junior departments gave a very interesting program. After this the Young People's Class presented a pageant, "Easter Victory." The service was well attended in spite of the unfavorable weather.

The Woman's Auxiliary held a very interesting meeting this month at the parsonage with Mrs. Bingham. Mrs. Whit Wood gave a good report from the Branch meeting at Asheboro. Among those who attended this Branch meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bingham, Mrs. J. P. Elliott, Mrs. Claude Elliott, Mrs. Whit Wood, Mrs Van Wood, and Miss Floda Smith.

Recently the Auxiliary held an apron contest. Mrs. Garvin Elliott and Mrs. Whit Wood were the leaders. Each one that gave money had their name and amount given placed under a patch on the apron.

Over $18 was raised in this contest.

MRS. G. B. ELLIOTT, Reporter.

Shiloh, Liberty Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. F. R. Love, gave us a very inspiring sermon yesterday afternoon, reading for the lesson Matthew 26:36-44, and taking his text from the 39th verse.

The sick of our church are much improved, we are glad to report. We were made very sad by the passing away of Mrs. J. F. Brown April 1, 1935. She was a good wife, a kind mother, and a much loved neighbor. She will be much missed, especially by her husband and children.

Due to much rain Easter Sunday night our crowd was very small, but the children did well. They were trained by Mrs. A. L. Kime, Mrs. J. A. Crowson and Miss Emmer Williams. Songs and music were directed by Miss Lucy Evelyn Whitaker. Our offering amounted to $8.90.

The next meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held with Mrs. A. M. Hemphill May 9, 1935, at 2:30 p. m. We hope to have a good number present.

Mrs. J. A. Crowson gave the children a picnic Saturday evening, April 27, which was enjoyed by all present. Miss Emmer Williams treated the children Sunday, April 28. It looked as if Santa Claus had come again when the children came from their rooms.

We are hoping to have a memorial service this year, probably the second Sunday in June.

REPORTER.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our Sunday school is progressing very nicely since the weather and roads are better. The attendance was quite small on Easter Sunday because of the rain, but it has improved somewhat since then.

Rev. T. J. Whitehead filled his regular appointment last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. There was a large crowd present to hear his inspiring message on "After Easter, What?"

The second quarterly conference will meet at Bellemont church on Friday night, May 17, at 7:30 o'clock.

We are hoping that a number of our young people will attend the convention at High Point College the latter part of May; also the young people's banquet to be held at Nathanael Greene School on Saturday night, May 18. The Christian Endeavor is sponsoring the registration for the two events.

Our Memorial Day will be held the fourth Sunday in May. This is one of the most important days of the entire year, and we trust that many old members and friends of Bellemont church will be back for this occasion.

REPORTER.

Efland, Orange Charge.—Efland has been rather quiet so far as the reporter goes for several weeks, but several things have happened of which we are rather proud and glad that we can pass on the good news.

A challenge followed by a special drive to pay off our church debt ended on April 15. We are indeed happy and thank all who made this possible. Several friends of the church who are not members aided us in this campaign. We are glad that they feel that it is for the entire community and not just Methodist Protestants. On the third Sunday in May a dedicatorial service will be held. All former pastors and friends of the church are invited. A basket lunch will be served, followed by a service in the afternoon.

Efland was represented at the Branch meeting in Asheboro by 10 members of the Auxiliary and our pastor. Each had a very enjoyable day and came home more determined to do our bit to aid this great band of Christian workers. It was indeed a threefold meeting full of inspiration, information and aspiration.

Our Easter program was well rendered and enjoyed by a good crowd, though rain kept a number of people away from bath services on Easter Sunday.

Sunday school and Christian Endeavor are improving in attendance and we hope to make them the best ever this summer.

Our pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, made a very interesting and helpful talk on the subject "How to Take Part in the Fellowship and Work of the Church," Sunday evening. Another delightful part of this program, conducted by Miss Georgia Thompson, was a group of vocal numbers by Mr.

Marvin Lindley, of Snow Camp, accompanied by his sister. In this group Mr. Lindley included "Trees," by Joyce Kilmer, which is always enjoyed, and other very pretty numbers. The writer regrets to have been one who was not present for this meeting.

Harmony Church, Yarborough Charge.—The Easter service was held third Sunday night with a special Easter program. There was a large crowd present and all enjoyed it fine.

Our pastor, Rev. K. G. Holt, filled his regular appointments today and brought us some good messages. But the attendance was not so good on account of rainy weather, I suppose.

The Christian Endeavor is coming along right nicely. If each member will do their part and take an interest in this organization, each one would have something to be proud of.

We are looking forward to having Dr. Andrews, president of our North Carolina Conference, with us second Sunday night May 12.

SARA SIMPSON, Reporter.

Rockingham.—Now that the Easter season is over, let us strive to keep the spirit of Easter in our hearts throughout the coming year.

The Easter program was a great success. I am sure it was the best one we've ever had.

Our pastor, Mr. Bell, brought us a wonderful message, the theme of which was "A Sabbath Evening's Journey With Jesus."

The text was taken from Luke 24:15, "And it came to pass, that, while they communed together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near and went with them." I am sure every one present thoroughly enjoyed this sermon.

We are glad to report an active Sunday school and Christian Endeavor soviety. We hope they will prosper and the young people line up to do God's work.

Our second quarterly conference will be held May 11 at Bethesda, S. C. Every one is invited to attend.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—Our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, preached two mighty good sermons yesterday. Those of us who were absent ourselves from the regular preaching services are just the poorer by having missed a service of spiritual food. The congregations, however, have been very good. The attendance is much better than some neighboring churches, we understand.

In the absence of our superintendent yesterday, Mr. J. W. Montgomery conducted Sunday school service. Superintendent King will be back on duty next Sunday. Let's have a record attendance to greet him on his return.

Next Sunday at 11 o'clock we are promised a real treat in music by the double male quartet from Concord church. These gentlemen are due to sing in Burlington in the afternoon and if they can be persuaded to stop over with us for the evening service we will have them worship with us again and sing at that time.

Work has begun on the hut at last. Spring is a hopeful time of year. Things naturally take on new life. So let us fight all enemies continually nipping the evils in the bud, let us tend our spiritual gardens with great care and watch the results.

The children and young people are busy with finals in the classrooms, most of them happy that vacations are in sight. As they drop the day school studies, let us hope they will put more time in reading the blessed Bible, the book of all books.

Friends of Allen Thacker will be interested to know that he has been awarded the High Point College scholarship. His four-year record in High Point high school shows an average of 95 per cent, which is the highest rating among the boys of his class. Lebanon church has a long list of boys and girls finishing seventh grade, junior high and high school, this time. We are proud of them.

Miss Charlotte Hammer has returned to college in Greensboro after spending the Easter holidays with her father, Mr. V. P. Hammer.

Community Church, Thomasville.—Beginning March 31 and continuing through April 14, evangelistic services were held at our church with Rev. N. G. Bethea, of West End M. P. church, of Greensboro, officiating. We regret very much that the weather was rather inclement throughout the meeting, thus causing so many of our members to be kept away from very inspiring services. Dr. Bethea brought very interesting and helpful messages to us and our choir and members of other choirs of Thomasville contributed much with music to the services, all to whom we are very grateful. We were glad to have visiting members from the West End church, Thomasville, and other churches.

On Wednesday afternoon Dr. Bethea spoke very interestingly to the Thomasville Rotary Club.

On Psalm Sunday we were happy to welcome to our membership one of our young boys, Richard Malette, who consecrated his life to the Kingdom.

We express our appreciation to Mrs. C. F. Finch, our choir director, and choir members for the lovely musical program rendered on Easter Sunday.

We regret very much to report that our Sunday school attendonce is below normal. But now that the weather is breaking and summer time is nearly here, we feel sure that our members can't let the weather keep them away.

As a general financial report we might say that we are fairly well up on all our budgets as a whole. We also hope to pay our High Point College assessment before May 1.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular annual meeting on Thursday evening, March 27, at which time a covered dish supper was served with the men of the church as guests. At the meeting favorable reports (with all budgets paid in full) of the year's work were given and officers for the new year elected. Mrs. Marvin Hobbs was elected new president, Mrs. J. W. Boyles vice president, Mrs. W. C. Taylor treasurer, Mrs. M. A. White secretary. New circle chairmen were elected also: Circle No. 1 Mrs. J. E. Clodfelter, chairman; Circle No. 2, Mrs. J. R. Sechrest, chairman; Circle No. 3, Miss Grace Saunders; Circle No. 4, or the Teen-Age Circle, Miss Lela Maude Boyles, chairman.

The various circles of the Woman's Auxiliary are serving meals to the Thomasville Rotary Club this month, also to the Thomasville Business and Professional Club and Young Business Men's Club.

Our membership extend deep sympathy to Mrs. C. D. Westmoreland in the loss of her husband.

We offer our congratulations to Mrs. R. E. Myers, better known to us as Miss Rena Clodfelter.

Liberty.—The young people of the Christian Endeavor Society presented the beautiful pageant, "Easter Victory," directed by our pastor, Rev. Fred R. Love.

A special Mother's Day program is being planned for the second Sunday.

Our prayer meeting services are well attended every Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Our delegates to the Branch meeting at Asheboro enjoyed a very profitable time, according to the echoes of the Auxiliary president, Mrs. Wade Hardin. Circle No. 1 of the Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Lawrence Brown Wednesday afternoon at 3:30. Circle No. 2 will meet with Mrs. W. M. Hanner Thursday afternoon at 3:30.

Master James Deaton has been a patient in Sternberger Hospital. He has returned home much improved.

Mrs. Cecil Frazier, one of our most consistent Christian members, has our deepest sympathy in the loss of her father.

The good family of Mr. G. A. Amick has our deepest sympathy also.

Also to the family of Mr. John W. Curtis we extend our heartfelt sympathy in this time of their sad bereavement. In the passing of Mr. Curtis our church has lost one of its most loyal and active members. His brotherly kindness had won for him a host of friends who will miss him in the church and Sunday school and in the community. The high esteem in which he was held was evidenced by one of the largest floral tributes ever seen in this city. May the God of all comfort sustain all who sorrow.

Asheville.—The marriage of Miss Arline Mae Hanner to Mr. George Nodine was a recent event of great interest to all our folk and to many others throughout our conference. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hanner, 48 Soco Street, with Rev. J. F. Minnis officiating. Just before the vows were taken, Mr. James Bailey sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Anna Lynch, who also played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the young couple came forward to an improvised altar of Easter lilies and ferns. During the service Miss Lynch played "At Dawning." Following the ceremony a reception was held with Miss Louise Hanner, sister of the bride, presiding at the punch bowl. She was assisted by Mrs. Richard Hanner and Miss Jean Solari. Miss Gertrude Lynch registered the guests as they arrived. Mr. and Mrs. Nodine left during the evening for a short trip and are now at home with the bride's parents, where they will remain until June.

The Intermediate boys' class and the first-year Junior boys' class were star classes again on Sunday. The Intermediate girls are certainly going to have to give the boys a party. The Fawcett Bible Class led the entire school in number present. Mrs. Wilson's Primaries led in their department. Mrs. Williams' Junior boys have done so splendidly the past two Sundays during Mrs. Williams' absence. They have gone right ahead with their work just as though she were present. I know she is going to be mighty proud of her work with them.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Pratt were given a surprise farewell party last Monday evening. They left on Wednesday last for Queenstown, Md. We shall miss them both a lot.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Elwood Carroll were visitors in Asheville during the past week.

The Frances Cunningham Philathea Class was entertained at the home of Miss Cunningham during the past week. An enjoyable evening was reported. M. L. B.

Love Joy, Seagrove-Love Joy Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. E. G. Cowan, filled his regular appointment Sunday with a wonderful sermon. The attendance is not as good as we would like to have, but we are hoping it will get better as the weather gets warmer.

Our community has been saddened by deaths this spring. Four members of Love Joy church have passed to their reward this spring. Mrs. C. H. Vuncannon, Mrs. Riley Hamilton, Mrs. K. W. Hulin and Mrs. Dora Freeman have all died since March. They are missed in the home, the community and the church. It makes our hearts sad when we see their vacant places in church; so let's remember to live a pure life and walk close to the Master's side, so when our call comes we will be ready to meet our lovevd ones and friends who have gone to that heavenly home.

Calvary, Greensboro.—A very large congregation, composed of members of Calvary church and several visitors, attended the banquet at our church hut last Thursday evening. The occasion was the 11th anniversary of the church.

J. C. Coe served as toastmaster during the evening. The invocation was spoken by Rev. S. K. Spahr, D. D., pastor emeritus of Grace Methodist Protestant church, who also extended greetings from Grace following the address of welcome by Dr. Pritchard.

J. Norman Wills also delivered a message of greetings from Grace church.

Rev. R. M. Andrews, D. D., president of the Methodist Protestant Conference, made a very interesting short talk.

The principal address was delivered by Dr. P. E. Lindley, dean of High Point College. He used for a subject "What Is Right With the Church?"

Musical selections were given by Mrs. J. D. Heritage, who sang a special number dedicated to Dr. and Mrs. Pritchard; Mrs. Mary C. Bissett, who sang a solo and a special number by the Junior Choir.

A color scheme of blue and yellow was carried out throughout the banquet hall. Iris, tulips, and pansies filled bowls on the five long tables with yellow tapers at their sides. A birthday cake, upon which 11 yellow tapers were aflame, served as a centerpiece for the table, around which the charter members of Calvary were seated.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning the anniversary sermon was preached by Rev. C. W. Bates, D. D., former pastor of Calvary, but now pastor of First church, Winston-Salem. Just preceding the sermon a memorial service was held for Calvary's deceased members, and Mrs. Robah H. Fields sang very effectively "Going Home."

The anniversary service ended Sunday evening with a sermon by Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, pastor of Grace Methodist Protestant church. Very fine messages were brought to us at both the morning and evening services.

Our revival services will begin Sunday May 19, and close Sunday, May 26. Dr. Fred W. Paschall, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, Burlington, will be the pulpit help. Dr. N. G. Bethea, pastor of West End Methodist Protestant church, will assist with the singing.

Draper.—Yesterday was a good day for us at Draper. Sunday school was largely attended and a fine spirit throughout the entire service was manifested. As a result of song practice there was a large number of young people in the choir.

There was a fine spirit in the preaching service. A large congregation was present. The doors of the church were opened and 11 came forward and joined the church, and four others will be baptized next Sunday evening, making a total of 15 member received in the past two weeks.

We were very sorry that Dr. Andrews, president of the conference, was sick and unable to be with us on the first Sunday and preach the first time in our new church, but hope he can be with us soon.

The work here is going fine. There is a good interest in all departments of the church work. Pray for us. I am asking my friends in the conference to pray for me that my health may be improved that I may go forward with the work here.

L. S. HELMS, Pastor.

Love's Grove, Midland Charge.—We, the Love's Grove folks, have not sent in a report in quite a while, although we haven't forgotten our Herald and its readers.

We as a whole seem to be stepping on toward success. Our pastor, Rev. J. H. Trolinger, brought to us last Sunday at his usual appointment a good sermon, taking as his subject "He Is Risen." The sermon was enjoyed by all present. There was a very good attendance, considering the weather.

Our Sunday school attendance and offering seem to be increasing steadily, in which is a great interest toward the upbuilding and keeping of God's Kingdom.

Our pastor, together with us members, has put over some monthly programs this year which have proved to be of much success in the undertaking of God's work.

We can't expect to be much ourselves, or to anyone else, unless we have taken God in our lives. Neither can we go through this world alone. When once we try to leave God out of our lives, then we fail. We should put forth an effort to consider God as being first in our everyday life.

Our Easter program which was rendered Easter Sunday was very impressive. In conclusion we used the Easter pageant entitled "Easter Victory," which brought out a clearer meaning as to what Easter meant.

Next Sunday afternoon, May 5, at 7:30 o'clock, we have another Bible study, our pastor being the leader of the course given. Everybody is invited to attend. I know you will enjoy it, if you are interested in the Bible. Come out and be with us.

Bethany, Randolph.—The third Sunday in May is the time appointed for our memorial day. Memorial service at 11 o'clock, dinner on the grounds. The afternoon is set apart for a Mother's Day program. The smaller children will have charge of the music.

The ladies have stained and varnished the floor of the church and will carpet the aisles soon.

Our last Aid meeting was held with Mrs. J. T. Brown in the form of a surprise birthday party. Our next meeting will be Saturday afternoon, May 4, with Mrs. J. A. Redding. Our Sunday school is very good. Some of the classes have purchased new curtains.

The Young Ladies' Class had an enjoyable picnic at Battleground Easter Saturday.

First Church, High Point.—During the past month the pastor and a fine body of workers have been engaged in a series of evangelistic visitations leading up to the Easter week services. The pastor, Rev. J. C. Madison, called for workers several weeks before Easter and had all who would to meet him at the church for inspiration and instruction two or three times a week, and in the two weeks before Easter these workers were sent out in groups of two to personally get in touch with specially designated unchurched and unsaved people in our city. The results were well worth all the effort put forth. We are glad to welcome into membership in First church the following: Mrs. Lee Payne, Glenn and Russell Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Payne, Marjorie and Percy Payne, Jr., Mrs. J. L. Shaw, Lawrence M. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Broadus Leonard and Broadus Leonard, Jr., Mrs. W. D. Turner, Mrs. G. I. Humphreys, Curtis, G. I., Jr., Nell Marie and George Emery Humphries, Mr. Raymond Dixon, Mr. Virgil Yow, Charles and Van York, Joseph Edwards, Robert Douglas, Anna Marie Moffett, Martha Hayworth, Mary Lou Cecil, Margaret, Bettie Hill, and Miss Louise Ellison, Annie Blair Auman, Mr. Preston Sechrest, Dorothy Boyd, Harold Hayworth, Mary Elizabeth and Margaret Ray Barton, Ralph Zimmerman, Janie Savas, Esther Marie Free, Lina Jane Davis, Bettie Doris Auman, Dr. Glenn Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shoemaker.

The beautiful flowers on the altar on Easter Sunday were placed there by Mrs. W. P. Pickett and family in memory of their loved ones gone before.

We are glad to report improvement in the condition of Mr. John S. Pickett, who sustained a severe shock April 20 when struck by an automobile while he was crossing the street after dark during a rain. Eye-witnesses reported his escape from death as almost miraculous. His friends will be glad to know that he was able to glance over the headlines in the morning paper this (Monday) morning.

The pageant, "The Open Tomb," was presented under the direction of Miss Annabelle Thompson Easter Sunday evening. It showed evidence of a great deal of painstaking work in costuming, decoration, spoken and sung parts.

The Woman's Auxiliary closed its books for the Branch year, having raised a total of $2,142.40, made 1,461 vivsits, and sent 65 baskets and potted flowers to the sick.

We start this year with 19 more members than last, and under very auspicious leadership with the following circle chairmen: Mrs. P. S. Kennett, Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, Mrs. A. A. York, Mrs. L. E. Teague, Miss Xanie Stowe, Mrs. T. R. Ballard, and Mrs. J. R. Meredith. The $50 for High Point College paid by the Woman's Auxiliary added to the $250 sent in from the church last week completes our quota for this cause; onr only regret is that we didn't get this in early enough for it to be an incentive for some other church to reach its goal before May 1.

Mr. J. H. Allred, head of the department of romance languages at High Point College, is making satisfactory recovery following an appendectomy at 2 a. m. April 27.

MRS. R. M. ANDREWS, Reporter.

Roberta.—It has been some time since I have made a report, but I will endeavor to try to report briefly. We had an unusual congregation Sunday morning, despite the April showers. More than 200 separated themselves into their classes, and a wonderful spirit prevailed throughout both services. Since our Baptist brethren lost their church during the windstorm about two months ago, our people made an offering for them Sunday morning and raised $38.50. These brethren hope to rebuild as soon as possible.

An unusual offer was made by our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Z. D. Cochran, several months ago, that he would give the class that made the best record through February and March a free trip to the Children's Home. The Primary Class won the trip. There are thirty or forty children in this class and will require a number of cars to carry them. At this writing there have been nine cars selected to go, and the children are very eager to go and are looking forward to next Sunday. All teachers of the Primary department will be with the children, and a good number of the fathers and mothers are planning to follow. The children will make their usual first Sunday offering for the Home to Dr. and Mrs. Dixon.

We are a little behind with our budgets, but we are hoping and planning to do something with them as soon as possible. Our folks have been unusually pressed since the first of this conference year. The Roberta mill has run but one full week since Christmas, but we expect to finish our Herald subscription quota, as we lack less than three subscriptions.

We were glad to add five new members to our number recently. They were Mr. and Mrs. J. Ivy Cline and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Crone Barbee. We were glad to welcome these brothers and sisters with us, and we are glad to see that they are greatly interested in the church and work.

We have a number sick in our community. Mrs. Mary Cochran is very ill at this writing. Mrs. Cochran is the stepmother of the Cochran boys of our church, and she is greatly loved by all the people who know her. She has slightly improved the last few days, and we wish for her a speedy recovery. Mrs. Laura Plott is improving. Mrs. Plott is confined to the house with rheumatism, and has been so afflicted for a number of years. We wish for her a pleasant and an outdoor summer. Mrs. Asburn is improving some. She has been confined to her bed and room for more than a year. We trust that she will continue to improve. Mrs. Gussie Pennegar has been confined to her bed for several weeks. We visited Mrs. Pennegar yesterday and found her in that usual sweet spirit that she always shows in sickness or health. She is improving. The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Pennegar has been very ill, but is now out of danger. Mrs. John Furr is also improved. We were glad to welcome back in our midst Bro. R. H. Love, the father of our own Fred Love, of Liberty. Bro. Love has been very ill since last November. We are glad to see him back at church.

Our second quarterly conference was held some time ago, and an unusual good interest was shown in the transaction of the business. Mr. Robert Sutton and Mr. Arthur Lambert were nominated as candidates for delegate to the Annual Conference. Both of these brethren have the interest of the church at heart, and either will make a good man for this office.

The children gave a wonderful Easter program Easter morning, and despite the rain we had a good congregation. We are also planning to observe Mother's Day the second Sunday in May. We are expecting to have several quartets and probably a new speaker for the morning hour.

EARL A. COOK, Pastor.

West End, Greensboro.—Our revival started on Easter Sunday with Dr. Bethea conducting the series. He has been giving us some splendid gospel messages and increasing interest is being manifest among the church membership and people of the community.

A service for the young people was held at the Sunday school period and quite a number signified their intention of trying to live a Christ-like life. "Breaking of the Alabaster Box" was the subject at the 11 o'clock hour, when Dr. Bethea built an impressive sermon around the story of Mary anointing Jesus with the precious ointment, while He was still alive. Why not tell those who have helped us in countless ways while they live and can enjoy that knowledge?

Mrs. E. G. Glenn is worshiping with us while she lives here at the Masonic and Easter Star Home. She is formerly of Bethesda, Halifax charge. Rev. J. R. Hutton has been in our congregation almost every night during the revival services, and the Rev Messrs. Ashburn, Shelton, and Pritchard, with Mrs. Pritchard, were present on Monday evening. We appreciate their interest and know that they enjoyed the message by the pastor.

The circles will meet on Monday, May 6, as follows: No. 1, at 3 o'clock, with Mrs. J. K. Osborne, 1211 Walker Avenue; No. 2, with Mrs. R. L. Rice, Winston Road, 8 o'clock in the evening. All women of the church are urged to become active members of the circles.

MARRIED

Auman-McGirt

Miss Mildred Auman became the bride of Mr. Thomas Paisley McGirt at the bride's home at Steeds, N. C., on Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

The vows were spoken before the bride's pastor, Rev. E. G. Cowan, who used the ring ceremony of the Methodist Protestant church.

Mrs. McGirt is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Auman, of Steeds, N. C., and is a member and active worker of Fairgrove M. P. church. She graduated from Elise high school at Hemp, N. C., with the class of 1932. She later attended Piedmont College.

Mr. McGirt is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McGirt, of Scotland county, and is also a graduate of Elise high school at Hemp, N. C.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left by motor for Daytona Beach, Fla., and other points south.

The wedding was beautiful in its simplicity, and the writer wishes for this young couple a smooth and a happy volage on the sea of life.

E. G. COWAN, Pastor.

Haw River, Glen Raven Charge.—On Friday before Easter communion services were observed at our church. On Easter Sunday morning we had a sunrise service. In spite of the rain there was a good number present.

Rev. J. P. Pegg filled his regular appointment here Sunday. Very good crowds attended both services. The Sunday school is rapidly increasing. We had the largest congregation Sunday we have had this year.

We offer our congratulations to the newlyweds in our church. Mr. Guy Capes, of Haw River, and Miss Ruth Thornton were married April 6 at the parsonage by Rev. J. P. Pegg On April 20 Miss Maude Montgomery, of Haw River, and Mr. Elwood Johnson, of Gibsonville, were united in marriage by Rev. J. P. Pegg. Miss Montgomery is one of the teachers in our Sunday school. At the present they are making their home with the bride's mother. We wish both couples a long and happy life.

HERALD AGENTS AND PASTORS, NOTICE!

Those sending us money can make our work lighter by making check payable to M. P. Herald. We use a stamp in endorsing checks and when a check is made out either to M. P. BURLINGTON, FIRST	96
ROBERTA	88
TABERNACLE	87

Well, you see that First church, Burlington, is getting so near the top that they can almost reach out the hand and touch it. Some of these days they are going to reach it. Tabernacle stepped down to third place this week and came very near being crowded off the stage. Roberta comes up into second place, while Asheville had to take a rear seat. All of these places are getting so near the goal that we believe victory will soon be theirs. We can almost hear the shouting now.

Now turn to the receipts column of this week and see who is at the top. Mrs. Paul Waynick, of Gibsonville, whose mother came from good old Randolph, is right up there in the lead. Mrs. Gerringer was at Gibsonville a few days last week helping the agent, and where she works there is something going on. Wish we had work for her the year around. Mrs. T. A. Amick, of Fountain Place, is up there in second place also. Mrs. Gerringer was also at Fountain Place one day last week, so we see evidence of her good work there. Then there are State Street, Forsyth, Halifax, Why Not, Orange, Mt. Pleasant and Lincolnton which sent in more than one subscription.

From now on it will be a free for all. There will be no field agent to turn in a big list. What we get we will have to get through the local agents and the pastors. Won't you help us.

Now for the receipts of this week. They are $180.26, $77.76 being on subscriptions and $102.50 being on subsidy. Hope church on Siler City charge pays its amount in full AND DID YOU SEE THAT $100.00 FROM THE TREASURER OF THE N. C. BRANCH OF WOMEN'S WORK? IT LOOKS MORE LIKE A MILLION TO US THAN ONE HUNDRED. ANYWAY, THAT IS WHAT WE NEED. THANKS, THANKS, THANKS, WOMEN!

Mother's Day

Next Sunday, May 12, a great many of our churches will celebrate Mother's Day. It is a beautiful and tender custom and one that can be productive of great good. We believe in observing this custom with all our heart. Too long we have allowed our mothers to toil and suffer and bear burdens that they ought not to bear, all because of our thoughtlessness. If the observance of the day will lead to a lightening of the load of our mothers, then the day will not be in vain. But all too many times we observe the day with a great deal of enthusiasm and sentimentalism and go out and forget all about it. What ought to come out of the day's observance is a better understanding of mother's place, her value and her problems, and how we can make life sweeter for her. We ought to want to enable her to live longer and to retain the youthful look upon her face. That kind of an observance will be getting us somewhere. If Mother's Day means the getting of some more conveniences in the kitchen where she spends a good deal of her time, or if it means something that will make her work lighter, then we are for it a hundred per cent. But if it means only the singing of some sentimental, mushy songs in the hope of getting some tears shed, then we prefer to be excused.

The idea of wearing a flower in honor of mother is not a bad one. The custom of sending her some flowers is still better, but the best of all that we can do is to resolve deep down in our hearts that we will honor our mothers by living like we know they would want us to live. A fine son or daughter, doing the things that will make mankind better and happier, is a greater honor to mother than all the flowers that have ever been grown. Being a real man or a real woman is worth more to mother than the singing of all the jingles that some quartettes have been practicing for weeks. We like good songs and a few have been written that are appropriate for Mother's Day, but all too many of them are not of that kind.

Let us have a Mother's Day this year that will mean something. If she is living, try to make her happy. If she is dead, honor her memory by useful living.

Our Young People's Number

We are presenting this week a number of the leaders among the young people of our denomination in connection with the South Regional Young People's Convention which meets at High Point College May 29 to 31 and the Annual Leadership Training School which also meets at High Point College June 24 to 31. Each of these meetings ought to mean a great deal to those who go. The regional meeting is something new this year but we can see how it could serve a great purpose. One of the difficulties with our young people is that they do not know the young people of any other section. Some of our people know that there are young people called Methodist Protestants in Georgia and Alabama and Florida as well as Tennessee and Virginia, but they know nothing definite about them. They do not know what they look like, how they talk, how they pronounce their words, how they worship, nor anything of the kind. How could they know? It is a good long way to any of these states from the central part of North Carolina where the larger part of our young people of this conference live. Now it is true we cannot be as much interested in people we have never seen as we are in those we have seen. Prior to 1919 we had never seen Alabama, Mississippi nor Louisiana. We had thought of them as being down there in almost the same spot. It seemed to us before going down there that the people in those three states all lived so close to each other that they could mingle with each other freely. But when we went down there we saw differently. We found that it was a long run even from Birmingham, Ala., to Jonesboro, La., our destination. While we were surprised at the distance, we were more than delighted with what we saw in the hospitality of the people and the evident possibilities for great service for the kingdom. That one trip did more for us than all the reading we could have done concerning these people in a lifetime. Ever since then when we have seen any reference to any town we saw while on that journey we have read it with a great deal of interest. That one trip made those churches and those places real to us.

Now, let us imagine what it will mean to the young people of those conferences to the south of us to come and spend a few days in the Old Norh State. And there is no place in our state that could mean more to them than High Point College, for our work in this state centers, in large measure, around our institutions in High Point. To these young people it will be a mountain top experience. It will be something for them to talk about for many years to come. The trip through the various states will be worth a great deal to them, but what they find when they get to High Point will impress them most. But there is one thing that makes us shudder, that is, the impression that would be made upon our visitors if they were to come all the way from afar and not to find us there. That would indeed be tragic. We do not think this will happen, yet it has been true in some instances that people living closest to a thing think the least about it.

So far we have been thinking in terms of our young people from out the state. Now we want to think about the great good that will come to our own young people here in the state to come in contact with the people of other conferences, to get well acquainted with them, to hear them tell about their problems and their successes and to have a few days of fellowship together. Friendships will be formed that will ripen through the years. Each will come to appreciate the other more, and it will do more to cement us together as a church than anything else we could think of. The trouble with us has been that we have been too localized. We have thought in terms of our own little world and have forgotten that there were other people. Even local churches have been afflicted with this terrible malady. We need to get out of this. We need to remember that we are a part of a great church not great in numbers but great in principle and great in the work that it is trying to do. We need to remember that there are other people in other conferences that are doing the work of our Master as zealously as we are and we need to know them. We know of no better way to cement the church together than to get the young people together. They have a life before them. They are impressionable and the things they learn will not soon be forgotten.

Those from our conference will go back home and tell the people in the local churches about the fine people they met from other states, and these young people from other conferences will return home and spend the remainder of their days telling the folks in the home communities what fine people they met in North Carolina. So much for the convention.

Now let us think for a few minutes about our own Leadership Training School which will begin June 24th. This has come to be one of the very important features of our work. It has been held so many times it is no longer in the experiment stage. We have seen it at work and know what it can do.

When we stop to think about it, it is marvelous what progress we have made in our work during the past twenty-five years. When this editor entered the conference in 1911 there was nothing to go to except the Annual Conference session. A good many years before that there had been held what was known as the District Conference. There had also been held some denominational Christian Endeavor conventions; however, all of these had been abandoned. The convention idea was resurrected with the meeting of the Young People's Convention, held in what is now the First Church, Thomasville, in 1915. This was thought to be such a success that it has been promoted from year to year, the name being changed from time to time and the nature of the meeting has changed to meet changing conditions. As we look back over the years, we derive some pleasure in remembering that we were chairman of the Young People's Convention for the first six years of its life.

The Leadership Training School as now conducted furnishes both information and inspiration. The best teachers available are used for the various classes and the best speakers possible are secured for the evening addresses. The work is ably manned by the very efficient officers of the Conference Council of Religious Education and we are fully expecting the school this year to measure up in every respect to the former high standard of excellence.

Efland Church to Be Dedicated

We are carrying the announcement this week of an approaching event that will bring joy to the hearts of a number of people. We refer to the dedication on the third Sunday in this month, which Sunday is May 19, of the Efland Methodist Protestant church. It is always a glad time when a church can be dedicated. There is much involved in the dedicating of a church. There is much that cannot be put on paper. The sacrifices which the people are called on to make in order that a church may be built and equipped cannot be put on paper. It is hard these days for the average church to keep all bills paid even when it does not have a debt. But to keep the regular expenses paid and pay on a church debt at the same time is doubly hard. Our church at Efland is to be congratulated in that it has been able during these depression times to keep moving and to make possible the dedicatory services. We heartily congratulate them and commend them to others for their loyalty and liberality in accomplishing what some people think is the impossible in times like this.

We have come to think of the Efland church as one of the important churches among us. Not only do we have a good opinion of the church, but the pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, has proved himself to be one of the most outstanding workers among us. He has been on the same charge for ten years or more and each year he and his charge have made a contribution to the work of the conference in that they have set the pace for almost all others. May they continue to prosper and grow, and may the happy relationship that has existed in the past continue in the years that are to come.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE CHOIR

I was in Charleston when the A Capella Choir gave their concert on the 26th of April in Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. This is one of the fine old churches of Charleston, located on Meeting Street, in the business section of the city. It has one of the largest auditoriums in the city, and both the auditorium and the three large balconies were filled to their capacity, with music lovers from every part of the city. Every one was charmed with the splendid program rendered, and were loud in their praise of the fine talents exhibited. A friend said to me, in whose home several were stopping, "These are the finest girls I ever saw, and I would like to have them with me all the time." Another friend said, "These boys and girls will measure up to any college students in the United States." Such expressions of appreciation as these swell my heart with pride, and make me glad that I had a small part in making possible an institution that would produce such fine boys and girls as these. The people of Charleston say, "The choir must come back again."

SUPPOSE THE BIBLE WERE GONE

A certain man dreamed that he went to consult his Bible and found every page blank. In amazement he rushed to his neighbor's house, aroused him from his sleep, and asked to see his Bible, but when he brought the Book they found it also blank. In great consternation they sought other Bibles, with the same result. Then they said, "We will go to the libraries and from the great books we will gather the quotations of Scripture, and thus remake our Bible." But when they examined all the books upon the shelves of all the libraries, they found that wherever a quotation of Scripture had been, that part of the page was blank.

When the man awoke, his brow was cold, yet covered with perspiration, so great had been his agony during the dream. Oh! how dark this world would be without the Bible! Man would be like a wretched ship dashed into mid-ocean.—The King's Business.

High Point College Choir to Be at Grace Church

The High Point College Choir will be at Grace Methodist Protestant Church in Greensboro next Sunday afternoon, May 12, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This choir has recently returned from a southern tour where their music elicited great praise from those who heard it. Our church people living near enough would do well to hear them next Sunday afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

Three Ways to Kill a Church

1. Discover those matters about which the members of your church disagree most strongly. Stress them frequently in order that all may know what a variety of opinion there is among your members. And whenever you chance to meet a leader in the opposing groups, tell him fully all the bad things those in the other group say about him because this will make him angry and he will then say some ugly things you can carry back as live coals to kindle the dying embers of hatred among the opposition. Just uncover the Pandora Box occasionally and let all the species of evil-mindedness get out in action on the other members, otherwise the church may yet live and prosper.

2. Find out soon as possible all the human frailties of your pastor. List them carefully, then publish them abroad because there may be some folk in your church not as observant of such things as you are. He may have been born in a one-room cabin, his parents may have been very poor and ignorant, etc. Get informed about all these things, too; then broadcast them to those who have itching ears, and they will assist you in letting others know what you know about the frailties of this preacher of the gospel. When this has been done thoroughly, begin to count the people present at church services and see if already there is not a slump; if so, publish it to the community at once. Your method will surely work —all you need to do is to work it persistently.

3. Publish abroad what a sorry church yours is. Begin at the top, tell what a poor set of officials your church has, both General and Annual Conferences. Read the Journals and church papers to find out their deficiencies and when you get a line on the weakness of any of these, rest not until you have passed it on to other gossip mongers. It will never do to forget the mistakes of church officials. They should be perfect, and if they are not, and should by any chance make a mistake, this thing must not be forgotten nor forgiven. For if you should forgive and forget, you would fail to do the very thing you have set out to do—kill the church.

Finally, there may be some things I have overlooked in this brief summary; if so, do not fail to know all the mistakes your church folk make; the poor music, because it has the wrong music committee and the wrong choir leader; watch the official board; the stewards may make a mistake, likewise the trustees, the superintendent of the Sunday school—if they should, you must be detective enough to find these out, and exploiter enough to let them be known. Emphasize the fact that these people made these mistakes because they wanted to make them, or were just too ignorant to know any better. Enlist your kin people in this campaign, get them to withdraw from all the activities of the church, but keep the row going with accelerated speed, else after all your efforts you may not succeed in killing the church as you have intended to do.

Pastors' Report Blanks Mailed

We are putting into the mail these questionnaires which we hope will reach pastors in time to be returned by the middle of next week. First half of conference year really closes this week, but you may include in your report any money received or members taken into the church May 12.

We shall give recognition to those churches which have paid all claims in full for the year or up to date at the mid-year meet. Be sure to send the money in to Conference Treasurer Allen, Reidsville, at once, as he will run in the HERALD next week a report of all money he has received up to date. We are anxious that every church which has paid any claim in full shall appear in his report.

Fallston Charge, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, Pastor

This is a five-point charge. I visited three of the churches, Hebron, Laurel Hill and Friendship, in the order named. The weather hindered some, we suppose, but we had good services at all the churches. Hebron is one of our good rural churches with a good building, a small but substantial membership, and they are doing much better this year than last in many respects; the pastor reports that financially they have already done more for the conference program than was done there last year. All Annual Conference claims will doubtless be paid by this church. Laurel Hill is having a new roof put on it; is to have an inside job of painting, rearrangement of the chancel and choir, and some other improvements, I learned. Not as much had been done here for the Annual Conference budgets as at Hebron, but the pastor is hopeful that this church will also pay out. Fallston is the strongest church on the charge; larger membership and more financial and leadership ability here. There is here an active Christian Endeavor Society and an active Woman's Auxiliary on the charge. Fallston, or Friendship, paid all claims last year, including pastor's salary, but not all of W. S., and will do as well or better this year. Here I saw a pile of stones and several thousand feet of newly sawn lumber, and upon inquiry learned that a new church is in prospect. Watch the report of the Fallston reporter for full particulars as to plan and when the building will be started

I enjoyed my visit here with the people and in the home of the Fogleman's. Although I had three appointments, they were not hard and I had ample time for rest after each service.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT WORSHIP

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

Our study of the second of the four cornerstones of society is of worship. Worship, whether in the crude, primitive form of the savage or of the more highly refined form of the highest civilization, is based upon a relationship between man and a supernatural power, intuitively felt and recognized. The universal, irresistible, indestructible inclination to worship is innate. The urge to look to a higher power and to strive to incur favor, and, in the more advanced stages, to seek fellowship, is born in man. It is his nature, his very self.

Some individuals in all ages have striven to smother it in themselves and to suppress or destroy it in others, but to no avail. Witness the present futile efforts of the government of Soviet Russia to obliterate all religion in that country. As well try to destroy in man the inclination to think as to try to destroy the inclination to worship. It is spirit and spirit is indestructible.

The Dawn of Worship Is Dim

Perhaps the highest thought of man is concerning his relationship with his Creator and his highest act the creature worshipping the Creator. Yet perhaps no other thought is more primitive or act more crude than that of worship in the earliest stages of the human race.

The Bible does not tell us as to the nature or form of worship by our first parents. The words "worship" and "altar" do not appear in the Bible before the flood. "Offering" appears before the flood only three times and "burnt offering" not at all. "Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock." Gen. 4:3, 4. In the days of Enos, a grandson of Adam, "began men to call upon the name of the Lord." Gen. 4:26. According to the Bible record the above instances are dawnings of worship by act and by word—offering and prayer. Enoch, the sixth generation from Adam, "walked with God." Gen. 5:22, 24. Enoch thus introduced another feature in worship, that of fellowship or communion with God.

Forms and Features of Worship

Noah, on emerging from the ark, started the new civilization by building the first altar and offering the first burnt offering, of which the Bible gives record. "And Noah builded an altar unto the Lord . . . and offered burnt offerings on the altar." Gen. 8:20. A new form of worship; and if it was an expression of gratitude for deliverance from the flood, a new feature, perhaps, that of thankfulness.

However, during the remaining years of the Patriarchal period, worship continued in a very primitive form. A mound of earth and stone, thrown up at such place as the nomad found convenient to pitch his tent, served as an altar on which the sacrifice was burnt, without priest or any specific rule, so far as the record informs us, perhaps at such time as the urge to worship was felt.

Another Form of Worship

Another form of worship during the Patriarchal period was the placing of a memorial stone and a drink offering poured on it at such spot as God had appeared to a patriarch. "And Jacob set up a pillar in the place where he (God) talked with him, even a pillar of stone: and he poured a drink offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon." Gen. 35.14.

The ceremony of sealing a covenant between God and a patriarch by circumcision should be added here as one other form of worship during the Patriarchal period. "This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee; Every man-child among you shall be circumcised." Gen. 17:10.

Multiform Worship

When under the leadership of Moses the Hebrews came out of bondage and began to organize into a nation, the people were more numerous, life became much more complex, the form of worship likewise became complex. A casual reading of the 29th chapter of Exodus, concerning the sacrifice and ceremonies of consecrating the priests, will give some idea of the complexity of the system of worship by sacrifices. To our minds it is little short of a bewildering maze. When to all this, innumerable traditions were added, it is no wonder Jesus said: "The letter killeth." 2 Cor. 3:6. And again: "They bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders." Matt. 23:4. Rice in his comment on the above verse says: "As an instance of the absurd length to which they would go, the two schools (of rabbis) had a controversy upon whether it was lawful to kill a louse on the Sabbath."

Pagan peoples had multiplex systems of worship because of their multiplicity of gods; the Hebrew people had a multiplex system of worship because of their multiplicity of requirements in approaching one God. Jesus was born into and grew up in such a situation. He revolted and blazed a new way.

Worship Is a Personal Act of the Spirit

Worship is a spiritual act, performed in person by the worshiper, not through rites, ceremonies, and offerings by a priest as mediator. Nor is a particular place of worship a necessity, only a convenience. Jesus by one master stroke brushed all that aside in His conversation with the woman at the well. "Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem, worship the Father . . . But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him. God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." John 4:21-24. No more clear-cut expression of a sublimer truth ever escaped the lips of even the Great Teacher!

THE GREAT REGIONAL CONVENTION AT HIGH POINT COLLEGE

May 29-31

We folks in North Carolina will have to watch ourselves due to the fact that this convention is going to be among us. The fact that the most of us will have to travel only a few miles to get to the seat of the convention may have the tendency to keep some of us away. We have often heard that "distance lends enchantment," and proximity has a tendency to make things common place. In other words, people will travel for miles sometimes to see scenic beauty, while those living in easy reach have never laid eyes on it. Some of the greatness of the Methodist Protestant church will be at the Regional Convention at High Point College and we are apt to let it come and go and never get the value of it. Let's not let the fact that the convention is nearby disillusion us as to its real worth and importance.

In a Life's Time

In a lifetime the most of us will not have the opportunity of attending very many conventions. Such a privilege will not come our way many times during the span of our years in this world. Folks, if you love the Methodist Protestant church and want to see her keep pace with the demands of the times, double your efforts to get some of our BEST to the convention. PICK those who mean and will mean most to our church and Sunday school and see that they get to this convention. Pay their way, if they are not able to get here otherwise.

We Need Ideas

The reason why that half of our churches make no more progress than they do is because they need new ways of doing things. A great convention like this one will fill your old empty jug with new ideas and steer you out of the ruts. It will cause you to blaze new paths and push back the horizon.

We Need Inspiration

This convention ought to give us a new stimulus, inspiration and zeal in our church work. Many people have ideas but they lack the inspiration to carry them out. It is all right to have a good car but without gas it will do little more than decorate your car house. A great convention will lift you heavenward and make you ashamed that you are not doing more for your Master and His Kingdom. Send the best you have to this convention and they and you will never regret that they had this great opportunity.

Remember the Cost!

Fifty cents for the registration and $2.00 for the three days at the convention. Registrations will take place between the hours of 3 and 6 May 29. Don't forget to bring your own bed linens, towels, etc.

Remember, I am going to be looking for you between the above-mentioned hours MAY 29. And be sure to get your QUOTA OF REGISTRATIONS.

Yours for a great convention,

J. Clyde Auman, Registrar.

REV. J. CLYDE AUMAN, Treasurer Conference Council of Religious Education, Chairman of the Registration campaign and Business Manager of the Leadership Training School.

A Few Facts Concerning Efland Church

By Rev. B. M. Williams, Pastor

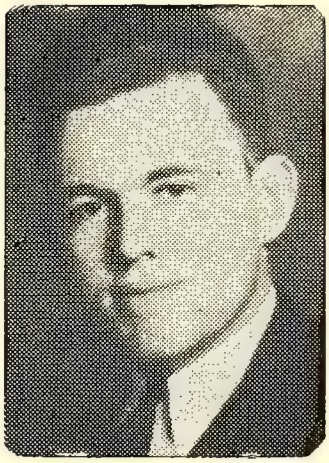
On May 14, 1898, Rev. W. M. Pike, the pastor of Orange charge, was instructed to preach at Efland. On October 31, 1903, the Quarterly Conference appointed a committee consisting of S. T. Forrest, C. C. Smith and Miss Lillian Thompson to investigate the advisability of building a church at Efland and to report back to the Quarterly Conference. In March, 1904, the following trustees were appointed: S. T. Forrest, C. C. Smith, L. A. Boggs, G. M. Pratt and H. D. Brown. These trustees, together with the pastor, Rev. W. D. Fogleman, were to constitute the building committee, with power to selec a site and build a church. On August 3, 1904, S. T. Forrest reported that a lot had been secured and that the building had been started. In July, 1905, the Quarterly Conference convened in Efland. The new organization reported a good Sunday school with an enrollment of 92.

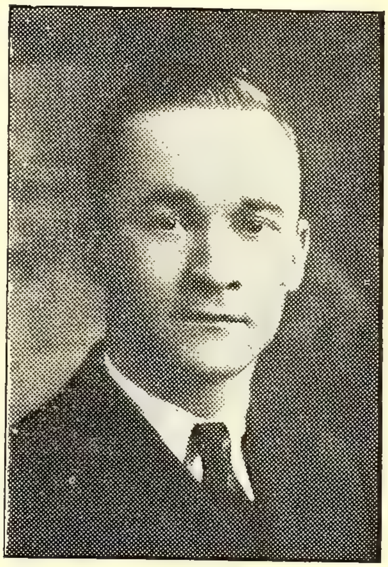
The following have served the Efland church either as regular or as acting pastors: Revs. W. D. Fogleman, A. G. Dixon, W. M. Pike, R. M. Andrews, C. W. Bates, Homer Casto, R. C. Stubbins, J. A. Burgess, C. H. Whitaker, W. F. Kennett, H. F. Surratt, H. L. Powell and the writer.

The first church was a wooden building erected during the pastorate of Rev. W. D. Fogleman in about 1905. This was remodeled in about 1910 during the pastorate of Rev.

REV. J. C. BROOMFIELD, D. D., President of the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church and one of the speakers at the South Regional Convention.

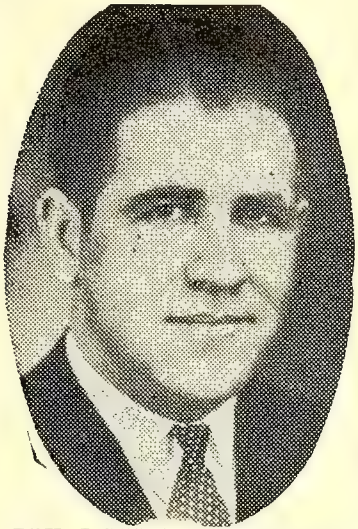


REV. T. J. WHITEHEAD, President of the Conference Council of Religious Education, and host to South Regional Convention.



REV. F. L. GIBBS, Executive Secretary of the Department of Religious Education in the Board of Christian Education and sponsor of the South Regional Convention.

REV. C. E. FORLINES, D.D., Professor of Systematic and Historical Theology, Westminster Theological Seminary, who will be one of the instructors in the Leadership Training School at High Point College. He has taught in every school except one which has been held here.



REV. J. ELWOOD CARROLL, Assistant Dean of the Leadership Training School, Director of the Standard courses and Vice President of the Conference Council.

REV. F. W. STEPHENSON, D. D., Executive Secretary of the Board of Christian Education.

Homer Casto. In 1928 seven new Sunday school rooms were added to the original building and the entire building was plastered on the inside and brick veneered on the outside. The remainder of the church debt has been paid this year and the church will be dedicated the third Sunday in May. The programme for the day will be found in the HERALD of this week.

—Many of our correspondents are falling into the bad habit of waiting too late in the week to mail their letters. Dr. McCulloch's rule was to use only short articles of considerable importance that came on Wednesday.

—Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Williams, of Asheville, who have been to New York on a vacation, stopped over in Greensboro for the Grace church anniversary banquet last Friday evening.

OUR STORY PAGE

A STRUGGLE AND A VICTORY

Alice and Amy were in their teens when first they met. For a year or more they worked at the same place, and thus saw each other on most days of the week. There was not much difference in their ages, but there was something which made a great difference between them, for Amy was one of God's children, while Alice, the older girl, was not. When Amy spoke to her of the importance of her soul's salvation, Alice seemed quite unconcerned, although admitting she was a sinner.

On one particular day as they sat sewing, Alice sang a hymn very sweetly. As the last words rang out:

> "Let us think how heaven and home
> Lie beyond that 'Till He come'."

Amy, who felt the seriousness of it, said, "Alice, when you sing, do you ever think of what the words mean? Don't you know that if the Lord Jesus came just now it would not be 'heaven and home' for you?"

The answer to this was a mocking laugh, and, as Amy said a little more with no better result, she felt discouraged.

Alice worked with an aunt, a Christian, and one day this aunt came to Amy and said anxiously, "I feel sure God is working with Alice, and yet she does not yield! I took her to some special gospel meetings four nights this week; she went most unwillingly, and each day she seems more and more unhappy. I can see she is having a struggle; I wish you would speak to her."

"I have often spoken, but she will not listen," said Amy sadly.

"Then do speak to her again," urged the aunt. "I am so troubled about her."

Presently Alice stopped her work and sat a little apart from the others with her head bent low, looking very dejected. Amy went to her. "Alice, do you think you ever will trust in Jesus as your Savior?"

Alice was silent for a few moments and then, still with her head bent, she replied quietly, "I trusted in Him last night, Amy."

"But you look so miserable!" protested Amy.

Alice raised her head and smiles broke out on her face as she said, "Oh, I shall be happy now that I have confessed Jesus as my Savior! It has been such a struggle. Satan has been trying to keep me from telling anyone, and I was miserable, but it will be all right now!"

And did this happiness last? It did, indeed, in God's mercy.

Circumstances changed. These two no longer worked at the same place, and they seldom heard of each other, but several years later Amy received a letter from Alice, who wrote:

"I am writing because I want you always to feel glad that you spoke to me as you did, although I laughed at you. When I tell of my conversion I often tell as well how I first confessed Christ to you. Satan still tries to keep me silent about my Savior, but

> "Jesus is stronger than Satan and sin,
> Satan to Jesus must bow."

May we, who belong to such a worthy Savior, be encouraged to speak of Him by the grace and help of the Holy Spirit, and to confess Him as our Lord in this world where He is rejected.—A. M., in Gospel Stories for the Young.

THE THANK YOU LEPER

The door slammed. "Hello, everybody," was Uncle Joe's greeting. Bobby and Jane left their toys, running to him.

"Guess what I have for you today," teased Uncle Joe.

"Candy!" cried Bobby.

"Picture books!" said Jane.

"You are both wrong. I have a good juicy, carmeled apple," said Uncle Joe.

Mother was watching all the fun. She saw Jane thank her uncle, politely, but Bobby ran back to his toys eating his apple. Mother had told Bobby so often to be polite and to say thank you, but Bobby always forgot.

That night, when mother told the bedtime story, it was about "The Thank You Leper." Here it is:

One day, the Lord Jesus was walking to Jerusalem. Undoubtedly it was a warm day and the loose sand got in His sandals; often He stopped to rest His weary body and feet.

Down the road toward Him came a group of men. They were walking, but some of them staggered as if they were in great pain or were very weak. They had the most dreaded disease—leprosy. Their clothes were long and black. When anyone came near them, they held their hands out and cried, "Unclean, unclean."

"Poor people," said Jesus Christ to Himself. "Why don't they come to Me, and I will give them rest?" His heart was filled with pity for them and He counted, "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten." There were ten poor lepers. When they drew nearer, they cried, "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us." He looked at them and said, "Go tell the priest in the temple." The priest was the only one that could say they were cured.

They went, and suddenly one cried out, "I'm healed, I'm healed." Then they all saw they were well and strong once more. They were so happy. They went to their friends as quickly as they could. But there was one man who stopped, and ran after Jesus. He fell on his knees and said, "Thank you, Lord, for your kindness."

Jesus Christ looked at him, and looked for the others. He was the only one left of the ten.

Did I not heal ten, where are the other nine? "Arise, go thy way: thy faith hath made thee whole." There was sadness in His voice because the others had so soon forgotten His kind act.

"Children, think how happy this one man must have been when he learned that he only had remembered to thank the Lord," said mother. "Let us always try to do as this leper."

"Mother," said Bobby, "I forgot to thank Uncle Joe today. I am so sorry. I shall never forget again."—The Pilot.

Cost of Entertainment. The college has been very generous in providing meals and lodging in the college, for the entire stay is only $1.50 for delegates outside of the North Carolina Conference and $2.00 for those from the North Carolina Conference proper.

Rev. T. J. Whitehead is heading up a strong local committee which is seeing to it that the comfort of each delegate will be assured at this convention. A CALL TO CHURCH LEADERS

In this issue of the Methodist Protestant Herald we are giving the people of the North Carolina Conference an outline of the Young People's Regional Convention for the South and the Annual Leadership Training School of the Conference Council of Religious Education. I want to request every pastor, church leader, and young person to study these programs carefully. It seems to me that these programs should be a real challenge to all of our church leaders to go to High Point College for the instruction and inspiration that they can receive there.

There are two goals that we hope to reach this year. First, the Department of Religious Education has set a goal of 295 registrations for the Regional Convention for the North Carolina Conference. You can help a good cause by sending in your registration for this convention. Register for the convention even if you cannot attend. You will receive a very helpful booklet giving you a report of the convention. The second goal that we want to reach this year is the following: "Every Church in the North Carolina Annual Conference Sending at Least One Student to the Leadership Training School in 1935." I want to call upon all of our church leaders to support us in these programs. T. J. WHITEHEAD.

TEXHOMA CONFERENCE SURPASSES ADVANCED REGISTRATION GOAL FOR REGIONAL CONVENTION

Away down in western Oklahoma, more than 400 miles from the seat of the Southwest Convention which is to be held in Grayson, La., June 1-4, one of our smallest conferences and a newly organized Conference Council has surpassed its goal of 20 registrations for the Southwest Regional Convention.

We have ujst received 22 registrations from this conference, 15 of which are planning to attend the convention at Grayson. This should be an inspiration to North Carolina to realize its goal of 295 advanced registrations.

All ex-pastors and friends of the church are invited to attend these services.

The editor of the Herald gets in big on this, as he is a friend to all our churches and people. He has a special invitation to attend and give us some words of encouragement. B. M. WILLIAMS.

BUY A "BABY BOND" WITH COUPONS

As a means of strengthening the bond of sympathy and support which now exists between the children of our Sunday schools and the children of our Children's Home, we are trying to reach every Sunday school in the conference with a "Baby Bond."

No one can look into the smiling faces depicted on the bond without realizing more than ever how important it is that the work of feeding and clothing these fatherless and motherless little ones be well supported. We believe that the Baby Bond will help enlist the active support of the church. The Baby Bond must be paid for with COUPONS. Each bond represents 1,000 coupons and can be paid for in one year. Our smallest schools can pay for it in that time, and so every one can have a "Baby Bond—with coupons." Many churches will each buy a number of bonds.

Perhaps you have a list of the coupons which are accepted in payment, as they were printed in the Herald some time ago, but here is a short list of them also: Octagon Soap Products, Luzianne Coffee, Bordon's Premium Brand Milks, Rumford Baking Powder (the post cards from the latter count as coupons), Knox Sparkling Gelatine (save the complete box; it is accepted as two coupons), Creamette Egg Noodles (on these save the front panel of box; it is accepted as one coupon).

The Baby Bond is attractively prepared, and can be displayed on the walls of the Sunday school assembly room or on the walls of the room in which the auxiliary meets. Won't you please have weekly reference made to it so as to create a lasting interest on the part of the Sunday school children and all other organizations of the church, not only in the bond but in the Home for which it stands.

We appreciate all that your church has done in the past and are counting on them for this the biggest thing we have undertaken yet. The payment of 1,000 coupons will permit the Sunday school to retain the bond. As each lot of 250 coupons is received, an acknowledgment stamp will be sent to be pasted on one of the four spaces at the bottom of the bond, so each group will know how much has been paid "on account" of the Baby Bond. Bonds not paid for at the end of that time will be recalled.

Let's have all groups of the church and all classes of the Sunday school interest themselves in the plan and make it possible for each church to "Buy a Baby Bond—with coupons."

Depending on you, we are

Yours in His service,
MRS. A. G. DIXON, Coupon Manager.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. J. H. Cox, Seaford, Del., 1 box of underwear. Mrs. Marin Bescher, Canaan, Denton, 1 rug and 2 sheets. The women of Kistlers-Union, Cleveland Ct., 2 quilts.

We are thankful for this help, both in money and substance.

Rainy Sundays

Still the rainy Sundays come. Some one who has observed says there have been ten rainy Sundays consecutively. This has, of course, very materially reduced our offerings for over two months. The April offerings were just about half our regular monthly expectancy. With the help of the Duke Endowment we were paid up closer than usual on the 15th of April. But unless the monthly offerings are better than they have been for the last two months we will soon be far behind again. We thank you for your help and beg of you that you will help us to keep up.

Roberta S. S.

The Roberta Sunday school visited us yesterday. Because of the rain they had picnic dinner inside the girls' dormitory. We enjoyed them and they seemed to have a good time. They made their regular monthly offering and left us more than their usual monthly offering. We are thankful for friends and Christian people who are interested in the work here. God bless and direct in all the affairs of His kingdom on earth.

Coupons—Gather the coupons and send them to us. They help.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

The district meeting of the Women's Work will be held at our church on Wednesday, May 29. All the women are requested to be present. DOROTHY MILLER, Reporter.

Flat Rock Charge.—The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at our service at Gideon's Grove church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. A surprise speaker will be heard at Flat Rock church in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. No one but the pastor and the speaker coming knows who it is that will speak.

Our first revival meeting for this year will be held at Flat Rock church beginning on Sunday, June 23. Rev. C. L. Grant, pastor of North Davidson charge, has been engaged to assist in the meeting.

The Mission Band of Gideon's Grove church will meet at the church Saturday afternoon of this week at 2:30 o'clock. The parents of the members of the organization have been invited to attend the meeting and witness the program to be rendered.

While the pastor and family were absent last Saturday afternoon, some visitors came with a gift, a large portion of a ham, and left it with a neighbor. We thank Mr. and Mrs. Ira N. Johnson, of Flat Rock church, for the gift, which is appreciated very much. Others who have remembered us with useful gifts are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Humphreys, and Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Gordon, to whom we give thanks.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Midway.—Midway church had an unusually large attendance at the district meeting Sunday p. m., April 28. A large number of churches were represented. It was a splendid opportunity for Midway to get acquqainted with her fellow church members and was much enjoyed.

The singing was heartily enjoyed. Wayne Hornady, soloist, and a mixed quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Teague, Rev. J. E. Carroll and Wayne Hornady. Rev. Mr. Carroll presided. Mrs. E. T. Coble introduced Dr. Joy Glascock, who gave a very fine review of work done in Branch meeting in Asheboro.

Rev. J. E. Pritchard, editor of M. P. Herald, spoke on our church paper and its needs. He urged all local agents to solicit new subscriptions. Rev. J. C. Madison, of First M. P. church, High Point, gave an inspiring message on "Church Loyalty." Altogether the meeting was an inspiring one.

CHURCH REPORTER.

Fairview, Glen Raven Ct.—Sunday, May 12, there will be held at Fairview church the annual Mother's Memorial Day service. A picnic dinner will be spread on the grounds. All former pastors and persons who may have once worshiped in this church are given a cordial invitation to return for the morning and afternoon services.

J. P. PEGG, Pastor.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant Charge.—I suppose we had to wait until the weather warmed up a little before we could get our machinery to working down here at Mt. Pleasant, but it seems that we have got it started and if every one will just leave all of their old wrenches at home we hope to keep it going. By the time this reaches the readers the carpenter's hammer will have been sounding the tune of construction at Mt. Pleasant church. In fact, by the time the readers see this we think that the alterations on the inside of the present church building will be completed, which means that we will have a choir loft, a new arrangement and elevation for the pulpit, and a chancel around the altar. This we think will improve the inside appearance very much.

Before the end of another week the masons will have started on the actual construction of the addition to the church, which is to be a 40x50 foot building with a basement under the same. This, we hope, will take care of the badly needed space for the Sunday school, and also some of the social activities of the church. About three-fourths of the total amount of the cost of the construction has been pledged and is expected to be paid by the first of July.

At the Workers' Council meeting a couple of weeks ago it was decided to make a survey of the church community to find out what available material is in the community, and as near as possible something of the condition in which the material exists. The survey is to be completed this week, and from that we hope to gather some valuable information as to the needs and possibilities of the community. We hope to follow this survey with a concentrated effort to recruit the inactive and non-church attenders.

We have almost reached the halfway mark with our finances for the year, and the prospects look good for a triumphant finish in that race this year.

Well, things have been picking up at Pleasant Union church this year. The Sunday school has increased almost a third. They are not bulging the walls of the church building yet, but already some of them have been talking about needing more space for the Sunday school. The church has already paid three of its claims in full and is determined to get the others out of the way just as fast as they can. Pleasant Union came out somewhat behind at the end of the race last year, but it begins to look as though they are going to be among the leaders this year.

J. W. BRAXTON.

Christian Endeavor Society of Lebanon M. P. Church.—Several weeks ago our Junior C. E. Society presented our church with the picture, "The Angelus," Sunday evening at the church house the Young People's Society had charge of the service and presented a program on the picture.

At the opening of the service the male double quartet, who are friends of the Rev. Mr. Morgan, delighted a large, appreciative audience with a number of selections.

Miss Lois Yokley, president of the C. E. Society, conducted the devotional period. The Angelus, being placed in front of the audience, was lighted by tall candles. The story and description, being told by an unseen voice, brought the audience to a closer observance of the picture. A brief story of the life and work of the artist was also given and the program ended with a violin solo.

LEBANON C. E. REPORTER.

Anderson Charge.—We are looking forward to the coming of Dr. Andrews this week-end. He will preach at Fairview church, Anderson charge, Saturday night at 8 o'clock, and at Liberty Hill Sunday morning at 11 a. m., May 12.

Yesterday marked another annual Homecoming Day with Fairview church. The program was full of interesting items from beginning to end in the late afternoon. It was a good day for us. The address was given by one of the young, gifted and honored sons of this state, Hon. Neville Bennett. He spoke from the standpoint of a layman to laymen on the theme of "The Place of Vital Godliness and Religion and the Character of Man and in the Security of a Permanent Civilization." His message was well received and was well worth going a long way to hear. This gentleman's message proved to his hearers that education wouldn't make a fool of a man that was big enough to receive it.

There was another item in the program deserving of special mention. That was a short history of Fairview church, presented by the gifted and lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Smith, now Mrs. Willie Brown. This was a sketch of the church from its beginning nearly 100 years ago, a description of the three houses of worship erected on the grounds, a list of charter members, and the names of 31 preachers who have served the church. Among them was listed our beloved Dr. Taylor, and one other, whose memory we cherish, and our emotions rise when we think of his parting—the late Dr. L. W. Gerringer. After the reading in such a captivating manner, a motion was adopted that Mrs. Brown be the church historian. She accepted the position, for which she is amply qualified and fitted to execute with honor.

I don't think the Easter program has been reported yet. This was given Easter Sunday night. I do not think I have ever witnessed a better one. The training of the children was in charge of Miss Montz Henderson, Mrs. E. Pepper and Mrs. Connelly. But we could expect nothing less than a good program when these women get hold of the preparations. ROBERT SHORT, Pastor.

Danville, Va.—Surely the Lord does provide for His children, for no sooner than we are denied one good pleasure it seems that He has another to take its place. At least it is true in this particular case. It was very hard for this writer to leave the Kannapolis people whom he had learned to love in his two years' work with them, but this became necessary last fall in order that he might continue his training at Westminster Theological Seminary. It was in the early spring that I received a letter from Dr. Andrews asking me to serve as pastor of the newly organized church in Danville, Va., so here I am reaping this second good pleasure.

I have found here an exceptionally fine people. We have some of the finest people of Danville in this new organization which is now 41 strong. The Sunday school, which is 87 strong, is growing steadily. Mr. Joe Lamb is the efficient superintendent. The goal set for next Sunday is 150. The attendance at both Sunday services was very good. There were about 125 for the morning service and about 150 for the evening service, which speaks well for a church so young. A Woman's Missionary Society has been organized and is doing splendid work. I understand that the attendanse at the midweek prayer meeting is good. As yet no Young People's Society has been organized, but in time we're hoping to have this organization completed.

Mr. G. H. Guerrnat and Mr. Ira Elliott have been the two main leaders of this organization, and under their splendid leadership considerable progress has been made. Each of these men has had a great amount of experience in church work. The church is blessed with other efficient leaders, and the entire group has shown a spirit of co-operation and willingness to work.

Personally I feel that there is a great opportunity here. The location is fine. Though there are a number of churches nearby, there are still a great number of unchurched people in the community. It is our purpose to try to reach these, to introduce them to Christ and get them actively connected with the church. In this great work we earnestly covet your prayers.

A temporary meeting place has been secured in which services have been held since February, a preacher being supplied by Dr. Andrews from Sunday to Sunday. Dr. Brown came over from Reidsville and preached to the congregation several times, and several local preachers have filled in from time to time. A revival meeting was conducted in April which proved to be very successful. The fact that it rained most of the time, however, was a great handicap. A number of preachers were used during the course of the meeting, Dr. Williams, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Dixon, and Rev. R. S. Troxler, all of whom I understand brought very helpful and inspiring messages.

The meeting place is a store room on North Main street which has been furnished with improvised seats and platform. If anyone desires to visit us, you will have no trouble locating the church or the pastor, who lives nearby.

A boarding place has been provided for me at Mrs. Riley's, 610 Worsham Street, and I like my new home very much.

Again we solicit your prayers.

C. P. MORRIS, Pastor.

First Church, Burlington.—The interest in the work here continues to increase. There were 391 in our Sunday school last Sunday. The North Carolina Baraca-Philathea convention was held here on May 3, 4, 5. A. B. Saleeby, state president, spoke to our Philathea and Baraca classes at the Sunday school hour. We enjoyed hearing the Concord M. P. Baraca quartet during the Sunday school and preaching hours.

Our church recently sent $108 to High Point College and paid $150 on the McCulloch Memorial Fund.

Last Sunday a group of young girls gave a short musical program during the Sunday school hour. Miss Lula Riddle had charge of the program. Miss Riddle is doing a great work in preparing our young people to sing the Master's praises.

An evangelical club with the object of praying for and speaking to the unsaved in order to lead them to Jesus has been organized in our church.

Mebane.—At the morning service Sunday the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jobe presented to the church a beautiful pulpit Bible. There are 11 children and all were present. The gift was in honor of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Jobe.

The Ladies' Aid met Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. E. Barnette. A good attendance and a neat sum for the McCulloch Memorial Fund was turned over to the church treasurer. A supper was put on from which this money was realized. The president, Mrs. George Wyatte, was responsible for this. The Junior Philathea Class is having a mother-daughter banquet Thursday evening. An enjoyable time is anticipated. The teacher, Mrs. E. L. Ballard, and a capable committee are making elaborate plans. The Board of Stewards met Monday evening with Mr. J. E. Barnette. The treasurer's report was very encouraging, despite the fact that White Furniture Company has been standing for two weeks. Most of our people work at this plant and of course this affects our offerings. We have been pleased to have Mr. and Mrs. Homer Keever, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Sides, C. D., Jr., worship with us recently.

Prof. J. P. Moore, superintendent of our Sunday school, taught the Baraca Class Sunday. Prof. Moore is leaving our town after serving here for 12 years.

Graham.—We observed International Music Sunday last Sunday. Our morning service was given over entirely to music. A splendid program, under the direction of Mrs. Don S. Holt, was rendered. Our pastor's message for Sunday evening was on "Christ and Personal Living." The song service was by the men's choir.

Our circles are meeting this week as follows: Circle No. 1 met with Mrs. G. S. Stafford Monday afternoon; Circle No. 2 with Mrs. Walter Evans Thursday evening; Circle No. 3 with Mrs. W. N. Riley Monday evening; Myrle Minnis Circle with Mrs. J. S. Cook Friday afternoon.

The L. T. S. Club will meet with Miss Ruby Garner Thursday evening.

A special program has been prepared for Mother's Day. We are hoping to have all the mothers of our church present. Mr. J. D. Foust has charge of the special music. The Friendly Helpers Sunday School class will have charge of the S. S. program.

Orange Charge.—The second quarterly conference was held at Union Grove church Saturday, May 4. The reports from the officials were encouraging. We have four Woman's Auxiliaries, four Laymen's Fellowship organizations, and one C. E. Society, all doing good work. Some of the things accomplished this year are: Efland church debt paid in full, Herald Subsidy all paid, McCulloch Memorial Fund paid in full with the exception of $6.00, carpet for Hebron church costing $103 bought and paid for, college assessment paid in full.

The quarterly conference nominated the following candidates for delegate to the next Annual Conference: D. A. Davies and S. Carl Forrest. B. M. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

West End, Greensboro.—Our revival services closed on Sunday evening and we feel that the church as a whole has been greatly benefited and that we are strengthened to meet coming tasks. We feel that we were abundantly blessed in receiving into the church last Sunday, by letter and public confession, the following: Martha Jane Hinton, Mary Manley, Cammie Manley, Newman Lemmons, Marian Manley, Eva Ellen Caudle, Jennette Chandler, Christine Gilley, Samuel Underwood, Vernon Underwood, Alethea Livingood, Mrs. Arzie Routh, Betty Jean Routh, Sue Ellen Stapleton, Pauline Yow, Vance Bethea, Nathanael Bethea, Harold Carter and Lewis Bethea.

At the 11 o'clock hour Dr. Bethea preached on the subject, "Thy Kingdom Come." Some of the things which must be taken out of our life before His kingdom can come are injustice, impurity, and dishonesty. While having the Kingdom of God in our hearts brings justice, honor, truth, and love, which is needed more than any other thing.

Sunday evening his subject was "The Man Who Might Have Been." Matt. 10:4. Judas Iscariot was the character discussed and the word picture of his life showed us all too plainly the awfulness of turning traitor to God.

The circles held their regular meeting Monday afternoon and evening and are looking forward to another successful year under the leadership of the new chairmen: Mrs J. K. Osborne, No. 1, and Mrs. Florence Watt, No. 2. Both had good meetings, with No. 2 leading in attendance.

A special program is being prepared for Mother's Day, that we may honor those who are yet living and the memory of those gone on before. REPORTER.

New Hope, Why Not Charge.—It has been quite a long time since we've had a report from this church. But we are still trying to carry on the Master's work. Our Sunday school enrollment is over 100. There were 90 present last Sunday.

Rev. C. H. Hill preaches such inspiring sermons. He is giving us two sermons each month, the first and third Sundays at 11 a m. This is the first year in many that we have had the privilege of two sermons each month.

The folding doors have been recently installed.

We hope with the coming of spring and summer that we will be able to increase our attendance at Sunday school and preaching hour.

We are expecting to get in a report more often than we have been.

MRS. JASPER VONCANNON, Reporter.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Our work still seems to be going very well. Our Sunday school attendance Sunday was 222, the enrollment for the second quarter having reached 306. The reports given at our Workers' Council held Monday night showed a co-operative spirit and much spiritual progress. Every organization of our church seems to be alive and doing fine work. We will not take space for their detailed activities. The work on the parsonage is moving along fine. The plastering was started Monday and it will not be very long before its completion. Our parsonage treasurer reported $1,620.03 pledged and $1,295.53 collected.

Next Sunday, which will be Mother's Day, Circle No. 3 of our Auxiliary will present a program in keeping with the day at 7:30 or 8 p. m. (I failed to find the exact time). A nice bouquet of flowers will be presented to the oldest mother and one to the oldest father present.

Sunday, May 19, will be our annual homecoming and memorial day at Shiloh. The program committee is working hard to have a very impressive program. It will be changed somewhat from what it has formerly been. (A detailed program will probably appear next week.) However, it will be an all-day affair with Sunday school, preaching and memorial service in the morning, dinner on the grounds, and an afternoon entirely devoted to homecoming. It is hoped that every person who has loved ones buried at Shiloh will see that those graves are decorated with flowers. It is hoped that every grave will be decorated but it is left to the individuals rather than a flower committee as has formerly been the case. All former members and friends, along with the public as a whole. are invited to come and spend the day with us.

Mrs. J. M. Shoaf is a patient at the Davidson Hospital, Lexington, suffering from a broken leg and a dislocated ankle, which happened Sunday as she with her husband and three children were en route to see a sister, it is understood. No other car was involved in the accident which brought this misfortune. The Shoaf car got out of his control and the car hit a stump. Mr. Shoaf was slightly bruised in the chest, but none of the children was hurt more than scratches, it is reported. We sincerely hope for Mrs. Shoaf a very speedy recovery as well as for the husband and children. These people are one of Shiloh's most faithful families and most loyal supporters of the church. Pray for them.

The announcement was made that the choir of High Point College would be at Shiloh next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, but owing to a misunderstanding among choir supervisors they will not be able to meet the appointment. Please take notice, especially the ladies who would have been responsible for lunch, for members of the choir.

Instead of the choir program, at 11 o'clock an Auxiliary meeting will be held, and all chairmen and secretaries are asked to be prepared to give reports at this meeting.

MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

Matthews Chapel, Greensville Charge.—Since our last report our appointments have been filled as follows: Third Sunday in March Rev. J. M. Morgan, of High Point, was with us. He preached a splendid sermon. Mr. Morgan has many friends here, who were glad to see and hear him again.

The writer was also glad to have him and family in our home. Come again. On first Sunday in April we were pleased to have Rev. T. G. Madison and family, of Thomasville, with us. He brought us a very interesting sermon. This was Rev. Mr. Madison's first visit with us, and we extend to him a hearty welcome should he come this way again. On third Sunday in April Rev. W. F. Ashburn, of Greensboro, came to us. On account of rain we didn't have any service. Rev. Mr. Ashburn spent several days on the charge and visited a number of old friends. We trust he may be spared to visit us again.

We presume our new pastor, Rev. Eugene Lamb, may be with us at our next appointment.

Sunday school is doing nicely but could do better since the weather has cleared and spring is here. Our Sunday school gave an egg hunt on Easter Monday for the little folks. Everybody seemed to enjoy it, even the grown-ups.

We are sorry to report Mr. Tom Brewer is seriously ill at this writing. He hasn't been able to attend church in several months.

Mr. Robert Archer passed away at his home here April 15 after a brief illness of pneumonia. He is survived by his wife and eight children, namely, Mrs. William Norwood, Mrs. Milton Moore, Mrs. William Clark, Mrs. Nellie Lynch, and Ella May Archer; three sons, Benjamin, John Henry and R. C. Archer. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Mayo, of the M. E. church; Revs. Lowder and Brinn of the Baptist church. Burial took place at his home.

We extend to the family our sympathy in this hour of sorrow.

LOTTIE EDWARDS.

Asheville.—The mother-daughter banquet scheduled for Thursday evening of this week bids to be an interesting affair. Miss Frances S Cunningham is general chairman and is being assisted by the following: Mrs. J. F. Minnis, Mrs. H. L. Hanner, Mrs. L. M. Joyner, Mrs. Hale Thomas, Mrs. Jane Carter, Mrs. G. P. Younginer, Mrs. D. J. Eller, Mrs. Louise Dillingham, Mrs. Arline H. Nodine and the Misses Nancy Clouse and Nell Carter. There is to be no charge for the dinner, and since all the mothers and daughters are invited, it is expected that there will be a good crowd out. Mother's Day will be celebrated next Sunday by special services throughout the day.

Folks seem a bit more enthusiastic just lately. We are glad of that. Our Herald subscription quota is almost 100 per cent, and generally the outlook is more promising.

We were glad to welcome Mrs. W. E. Teague on Sunday. She has been away a while and has also been under the weather with a severe cold just recently. We are pleased she is better and able to worship with us again. Mrs. E. A. Bolick has been unable to be out for two weeks now due to teeth trouble. We hope she will soon be O. K. again. Mrs. Bolick's small son, Jimmie, is to have his tonsils out during this week, too, and we trust all will go well with him.

Second quarterly conference is to be held Wednesday evening of this week. All members of the conference are urged to be present as some important business is to be taken up.

Of interest to all our folk will be the news that Mr. D. L. West has secured a job in Ocala, Fla., and Mrs. West and the boys will join him there this week. We wish them well in their new home.

I was greatly interested that the two Junior classes should lead the entire Sunday school in amount of offering on Sunday. The boys had $1.42 collection and the girls $1. We are proud of these two classes and their respective teachers, Mrs. J. S. Williams and Miss Irene Miller. M. L. B.

Grace.—Grace Methodist Protestant church had its 44th anniversary on May 3, and to celebrate the event the members had a banquet in the church hut. The group gathered there at 7 o'clock for the good meal that was served them by the Woman's Auxiliary. Mr. William Hunter acted as the toastmaster and presented the speakers of the evening and the others that took part in the excellently conducted program.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. George P. Geohegan, who used as his chief theme, "They were all together in one place," and discussed the fundamentals of a good church. Mr. Ed Wills told the history of the church and its early days. Mr. Norman Wills showed a roll book of the first Sunday school and told of it and named some of the leaders in the work of the Sunday school. Mrs. Harry Byrd sang two songs and Mr. Bynum Clapp led the entire group in some pep songs.

Mr. Hunter read a list of the ministers of the church and presented those present, asking them each to say a few words. Those there were Rev. C. W. Bates, Dr. R. M. Andrews, Dr. G. I. Humphries, Dr. S. K. Spahr, Rev J. S. Williams; and two guest minister for the banquet were Rev. W. F. Ashburn and Dr. J. E. Pritchard.

Of the 150 people present, there were the five living charter members: Messrs. E. S. Wills, Norman Wills, Richard Wills, and Miss Charlie Hunter and Mrs. E. W. Teague.

On Sunday Miss Charlie Hunter read the roll of the honored dead. Mrs. Byrd sang as her offertory solo "Great Peace Have They," by Rogers. The subject of the morning sermon by Rev. J. E. Carroll was "Grace Through Grace." A special anniversary offering was taken that amounted to over $175. On that day Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kearns and Mr. Carl E. Tate were received by church letter into the membership of the church.

Moriah.—It was good indeed to see the smiles and hearty handclasps and to hear the words of welcome with which the Moriah membership greeted its pastor, Rev. W. M. Howard, returning from his studies at Westminster Theological Seminary. Despite inclement weather, a generous crowd was on hand Sunday, May 5, to hear the wonderful message Mr. Howard brought to us.

But while we thus welcome our pastor, we have only words of commendation and praise for those who have guided us during his absence—Rev. O. L. Easter, Dr. R. M. Andrews, Dr. A. G. Dixon, Dr. Paul S. Kennett and Rev. I. F. Strickland.

Sunday morning, new hymn books were distributed to the congregation, a gift of the Young People's Bible Class to the church.

A number of Moriah people attended the baccalaureate sermon at Pleasant Garden high school auditorium. Our own Dr. G. I. Humphries, president of High Point College, was the speaker of the hour, and delivered a stirring and inspiring address.

Sunday, May 12, being Mother's Day, it was the suggestion of our pastor that the congregation bring flowers and place them about the altar, a sweet and fitting tribute honoring the mothers who will be present and the memory of those who have preceded their loved ones to glory. Come and worship with us, and bring your floral offering, symbol of the season and of the day.

He wrote a book, its title now forgot;
He ruled a city, but his name is not
On any table graven, or where rust
Can gather from disuse, or marble bust.
He took a child from out a wretched cot,
Who on the state dishonor might have brought,
And reared him to the Christian's hope and trust.

The boy, to manhood grown, became a light
To many souls, and preached for human need
The wondrous love of the Omnipotent.
The work has multiplied like stars at night
When darkness deepens; every noble deed
Lasts longer than a granite monument."

The goal toward which our workers at Alvan Drew School, Pine Ridge, Ky., have always worked is to give every boy and girl a chance who is worthy, and it must be a source of gratification to Dr. and Mrs. Woodford to already see the results of their labors there in the lives of many fine graduates Rev. and Mrs. Andrew have already shown their fitness for the task, and this has been a most successful year. The attendance at the school last fall reached 240, the largest it has ever been. A most interesting history of this school was published in the February Missionary Record. Read it. We can help these our friends greatly by sending them our cast-off clothing, which they sell to the residents of the surrounding community. They also need good books and magazines for the library, hymn books for church use, and more money. Rev. Mr. Andrew is to teach a course in home missions at our summer Leadership Training School at High Point College this year. Come and hear him and learn more about Pine Ridge. In the meantime, let us show our friendship by including these fine, loyal boys and girls in our daily prayers.—MRS. E. L. BALLARD, in her report to Branch meeting.

INTERNATIONAL C. E. CONVENTION

The time for the 35th International Christian Endeavor convention is fast approaching. The date is July 2-7, 1935. The place is Philadelphia, Pa. If you have not registered, send your registration fee of $2.00 to Rev. J. W. Braxton, Liberty, N. C., as soon as possible. Then as soon as your registration is sent in, you will begin to receive information from the International Christian Endeavor headquarters concerning the Philadelphia convention.

I can furnish you a limited amount of information as to the cost of the trip and the accommodations while there. If you are interested, send me a card asking for this information and I will be glad to give it to you. You can't well afford to miss this great convention, so near to North Carolina. There will be a lot of good speakers there besides the fellowship of Endeavorers from all parts of the land. Make your plans and meet us at the convention.

REV. T. F. McCULLOCH NOT SO WELL

Rev. T. F. McCulloch, who returned from the hospital last week in such good condition, has not been so well this week. Just as we were about ready to close the forms, information came that he was somewhat improved.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Teague

Hattie Mae Teague was born on November 15, 1897, departed this life on April 16, 1935. She was the daughter of the late Professor E. E. Teague and Mrs. Ella Mae Teague. Besides her mother she is survived by two sisters, Miss Mamie Teague and Mrs. M. A. Williams. She was a member of the First Methodist Protestant church of Thomasville and was a teacher in the Sunday school and Vacation Bible schools before her affliction which began three years ago. She has been in very poor health since that time. She taught in the public schools of Davidson county for more than ten years. The funeral was conducted in the home by Rev. J. L. Trollinger and T. G. Madison. Interment was in Fair Grove cemetery.

Byerly

Margaret Fritts Byerly was born on August 19, 1875, died February 21, 1935, aged 59 years, 6 months and 2 days. She was united in marriage to William Byerly on April 9, 1896. To this union were born six children, Vonzo, Gilbert, Otha, Austin, Mrs. Barney Young, and Tempie, who preceded her in death seven months. Her husband died February 13, 1921.

Mrs. Byerly professed hope in Christ in early life and united with Mt. Tabor Reformed church. Later, when the First Methodist Protestant church of Thomasville was organized, she transferred her membership there, where it remained until her death.

The funeral was conducted in Holly Grove church by Rev. Edward Suits and T. G. Madison. T. G. MADISON.

Pardue

Mattie Jane Myers Pardue was born July 6, 1857, died February 23, 1935, aged 77 years, 7 months and 17 days. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phelix Myers. She was united in marriage with James F. Pardue on September 16, 1897.

She professed hope in Christ in early life and united with old Tabernacle church and later transferred her membership to Jerusalem church, where it remained until death.

The funeral was conducted in the home of her brother on Jarrett Street by T. G Madison.

Swing

On April 20 the spirit of John Swing was released from its mortal coil and soared above to the land that is fairer than day. Mr. Swing was in his 81st year. He had been in declining health for some time. In his prime he was skillful in the use of tools. He made by hand many coffins, and much durable household furniture. Nothing but the very best product went out from his shop. Everybody who knew John Swing knew that whatever he made had to be made right. He always worked hard and provided well for his family. He was a good citizen, a good neighbor, and a useful man in the community.

For a long period he was a member of Mt. Pleasant church, where he attended regularly, until his infirmities prevented. He had strong faith in God, and in the church, and in the Bible. On Easter Sunday the funeral service was held from his church home, Rev. J. W. Braxton, Rev. G. F. Millaway and Rev. A. C. Shelton participating. The large number present, the words spoken, and the beautiful flowers gave evidence of the worth of the man and the esteem in which he was held.

The immediate survivors are one son Jesse L. Swing, by a former marriage; his widow, Martha Neese Swing, and three daughters, Mrs. Lessie Garrett, Mrs. Eula Clapp and Mrs. Verdie Black.

The above obituary was written by request of the family. WM. H. NEESE.

Freeman

Mrs. Dora Suggs Freeman, of Troy, N. C., was born Novevmber 28, 1873. She departed this life April 25, 1935, at the home of her daughter, in Star, N. C., with whom she was visiting at the time, being 62 years, 4 months and 25 days of age.

She was married to Mr. Wiley Freeman March 15, 1896.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. Wiley Freeman; four daughters, Mrs. B. L. Deaton, Star, N. C.; Mrs. J. T. Brown, Star, N. C.; Mrs. J. E. Lee, High Point, N. C.; Miss Odessa Freeman, at home in Troy; three sons, Mr. H. T. Freeman, Star, N. C.; Mr. J. W. Freeman, at home in Troy, N. C.; Jesse Wade Freeman, of Concord, N. C.; and six grandchildren.

One son, I. V. Freeman, preceded her in death some two years ago.

Mrs. Freeman also leaves to mourn her going in addition to the family as mentioned above six sisters and five brothers.

She united with Love Joy M. P. church in early girlhood at the age of 14 years and remained a member until death.

Her funeral was conducted from Love Joy M. P. church on Friday afternoon, April 26, by Rev. John R. Jordan, pastor of the Baptist church of Star, N. C., assisted by her pastor, the writer.

We extend to the bereaved ones our heartfelt sympathy.

E. G. COWAN, Pastor.

Moore

After one week of illness with pneumonia, the Death Angel called at 9:15 on the 22nd day of April, 1935, and took away Charlie T. Moore. The church and community are very much saddened by his going, but we realize that our loss is his gain.

He was a good man. None knew him but to love him. He joined the church at Ebenezer on Greensville charge in early life, and about 10 years ago he moved his membership to Lebanon, Spring Church charge. There he served as steward and was a loyal member till death.

Our sympathy goes out to his family.

The funeral was conducted Wednesday afternoon at Ebenezer church by his pastor, Rev. W. H. Neese, assisted by Mr. Chester, of the M. E. church. He was buried next to his father and mother, who had gone just a few years before.

Mr. Moore was 38 years old. He leaves a wife; one daughter, Edith; three sisters and four brothers, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. He will be missed in the community, in the church, but most of all in the home that he had just completed a few months ago. A FRIEND.

Hulin

Mrs. Esther Robins Hulin, age 39 years, died April 11, 1935. She was the wife of Mr. K. W. Hulin and was a faithful member of Love Joy Methodist Protestant church. The funeral services were conducted at Love Joy church April 13, Rev. S. W. Taylor, of Asheboro, conducting the services, assisted by Rev. G. L. Reynolds and the pastor of the church, Rev. E. G. Cowan. She is survived by her husband and five stepdaughters, Mrs. Bertha Morton, Mrs. Annie Pierce, Mrs. Jessie Welch, Lou Della and Elizabeth Hulin, all of High Point. She is also survived by four brothers, J. B. Robins, of Martinsville, Va.; Will Robins, of Greensboro; Sam Robins, of Savannah, Ga.; Jesse Robins, of Atlanta, Ga.; one sister, Mrs. Nannie Prichard, of Asheboro, and a host of friends. We will miss Mrs. Hulin. She was a member of our Sunday school faculty and was always willing to do anything that was in her power for the advancement of the gospel.

May God's blessings be upon the entire family in their bereavement.

JOHN BARLEYCORN AT THE WHEEL IN 1934 MAKES ALL-TIME RECORD

The United States in 1934 experienced its worst automobile accident record.

Around 36,000 persons were killed and nearly a million injured as a result of 882,000 personal injury accidents.

The deaths represented an increase of 16 per cent over the 31,078 fatalities reported in 1933. . . .

Many this past year have been interested in finding out the relation between automobile accidents and the use of intoxicants.

Such records as are available show that 3.16 per cent of the drivers involved in accidents were declared to have been under the "influence" in 1934 as against 2.43 per cent in 1933. This is an increase of nearly a third.

The same records show that 4.47 per cent of the pedestrians involved in accidents in 1934 were declared to have been under the "influence" as against 2.99 per cent in 1933. This is an increase of 49.5 per cent.—From "Thou Shalt Not Kill," Travelers Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn.

BURLINGTON, FIRST	96
ROBERTA	95
ASHEVILLE	91

This is one week when all in the column of honor are above 90. Tabernacle has to yield to Asheville by only one point. Tabernacle is still climbing and will be heard from again. Roberta moves up nearer the goal. Burlington First came near losing first place this week.

Now let us look at the receipts column. Saxapahaw heads the list, notwithstanding the fact that their gift is in two parts. But now here is something to rave over and yet something to make us sad. Spencer sent in its entire quota, both of subscriptions and subsidy, but we cannot give them either capital letters or a star for the reason that last conference put China Grove with Spencer and that place has not sent in its quota so it holds Spencer back also. Too bad there is not some way of giving credit to part of a charge that goes over the top. Well, we will just have to take off our hats to Spencer anyway. They are among the most loyal in all of our conference.

Glen Raven, Flat Rock and Concord all sent in more than one subscription and we appreciate this.

Community church, Thomasville, gets a star for subsidy. Gibsonville makes a nice payment for which they have our thanks.

Now take off your hats and stand at attention while we look at that big FIFTY DOLLARS FROM THE CONFERENCE COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION. Thanks, Brother Auman and Brother Whitehead, a whole lot.

Several times of late our ravings would not all go on the back page and part of it would have to be thrown away when making up the forms, so we will quit early this time and save time.

Our receipts this week are $111.90, $49.40 being on subscriptions and $62.50 being on subsidy.

Men's Bible Class
First M. P. Church, Lexington, N. C.

First Church, Lexington, Bible Class

On our cover page this week we are giving a picture of the Men's Bible class of the First M. P. church, Lexington, N. C. According to information furnished us, this class was organized on April 1, 1933, with only seven members. The names of these seven members are: T. D. Westmoreland, J. J. Mallard, G. A. Barber, L. B. Koonts, Willford McBride, W. L. Aaron and Phonse Bean.

Phonse Bean was elected teacher. T. D. Westmoreland was elected president and served in that capacity until last November. J. J. Mallard is at present the very efficient president of the class, while Phonse Bean continues to be the teacher. It is said that he has been absent only a few times since he was first elected, and on occasions when he has been absent it has usually been when he was called out to teach some other class. Brother Mallard, who is our financial agent at First church, is general superintendent of the Hoover Chair company in Lexington, and is a very busy man, yet he finds time to devote his energies to the building up of this class. Mr. Grady Lanning is secretary of the class, and is doing a fine work in that capacity. Mr. T. D. Westmoreland is chairman of the welcoming committee and is very careful to look after strangers and visitors. Mr. O. F. Johnson is chairman of the sick committee, and is rendering fine service in that capacity.

This class, in about two years, has grown from seven members to about sixty, with an average attendance of about forty-five. Mr. H. C. Koonts, who has been general superintendent of the Sunday school for the past twelve years, has stood by the class and the class has stood by him. He has seen the school grow from about sixty, with only five classes, to about two hundred seventy-five. The class is thinking now in terms of more room, and we shall not be surprised to hear that they are building for themselves a larger room in the near future.

We congratulate this fine class on its fine record, and trust that as the days come and go they may continue to prosper. They have set a fine example for other classes to follow. Our First church at Lexington, under the able leadership of Rev. C. G. Isley, has become one of the active organizations of our conference. What has been done there could be done elsewhere.

What Happened On Last Thursday

Last week we went the even tenor of our way, turning in material to the printers up to the usual hour of Wednesday noon. On Thursday morning, as usual, we went down to McCulloch & Swain's printing plant, where the Herald is printed, to assist in the making up of the forms. At noon we went home feeling that we had done a right good job. We had run most of the articles that had been sent in that were of an urgent nature, and we felt that the others could wait until another week. At noon when we went home we found that the carrier had brought at least a dozen letters that evidently were for print in that issue. These letters were mailed in various parts of North Carolina on Wednesday between the hours of 2:30 and 8:00 p. m. Of course there was nothing we could do about it then, as the press was about ready to start.

If it ever gets so that manuscripts can be fed into a printing press something like wheat that is fed to a threshing machine and there will come forth the well-balanced printed page, then we can use everything that is turned in even up to the time the press run is finished. But so long as it is necessary to use the present method of setting type, reading proof, making corrections, making up forms and adjusting type and cuts to the press, it will be imperative to have several hours between the time the last batch of manuscripts go in and the time the press starts. We cannot use material that comes after Wednesday noon, and not very much that comes on Wednesday. Please mail your communications early in the week.

LAST WORDS

A Christian mother, who had been suffering from a severe illness, had an impression that her end was approaching. She therefore asked the medical man who was attending her if he considered that her disease would terminate in death; to which he replied, that such was his opinion. She further pressed him to tell her truly how long he thought she might yet live; upon which he said that she might perhaps last till the following day. "Oh!" she immediately exclaimed, "that is, indeed, good news. So soon to be with Jesus." She then had her children and near friends gathered round her bedside, and, after cheerfully bidding them adieu, and exhorting them to look to the Lord, and to trust in Him, she composed herself for her expected end, and soon afterwards peacefully departed to be with Christ.

How such an incident as this, which is perfectly true, exhibits the blessed reality which there is in resting upon Christ! And how precious are the following Scriptures which, among many others, bear upon the falling asleep of those who believe in Jesus!

"To me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." . . . "I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better." (Phil. 1:21, etc.). "They stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit. And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep." (Acts 7:59, 60).—Selected.

A NOOSE IN EVERY GLASS

It is said that a young man one day stood upon the trap door of the gallows, and pointing to the noose that must soon encircle his neck, said, after an eloquent appeal to those of his companions who were standing around, to flee from wine and liquor as they would from a serpent. "No harm in it? No harm in wine? There is a noose in every glass. Lost reputation, prison doors, cruelty, brutality, murder and death are in it. I sowed my wild oats, but now I must reap the ripening grain. You see what it is (still pointing to the noose), wine did it. It broke my mother's heart, robbed my father of all that he possessed, and leaves him a gray-haired, broken-down pauper."—Christian Monitor.

WILL YOUR CHURCH BE THERE WHEN THE ROLL IS CALLED?

Nobody will accuse me of being the angel Gabriel nor of keeping the Book of Remembrance. But I am going to call the roll when we meet at the Midyear Conference on May 31. I want to know if you are going to answer "Here" when the Honor Roll is called? Some fifty-nine of the brethren are going to have that privilege and honor. Some, of course, will have to answer several times. But a whole lot of you are going to be as silent as the tomb unless you hustle around and get up your part of this Fund.

The Certificates are being made out. The million or billion-dollar signatures have already been attached, and the body of the certificate alone needs to be filled out. Fifty-nine of them to date. Let's make it 114 by May 31. IT CAN BE DONE.

Not much money came in during my absence. Here's how the record stands:

Orange charge goes out this week, and Mt. Hermon is almost out. The first installment from Liberty charge comes in this week. (It is possible this church ought to go on the Honor Roll, but the letter accompanying the money does not so state.)

Just a little more and we'll be beyond the half-way point. Who'll help to put it there? You, and you, and YOU.

A SEVERE INDICTMENT

We found these words quoted in a sermon: "A business man challenged a minister with this: 'You and I have been friends for ten years. My wife has been a member of your church, and on high days I go to church with her. I listen to you preach, and enjoy it. I believe you are a sincere man, and you tell your story with conviction and effect. You are often in our home, and we have played around together a great many times. We are good friends, but do you know that in all our meetings and conversations about business, sports, politics, philosophy and religion, you have never declared to me your conviction that I should accept your faith and claim Christ as my own?'"

That was really a terrible arraignment, and probably it would be just in thousands of cases. We are reminded of another man, not a Christian, honored in his community, sent as state senator, as representative in Congress for a dozen years, and finally next in line to be attorney general in the administration of President Harrison. He was quite regular at church. One day a young pastor put the matter of accepting Christ to him squarely. He was then old, half a decade past seventy. His eyes filled with tears: "I have lived in this community," he said, "for fifty years. My wife and children are in your church. I have done business and dealt socially with all your people. For years I have been attorney for your elders, some of whom have large business affairs. Yet not one, even my wife, noble Christian as she is, nor any pastor or member of your church, has ever spoken to me before about accepting Christ as my personal Savior. Many times I have longed for that very word."

Do we wonder that the Church moves slowly when those who are professed disciples of Christ let a man wait a half century? The trouble is, most of us try to do the "big thing" and omit the simpler (yet bigger) thing that Christ bids us particularly to do.—The Presbyterian, of Philadelphia.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT WORK

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

Human life is a strange medley of work and worry, of hurry and flurry, of going and coming, of idleness and indifference, of liveliness and laziness, of haste and waste, of gathering and scattering, of will and won't, of can and can't, of longing and loathing, of independence and dependence, of complaining and commending, et cetera.

Work Not a Penalty for Sin

Work, the third study of the cornerstones of society, is an underlying principle by which manhood is developed in man. It is a mistaken idea that man is compelled to work as a penalty for violating a law. As a matter of fact, activity is a law of life. The mole tunnels the earth, the hen scratches for a living for herself and her dependents, the bird builds its nest, the squirrel stores nuts. "God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion." Gen. 1.28. "And the Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it." Gen. 2:15. That was before man had sinned.

Not a Command in the Decalog to Work

"Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work" (Gen. 20:9) is not a command to work, but is only pointing the way the Sabbath may be kept holy, namely, by doing the necessary work during the six days that it may be out of the way when the Sabbath comes. The Bible seems to assume that man is intelligent enough to know that he is expected to convert the manifold materials that nature offers into usable form, without a special command in the Decalog.

But Some Prodding

seems necessary to induce a certatin class of people to do their part in the great field of industry. "I went by the field of the slothful, and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding; and, lo, it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down. Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep: so shall thy poverty come as one that traveleth; and thy want as an armed man." Prov. 24:30-34. It is inevitable that want comes to any that will not work. "Drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags." Prov. 23:21. And again, "An idle soul shall suffer hunger." Prov. 19:15.

The New Testament Way

Paul rebuked sharply those that would not work. "For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that it any would not work, neither should he eat. For we hear that there are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all, but are busy bodies." 2 Thess. 3:10, 11. Idle hands, busy tongues. "Now them that are such we command and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread." (v. 12.)

Jesus associated together wickedness and slothfulness. "Thou wicked and slothful servant . . . thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury." (interest.) Matt. 25:26, 27. Let my money work if you won't.

God's Purpose

seems to be the making of men, real men, honest men. This cannot be done if men live in idleness. Men build factories and in the factories they build furniture; God, meantime and by the process, is building character. Honest material wrought into the furniture, honest effort to do an honest job and render honest service; honest wages paid by the employer. Thus honest men, the noblest work of God, are developed both in the office and in the factory. That is the end to which God is working. He does not need a factory or furniture, but He does need honest men. Work, a cornerstone of society.

MINDING HIS BUSINESS

Dr. Robert P. Wilder says: "Once when I was working in India I went to a place near Poona. On Saturday night when I entered the hotel dining room I found seated at the same table with me a naval officer, an infantry major and his wife, and a sergeant major and his wife. When the conversation started the naval officer said: 'Why don't these missionaries stay at home and mind their own business? You can get all the converts you want at a rupee a head.' It was the time of the Armenian massacres and there were rumors that the British fleet might be ordered to Constantinople. I turned to the naval officer and said: 'Suppose you were ordered to take your battleship to Constantinople tomorrow, and I was to say, "Why don't you stay here and mind your own business? There is no sense in your going to the Bosphorus'." The man's eyes flashed fire as he said, 'I would tell you to mind your own business; if we are ordered to go we must go, even if every ship is sunk and every sailor killed.' I said, 'Quite right, my friend, and I have marching orders from the Divine government to preach the gospel to every creature, and the primary question is whether I am going to obey the last command of my Lord.' "—King's Business.

STICKING BY

It may be a difficult task which is before us, but we must not be discouraged. Difficulties are what make character; men who can go out into a hard field and succeed—they are the men we want. Any quantities of men are looking for easy places, but the world will never hear of them. We want men who are looking for hard places, who are willing to go into the darkest corners of the earth and make those dark places bloom like gardens. They can do it if the Lord is with them.—D. L. Moody.

HIS BUSINESS

A man in a covered wagon, driving through a western town, stopped and hailed a man on the street. "Hey, any saloons in this town?" he asked. "Yes, four," was the answer. "Giddap," said the stranger, moving on. "I can't locate here; I've got three boys in this wagon." "Stop a minute," yelled the stranger, "what's your business?" "My business is to save these boys," came back the answer, as he disappeared around a bend in the road.—Publisher Unknown.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Consecration :: Co-operation :: Consolidation

CONSECRATION—let us devote our energies and talents to the work to which we are called.

CO-OPERATION—let us willingly, gladly, work with others who are likewise called to do the work of the Lord.

CONSOLIDATION—while our individual tasks may be small and insignificant, yet when joined with others they are of greater value.

To Preach Against War

Resolution No. 3, pages 73-74 Journal, calls upon all of our pastors to prepare a message against war and in favor of peace, and preach it on the first Sunday in June. This resolution should be read in all of our churches and the pastor should bring to the attention of our congregations the waste and sin of wars. All wars are born in hatred, inordinate ambition, greed, and ignorance of the causes for which they are fought. The church stands opposed to hatred, to inordinate ambition and greed; the gospel of Jesus Christ will destroy these whenever it is accepted in its fulness. We urge upon all of our pastors not only to preach on the first Sunday in June, but to preach this same message in all of their churches during the month, since many have more than one church.

The Fight Is Again On

The sober, temperance-loving people of our state are again called to fight the forces of intemperance. This hydra-headed monster rears another head for the fray whenever one is destroyed. Our situation is even more difficult by the acts of the last legislature. The acts of some men elected to make the laws for the government of our state in the last legislature are enough to humiliate the good people who had any share in sending them there. Truly may it be said we are in the hands of politicians, many of whom are more interested in promoting their own interests than the interests of the state. It is evident we have to fight for all we shall get. With many of the daily newspapers more inclined to misrepresent our cause than to give the true facts relating to it, we are hampered in our efforts at publicity, and with the machinery of elections in the hands of the politicians our chance of success is greatly reduced. But our cause is just and we hope that every member of the Methodist Protestant church will see the necessity of declaring themselves in this fight for a sober loving citizenship of our commonwealth.

Don't Forget May 31st—Midyear Meet

Plan to be present. Let every pastor bring the "key-men" and best workers among the women in his congregations to this meeting. Full program will be announced later.

Anderson Charge, Rev. Robert Short, Pastor

I visited Fairview church Saturday night. It was not a regular appointment and the threatening weather kept many away who possibly would have come in more favorable conditions. But we had a good congregation for the time, and they listened sympathetically to the message. Here the apportionment for A. C. expenses was paid to me. Other claims will be paid later. The pastor reports conditions here point to the closing of a good year.

At 11 a.m. I visited Liberty Hill church. This was the regular appointment, and there was present a good congregation who gave splendid attention to the message. Here the A. C. expenses, Church Extension, and some on another claim, were paid to me. They lack just a few dollars of being out on the A. C. budget for the year. This is also a good church, and it with Fairview are doing well under the present pastor. This is Brother Short's second year down here, and I think he has cause for gratitude for the manner in which the people have co-operated with him.

Yarborough Charge, Rev. K. P. Holt, Pastor

I visited Yarboro Chapel in the afternoon, and Harmony at night. The congregation at Yarboro was very good, considering present conditions. This church paid to me the apportionments in full for A. C. expenses, Church Extension, A. C. Debt, and a small overplus on Superannuates. That was very fine. Really I am hopeful that this church will take the place it once had in our conference.

Harmony was the regular appointment. There was a very good attendance, mostly young people; there is a young people's society of C. E. here. Harmony paid in full their apportionment for A. C. Expenses, Church Extension, and a small overflow on the College.

It is certainly refreshing to visit these churches in South Carolina and feel the loyalty and love they have for the Methodist Protestant church. It makes me greatly desire to aid them in every possible way to grow and develop, as many of them so much desire to do. Brother Holt is serving them his first year in the ministry and has the sympathetic co-operation of his people. I think he will have a good year; certainly he has done well the first six months.

Holt, D. I. Garner, H. F. Fogleman, host of the meeting, J. T. Bowman, C. L. Grant, D. T. Huss, and J. L. Love. The program as made out by the committee was carried out in the main and it was a very good meeting.

TRAPPED

It was Africa. The night was dark and stormy. The hunt was over; grim and powerful black warriors swarmed from jungle paths; armed and silent they gathered in their village stockade. The fires blazed brightly.

The scene struck terror to the heart of the American explorer. He and his party had been searching that wild region for pigmies but he had become separated from his main caravan and taken refuge in a native village.

He found himself a prisoner surrounded with naked savages. Barbarous men continued to gather from the bush, each savage clasping a wicked looking spear or a long, heavy knife. Danger was in the air. The explorer believed himself trapped. He would die fighting, backed up against the wall that no stealthy savage could stab him in the back. His guns were ready, although he knew that the spears and terrible knives would finally win.

At that dramatic moment the chief appeared with twelve stalwart warriors.

He ordered his braves to sit. They obeyed. The chief then slowly approached with a small bag in his hand, the kind in which the Africans kept their deadly poisons for arrow heads and spear points. The explorer now expected to be poisoned, but he was alert and ready for the struggle. He raised his gun.

In death-stillness the chief stopped, put his hand into the poison bag and slowly drew out—a New Testament! Could the explorer believe his eyes? Yes, the colporteur had been there before him.

The automatic was lowered. The explorer was in the house of his friends.

Slowly the chief told how he had secured the Book from a white man who had taught him the Story of stories, and how he was trying, as best he knew, to pray.

The watch fires burned out in the night, but the explorer slept without fear.—Unknown.

THE WORLD-CENTER OF HEBREW CULTURE

The Hebrew University at Jerusalem Takes Stock

The Hebrew university on Mount Scopus, Jerusalem, has just celebrated its tenth anniversary. The youngest of the world's universities, it has a record of achievement which many of the most famous institutions might envy. With Palestine as its laboratory, it has furnished leadership toward the solution of vexing industrial, agricultural, and health problems of the whole Near East.

Erected on a commanding site overlooking the wilderness of Juda, the Jordan valley, the land of Gilead, and the mystic hills of Moab through which the children of Israel passed when they first entered the Promised Land, the university is already exercising a potent influence in shaping the future of the Jewish people in the ancient homeland. Through its efforts Palestine has been practically rid of malaria, a medical center has been established which will devote its efforts to the conquest of tropical disease, the Institute of Chemistry has opened up the mineral resources of the Dead Sea for commercial enterprise, the Department of Geology through its surveys in the eastern and southern regions is enlarging the areas of settlement for pioneers, and through its Department of Agriculture is seeking through afforestation and irrigation projects, as well as extensive botanical work, to bring back to Palestine its fame as "a land flowing with milk and honey."

Through the university is sought a revival of Jewish culture. It aims to keep alive the spiritual aspect of the Jewish Restoration, so that from Jerusalem may go forth influence for the quickening of the scattered Jewries of the world. It was Morris Joseph who said at its inauguration "the new Israel will be such as the prophets dreamed of, a spiritual Israel seeking the source of its power in the things of the mind and the soul. Set high above Jerusalem, it will uplift the minds of the children of Israel; it will play a part in the ennoblement of the world."

Lord Balfour, at the inauguration of the university ten years ago, proclaimed his faith in the destiny of the Jewish people and expressed the hope that through it Jerusalem would again become a light to the Gentiles. Nineteen centuries ago a light shone from Jerusalem that has cast its rays into every Gentile land. Before that light many of the world's evils, like creeping things of the night, have fled away, and Christians have faith to believe that before that light other evils, war and injustice, racial hatred and every un-Christlike thing, will also flee away. What a light for the betterment of the world would shine from Mount Scopus if Jews, in the land hallowed by the presence of Jesus and His ministry, recognized Him not only as "a light to lighten the Gentiles," but "the glory of His people Israel."

STICK TO YOUR COVENANT

"And they entered into a covenant to seek the Lord God of their fathers with all their heart and with all their soul."

There is a vast difference between a mere refreshing from the Lord, and a special covenant. One should receive frequent blessings and uplifts, but as a rule covenants are few and far between. They are more serious and far-reaching. In fact, a covenant is so deep and broad that we do not need many, nor could we stand many.

Every soul who has made a blessed success in growing in grace has been led into one or more peculiar covenants. These covenants may embrace such things as tithing, Lord's Day observance, plainness of dress, fasting, and other forms of self-denial. Catherine Booth, the great soul-winner, was led to abstain from eating butter on her bread certain days in the week. The early Methodists fasted for one or more meals on Friday, especially just preceding quarterly meeting.

Friend, if God has given you a peculiar covenant, stick to it, no difference who may sneer or brand you as an extremist. Remember the more you give up for Jesus, the more glory you get in return. But be careful not to blow your horn about it or discount others for not doing exactly the same.—E. E. Shelhamer.

OUR STORY PAGE

WHICH WAS THE MISSIONARY?

The Sunday school lesson was about foreign missions that morning. Gladys with a shining look in her large gray eyes had read in a voice quivering with emotion an account of the needs of the little ones in far-off China. "Oh, I long so to help them!" she said in a voice that choked, as she folded the paper and laid it aside with her quarterly. "Miss Gordon, I'm going to devote my life to foreign missions if the way ever opens. Mamma and papa think I'm too young to know my own mind yet, but I feel that that is going to be my life work."

Bess Hartley had sat quietly through the reading, but her eyes, too, had filled with tears. She longed, oh, how she longed to help those little ones—to give them a "cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple." She thought as she conscientiously searched her own heart how she, too, would love to go among them, giving up her life to that heavenly service for the sake of that One whom she and Gladys had both so recently "confessed before men."

"Gladys! Gladys!" It was an eager little voice that greeted the big sister at the door. "I'm to lead the junior meeting this afternoon—to take Alice's place. I didn't know it till just a little while ago. You'll help me get ready for it, won't you? The subject's about praying, you know, and I want to give out a lot of sentence prayers—from the Bible. I thought you'd help me find some good ones—perhaps—." The voice trailed off rather uncertainly, as Gladys' face was not responsive.

"You shouldn't have promised to take the meeting at the last minute this way," Gladys said, rather impatiently. "I'll help you a little—if I can. I'm tired, and I've got this library book to read—and I promised Maud I'd come over there this afternoon. She's writing a paper on Japan missions, and wanted me to help her. Oh, well, don't look that way. I'll do what I can to help you, of course. But you shouldn't undertake a thing at the eleventh hour, as I tell you."

The help when it was given was so perfunctory and grudging that somehow Rose set out for her meeting in a rather dispirited mood. Mother looked a bit serious. She was tired, too. "Do you suppose you could look after the baby a little, while I lie down, dear?" she said rather hesitatingly.

"Why—why, yes, mamma, of course. I promised to go over to Maud's and help her with that missionary paper if I could this afternoon—but of course if you—"

"Oh, well, dear, never mind; don't change your plans for me. Go on with your missionary work!" If there was a faint, concealed irony in the words, Gladys did not detect it.

Over at Bess Hartley's the mother was taking an afternoon rest that was smoothing all the tired lines from her face. "Go up, dearest, and lie down. You've had the children all the morning; it's my turn now," Bess whispered. With a child leaning against her on either side, Bess had read them Bible stories and choice bits from their Sunday school books, and now, in a hushed voice and in words they could understand, she was telling them something about the true, touching story of the little ones in China.

"I'll send them some of my pennies," little Carol whispered.

"And so'll I," said Benny.

"If I could only really help them!" Bess was saying in her own heart. "There is Gladys, so earnest and so brave, too. She will be there one of these days, I'm almost sure. I'll never be able to do anything like that."

But upstairs, resting on her couch, mother was thinking thoughts that would have surprised Bess. "The precious child!" she was thinking, "what a genuine little home missionary and helper she is every day!"—Publisher Unknown.

A RUSSIAN ON HIS TESTAMENT

A small book in Russian, bound in black leather, has been in my possession for thirty years. I read it daily, and shall continue to read it so long as my eyes can see, and by every kind of light, by rays coming from the sun or from the heart, on brightest days and in blackest nights, happy or unhappy, sick or well, full of faith or of doubt, full of feeling or devoid of feeling. And it seems to me that there is always something new in what I read, something unfathomed, and that I shall never plumb its depths or reach its end. I seem to read with only the corner of my eye, to feel with only a corner of my heart, but could I see and feel with my whole being—what then? The lettering on the binding, "The New Testament," is so rubbed that one can hardly decipher it, the gilt edges of the leaves are tarnished, the paper is yellow, the leather binding is coming to pieces, and the back has come unstuck. Some of the pages are loose, and here and there have suffered—their corners are worn off or dog-eared. It ought to be rebound, but I cannot find it in my heart to send it away; indeed, the thought of being separated from it even a few days frightens me. The world, as it now is, and the Book cannot continue together. One of two things: either the world must become other than it is, or the Book must disappear from the world; they cannot co-exist, either this world or that Book must be destroyed.—The Prairie Pastor.

A CHILD'S DEFINITION

A minister was once visiting in a home where there were several children with whom he was talking about the Lord Jesus Christ. He repeated to them the verse from the Bible which says, "To you, therefore, which believe He is precious." Then he asked them what the word "precious" meant.

None of them were able to answer until it came to the turn of the youngest, who said very sweetly, "Mother is precious; we cannot do without her," and then hid his face in his mother's lap.

This is how Jesus is precious. We cannot do without Him. We need Him as our Savior.—Joy Bells.

CONFERENCE COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

T. J. WHITEHEAD, President
Burlington, N. C., R. 4

DAILY VACATION CHURCH SCHOOLS

By Miss Maxine E. Taylor, Conference Council Vacation Church School Superintendent, 128 Church St., Henderson, N. C.

THAT DATE!

Have you set the date for that Vacation Church School, Mr. Pastor? I am making out a list of dates for materials—may I set aside a date for you? Remember, I will send you books, certificates, and helps.

THAT LEADER!

Do you have one at home? If not, have you contacted any one of the following: Miss Bessie Holmes, Miss Ila Stafford, Miss Edith Guthrie, Miss Claire Douglas, Miss Elizabeth Hanner?

This week I am offering two articles that appeared in the March, 1935, number of The New Century Leader; the first, "An Experiment With Boys," by John S. Scotford, and the other, "Schedule of Study and Play," by William J. Bergman. Be sure to read what they say. The articles follow:

AN EXPERIMENT WITH BOYS

In a neighborhood whose chief landmarks are two gigantic gas tanks and the only playground the streets, even big boys welcome a Vacation Bible school as "a place to go." When, therefore, the Congregational Italian Mission in Brooklyn, New York, opened its doors for the annual daily Vacation Bible school, two dozen boys about 14 years of age put in an appearance.

These youngsters were obviously suffering from too much energy and too few outlets. Most of them had escaped from the control of their immigrant mothers, while the only paternal discipline to which they were accustomed was of the corporal variety. Although some of the fathers told the director of the school, Clifford Simpson, to go ahead and thrash their sons, and most of the boys obviously expected such treatment, Mr. Simpson decided to rule his "gang" by the law of love rather than by force.

At first such a procedure seemed hopeless. The tempers of the boys proved quite explosive—habitually did they flare up at one another on the slightest provocation. During chapel service, which was in the middle of the morning, they were addicted to the scraping of chairs and coughing. When it came to handwork, at least one of the boys assumed that he could knock a bird house together in a few moments without really applying himself to the task.

A few of the problems solved themselves. The leader soon found that the tempers of these young sons of Italy cooled off almost as rapidly as they became heated. Whether they forgave or just forgot, he never quite knew, but at least they subsided. As for the boy who could make a home for a bird with his left hand while thinking about something else, when he compared his product with what the other boys were attempting, he soon decided that not even the sorriest sparrow would accept such a habitation, and started over again to do a real job.

Greater problems were handled in the daily council meeting, where various questions were duly argued out as they arose. As a result of some of these discussions, the boys were led both to adopt a reverent attitude during the period of worship, and to co-operate with the younger children in working out the theme of the four-week session, "Jesus in Our Neighborhood.'

During the closing days of the school, one of the boys became infuriated at the director because of a reprimand which he had received. This is the way Mr. Simpson tells the story of what happened:

"When Antonio delivered himself of a stream of oaths, I told him to get off the church property. He picked up some bricks, but I went in with the other boys. We talked over the affair for half an hour, but nobody had any idea as to what should be done. I told them I was planning to visit Antonio that afternoon to see if we could not be friends. Word evidently got to him, for when I left school at noon he was still outside muttering. I asked him to sit down and talk things over with me, but he at first refused. Later, after quite a conversation, we shook hands. That afternoon he came back and worked three hours at various jobs, as he did every afternoon until school closed. Today he is one of my best friends."

SCHEDULE OF STUDY AND PLAY

Promptness, both in attending classes and in doing assigned work, was made the keynote of the daily Vacation Bible school of St. John's Lutheran church, Union City, New Jersey. As a result, Rev. George R. F. Tamke, pastor, believes, his 104 pupils accomplished many definite objectives during the three-week period from July 9 to July 27, 1934.

The 104 pupils were divided into eight groups according to age and grade, and were taught by a staff of 26 teachers. The daily schedule of periods used is shown here:

9:00 A. M.—Worship Service.
9:15 a. m.—Memory Work from Scripture.
9:35 A. M.—Story-telling Period.
9:55 A. M.—Handwork.
10:35 A. M.—Outdoor Recreation.
10:55 A. M.—Hymn-writing Period.
11:10 A. M.—Lesson and Project Period.
11:50 A. M.—Dismissal.

The hymn-writing period introduced by Mr. Tamke resulted in the students learning completely fifteen new hymns, facts about the authors, circumstances surrounding the writing, and information regarding the music. At the closing exercises, questions on these hymns were unexpectedly asked of the pupils, and their answers left no doubt that the hymn-writing period had been an especially fruitful one.

Biblical story-telling was deliberately broken into two separated class periods, with a view to helping the class retain what they had heard. The teacher told the Bible story in his own words during the third period of the morning. Then, during the seventh and last period, pupils were asked to retell the same story in their own words. This was followed by a group reading of the printed version.

St. John's church possesses a goodly-sized plot of ground next to the pastor's residence. Under the guidance of two trained playground instructors, this was utilized to provide a popular twenty-minute outdoor play period that did much to contribute to the success of the vacation school.

The 400th anniversary of the translation of the Bible into German was made the occasion for a boys' poster-building course, and the posters were entered in a national contest held during September. The boys also constructed an Old Testament altar of stone and plaster, an Old Testament tabernacle, Solomon's Temple, and a model of St. John's church. In addition, the boys make bookends and various lawn ornaments during the handwork period.

The girls spent their handwork periods at the more domestic arts of sewing and flower-making, two days being alternately used at each task. The sewing had a definite purpose, inasmuch as it was for the benefit of the local Red Cross and the local hospital.

NORTH CAROLINA AND THE SOUTH REGIONAL CONVENTION

Just two weeks and we will be at High Point College in the South Regional Convention. Much must be done in these two weeks if North Carolina is to get her quota of 295 registrations. We must not expect that a few churches accomplish this task, but every church must share in this responsibility as well as opportunity. We must depend upon the pastor and the Sunday school superintendent as key men to sell the idea and get their workers there. Wherever possible the pastor and superintendent ought to be listed among those who attend. Let me emphasize again that we want some of our best workers and leaders there. We CAN if we WILL. My great fear is that many of us will not get the vision of the possibility of this great convention so carefully planned by our own Brother Gibbs and his co-workers.

We are going to cultivate our farms and gardens this year in order to make better crops and have a better yield of vegetables. Shall we do less for those who have the responsibility of training the young to take their place in reaching our state and nation for Jesus Christ? Ideals must be cultivated as well as plants.

Folks, I am depending on you. Send in your registrations at once to Rev. F. L. Gibbs, 3267 W. Liberty street, Pittsburgh (16), Pa.

Remember the date, May 29-31. Registration to take place from 3 to 6 p. m. the 29th.

J. CLYDE AUMAN, Registrar.

EASTERN AND NORTHERN GUILFORD HAVE HAIL STORM

On Tuesday afternoon a rather severe hailstorm passed along the edge of Greensboro, going in an easterly direction. The editor watched the cloud from his window, though it was a mile away. There was a constant roar and frequent lightning flashes. Considerable damage was done. Only a light rain fell in South Greensboro.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

MRS. J. E. PRITCHARD, Editor

REGIONAL CONVENTION LEADERS

Dear Auxiliary Presidents:

At the request of the Board of Christian Education, we enthusiastically agreed to suggest leadership for the Commission group, "Building a New Nation and World," to be held during the Regional Convention at High Point College, May 29-31.

Mrs. W. C. Hammer will preside over this commission, and Mrs. J. T. Bowman will act as Resource Leader. Mrs. Bowman will have additional helpers in this capacity.

We are especially happy to announce that Miss Mildred Miskimen, missionary on furlough from India, will be in this group.

The purpose of the Commission group is to:

1. Face the problems of our nation and world.
2. See what we are doing as a denomination to help solve these problems.
3. Suggest practical ways of building a program in the auxiliary to meet some of our present-day needs.

Please see that your auxiliary is represented in this Commission group. You will not want to miss the splendid things that will be included in this convention program. The Methodist Protestant Herald will make announcements as to registration, expenses at the convention, should you desire to stay in college dormitory.

BETTIE S. BRITTINGHAM,
Associate Executive Secretary.

REPORT OF SECRETARY OF YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

As of April 1, 1935

Last April we "launched our ships out into the deep," and now we bring them into port, freighted with what good we may have accomplished. The voyage has not all been smooth sailing, as Pilot of Comrade-ship, there are so many things I have left undone; there are always heartaches and sadness when we look back over the past year and realize that we have let so many golden opportunities go by unheeded; however, I am pressing forward with a greater determination to do more for my Master this year than ever.

During the past year I have mailed more than 250 letters, made one talk to a C. E. society in the hope of organizing a Young People's Circle, three letters in the Herald, answered all requests for literature and information to the best of my ability. The increase in requests for information and literature has been very encouraging, and I feel that much good has been accomplished through the Young People's Work of our Branch. When asked for program material, I have always advised that I know of no better material to be found anywhere than in our own Missionary Record, for all age groups. The membership has increased over last year, and almost twice the amount of money has been raised.

Precious Jewels—8 organizations, 110 members, $170.34 raised.

Sunshine Circles—9 organizations, 166 members, $119.28 raised.

Mission Bands—12 organizations, 145 members, $170.34 raised.

Young People's Circles—11 organizations, 165 members, $306.31 raised.

Totals— 40 organizations, 586 members, and $608.57 raised.

Banners awarded as follows: Precious Jewels, First church, Thomasville; Sunshine Circle, Gibsonville; Mission Study Band, Calvary, Greensboro; Young People's Circle, Maple Springs, Forsyth.

Splendid work! Go ahead and keep them for 1935-36.

There are only three churches reporting to me that have all four groups—Asheboro, Maple Springs, Forsyth, and First church, Thomasville. However, I believe that Union Chapel and Rehoboth churches, Granville circuit, should come in this list, as they report all groups except the Young People's, and they state that they join the auxiliary at this age.

May I urge that each auxiliary please send the name of your new Secretary of Young People's Work, in your church, to Mrs. C. D. Sides, Concord, N. C., Secretary Young People's Work, N. C. Branch. Also write to Mrs. Sides for any literature you may need, as I am today mailing her all supplies.

Thanking each and every one for the splendid co-operation given me, and wish to assure you that I have enjoyed the work. May God's richest blessings be upon you and upon our work.

MRS. A. H. RAGAN,
Secretary Young People's Work.

(On account of the illness of the Secretary, this report was not made at time of Branch Meeting.—Editor.)

Mrs. Kennett and her daughter also were welcome visitors at the service.

MATERIAL CROWDED OUT.

Several church reports and a number of obituaries are crowded out this week.

REMINISCENCES

By Rev. N. G. Bethea, D.D.

In my last letter I promised to give another experience I had with the folks of "unusual goodness." I do not mean to speak disparagingly of these folks, for I think, like all abnormal movements, many good people are caught in them because of what they believe to be the sincerity of the leaders. For instance: In the early days of my ministry, a certain cult to which I have referred, not by name, caught a man who was known for his upright life, to that degree he withdrew his support from his church because his pastor would not accept the creed that these deceived people proclaimed. They had this good man so worked up about the coming of the Lord that he put on a pair of white pants, fresh from the laundry every morning, because he said he did not want his Lord to come and find him with soiled clothes on.

Now those who looked with favor upon this movement said it must be all right or Uncle —— would not take on to it. I am sure that the devil works every plan possible to decoy good men so that he may use them upon the unsuspecting. But these are not the folks I want to tell you about in this issue.

I went to my appointment at one place, and this church being somewhat removed from the parsonage, I always gave them Saturday night service because they turned out so well, as there was nothing to keep them away, and only spending one week-end in the month with them, gave them three services each monthly appointment.

Well, when I reached the community that Saturday evening I was told that the folks who had been sanctified, then got the divine healing, then the baptism of fire, now had the unknown tongue. They had made their boast that they were going to —— that night to run the devil out. Well, I just supposed from what I could gather I was "it." So went on, and behold, when I walked in there was all that bunch with two of their imported "long tailors" sitting up on the front seat with their Bibles open upon their laps. I walked on up in the pulpit, gave out a hymn and started the service. The "amens" came thick and fast—actually where they did not belong. I really like amens, but these were the most misplaced I ever heard. I wondered if they were sincere, or were they trying to get me down so they could go up. I managed to finish my sermon as prepared, without any thought of such an experience, though it was all shot to pieces by their noise, so far as my regular listeners were concerned.

At the close of the service I called on a good Baptist brother who always offered a good warm prayer and he got through in good shape. When I pronounced the benediction they fell all around in the altar and began to rattle, I say it reverently, more like an old model T, with apologies to Henry, just like one that had not been oiled properly, considerably worn, and lost most of its compression. Those who were not flat of their backs making that unearthly noise were pretending to shout and blessing out my good folks. One woman made a special effort to show my wife that they were the folks. I have always been glad that Mrs. Bethea was not of a nervous temperament and it stood her in good hand that night.

Some of my folks came to me and wanted to know what to do. Especially some of the ladies were all wrought up over the proceeding. I told them just to be quiet, that they could not hold up at that long. So I simply climbed up on the back of a pew in the amen corner to give them plenty of room to see how long they could run at that rate. It was an interesting experience. I knew it would not do to order them out. Just let them wear out. So the excited ones got close to me and watched. They seemed so full of venom that I am sure some thought there might be violence. I never lost my equilibrium. If I did, no one knew it but me.

They simply went on till some of them almost "foamed at the mouth." After a while the gas ran low and the motors began to slack up. I simply kept my perch till they stopped. It was in the country; we used kerosene lamps. So began to turn the lamps down and one by one they slinked out. I did not know what to expect Sunday morning, so went home with a feeling that they were not through with the devil in that church and would be back. So I am sure it will interest you to know what happened next day.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF CHILDREN'S HOME

Plans for putting over the 25th anniversary celebration of the Children's home are now being made. It is sincerely hoped that all the churches of our denomination will feel the responsibility of entering wholeheartdly into making this celebration a beneficial one to the Home.

The Children there are ours and we must see that they are cared for. Dr. and Mrs. Dixon are working faithfully and hard and it is up to us to make the load lighter for them. All of you folks please talk and work this celebration in your churches, then on August 23, go there at the home for a joyous day of fellowship.

A pageant has been written especially for this occasion. Churches desiring a copy may secure same as soon as they come from the press. Offering boxes are also being made. These will be sent to the various churches to be distributed among its members.

The goal of this silver anniversary celebration is set for $5,000. Prizes are to be given each 100 per cent church and I'm sure yours will want one of these. Please watch the Herald for further announcement!

Secretary of Children's Home.

Baccalaureate Address, Roberts hall, speaker to be announced.

Presentation of diplomas.

The public is cordially invited to any or all of these exercises.

There are thirty-eight young people in the graduation class. Some few of them, however, will receive their diplomas at the end of the Summer School.

It will be interesting to know that there have been three hundred and eighteen to graduate from High Point College since it was founded ten years ago. The present class will bring the number up to three hundred fifty-six. About fifteen hundred boys and girls have entered the institution since its foundation. Few institutions can show such a large percentage of its total enrollment to graduate. High Point has set several records in its brief history, and year by year continues the onward procession.

Promotional Secretary.

THE SEMINARY EXTENSION SCHOOL AT HIGH POINT COLLEGE

Three members of the faculty of Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md., the institution for the theological education of preachers, will come to High Point college for a ten days school for preachers, May 29 to June 8. They are offering two courses each. Dr. Forlines will offer: (1) "The Doctrine of God in Recent Theological Thought," and (2) "The Minister and Phychology." Dr. Holloway's courses are: (1) "A Study of Modern Preaching," and (2) "The Minister and His Use of the Old Testament." Dr. Shroyer will instruct in: (1) "The History of the Apostolic Church," and (2) "The Rural Church."

Westminster Theological Seminary is full accredited in the Americalion Association of Theological Seminaries, and in loaning us three of their outstanding professors affords a wonderful opportunity for our ministers. Seminary credit toward a degree or a diploma will be given for work in the school. The courses offered are subjects of interest to the preacher.

Every charge in the conference will be the gainer if it sees that its pastor attends this school. He will return with a fuller storehouse of knowledge. (One cannot sit at the feet of such teachers and not learn), and he will receive spiritual strength from the work of the class room and from the fellowship of the other brethren. The cost of the school is $8.50. Some of you good brethren or some organization or class of the church gladden the heart of your pastor by giving him a scholarship to the school. Either give him the money, to be used at the school, or if you desire to conceal your identity send it to me, and I will inform him of the gift.

The ministers this year will not meet at the time of the Training School, as in former years. Except for the first two days of the school, when the Regional Convention will be in session at the college, the ministers will be alone, and can have the fellowship they used to enjoy at the Children's Home. This is an added attraction this year, and should appeal to every minister in the conference. Such fellowship makes for a better understanding of one another and a finer spirit among us.

N. M. HARRISON.

MENTAL POISE

When you feel like saying something
That you know you will regret,
When you keenly feel an insult
That's not easy to forget,
That's the time to curb resentment
And maintain a mental peace,
For, if once your mind is tranquil,
All your ill-thoughts simply cease.

It is easy to be angry
When defrauded or defied—
To be hurt and disappointed
When your efforts are belied;
But to win a noble battle
Over selfishness and spite,
You must learn to keep strict silence
Though you know you're in the right.

So keep your mental balance
When confronted by a foe—
Be it enemy in ambush,
Or a peril that you know.
If you keep poised and tranquil
When the world is full of strife,
Be assured that you have mastered
The most vital thing in life.

REV. A. D. SHELTON CONDUCTS REVIVAL

We had the pleasure on Friday evening of last week of hearing Rev. A. D. Shelton preach in the revival services at St. Paul Church in Greensboro. Brother Shelton has been doing the preaching and there seemed to be considerable interest, there being three professions that evening. Rev. G. F. Millaway, Rev. J. R. Hutton, Dr. N. G. Bethea, and Rev. W. F. Ashburn were in the congregation also. Brother Shelton is a clear thinker and convinces his hearers.

MRS. CLAPP INJURED IN A FALL

Mrs. W. A. Clapp, a member of Grace church and mother of Mrs. J. F. Williams, of Calvary church, had the misfortune of breaking her shoulder in a fall last week.

HELPING YOUR PASTOR HELP YOU

The Pastors' Summer School is soon to begin at High Point College. Many of the brethren have expressed a desire to attend. But many of them will be unable to do so unless the expense is provided from some other source than their own pocketbooks. These are a bit like Old Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

Knowing these brethren as I do, I think they have two objects in mind in wanting to attend the Pastors' School. One is for what they will get out of it for themselves. It affords an opportunity—which they can get in no other way—to brush up in their studies. It is a great treat, even to those of us who have taken the Seminary course, to sit for a few days under these professors, and do some serious study in the various fields of theological thought.

But there is another reason for wanting to attend. That is for what it may do to help the folks they serve. We are exhorted to "study to show ourselves approved unto God, rightly dividing the word of truth." If we can be more efficient as preachers and pastors and render better service to the folks we serve, then it is well worth the time and money it takes to attend.

And there is where the members of the church come in. You want your pastor to render the largest possible service. Won't you help him do it by making it possible for him to attend this school? How can you do it? Well, take an offering in Sunday school or church service; let some class underwrite the cost; let the woman's auxiliary pay for it. Any way is a good way. Only——don't fail to do it. It will cost $8.50, plus the gas for the car. That isn't much from any church. And it will come back, take my word for it, in better preaching. So you'll get your money back.

COBLE CHILDREN HONOR MOTHER

G. O. and Floyd Coble, members of the First Presbyterian church in Greensboro and their sister, Mrs. W. G. Starr, of Grace M. P. church attended services at Calvary church last Sunday morning. Their mother, Mrs. J. H. Coble was a member of Calvary church. The children of this good woman gave a nice vase to Calvary churrh in memory of their mother and each year, on Mothers' Day, they fill it with beautiful flowers. Mrs. Starr's daughter was also in attendance last Sunday.

MRS. W. C. BURROW PASSES

Mrs. W. C. Burrow, of Julian, grandmother of Miss Ila Burrow, of Calvary church, passed away last Saturday evening at the age of 82 years.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Macedonia, Fallston Charge.—Since springtime has come there has been some improvement in the interest and attendance in the Sunday school.

Our superintendent, Mr. W. L. Huss, decided to try to arouse greater interest in Bible reading by giving a prize each quarter to the member of each class who reads the most chapters in the Bible. We hope that every person will study the chapters as he reads them, and will derive a lasting benefit from this contest.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Mrs. Loyd Wright last month, and an interesting program was rendered. A new president and vice president were elected. Mrs. Pearl Barnes was elected president and Mrs. Loyd Wright vice president. Miss Eula Cline was re-elected secretary and Miss Pauline Boyles treasurer. A new program leader is chosen each month. The Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Pearl Barnes Saturday afternoon, May 18. RUTH HOYLE, Reporter.

(This report carried over from last week.)

Whitakers.—On the fifth Sunday in March, Dr. Johnson began a series of meetings lasting through the week. His sermons were enjoyed very much. It was a pleasure to have him with us. He expressed himself as feeling like a child, almost, at being here again.

The night of the 8th of April our two churches, Whitakers and Enfield, held our second quarterly conference in the Enfield church; business was transacted in a very pleasant way. The pastor had a full report of work done. If we could have reported as well, it would have been so good.

The one of our number who was operated on is able to be out some, and we sincerely hope she will soon be well and strong.

Some of us attended Branch meeting and enjoyed it very much. The large attendance was evidence of increased interest. It is a pleasure to meet with the regular ones and welcome new ones.

It is good to have our much-loved president with us again. Our Sunday school is doing some better, I am glad to report. Our auxiliary is improving also.

REPORTER.

Hollister.—The Easter service was held on the second Sunday night in April. The program rendered by the young people conveyed a beautiful thought of the resurrection of Christ. There was a large crowd present and all enjoyed the program.

We were very sorry Mr. and Mrs. Loy could not attend the Branch meeting due to Mr. Loy having had his tonsils removed a few days prior to the Branch meeting. The operation made him very sick for several days. We are glad to say he is much improved and is able to be filling his regular appointments now.

On Sunday, April 28, at 11 o'clock, the baccalaureate sermon of Hollister grammar grade school was preached at Hollister M. P. church by Rev. E. O. Peeler, of Enfield. Miss Sue House, of Thelma, was secured under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association as pianist and music director for this service.

Those who received their seventh grade certificates on Thursday night, May 2, were as follows: John Alston, Luther Alston, Edward Gupton, Addie Gupton, Mavis Gupton, Horace Pierce, Sarah Harris, Evelyn Knight and Nina Shearin. We note the following members of the graduating class of Aurelian Springs high school from our church. They are: Leon Knight, Rodwell Crawley, Agnes and Feeman Wood.

Mr. E. L. Wood is very sick with pneumonia, and Mr. Robert Arrington has been very sick for the past few weeks, also Mrs. E. W. Crawley and little John Pierce. We wish for each one a speedy recovery.

The second quarterly conference will be held on May 10 at Union church. The official members are urged to be present.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Loy on Tuesday afternoon, May 14. Mrs. Fannie Ellington has been appointed devotional leader for this meeting.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

(This report carried over from last week.)

Midway, Haw River Ct.—The second Sunday in April a very impressive communion service was observed. The fourth Sunday our pastor filled his regular appointment with a good message.

Our Sunday school seems to be improving. The attendance is good each Sunday, and the interest is fine.

On Easter Sunday night an Easter program was given which was quite a success, much credit being due to Miss Alice May Butler and Miss Marguerite Bartee. The service was well attended in spite of the unfavorable weather. Collection was good.

We are sorry to report the serious illness of Uncle Billie Bartee, who is one of our oldest and most faithful members.

Our revival will begin on the third Sunday night in June, with Rev. W. M. Howard as pulpit help. We are hoping that we will have a wonderful meeting. We wish that every Christian would join us in earnest prayer, that we may have an outpouring of the Holy Spirit, that each church member may be revived, and that sinners may be converted. We realize that much can be done through prayer.

MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

Rankin Memorial.—The second quarterly conference of the West Thomasville-Rankin Memorial charge was held at the West Thomasville church on last Wednesday evening. There was fairly good attendance from both churches, and good reports from both. The delegates for the Annual Conference were also nominated at this time.

We are glad to report that work on our new church is going forward. We are hoping that it will not be many more weeks until we can move into our new home.

On the past Sunday our pastor, Rev. Edw. Suits, preached a special sermon to the young ladies' class of the Sunday school. This class furnished special music for the service. On the preceding Sunday the young men's class were special guests at the preaching service. These two classes have been engaged in a membership contest for the past two months. It has created much interest and has built up both classes. The young men's class won by a very few points and will be the guests of the ladies' class at a supper in the near future.

The Senior Christian Endeavor society will present a play on Tuesday evening, May 4, entitled "A Wild Flower of the Hills," the proceeds to go to the building fund.

We are planning for special services on the coming Sunday for Mother's Day. Our pastor is planning a sermon appropriate for the occasion, and there will also be special music. REPORTER.

(This report came too late for last week.)

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Rev. T. J. Whitehead filled his regular appointment last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock with an interesting sermon.

Our Annual Memorial Day will be held the first Sunday in June with an all-day program. Special effort is being planned to make this day a success.

Several from here are planning to attend the young people's banquet to be held at Nathanael Greene school on Saturday night, May 18.

The next meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held with Mrs. W. A. Johnson Saturday, May 18, at 2:30 o'clock.

REPORTER.

(This report came too late for last week.)

Bessemer City.—We have a splendid C. E. society meeting each Sunday evening at 6:15. The average is 40 and 45. We elected officers on May 3. Our president is Mr. A. L. Lutz, and secretary-treasurer, Miss Grace Hoyle.

We also have a splendid Sunday school, average attendance 100 to 120.

Our revival started on May 3, with our pastor, Rev. J. R. Anderson, doing the preaching. ELIZABETH LUTZ,
C. E. Society Reporter.

Gibsonville.—Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Stubbins, preached the annual sermon for the Gibsonville high school Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. A large audience was present to hear him. His text was taken from Proverbs 17:24. He stressed upon the young graduates and all people present to see the good and beautiful in all things.

Our Sunday school is well lined up and all classes are doing a great work. The young ladies' class, with their teacher, Mr. D. M. Davidson, give of their best to the Master. I think they remember the words of Jesus, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." They not only remember those of our own number with deeds of love and kindness, but others.

We are glad that Mrs. D. M. Davidson was able to return to her home on Church street from Long's hospital, and is getting along nicely.

The woman's auxiliary held their monthly business meeting Wednesday evening, April 24th, at the home of Mrs. P. L. Kivett. In the absence of the president, Mrs. D. M. Davidson, the vice-president, Mrs. P. L. Kivett, presided over the meeting. An interesting report from the state branch meeting was given by Mrs. R. C. Stubbins. The woman's auxiliary, the junior missionary society, and young people's missionary society have been very active. They have bought several useful things for the parsonage along with the many other things they are doing.

The C. E. society under the directipn of Mrs. Robbins has good attendance and is going along nicely.

(This report came too late for last week.)

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—Rev. E. A. Bingham filled his regular appointment the second Sunday. He brought us an inspiring message, his subject being taken from Gen. 3:20. There was a good crowd to hear Mr. Bingham. As there has not been any report in a good while and our pastor has been preaching splendid sermons, I thought I would just drop a few lines, as I am no reporter, but am interested in the work of the church.

Our Sunday school is going right on. We have a very good attendance.

All you Herald readers pray that this year's work may not be in vain.

MRS. F. L. SMITH.

Gideon Grove Mission Band.—The Mission Band held its regular monthly meeting Saturday, May 11, at the church. There were 32 members present at this meeting. A special program was given to which the parents were invited. This program was greatly enjoyed by all.

We have succeeded in our undertaking of painting the parsonage at a total cost of $55. We now have $5.70 in the treasury to be used in placing concrete steps at the parsonage this week. We extend to one and all a cordial invitation to visit the parsonage and see the improvements made there.

During the year we have been organized we have grown from a membership of 19 to 41. In this time we have raised a total of $77. Under the guidance of our beloved leader, Mrs. C. B. Way, we hope to do even greater things in the future.

ORELIA FRIDDLE, Reporter.

Tabernacle-Julian.—At the Second Quarterly conference held in Julian church May 15 Bro. C. R. Fields and Bro. Ed Coble were made the nominees for delegate to the Annual Conference. These are both good men, either of whom will make a good delegate.

On last Sunday a Mother's Day program was conducted at Tabernacle. Bouquets were given to the oldest mother, the youngest and the mother having the most children at church. Mrs. Mary Fields was awarded the one for being the oldest mother present, Mrs. Albert Hicks was found to be the youngest and Mrs. Norman Field was given the prize for the one having the most children present.

We are now looking forward toward the Home-Coming Memorial service of next Sunday, May 19. We have a full program for the day. The program will begin with Sunday school at 10:00 o'clock. At the 11 o'clock hour Rev. Paul Kennett, LL.D. will preach. Just following the morning service the memorial service will be observed. After the dinner which will be served on the ground Judge Johnson J. Hayes will speak. After the address of Judge Hayes markers will be placed in the walls of each of the buildings. President Andrews will conduct this service.

This is the 105th anniversary of the birth of this church as a Methodist Protestant church. In 1830 it was transferred from the Methodist Episcopal church and converted into a Methodist Protestant church. In 1839 the second building was erected. In 1890 the present building was erected. Tabernacle has produced eleven ministers, four of whom are living and are members of the North Carolina conference. These are Rev. T. F. McCulloch, of Greensboro, and Rev. H. F. Fogleman, of Fallston. Rev. Mr. McCulloch and Rev. Mr. Hutton are both sons of the church and have served it as pastor.

One of the features of this anniversary will be a remembrance of the ministers who have gone out from the church and the former pastors. All these who are living are especially invited to be present.

The present church building was dedicated in 1891 while the late Rev. J. R. Ball was pastor and the late Rev. H. R. Wills preached the dedicatory sermon. The Sunday School building was erected in 1931 and was dedicated on October 4, 1931 by the pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley.

All friends of Tabernacle church are invited to be with us on next Sunday.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Gideon Grove, Flat Rock Charge.—On the first Sunday Rev. C. B. Way preached at 8 o'clock in order that the members of his congregation might attend the baccalaureate sermon at Stokesdale High School, which was at the usual hour of service, 3 o'clock p. m.

On the second Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. there was a large crowd present to hear his inspiring sermon. He selected as a text, "Behold Thy Mother." taken from St. John 19:27.

Communion service was observed in commemoration of the Last Supper. It was decided to have the revival meeting the first Sunday in July. Preparatory to the revival prayer meetings will be held beginning next Sunday, 7:30 p. m., Rev. G. A. Middleton, leader. The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting May 7th at the home of Mrs. Vinson Wilson. The president, Mrs. C. C. Angel presided. An interesting program was prepared by Mrs. Howard Angel and Mrs. S. G. Lemons. The hostess, assisted by her mother, served delicious refreshments.

MRS. H. R. ANGEL, Reporter.

First Church, Lexington.—Our pastor, Rev. C. G. Isley, has been away for the past two weeks assisting Rev. D. I. Garner, of Concord, in a revival meeting. He was reported Sunday, May 5, as having a great revival. Owing to his absence, Rev. Mr. Nash, of Concord, had charge of the evening service May 5, and he gave the report of Brother Isley's meeting. Brother Nash also extended the invitation to First church to attend the services at Concord. Brother Nash's subject was "The Three Crosses of Calvary." He delivered it in a most interesting way. We hope that he will come again soon.

The men's Bible class, No. 11, of First church, had pictures made of their class Sunday, April 28. This class has a goodly number of members, of which Mr. Phouse Bean is teacher. We also have another men's class, No. 1. They also have a goodly number of members, and Mr. C. L. Hedrick is teacher. We hope these classes as well as all the others of our Sunday school will grow very much.

We are sad to relate the death of the father of one of our members. The church expresses its deepest sympathy to Mr. Arvil Parker on the death of his beloved father, Mr. Kearney Parker.

We also wish to report that Miss Margaret Lea Swink, one of the leading young ladies of our church and former reporter, is confined to her home by illness. We hope she will soon be well again.

PAUL WALLACE, Reporter.

(This report came too late for last week.)

Pleasant Hill, Why Not Charge.—Rev. C. H. Hill, filled his regular appointment Sunday, May 12, at 11 o'clock. A large number were present to hear the sermon, which was a grand sermon. This being Mother's Day, he chose his text from I Samuel 1, 11, 24.

There were 75 present for Sunday school. More came for the 11 o'clock service. This making a total of about 100.

There will be a memorial service at Pleasant Hill church Sunday, June 2, 1935. An all day service is being planned. Every one is invited to attend.

FLONA BROWN, Reporter.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—The work at this church seems to be moving along very nicely.

Sunday school has been re-organized with Mr. Olive F. Jones, as superintendent. A good many were present for Sunday school today, that is what we like to see. A good size congregation was present to hear Mr. Williams deliver the splendid sermon for Mother's Day. He seemed to be at his best.

Children's Day service will be held here the Second Sunday morning in June. Dinner on the grounds and preaching in the afternoon.

We were very glad to have today, little Edna Birk Nichols from Efland church to sing, "If I Could Only Hear My Mother Pray Again." She sang it so sweetly.

ANNIE SQUIRES, Reporter.

Asheville.—Two interesting events enlivened the proceedings of the past week, namely: The second quarterly conference and the mother-daughter banquet. Both were well attended and generally conceded worth while. Miss Frances S. Cunningham deserves much praise for the success of the banquet as she was general chairman of the affair. Mrs. H. L. Hanner, Mrs. Arline H. Nodine, Mrs. Louise Dillingham, Mrs. Hale Thomas and Miss Dorothy Drake assisted Miss Cunningham greatly in decorating the room and serving the food. June and Catherine Frady and Virginia Taylor also assisted in serving. Mrs. Louise Dillingham and Miss Dorothy Drake deserve additional thanks for coming to the church on Friday after the banquet and putting the Sunday school room in perfect order. The following program was rendered:

Grace; Welcome to Mothers, Miss Frances S. Cunningham; Songs, How Do You Do, Mother Dear; Welcome; Toast to Mothers, Betty Jane Pratt; Response, Mrs. G. P.

Younginer; Song, Faith of Our Mothers; Piano solo, Miss Anna Lynch; Toast to the Young Pioneers, Mrs. C. B. Baker; Response, Mrs. Arline H. Nodine; Special music, Miss Julia Clip, accompanied by Miss Mildred Younginer; Closing song, O Beautiful Your Service.

Little Miss Margaret Wilson is quite ill with tonsilitis. We pray for her speedy recovery. Mrs. Wilson and Margaret have not been absent from Sunday school until this past Sunday, since last June. That is a fine record. We possibly have others who have equally good records; shall have to take time out and give praise where praise is due.

The Busy Bees led the entire school in numbers present on Sunday. The Frances Cunningham Philathea class led in amount of offering, and by the way, Miss Cunningham was elected a vice-president of the N. C. Philathea Union at the recent Baraca-Philathea convention held in Burlington, N. C. Congratulations, Miss Cunningham!

Mrs. Wilson's primaries led in number present in the children's department; Mrs. Williams' Junior boys in amount of collection.

Invitations have been received by many of our folk to the Commencement exercises at the Asheville Nourmal and Teachers' college. Miss Nancy Clouse, our pianist and one of our most outstanding workers, is a member of the graduating class. The Normal is quite close to our church, others of our members are graduates, therefore we are interested in this school which is doing so much for girls in western North Carolina. We extend to Miss Clouse our congratulations!

The Woman's Auxiliary is to meet this week on Thursday, 3:30 p. m. with Mrs. H. O. Charnock, 45 Montview Drive. M. L. B.

Yarborough's Chapel, Yarborough Charge.—We all enoyed having Dr. Andrews with us Sunday afternoon, May 12, we had a fairly large crowd to hear the wonderful message he brought us. We raised $18.00 on our conference budget.

A number of the young people met last Thursday afternoon and cleaned the church yards.

Our church and Sunday school work is going along nicely at present, but we have greatly missed one of our workers, Mr. J. E. Bobo, who has been ill for several weeks, but we hope to have him back with us soon.

We are planning to put on a children's day program in June.

Reporter.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Our Sunday school attendance is still increasing. Sunday we had 260, an increase of 38 over the previous Sunday.

The Mother's Day program given Sunday night by circle No. 3 of our auxiliary, was well presented and enjoyed. Mrs. Floyd Leatherman is the efficient chairman and is doing a great work. The entire auxiliary seems to be doing fine work, according to reports at our auxiliary meeting. All three circles are working hard to raise money for the parsonage. We hope that since the various secretaries have been informd as to their special duties, that this year will be our best yet.

Don't forget home-coming and memorial day next Sunday, May 19. No further announcement other than that given in last week's report will be necessary. The speaker for the afternoon home-coming address will be Rev. H. F. Surratt, pastor of Community church, Thomasville. We wish that every member of our church could be present for this day, but we realize that this will be impossible, but we assure you that you will be remembered on that day. We invite all who possible can and wish to do so, to be with us to enjoy the day together.

MABEL BERRIER, Reporter.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Rev. R. L. Vickery preached a sermon that was touching to the heart of many the first Sunday evening. Second Sunday morning he read his scripture, second chapter St. Matthew, His sermon was mostly on "Christ and Mother," Mother's Day is a sad day for me, because I have to wear the white flower, looking over the congregation seeing so many older people wearing the red flower and just to think Mother had been with them so many years after all, Christ said, I am with you ever until the end.

Our service from now on will be the fourth Sunday evening instead of the first.

Mr. E. B. Pair, the class leader, held prayer service the first Sunday morning.

We are planning to send Miss Erma Hawkins as delegate to the South Regional convention to be held at High Point May 29-31.

Mr. Raymond Hawkins, of Richmond, Va., remembered his mother, Mrs. C. M. Hawkins Mother's Day, by sending her a cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Vickery were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pair Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Pittard are glad parents of another little boy.

Mr. Henry Hale was the guest of his father, Mr. J. W. Hale Sunday.

Glad to note Marvin Hawkins has recovered from pneumonia and was able to visit his uncle, Claude Sunday.

Also glad Mrs. H. S. B. Thompson is able to be up again.

I wish to correct a mistake of mine in my last report. I said Mrs. Tommie Hawkins died the 22nd of April—it was the 15th.

Best wishes to the Herald and readers.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Mt. Hermon Church, Mt. Hermon Charge.—The work of our church seems to be moving along very smoothly. Although the attendance has not been just what it should be, as there has been right much chicken pox and whooping cough among the children. This seems to be about over with now and we hope to have better attendance.

Our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead is always on hand for all regular appointments and always ready to help out in any special features of the church. The first Sunday in this month he came to us with a very interesting subject, "What Shall the Church Do With the Lost Sheep?"

Last Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the Christian Endeavor society put on a Mother's Day program. Gladys Keck and Thomas Holt had charge of the arrangement of the program. The program was very effective.

We are looking forward to a good year's work in our Ladies' auxiliary with Mrs. G. F. Eley as our new president. The last regular meeting of the auxiliary met with Mrs. G. F. Holt. The next monthly meeting will be on Friday evening following the third Sunday in this month, and will be held in the home of Mrs. G. M. Isley.

We are all looking forward to next Sunday, the third Sunday in May as this is our annual home-coming and memorial day for Mt. Hermon church. Hon. L. P. McLendon from Greensboro, will deliver the annual memorial address and Dr. Fred W. Paschal, of Burlington, will preach a memorial sermon in the afternoon. Special music will be a feature for both services. All ex-pastors and friends of this church are invited to attend these services.

MRS. L. P. HOLT, Reporter.

Bethel, Flat Rock Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, filled his regular appointment the firts Sunday. We were glad to have Mrs. Way worship with us also. Mr. Way always has something good for us if we will only follow his teachings. Christian Endeavor was reorganized Sunday night, Mrs. Anne Stigall was elected president, Miss Avahlee Combs, vice president, Miss Dura Pearman, treasurer and Miss Mabel Combs as secretary. Various ones being on different committees. We certainly hope that we will have the best C. E. meetings that we have ever had at Bethel this summer.

We were sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Bartee, of Midway church in Rockingham. He was the father of Mrs. J. B. Apple, of Bethel, and we extend our sympathy to the family. Also Mr. John Nelson died Sunday night of a complication of diseases. So many people are passing on we never know when we will be called. I wonder if we are ready. Now that schools have closed and the weather fine we hope to have a much larger Sunday school.

Reporter.

Winston-Salem, First Church.—We are glad to report a splendid attendance, perhaps the best since I have been here, last Sunday morning for the Mother's day service. We did not have a special program, except that the Junior Choir sang a Mother's day selection. We are quite proud of this fine group of youngsters, who sing so sweetly and behave so nicely at the church services. They have added a great deal to the enjoyment of our worship. And we are glad to report almost a high-water mark for Sunday school attendance Sunday morning also. We were glad to have Brother W. N. Pegram with us. His wife died just a year ago—she was buried on Mother's day, and he came back for the services as a tribute to her memory.

Last night the Business Girls' circle did a beautiful and much appreciated act when they gave our daughter, Helen, who graduates this week from the R. J. Reynolds High School, a graduation shower of things a young girl loves to wear and a preacher isn't supposed to know much—if anything—about. So she's all diked out, thanks to the girls, and to another gift from the Auxiliary, supplemented by the handiwork of the better half. And, to cap it all, a couple of her friends gave her an order for a permanent. (If you had straight hair and wanted curls you would understand what that means.)

My thanks to Bro. C. H. Whitaker and Dr. Paul S. Kennett for filling my place so acceptably the two Sundays I was away from my pulpit. I hope not to be gone any more this Conference year. I dislike very much being out of my pulpit; but the opportunity and privilege of the invitations to preach at Calvary church and at the Seminary could not well be ignored.

We are making a special effort to raise our Herald subscription quota during the next few days, with some hope of success. Not much so far this week, but we'll be heard from later. C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Calvary, Greensboro.—A series of cottage prayer meetings are being held this week in preparation for our revival which is to begin next Sunday morning.

Our pastor, Dr. Pritchard, will begin the meeting at the 11 hour Sunday, and at the evening hour Sunday Rev. A: D. Shelton, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Protestant church will preach. Dr. Fred Paschall, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church Burlington, will arrive Monday to do the preaching during the week and to include Sunday, May 26. Dr. Bethea, of West End church, will assist with the singing.

The Woman's auxiliary will meet in the hut Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. J. D. Heritage and Miss Pearle McCulloch were joint hostess to the Friendly Sunday school class at the home of Mrs. Heritage Tuesday evening. There were fifteen members and two visitors present for the meeting which was presided over by Mrs. J. N. Griswold, class president. Mrs. J. F. Caudle will be hostess to the class in June at the Recreation Park clubhouse.

Dr. Pritchard preached a wonderful sermon in keeping with Mother's day last Sunday. The sermon was heard by a large and appreciative congregation. Many visitors were in the congregation. We are always glad to have visitors worship with us.

MRS. HOWARD R. NEECE, Reporter.

Thomasville, First.—Well, we have some very interesting news to tell you. We have kept the secret as lon gas we can. We are going to build a new parsonage! We are going to make a hut out of the old parsonage!

The idea originated in the Men's Bible class when they decided to build a hut. A meeting was called and it was decided that they would do even better than that. They have already secured a good number of pledges and we hope to see the work started soon.

Last Sunday morning we had three new members to come to us by letter. Mrs. Knox Teague and Mrs. Tom Lloyd came from Prospect M. E. church, South, and Mrs Charles Tew came from Main St. M. E. church, South, Thomasville. We are more than glad to welcome them in our church. They have been a great help in various departments of our church for quite a while and we feel they can be a greater help as well as the church can help them.

Miss Mary E. Young, of High Point 'college, recently spoke to the Ladies' Bible class in one of their monthly business meetings. The writer regrets that she was unable to attend but an interesting lecture was reported given by Miss Young.

The Ladies' auxiliary met at the church Thursday evening, May 9. The devotionals were conducted by Mrs. John C. Lloyd. After much business Mrs. Will Leonard gave her report of the North Carolina Branch meeting which was held at Asheboro. The hostesses, Mrs. Jake Baity, Mrs. Carrie Gordon and Mrs. Anna Williams, served refreshments. The auxiliary has recently divided into circles. The circles will meet on Friday night after each fourth Sunday.

A fine son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Grant K. Harris about two weeks ago.

Flat Rock Charge.—We presume a report of the service at Gideon's Grove church last Sunday morning will be made by the reporter for that church. Our reporter for Flat Rock church was absent last Sunday afternoon, so the writer will make a brief report of our service there. The surprise speaker for the service was Hon. H. L. Koontz, of Greensboro, a teacher in the Sunday school of the First Baptist church, and solicitor of the 12th judicial district of North Carolina. A large congregation which almost filled the auditorium of the church heard the timely address in which the speaker discussed some phases of present day crime. He stressed the importance of the Sunday school and church as agencies which help reduce crime and asserted that we do not need more jails but more faith of our fathers, implying that a return to the fundamental principles of the Bible will be the solution to the crime problem in North Carolina.

The pastor and family enjoyed a visit and splendid dinner in the home of Mrs. J. J. White and daughter, Miss Gladys White, of Gideon's Grove church last Sunday.

We desire to acknowledge the receipt of more gifts since last week. On Saturday night just after dark Bro. M. W. Thomas and daughter came to the parsonage bringing a number of gifts of groceries, for which we are thankful. During the absence of the pastor and family Sunday afternoon a quantity of strawberries were left at the parsonage, which are appreciated, however we do not know who left them for us. The writer very deeply appreciates the gift of $10 in cash from a citizen of Stokesdale who is not a member of the M. P. church. Mrs. J. J. White gave us vegetables and flowers, for which we are grateful.

The following members of Gideon's Grove are new subscribers to the Herald: Mrs. C. C. Angell, J. B. Albert, Mrs. C. J. Angel and J. L. Albert.

We will observe the ordinance of the Lord's Supper at Palestine church next Sunday morning.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Mill Grove, Midland Charge.—We had good services Sunday (Mother's day). Rev. D. I. Garner from Concord was with us. He, as well as our pastor, gave us a nice talk on the subject. Come again Brother Garner we welcome you at all times.

Mr. and Mrs. John Garmon, and Mrs. Clarence Garmon united with our church Sunday. They were members elsewhere. We welcome them and may God bless and give us success together in his work.

The stewards of our church adopted a new plan to try to do better work in our church. Preparing a list, each dividing equal the membership showing each month of the year and amount each member has paid on pastor's salary. We are behind on pastor's salary, and we want the world to know just where we stand. These lists are tacked on the wall just inside the church. While we know some could do better than they are doing. This is no reflection on any one, but I am sure if we have Christ in our hearts we don't want a single month to pass up blank. When the Conference year is ended, we are planning on sending to Annual Conference by the delegate two lists of our membership, one showing the dependent members and one showing the delinquents and ask conference to base our work on the dependent list. So any member wishing to stay off the delinquent list, don't let your name show blank on our list at the church any more than possible. It is time we as church folks have a system in a business way. We can't succeed unless we are all interested together. We (Stewards) trust our plans meet the Conference approval.

Thank you Dr. Andrews for the write up in last issue, titled "Three Ways to Kill a Church." We enjoyed reading it so much.

L. W. McCOY, Reporter.

Pinnacle Charge. — The second quarterly conference of this charge will convene in Pilot church the first Sunday in June, in the afternoon at 2:30. Officials, please take notice, since there will be important business to transact that you will be interested in. If certain business does not go as you wish, please do not complain that you were not there. I am giving you nearly a month to get ready to be there. I shall be able to definitely know, or determine the financial and spiritual interest of each church by the number who attend. Please see that your reports are just what you want them to be, then you will be proud and so will your pastor.

J. D. MORRIS.

Pine Hill, Davidson Charge.—The Sunday school is going on with very good attendance.

Mr. Bingham filled his regular appointment at Pine Hill yesterday. He preached a very interesting sermon.

Our meeting will be the fourth Sunday in July. We are hoping to have a good meeting.

ROBERTA	100%
ASHEVILLE	98
BURLINGTON, FIRST	98

Now just look at this column of honor! Roberta goes over the top with a small fraction to spare. Good for Roberta! Hats off in her honor! Asheville comes so near going over that she takes second place over Burlington First by a small fraction. Burlington First moves up so close to the top that she is almost sitting on top of the world. Well, that is going some! There are several other charges that are steadily climbing and will soon be over if they keep up the good work.

Now for the receipts column. Graham is at the head of the list. They sell papers each week down there and every few weeks they send in a nice payment and finally they go over the top. High Point First stands in second place. They keep climbing and have already made a fine showing. Fallston is still at it. They also sell papers and it brings them in a steady income. Albemarle is in that same classification. Last year Albemarle reached the goal almost exclusively by selling papers by the week. Mt. Pleasant and Flat Rock also turn in more than one subscription. We thank all of these good folks for the interest they have in the paper. It makes the work lighter to know that folks are standing by us. The many fine things which folks have said to us about the paper help wonderfully. We are all human and like to know that our work is appreciated.

Now for subsidy. Shiloh charge goes over the top with a whoop, so does Whitakers. Fine for both of them. Center church on Alamance charge also sends in its part of the subsidy. Thanks, thanks, thanks.

Our receipts this week amount to $85.10. $57.60 of this being on subscriptions and $27.50 being on subsidy.

Revivals

We are now approaching the time of the year when a great many of our country churches and some of our city churches hold the annual revival meeting. Since this custom is so universally used by us and since so many of our church members come into the church through the annual revival, it seems to us that it is not out of place for us to devote some of our space this week to this important phase of our work.

It would be superflous for us to say that with the changing conditions, a change has come over our people in regard to the revival meeting. Those of us who are old enough to remember a few years back readily realize that the revival does not occupy the large place in the lives of the people that it once did. In our earlier days the revival was the ONE EVENT OF THE YEAR. Farmers planned their work so as to have a vacation during the revival meeting. Very little work was done during the week and that that was done was largely of an emergency nature. In some of our churches we had three and sometimes four services each day. In most of our country churches the hours of service were at eleven, two and at candle lighting time. In some cases a prayer meeting was held at 10:30 in the morning. Farmers usually saw to it that they had a calf or a pig to slaughter for the meeting. In those days when two meals each day were served on the church grounds it was necessary to make some preparations for it. Furthermore, company came from a considerable distance in many cases to attend the "big meeting." Quite frequently there would be several ministers present and in some cases these took their turn in doing the preaching. Men and women prayed during the year for the revival which was to be held in the summer or the fall.

In thinking back over these days certain observations come to us concerning the annual revival. The first is that people somehow had the feeling that souls could be saved only during the revival. That was one reason for their praying for the revival. To many people, to pray for the revival meant praying for the salvation of the lost for to be saved meant to attend the revival. The truth of the matter was that the most of the people who were saved were saved during the revival meeting. The one thing that made it so dreadful for people not to yield during the special effort was that they must take chances on living in sin another year and come through to the next revival with a chance of being saved. People usually live in terms of things with which they are familiar. And since almost everybody that was saved was saved during the revival, it was perfectly easy and perfectly natural to reach the conclusion that sinners could not be saved except at these special times. We are not finding fault with the revival. It served a good purpose. Many who are now in the glory world began to make preparation for the Christian life in the revival meeting. Many of our best people in the churches of today were saved in the revival. It was a great institution and produced great results. The fault that we find with it is that the emphasis was laid on getting religion at a particular time as though God could not save any day in the year.

The larger part of the world's work is done by extremists. Until people believe in a thing to that extent that they will go to extremes to get results, they are not going to get the best results. We believe now that God can save any time and any where and that just at that moment when the soul is offered to God he comes in and takes up his abode there. But while we believe this, the tragic thing is that so few people are being brought to God in any way these days. So many churches go through the year without registering a single convert. Two or three years ago it was reported that sixty thousand churches in this country went through the year without a single convert. This brings home to us the painful fact that people have swung so far away from the revival methods of other days that they hardly have any method in our day, or at least some churches do not. And the churches that still hold to the revival as in other days as a rule witness a painful spectacle of seeing but very little interest manifested in the services even by the church people. So long as the pastor and the visiting minister have to spend the larger part of their time in persuading the church members to come out to the services and they succeed only to a limited degree, there will not be many souls saved. If an unsaved person were to go to some of our modern revivals he would find so few church members present that he would decide that religion evidently did not mean much to those professing to have it and serious doubts would arise in his own mind as to whether it was worth having or not.

Now, we ask, what is the reason for this indifference on the part of church people? In too many cases, people have lost the sense of the hideousness of sin. To many people it seems to make very little difference whether a person is a Christian or not. Judging by their attitude we would say that they do not think it makes much difference whether people are saved or not. But it does make a world of difference. Sin is just as hideous in the sight of God as it has ever been. To be lost today is just as bad as it was fifty years ago. For a person to be without the fellowship of Christ is just as pitiful as it has ever been. Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever and he is grieved just as much today when people turn away from him as he did in other days. The life without Christ today is as poor as it was in the long ago, even if we do have many things to amuse us and entertain us that we did not have formerly.

What, then, is the remedy for our troubles? First we must realize that God is not limited as to time nor place to save the soul. We ought always preach and teach that God is willing any time and anywhere. We must use the decision service and try to get the boys and girls saved. For them to come forward in a decision service and give their lives to Christ ought to mean just as much as for them to come in the revival meeting. In fact, a great many churches have the decision service in connection with the revival. We must not discount child conversion. We are fortunate if we do get the children these days, for many times if we do not get them while they are children, we do not get them at all. But while we believe in getting the children to come within the fold, we must not overlook the special effort to get the grown people in. And any church that is willing to put forth the proper effort to reach the lost can do it. The fault is not always with the sinner. Many times the trouble is due to the fact that the church members are so indifferent to the claims of the kingdom that they will not put forth the proper effort. When the church gets concerned about lost men something happens. The tragic thing is the lack of concern on the part of the church. But preachers must keep on preaching. They must keep on warning people against the dangers of sin. Sin must be painted in all of its blackness. Children must be gathered in while their hearts are young and tender and the church must show that degree of concern for sinners that will cause them to go to the house of the Lord when the meeting is going on. Let us be all things to all men that we may save some.

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT THE HOME

By Rev. T. M. Johnson, D. D.

The fourth and last cornerstone of society to be studied is the Home. Not the house in which the family dwells is the home, but the family living together in love is the home. Without love there can be no home. A family without love is like a body without a soul—dead. Love is at once the happiness of home and the strength thereof. "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." Prov. 15:17. Happiness, that. The teaching of this proverb reaches deeper, much deeper, than the appetite.

The Home Has Three Sides

like a triangle. First, the conjugal relation, husband and wife. "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: And they shall be one flesh." Gen. 2:24. Is there anything of greater strength and power? "Cleave," strong word. "One flesh," great power to metamorphose two beings into one, whose soul is love!

"Two souls with but a single thought
Two hearts that beat as one."

The wedding ring fittingly symbolizes the beauty and strength of the conjugal relation. The most beautiful line is a curve; the most beautiful curve is the circle—beauty. The strongest support in architecture is the arch; extending the ends of the arch until they meet forms the circle—strength. The ring itself passes in a circle from the man to the woman to the minister to the man to the woman's finger. "The man shall give unto the woman a ring, and the minister, taking the ring, shall deliver it to the man to put it upon the fourth finger of the woman's left hand."— Marriage ceremony. I wonder whether persons marrying with the expectation of being divorced, as some apparently do, use the ring?

Second, the parental relation, responsibility to children. "But if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." 1 Tim. 5:8. Parents must also provide for their children's education. "And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: And thou shalt teach them diligently to thy children." Deut. 6:6, 7.

Third, the filial relation, duty toward parents. Obedience and respect. "And he (Jesus) went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them." Lu. 2:51. "Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. Honor thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise." Eph. 6:1, 2. The promise here referred to is, "That thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." Ex. 20:12.

Ugly Spots

It seems a pity that a thing so beautiful as the home should ever be other than a joy forever. Yet, "A brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city: And their contentions are like the bars of a castle." Prov. 18:19. A car in reverse out of control is most disastrous. I have wondered whether hatred between members of the same family is love in reverse. Maybe that is when love is blind.

The Purpose of Divorce

"When a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favor in his eyes, because he hath found some uncleanness in her: then let him write her a bill of divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house." Deut. 24: 1. I have first read from what seems to be an authority that that regulation was made with the view of hallowing the marriage relation, presumably as diseased cattle are separated from the herd and destroyed if they can not be cured. This for the protection of the health of the herd; so also the morally diseased home was to be dissolved or the diseased part of the home amputated for the protection from contamination of other members of that family and of other homes. But alas! Alas! the abuse of it then and now.

In those days the matter as to whether the bill of divorcements was to be given was left to the judgment, perhaps perverted judgment, of the man, or maybe his whim. Those Hebrews seem to have brought with them from their bondage in Egypt loose ideas and low standards of morals. Jesus, answering a question by a group of quibblers concerning this matter, said: "Moses becauses of the hardness of your hearts suffered you to put away your wives: but from the beginning it was not so." Matt. 19:8.

Jesus' Standard High

Jesus said, "Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female, and said, For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: And they twain shall be one flesh? Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder . . . And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: And whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery." Matt. 19:4-9. That ought to be final with individuals and with legislative enactment of all states.

North Carolina's Way

In defiance of the high authority quoted above, recent legislatures of North Carolina have put on our statute books easy divorce laws. Husband and wife living apart for two years, either may go into our courts, say the other is to blame, and get a divorce. According to newspaper reports the Superior court of last February in one of our counties granted eleven divorces on the first day of the session. Ten other cases are set for the term of court this month, May. Is not this cornerstone of society, the Home, in a state of crumbling?

"HALF WAY OUT AT THE HALF WAY DATE"

Half way out is $1,665.85. To date I have received $1,644.48. So we lack only $21.37 of being half way out, and we ought to go far beyond that before we reach the half way date, May 31.

What I am saying about half way out doesn't concern a good many of the churches and charges. They have already gone beyond the half way point, gone all the way to the full amount. But what I am saying does apply to a good many churches that have not made much effort to reach the goal, and to some churches that are collecting the money but either haven't quite reached the half way point, or are holding what they have until they get all of it. I know of course these churches are not going to stop at that point. As a matter of pride and as an evidence of the same degree of loyalty, they will not stop until they have done all that has been asked of them, and as much as others have done who have raised the full amount. No church in the Conference is under any more obligation to raise its McCulloch Fund apportionment than another; or putting it another way, the obligation rests upon each church in the Conference with equal weight. The amount asked for is different, the obligation is the same. Some have felt the burden of responsibility, or have sensed the opportunity, more keenly than others, and have set about to discharge it more earnestly. And they have succeeded. It is now up to the others to do their part. Shall we go half way by May 31, and press on from there, getting our second wind, so to speak; or shall we fail altogether to do our part? That, of course, is for the pastors and members of the churches that are still behind to asy.

This report is being written on Saturday because I am expecting to be away the first part of next week, and will not be able to include what comes in in time to get it in the paper. It will appear the following week. This is the way the Fund stands:

Previously reported	$1,594.48
Mebane	50.00
Total to date	$1,644.48

Mebane goes on the Honor Roll this week. My sincere congratulations to that church. It means more for them to get on the Honor Roll than appears on the surface. Many of our members at Mebane work in the White Furniture company's plant. But that mill has not been working full time for quite a while. So they have really made a sacrifice to to give this $50.00; but the measure of their sacrifice is the evidence of their loyalty, and, in this instance, it might well be spelled with capital letters.

If any more churches have raised the money that will put them on the Honor Roll, will the person who has the money in hand please send it in by May 28 so we can make out the certificates. Thanks.

C. W. BATES, Chairman, M. M. F.

THE PASTORS' SCHOOL

Whether or not the sun moves, the world does and one cannot stay where he is if he stands still.

Personally I need the School. Contrast with scholars rejuvenates the mind, freshens the thinking and enriches the thought, prevents the fountain from running dry or becoming stagnant.

This extension work of the Seminary gives the preacher an opportunity to extend his period of usefulness. It pushes the "dead line" farther back. Attending the Pastors' School is to the pastor-preacher what "attending lectures" is to the practising physician.

Then, too, it brings a new thrill into one's work.

Next Two Weeks to Be Busy Ones

With the High Point College commencement, the South Regional Convention, the Pastors' School and the Mid-Year meeting on, the next two weeks promise to be busy ones for those who usually attend these things. The editor hopes to attend part of the time, though he cannot be away from the office on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Rev. N. M. Harrison has consented to call off the classes n the Pastors' School at 10 a. m., so those taking these ourses can attend the meeting without loss.

Want Complete Returns

We want to give credit to every church which has paid ny claim in full or has paid pastor to date. The week following the Midyear meet, i. e. the first week in June we shall un in the Herald an Honor Roll of the churches. We hope ours will be in it. Certainly if it should be in it, please make ure that the necessary information is in my hands.

The Pastors' School

Next week this school opens. It offers to the pastor exceptional opportunities we would like to see them accept. It is oo bad that some of the men who need most what is offered here will be unable to attend. Unable because they cannot ay the small amount necessary to register and remain through he ten days. We have urged some of our laymen to help such en and we do hope that such help shall be found for every an who would attend this school but who cannot because of he lack of money to pay his expenses there.

Efland Church Dedicated

We had the pleasure of dedicating this well built church last Sunday. The pastor has worked untiringly through eleven years on this charge. The original house was a frame building. Some years ago it was brick veneered and Sunday school rooms were added, making a building well prepared to serve the community. There was a large audience present and we congratulate Pastor Williams and his loyal people upon the achievements which made this day possible. We presume a full report will be sent in by the local reporter.

In the afternoon we were at Tabernacle. Here Pastor Curry was completing a task left unperformed by our church fathers some hundred years ago, we laid the cornerstone. The organization is one hundred and five years old, the present building about forty-five years old. There was present a great company of members and friends of the church. The local reporter will doubtless take care of the events of this occasion for the Herald. We enjoyed our stay even though brief.

Lebanon Church, Rev. J. M. Morgan, Pastor

We visited this church at night. There was present about one hundred people. Here I used to find larger congregations than at most of our churches for the night services. Brother Morgan informs me that it has reversed, that he has much larger congregations at the morning service.

Lebanon is building a hut this spring to take care of the overflow in the Sunday school and the social meetings of the membership.

This is Pastor Morgan's first year and he appears to be getting on very well with the work. Lebanon has a good field for service and with enlarged capacity we hope that it will realize this greater growth and increased usefulness. We enjoyed our visit here; the people are good listeners, thus making it easy for the speaker to deliver his message.

Dr. Johnston's Articles Praised

It is very gratifying to have so many expressions of appreciation of Dr. T. M. Johnson's series of fine articles on "What the Bible Says." We knew that Dr. Johnson could write for an edification.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE PAGE

THE GOAL WAS REACHED

The report in totals is as follows:

Raised by the N. C. Branch	$1,673.50
Reported by Treasurer Allen (See HERALD, April 25)	1,970.22
Reported by Treasurer Allen (April 23rd to May 1)	1,471.72
Reported by Treasurer Hinshaw (Loyalty League, May to May)	616.79
Received at College Office	36.00
Grand Total	$5,768.23

All the monies from Loyalty League were received and handled by the Treasurer of the N. C. Board of Education, and Dr. Hinshaw states that of the total, $108.00 has been received since conference.

The total of $1,673.50 from the Branch has been received by the College Treasurer.

Of the total reported through Treasurer Allen's office $3,441.94, the college has received from Mr. Allen $2,644.42, and Mr. Allen has in hand $471.72; this makes a total of $3,116.14. You will thus see there is a difference of $325.80; this amount was retained from the collections at last conference and was used by the treasurer of the conference to complete the balance due on the conference note, together with accrued interest, held by the Bank of Reidsville. We all rejoice that said note has thus been cancelled, since the Conference several years ago borrowed this money for the use of the college.

The $36.00 received by the college direct, is as follows: Grace Church, $25.00; Union Chapel, $5.00, and Efland Charge, $6.00.

Of the grand total of $5,768.23, you will be interested to know that on last Conference year the total is $2,621.69; on this conference year the total is $3,146.54; the distribution is as follows:

	Last Conf. Year	This Conf. Year
The Branch	$ 602.43	$1,071.07
The Churches	1,510.47	1,967.47
Loyalty League	508.79	108.00
	$2,621.69	$3,146.54

And so we meet the challenge of the Board for the fiscal year, May, 1934 to May, 1935. Thanks to all who helped to make the drive a success. The list of churches, with contributions, since April 23rd is as follows:

GOD'S HEARING

Mamma was teaching Edna a new prayer, and the little one grew quite thoughtful.

At last she said: "Mamma, how can God hear my prayer, since He is so far off?"

"Why, Edna, God is not far off. He is everywhere. He not only hears the words we say, but He even knows our thoughts. He knows our prayer before we speak it."

"Then it doesn't matter if I do forget to pray," Edna concluded.

"Oh, yes, God wants everyone to pray! He loves to hear us pray."

"But He does not always do as I ask Him, Mamma. It rained that day when we wanted to go to Auntie's, and I prayed ever so hard for it to quit raining, and it didn't."

"God knows better than we do what we should have. I do not always give my Edna what she asks for. I would not give her anything that would harm her. So God knows what is best for us to have. If we ask for something that is not for best, He in mercy does not give it. Be sure of this, God always hears our prayers, and will always do for us what is best."—Our Young Covenanters.

Missionary Convention to Be In Greensboro

Mrs. L. W. Gerringer returned Tuesday night from the Denominational Missionary Convention in Indianapolis, Ind., and reported that the convention accepted the invitation of the Greensboro churches to hold the next year's convention in Grace church, Greensboro. All of the officers of the convention were elected to serve another year. Mrs. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, is the President. Next year ought to be a great year for N. C. Methodist Protestants with the Missionary convention in Greensboro and the General Conference in High Point.

Postal Service to Be Extended In Greensboro

The Postoffice Department is making the announcement that the Glenwood office in Greensboro will be discontinued and that the four hundred or more families will be served by city carrier service from the Greensboro office. Beginning with June 6th city carrier service will be extended to a great many streets that formerly have not been served. This includes the one block on Brown street in which the Calvary parsonage is located. Formerly mail for people in this block was put in a box at the corner of Asheboro and Brown streets. After June 6th the carrier will walk right up on our porch.

AT THE END

At the end of life we shall not be asked how much pleasures we had in it, but how much service we gave in it; not how full it was of success, but how full it was of sacrifice; not how happy we were, but how helpful we were; not how ambition was gratified, but how love was served.—Hugh Black.

OUR STORY PAGE

BEN AND BRUNO

The milkman gave Bruno to Ben, who showed him proudly to the family.

"Oh, what a homely dog!" they all squealed.

"S-sh," whispered Ben, "you'll hurt his feelings."

Bruno wagged his stumpy tail and rolled his yellow eyes and the family laughed again. He was a funny looking puppy. His coat was long and shaggy and stood on ends like a wire hair brush. He had big, clumsy feet and his broad, blunt face looked just like a sheep's.

Ben started at once to teach him some useful tricks. Bruno was very eager to learn, but it took weeks and weeks of patient toil for him to learn to hold out his paw. Ben had him shake hands with all the family, who laughed harder than ever.

But within a month Bruno had learned to stand on his hind legs and beg. To be sure he was so clumsy that he often lost his balance and sprawled over in a heap. How Ben's family laughed when the big, awkward fellow fell flat on his nose.

But Ben and Bruno kept on working away every morning. "Bow, wow, bow-wow-wow," Bruno kept saying.

"That means," said Ben wisely, "that he doesn't understand, but that he's doing the best he can."

The family did not laugh when Bruno learned to carry a basket in his mouth. He held the clothes pin basket when Mother was hanging out the clothes, and she said that he was really a great help. He carried Ben's books to school, as Ben fastened a strap around it which Bruno grasped with his long, sharp teeth.

Bruno was as prompt as a clock. He knew exactly the moment at which Ben should start for school.

"Woof, woof, woof!" he howled until the family begged Ben to start at once. Bruno marched off beside his master as proud as a general.

One night Ben fell off the roof of the garage and cracked his collar bone and sprained his ankle. He almost cried when the doctor said he would have to lie on the couch for six weeks.

"I want my reading book and some paper," he said.

Ben's mother shook her head, as she did not want to leave Ben alone in the house while she went down to the schoolhouse.

"Boo, boo, boo," said Bruno sharply.

Ben smiled for the first time since he was hurt. "Bruno will go down to school for me," he said.

The next morning Ben tied a note to the basket and put it in Bruno's mouth. "Take it to school, Bruno, please," he said.

Bruno rolled his funny yellow eyes and wagged his stump of a tail and started off. It didn't take him long to get to the schoolhouse, but he had to wait a few minutes before he crept in the door behind a little boy who was late.

The children and the teacher all started at Bruno when he came trotting in. He held out his big clumsy paw to the teacher, who read the note in the basket, and smiled. She put Ben's reading book in the basket and copied some words for him.

'Woof, hirrup," barked Bruno. It was easy to guess he meant "Thank you, very much."

Then Bruno hurried back to Ben, who hugged him as hard as he could.

Best of all, the family said, "Bruno is a good dog!"—The Child's Gem.

MAKING SUNBEAMS

Little Willie laughed and clapped his hands, and then stretched them out to catch the pretty sunlight that streamed in upon his bed in the crib. All the children laughed, and Charley said, "Silly baby."

"Not so silly, after all; it is a very pretty thought," said mamma. "It's what God wants all His children to do—catch the sunbeams. Look at baby's face and see." And, sure enough, the little fellow had bent his head forward until the golden light was on his rosy cheeks and bright curls.

"I think I know what mamma means," said Louie, looking into the baby's laughing face. "She means catch the—the happy and glad instead of cross."

"That is it," said mamma. "There is happiness all around us. If we try to catch it for ourselves, and make others happy, too, will not that be like sunshine? Yes, and if things do not go just right, we can call it cloudy weather; but we can be cheery, and so make sunbeams.—Publisher Unknown.

PREACHERS MUST BE ACTIVE

He who attempts little accomplishes little. A preacher who settles down with his family and simply fills his appointments, and preaches over and over his old sermons, and makes only social visits, can but fail in his work. He does not win souls. He does not expect to; he does not try to. He is like a blind horse on a treadmill.

But he who settles down to his work and expects to succeed in it does succeed. He proposes to do something, and he wisely adapts his means to the end to be attained. His work is not in vain in the Lord.

John Eliot, one of the first missionaries to the American Indians, wrote: "Prayer and pains, through faith in Christ Jesus, will accomplish anything." The faith that does not produce prayer and pains is downright presumption. If you have faith for a revival, then go to work to promote a revival. In the waters of salvation the fishing season lasts the year round.—Rev. B. T. Roberts.

EMMANUEL

Let us be with God since God is with us. I give you for a watchword, "Emmanuel, God with us." You, the saints redeemed by Blood, have a right to this in all its fullest sense; drink into it, and be filled with courage. Do not say, "We can do nothing." Who are ye that can do nothing? God is with you. Do not say, "The church is feeble, and fallen upon evil times"; nay, God is with us.—C. H. Spurgeon.

PINE RIDGE

As Viewed by Rev. J. W. Shell, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

It has been my great pleasure to visit our Alvan Drew school, Pine Ridge, Kentucky, three times; spending altogether about thirty days on that "mountain of His Holiness, beautiful for situation." I have been so inspired with its beauty and grandeur that I have resolved to spend a part of my vacation there as often as I find it possible. The quietness and glory of the place brings such happiness to me that I am heartsick when it is time for me to leave.

The School has a farm of more than 100 acres, divided into fields and pasture lands, with an extra ten or fifteen acres for the school buildings and campus. There are about fifteen buildings on the school property. A store, planing mill, barn, garages, several dwellings, three dormitories and two modern brick school buildings. One is for the grade school with an auditorium large enough for entertainments, games and other larger gatherings. The other building is used for high school, the library and the church.

I saw about 40 head of cattle, a herd of sheep, a number of hogs, and several horses.

A good hard road passes right through the school property, joining the main roads of the west at Winchester. The southeastern end of this road connects our school with the main highways of Virginia, West Virginia and the Carolinas. Every day the big Greyhound busses pass right along this fine road, and every day except Sunday the big freight trucks pass along, and often stop with goods for our institution. The United States post office is now located in the administration building, and will be of great service to the school.

I saw a well organized school with competent instructors, teaching more than will be found in the book, for all of them are earnest and sincere Christian workers and they are making great sacrifices for the Kingdom.

I saw a competent, consecrated superintendent with his talented wife, going in and out before the students, not asking them to do the things they are unwilling to lead in, but giving encouragement and sympathy which is so much needed.

I saw the children. Yes, I saw much of them, and they are happy. I saw the boys and girls at their work, I saw the young women and the young men going about their daily tasks and often singing as they worked. They sew, wash and iron, cook, sweep, scrub, milk the cows, haul and saw the wood, help in the store, run the printing press, and do many other every-day good deeds. I saw the good cook about her work and I enjoyed some of the most wholesome meals I have ever eaten at any school.

I have seen the whole group at worship in the church services; I have seen them in the Sunday school, the very large Christian Endeavor society; I have seen them going out to do a bit of missionary work here and there. I have been in the prayer meeting (twice as large as most of our churches have) —yes, the mid-week prayer meeting has some life in it.

I have seen them at play; I have been with them on several picnic occasions, and a happier, more unselfish crowd I have never seen.

I have learned to love them all.

But I have seen something else. It is their need of help from our churches everywhere. They need more boxes and barrels of "cast-off" clothing. No one can ever tell how much these things we do not need will help them. They need more good books for the library. High grade stories and high school classics. They sorely need new hymn books for the church use. They need a larger gasoline engine for the pump that brings the water from the pond to the reservoir. They need a filter for the reservoir. They need—they need many things we are able to supply. Of course the greatest need they have is for every church to pay more money into the General Conference benevolences and then they will be taken care of.

They need more visitors. Methodist Protestant ministers and church families. They need more students able to pay their way.

MRS. ANGEL WILL PLEASE PARDON US

Last week, in the Herald receipts column, a payment was listed as Rev. H. R. Angel instead of Mrs. H. R. Angel. If our best correspondents did not make so many errors, then we would think that we were headed for the junk heap, but since we all make errors, perhaps the world will go on anyway.

LAST CALL FOR THE SOUTH REGIONAL CONVENTION

High Point College, May 29-31

Time is short for us to make our plans to attend the South Regional Convention; but not too late if you will act now. Send your registration fee of 50 cents to Rev. F. L. Gibbs, 3267 Liberty St., Pittsburgh (16), Pa. Brother pastor and supeerintendent, may I urge that you make every effort to reach your quota. Please stress the matter next Sunday, for it will be your last chance.

Thieves of Time

There are so many thieves of time. So much of time is spent to no purpose. It is so easy to be deceived as to the proper use of time. There are so many people after our time. It is so easy to procrastinate. Lack of real interest in the cause of Christ in the world robs many of so much that will fortify the individual and the church against the sins of our day. Many will say they have not time to take in this CONVENTION next week. But in many cases you have the time if you are not deceived by that old THIEF.

Full of Ideas

The world is full of ideas. Ideas are the greatest factors in human life. Man is little better than animal without ideas. Jesus came into the world to bring new ideas. His ideas revolutionized the world. A leader with ideas can revolutionize a church, or vice versa kill it. We need ideas. The South Regional Convention proposes to give us ideas as well as inspiration.

On the Fence

Some of you are undecided as to what you are going to do. Settle what your chief desire is regarding your Christ and your church and that will put you off the fence, and in the most of cases that side nearest the South Regional Convention.

The Time of Your Life

If you love the Lord and your chief desire is to see His cause prosper, then you can plan to have the time of your life at High Point College next week. For some of the most zealous and consecrated leaders that the Methodist Protestant church has will be there for your inspiration and fellowship. Good people fram five different states will be there to give range to your good time.

Just Remember

Such opportunities will not come often in a lifetime. Fellow churchmen, let's take advantage of this great convention at least 295 strong when the roll is called of the delegates from the Good Old North State.

The total cost of the convention to you after you get there will be $2.50, which includes your registration.

Bring your own bed linens, soap and towel.

I will be looking for you in Roberts hall between the hours from 3 to 6 p.m., May 29.

J. CLYDE AUMAN, Registrar.

ADVANCED INFORMATION FOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHOIRS

This year we are anticipating the best musical program of any recent Leadership Training School, to be presented on Monday evening, June 24. Some young people's choirs recently organized will participate. Some choirs that have been organized for a long time will render selections. Some whose experience is limited and some that have had considerable experience will appear on the program.

A few advanced statements may be helpful.

First, any church group of young people formed into a choir is eligible to participate. They may be of any number from a quartet up to 25 or more—all girls, all boys, or mixed. Of course, a four-part choir is preferable.

Second, each choir will prepare two selections. If the number of choirs participating is too large for the allotted time, only one selection will be used. Either sacred or secular music may be rendered.

Third, the director, president, or other officer of each choir is urged to notify by postal card or letter the writer of this article that his choir will participate. Please comply with this request shortly. Pastors, please remind the proper one of this duty.

Fourth, two special numbers by the combined choirs will be sung, provided the above requirement is met promptly, so that the music may be assigned to them.

Fifth, if there are any questions or problems that the writer may help to answer or solve, do not hesitate to communicate with him.

E. LESTER BALLARD.

Mebane, N. C.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

Topic for Sunday, May 26, 1935:

"What Shall We Do About Social Injustices?"

Scripture Lesson—Matt. 25:42, 43

Let us hold this meeting for the purpose of analyzing the problems of social injustices within our own community. Let us put our religion to the test and see if it will prove practical in practice as well as in theory.

The Christian Endeavor World Quarterly suggests three problems. Let us see these three problems as the basis of our meeting and the material for our discussion.

First—Housing

"Trained investigators report that bad housing is one of the chief incubators of crime," causing large families to pack into a small house. Houses that are built close against each other, with no space for the recreation of the children. Houses poorly constructed, heated and shabbily kept, void of even the conveniences necessary for sanitation.

Such conditions result in:

Boys and girls stealing at an early age;

Juvenile crime of all sorts;

Fires and arsons by criminal characters;

Disease which cannot be paid for by the poor and therefore is a tax on the town and hospital;

Increased taxes to pay for the sick, crime, jails that deal with the results of slum housing.

All of these conditions may not exist in every community, but some do. Why not have a community investigation made by a committee from the young people's society? Let them report back to the society the conditions found and be able to suggest possible solutions.

Second—Child Labor

Child labor is a problem twofold in its effect. It robs the child of both physical and mental development, and at the same time takes jobs from adults only because the child can be employed at a lower rate.

Have a committee investigate and determine if children under sixteen are employed in factories and stores. The wages paid; have some one report on the state child labor laws. Have another report on the child labor amendment to the constitution (proposed).

Third—The Liquor Situation Today

The situation is peculiarly imperative in North Carolina at this time.

Let us discuss the impending dangers of its return, and further discuss its evils and dangers.

It would be interesting as well as valuable information for the society to make a study of the present siutation and compare it with figures under prohibition. Consult the police department.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

1935. This is the 25th birthday of the Children's Home, and we are asking all Methodist Protestants and their friends to do something about it in the way of a birthday offering. A faithful committee is working out plans, and you will be hearing from them soon.

Twenty-five thousand dollars for the Children's Home during this, its twenty-fifth year of service. How much will you help? One man and his wife have already given 50 cents each, and I don't think they are 50 years old yet. God bless and prosper every one of you!

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Superintendent.

TWO MORE COMMENCEMENT SERMONS

Rev. J. W. Braxton, the pastor of Mt. Pleasant charge recently preached the commencement sermon at Nathanael Greene school and Rev. H. F. Fogleman performed a similar service for the Fallston high school.

Mr. R. L. Jones, of Tabernacle church, with a number of other farmers, recently made a trip to Washington in the interest of the government crop control. He reports a great trip.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Kannapolis.—I am looking forward to going into a newly painted church next Sunday morning. On a short call meeting several days ago the members of my church quickly decided to paint the church, two coats inside and outside and stain the benches. By the time the painting is completed the bill will also be completed. A pastor is made to feel very good when all he has to do is ask the members to carry out a plan and it is quickly done.

Our revival was held only a few days ago. While we did not have a large number of converts we all felt the blessings of God throughout the entire meeting. We are especially thankful to Dr. Fred Paschal for the services he so earnestly rendered the church while he was with us. He was highly respected and loved by all those who heard him and were associated with him. Since the revival we have received into the church membership four new members—Miss Laura Braswell, who moved her membership from the First M. P. High Point; Mrs. Odell Tutterow, formerly of the Reformed church; Miss Lucille Routh, of the Baptist church, and Miss Margaret Mahaffey.

For the past several weeks we have been meeting all our obligations as they come due largely because of the tithing system we are using in the church. We expect to continue this system as the means of raising our budget for the year.

Our Sunday school and church attendance have both increased and continue to grow each Sunday.

On the third Sunday of June we are planning to have our annual home-coming. All the former pastors of the church are especially requested to be present and others who can attend are invited.

AUBERT M. SMITH, Pastor.

(This report carried over from last week.)

Spring Hill, N. Davidson Circuit.—Yesterday was Mother's day and several were out for Sunday school and the short Mother's day program rendered by the Sunshine circle. The program was as follows: Poem, "Only One Mother," Lois Swaim; recitation, "Somebody's Mother," Jewell Craven; editorial on, "Mother," Lucille Craven; poem, "Mother," Grace Haynes; recreation, "White Lilacs," Mary Pickard; quartet, "Mother's Gone," Mr. and Mrs. Julius Craven, Mrs. George Craven and Mrs. Julius Swaim; prayer, "Praise to Mother," Mary Ellen Payne. The program was well rendered and received by all present.

Memorial day will be held at our church in an all day servic Sunday, May 19. An interesting program is being planned by the pastor and Mr. J. B. Swaim, president of the Memorial association. Sunday school will be at 10 o'clock, followed by preaching services at 11, and dinner on the grounds afterwards. Everyone bring a well-filled basket. In the afternoon Mr. R. L. Pope, noted banked of Thomasville, will deliver the principal address. Several good singers have been secured to assist in the singing, while the local choir has been practicing. Part of the afternoon services will be rendered from the cemetery. All who have friend sand relatives burried in Spring Hill cemetery will be given an opportunity to join the Memorial association, whose primary object is the beautification of the cemetery.

After the exhibition Easter Monday the Ladies' Aid and Sunshine circle realized that they were $110.00 better off than they were before they went to the exhibition. Although all were tired at the close of the day, they felt that the day had been profitable. The Sunshine circle will use their money to pay off the debt on the piano. However, we do not have quite enough to do this, yet we expect to raise the rest in th next few days.

The Ladies' Aid may use their money toward beautifying the cemetery. We soon hope to have Spring Hill cemetery looking as well as the ones nearby through the Memorial association and Ladies' Aid society.

The Aid and circle will have an ice cream supper on the corner lot of the church property, Saturday, June 1.

The Christian Endeavor society still meets the second and fourth Sunday evening, but have changed the time of meeting from 6 o'clock to 7. Last night's topic was "Mother and Home." Miss Treva Craven was leader.

Friends of Miss Virginia Swaim will regret to learn that she is in Burrus Memorial hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis Saturday evening. At this writing she is reported resting well. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

Shady Grove, Connelly Springs Charge.—We are glad to report that our church is doing splendidly. Recently we have received two new members and we presented our pastor, Rev. J. L. Love, with a nice Bible. The Easter program was very good with Mrs. Love and Mrs. Aiken as leaders.

The second quarterly conference met at the church on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A fine spirit prevailed throughout the meeting. There were also good reports from the official members of the church.

We are having splendid prayer meetings at the church on Sunday nights, also good cottage prayer meetings on Wednesday nights. We are glad to announce that our Sunday school attendance is improving and that there is much interest manifested.

Our pastor, Rev. J. L. Love filled his regular appointment Sunday at 11 o'clock, preaching at Shiloh a Mother's day sermon. He also filled his appointment at Shady Grove at the evening hour.

We are sorry to report that Grandmother Thomas is very ill. Mr. Julius Ingle is also very sick.

The Laymen's Fellowship met this month at the parsonage. These men are doing good work.

The Ladies' Aid met Friday, May 10th, with Mrs. Hise. One new member was received. The program centered around Mother and Motherhood. There was a beautiful duet rendered by Mrs. Aiken and Mrs. Hise. There were five visitors present. Mrs. Hise served delicious refreshments. The Ladis' Aid has bought a nice piano for the church and has painted the church on the outside. They plan to have an ice cream supper next week end, May 25. We now have thirty members in the organization. They plan to meet next month with Mrs. Duncan.

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Love and son attended Federation meeting at Fallston on Monday, May 13th. Reporter.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, filled his regular appointment at our church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. With another good sermon. We were glad to have as many present as there was and wish more of the Mothers could have been present to hear this wonderful sermon that was preached. Our pastor's subject was on our good mothers, and I think we should always remember our mothers on the Second Sunday in May, and not only on that day but throughout the year every day, for a mother means more to us all than any tongue can tell.

Our Christian Endeavor also gave a Mother's Day program Sunday night. We were glad to see the large attendance present. We hope that all enjoyed hearing our program that was present.

Our Sunday school is still getting along very nicely, we are proud to say, with very good attendance present each Sunday.

Our Ladies' Aid is still working. We will meet at the church Wednesday afternoon of this week. We hope all of our members can be present. There will be an ice cream supper at the church Saturday night of this week, May 18, the proceeds will go for the benefit of the church. We invite all that can to attend.

MISSES LULA and BESSIE DEESE,
Reporters.

(This report carried over from last week.)

West End, Greensboro.—Mother's Day was observed on May 12 with a simple but impressive service at the 11 o'clock hour. A pageant composed by Miss Janet Rawlings was presented just before the address by our pastor, Dr. Bethea. His text was taken from Prov. 31:14, and the substance of his talk was the comparison of godly mothers to merchant ships, which ply their trade continually, but keep nothing for themselves. He said that "Godly mothers are our greatest treasures, with the Star of Bethlehem as their guide." Two more names were added to our church roll at this time also, Mrs. Livingood and Edward Harding, by profession of faith.

The ladies' auxiliary met at the church on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, with a good representation. The devotional subject was "Christ Our Companion in the Home," with Mrs. W. W. Clements in charge. Mrs. Stapleton was in the chair, and following disposal of business items the question box was conducted by Mrs. C. C. Stockard. The meeting was closed with sentence prayers, remembering our medical missionaries.

Sunday, May 19, the Lord's Supper was observed at the morning hour, and the subject at 8 o'clock was "Life's Demands." The text was James 4:14, "For what is your life?" The personal side of life's demands was emphasized in a very effective sermon by our pastor at this time.

A very active and noteworthy organization of our church is the Senior C. E. society.

They acquitted themselves admirably at the City Union training school, held recently at the Asheboro Street Friends church. Ten took the course on Young People's Society in Principle and Practice, and the majority of them made grades of 90 or over, Ray Routh scoring 100. New officers chosen for the new year beginning in June are: President, Miss Verla Mae Leonard; vice-president, Miss Ethel Simmons; secretary, Miss Alice Hinton, and treasurer, Miss Nellie Routh.

We were glad to welcome Miss Alice Hinton as a new member on Sunday morning; she has been attending our church for some time.

We regret the passing of one of our members, Mr. E. F. White, of Gorrell street, and extend our sympathy to the family and friends.

REPORTER.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson.—The Sunday school has been increasing this spring and we hope it will increase more.

Our pastor, Rev. C. L. Grant, has brought us some uplifting sermons since the last report. May 12th he preached a very touching sermon on "Mother."

Next Sunday, May 26, is memorial day at this church. Rev. E. F. Mumford, pastor of Abbott's Creek Baptist church, will preach the 11 o'clock sermon. At 1:30 o'clock L. A. Martin, of Lexington, will deliver the address. We hope to have a large crowd present to enjoy the day with us.

The ladies' auxiliary is still working. Saturday, June 1st, at 7 p.m., the auxiliary is sponsoring a lawn party on the church lawn. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

West End.—This has been an unusually busy year for this pastor, and having such an efficient reporter, I have refrained from writing many times when perhaps I should have done so.

Our second quarterly conference was held last Wednesday evening with quite an interesting program, and those present seemed to be very much interested. Bros. W. W. Eldridge and H. F. Summers are the nominees for delegate to Annual Conference.

The church debt was discussed in a friendly way and a committee was elected to select workers to take up this important task. This committee will report later. We are hoping that some plan will be devised that will be workable, as this has been neglected too long already.

Our finances are in splendid shape, everything considered. Pastor's salary paid to date, College, McCulloch Memorial Fund, Superannuates, Herald subsidy, and many outstanding local bills, together with an encouraging amount on World Service, have been paid. The Herald quota reached for the first time and seven over. All this has been done without a supper of any kind. Just straight giving.

We have also had a splendid revival in the church. About 45 professions in all, and 22 have united with the church. Our record attendance in Sunday school was reached the second Sunday in May with 253 present. There are many encouraging signs, for which we thank the Lord. West End has a big opportunity. If all her membership could only see the white fields unto harvest instead of looking at the difficulties, or getting their whims carried out, wonderful would be the results. Thank God there are those who are seeing the opportunities, and with this vision they are setting their hands to the task. We are expecting greater results.

We have received many kindnesses since coming here that we would not be satisfied to let go unmentioned: Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Guy Monmette, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Routh, Mr. Stine, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Stockard, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Ward, Mrs. William Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Stockard, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Stapleton, Mrs. Scarborough, Mrs. Frank Routh, Mrs. W. W. Eldridge, Mrs. Crutchfield, M. H. Waynick, Rev. and Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. Herndon, and Mrs. Emily Osborne has an unusual hen that lays a dozen eggs every week and we get them every one. Thank you, friends, for all your favors. These in addition to the generous pounding received some time ago, when there were so many packages that had no names that we did not undertake to report any names in this.

Bro. F. S. Stockard and Bro. B. Z. Routh did us the good favor to come one Saturday and screen in our back porch, which is quite a comfort. We appreciate this act of thoughtfulness.

Such acts of kindness as we have received from the interested ones, together with their kind words, as well as words of encouragement from many who have not taken part in these continued poundings, give us fresh courage and determination to go forward and press for greater achievements in the work of the Kingdom.

N. G. BETHEA.

Piney Grove, Siler City Charge.—It has been some time since we have had a report from Piney Grove church. Our work seems to be going on very well. The Sunday school is doing as well if not better than last year. We do not have a large enrollment, but a more loyal group would be hard to find. Our claims have all been paid up to the present time. Our pastor, Brother Burgess, brings us very inspiring sermons twice a month. We feel very fortunate in having such an able preacher.

We will hold our annual memorial services Sunday, May 26. It will be an all-day occasion, with Sunday school, preaching, memorial services, and singing. We are hoping to secure some quartets, and choirs from different churches have been invited. We hope that all members who possibly can, as well as the public as a whole, will come and worship with us.

FANNIE LOUISE POE, Reporter.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—"Deny thyself, take up thy cross, and follow me." President Andrews used these words as a text last night at Lebanon in his message to Christians. His sermon was most interesting, vital, timely, and edifying. Our people always enjoy having Dr. Andrews visit and would like to see him come more often.

Our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, preached a good sermon at 11 o'clock on the subject, "A Busy Man." We were glad to have Mr. Morgan, our pastor's son, of Concord, worship with us at that hour.

Next Sunday being commencement day at First church for High Point College, we will have no preaching services, thus giving our people an opportunity to attend there.

Our pastor is scheduled to help Rev. R. A. Hunter a couple of weeks in a revival meeting on Forsyth charge. On June 2nd our regular worship services will be held again.

Our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. C. A. King, was sick last week, but was able to be out again Sunday. We were certainly glad to have him back at his post.

School room work is over again and the children are happy in their vacation freedom again. The following boys and girls received diplomas last Friday night in the final program of High Point high school: George Brinson, Allen Thacker, Lois Yokeley, and Violet Murphy. Allen Thacker won the High Point College scholarship this year. Miss Loula Thacker who has been living in Greensboro for several months is visiting in the community this week.

Work on the hut is moving—slowly but surely.

The woman's auxiliary gave a chicken supper down street recently with gratifying results. It is hoped that next time they plan to serve, the hut will be ready for use.

Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Pleasant.—A large number of our young people attended the young people's banquet at Nathaniel Greene school gymnasium last Saturday evening. The meeting included the M. P. churches of our district. An address was given by Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College. His topic was "Building a Better World Through the Local Church." Dr. Lindley's message was enjoyed by all. Peppy songs and short talks were also given.

"An Ancient Religion for a Modern World" was the pastor's topic for Sunday morning. He pointed out that the religion of the lowly Nazarene is still the religion for the modern world.

The Sedalia Negro choir gave a concert in our auditorium last Sunday evening. A large crowd of people was present.

The annual memorial service will be the first Sunday in June. Mr. H. E. Coble, of Leaksville high school, will be the guest speaker.

A lawn party sponsored by the ladies' auxiliary will be given Saturday evening, the 25th. The public is invited to come and enjoy the fun.

Mr. Braxton surprised us agreeably some time ago when he presented to us church bulletins.

OLA STAFFORD, Reporter.

First Church, Winston-Salem.—Among the members of the Class of 1935 graduating from the Richard J. Reynolds High School, we find Miss Helen Bates, attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Bates. On last Friday night her diploma was awarded her. We congratulate Miss Bates on past success and wish her much more.

Dr. Bates' sermon on Sunday was great, "The Grace of Contentment." Who can think of anything that surpasses contentment in its noblest stage? Contentment does not come for the mere inviting, Dr. Bates told us, but we must strive and learn to be content with what God has given us and to do the very best we possibly can always.

The Eva Sapp circle of the auxiliary is sponsoring a hat social at the church on Friday night. It is understood that lovely spring millinery will be on sale at 10c and 15c for the men, the women and children. What a bargain; now is the time to buy.

It is with regret that we report the death of Mrs. A. C. Boger, the former Miss Mae Morgan, whose mother is a member of our church. Although Mrs. Boger was a member of another church in our city, she frequently came to First church with her mother. She was a young woman of good personality and had many friends in our congregation. Dr. C. W. Bates is to assist with the funeral service.

The junior choir, under the capable supervision of Mrs. Charles Stonestreet, is making fine progress. The children in the choir and others, too, are practicing and preparing for the oncoming Children's Day program.

PAULINE BRANSON, Reporter.

First Church, Burlington.—We had the largest attendance at the preaching service on Mother's Day that we have had this year. Our auditorium was filled and the Baraca room was used to accommodate the people. Our pastor preached an inspiring and helpful sermon. He said that the type of mother that the world needs is, first, a praying mother; second, a mother with high ideals; and third, a mother who is a worker with God.

Our Sunday school attendance on May 19 was 351. A singing class is to be organized soon. We are hoping that a great number of our people will take advantage of this opportunity.

Our Daily Vacation Bible School will begin around the first of June.

MABEL THORNBURG, Reporter.

Tabernacle-Julian.—The Home-Coming and Memorial service at Tabernacle on last Sunday was a great success. At this time the 105th anniversary of the transferring of Tabernacle from the Methodist Episcopal church to the Methodist Protestant was also celebrated. Stones were placed in the masonry indicating the dates of the organization, rebuildings, dedications, etc. The attendance was possibly the largest that had gathered at Tabernacle for a great many years. The program was good all the way through the day. After the Sunday school, which met at 10 o'clock, the morning worsship was entered into very reverently by a house full of attentive people. The congregation very fervently joined in the singing led by our choir, while our quartet rendered some beautiful numbers. It was indeed inspiring to have so large an audience enter the responsive readings and prayers as well as the singing. Many of these people had come from a distance and were once more mingling with friends and loved ones of other days. Rev. W. M. Pike, a former pastor, led the morning prayer with much feeling and power. Rev. Paul S. Kennett, LL.D., of High Point College, brought us the message of the hour, which was indeed timely and appropriate, delivered with force and effectiveness. We thank you, Dr. Kennett. Come again.

Just following the morning sermon the memorial service was conducted, songs and flowers being used effectively. Those who have been placed in the cemetery during the year were remembered with flowers, the graves of the five ministers buried here were decorated, and a long flower chain was placed upon a large cross erected in the midst of the old part of the cemetery in honor of those who are unknown or who were not remembered by some one else. The audience then repaired to the cemetery, all persons going to the graves of their loved ones, standing quietly with bowed heads while the quartet rendered an appropriate number, and dismissal followed.

After the dinner hour the choir, led by our choirmaster, Bro. T. B. Reynolds, rendered a beautiful musical program. Then followed a most powerful address by Judge Johnson J. Hayes. This address from start to finish was full of good thought and advice, and it was rendered in a way that it was most interesting to all. We are greatly indebted to Judge Hayes for this strong address.

It was indeed fitting that following the afternoon address our executive, Dr. Andrews, president of the conference, could be with us and conduct the service at which time the stones were placed in the buildings. Most of the service was conducted in the house. In a copper box to be placed in the corner of the church the trustees placed various articles, while President Andrews placed the Church Discipline and the pastor placed the Bible. The audience then repaired to the front of the church, where the service was concluded. As Dr. Andrews read the concluding words of the service, Mr. C. R. Fields, chairman of the board of trustees, placed the copper box in the corner of the building and the other trustees placed the two stones in niches made for them to rest in the respective buildings for the years to come. With an appropriate dismissal, the services of this great day were concluded.

We are indebted to the Ross quartet of Pleasant Garden M. E. church, South, and other singers for help in the music rendered. Thanks to our friends.

It is of interest to note that on the occasion of placing the corner stones the same hymn was used that was used when the church was dedicated. Mrs. Dora Neese, our efficient pianist, who played the piano, also played the old fashioned organ on the other occasion. She was then a music pupil under the late Mrs. Speight Hunter, who selected the hymn and directed her pupil who presided. Through the years this same lady has been faithful to give her musical talent to the Kingdom through our church, and most of the time presiding at the organ until it was replaced by the modern piano. Who can beat this record? By referring to hymn No. 422 it can be seen how appropriate was the hymn selected for that occasion.

Brother Henry Royal, one of the officials of Tabernacle, is in Wesley Long hospital in Greensboro, having had an operation. He is improving and it is expected that he will be at home in a few days.

Mrs. Ralph Blackard-Burk of Julian church is in the Clinic hospital for an operation. We trust for an early recovery.

On last Wednesday morning Mrs. Charlotte Fields-Woodburn slipped away from us and went to her glory home. She was more than 96 years old and had been a good and faithful member of Tabernacle church for more than 80 years. For a number of years she had been confined to her room. She was indeed feeble because of her advanced age, but she was always strong enough to shout and praise the Lord. She always told the preacher and others that she was going to her "Glory Home." This she did when she so peacefully passed away, seeming without pain or discomfort. She was the oldest member of Tabernacle church, and had possibly served a longer membership than any other in the history of the church. She lived a great life and is now living a great life in Glory.

GEO. L. CURRY, Pastor.

Cedar Cliff, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We are glad to say that we had a wonderful memorial and Mother's Day service last Sunday. Our pastor was present, and Rev. G. W. Holmes spoke inspiringly on Mother, which was enjoyed very much. Prof. G. H. Enfield spoke for us on Home-Coming in Heaven, which was enjoyed equally as much.

Dinner was served by all and together.

In the evening we had the pleasure of listening to some very good singing which was presented by the Central quartet, the Bethany quartet, the Thomas family, Miss Riddle's two quartets, and also our home quartet. We take this opportunity to express our thanks and appreciation for their help in the day's program.

We are planning to get new pews for our chuch, and also to paint it. We are looking forward hopefully for a wonderful revival, beginning the second Sunday in July.

BERTHA BOGER, Reporter.

Efland, Orange Charge.—As Dr. Andrews said, it was indeed a gala occasion for us, when on Sunday, May 19, many of our friends from far and near met with us to dedicate our church. The weather was fine and every one enjoyed the services, the fellowship, and the bountiful dinner.

Our pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, welcomed the friends of the church and spoke briefly of our work and the services for the day, after which he presented Dr. R. M. Andrews, president of the conference, who brought us a very inspiring message on "The Cost of Discipleship."

Following the sermon the church was presented by Mr. S. C. Forrest, church treasurer and son of Mr. S. J. Forrest, who was on the building committee and one of the original trustees of the church. Dr. Andrews dedicated it, using the service in the Ritual.

In the afternoon the church history, written by Mrs. O. E. Bivins, a daughter of Mr. S. T. Forrest and a charter member, was read by Miss Pattye Crutchfield. Brother Williams then read messages of congratulation and encouragement from former pastors who could not be with us.

Dr. Bates, who worked here during the earlier years of the church, related some very interesting experiences of his time spent here.

Rev. C. H. Whitaker told us of his relationship with Rev. W. D. Fogleman and his interest in church building.

Dr. J. E. Pritchard brought greetings from Calvary and the Herald. His message was very helpful and enjoyed, even though it was, as he said, prepared to be made from East to West. It was his first visit since the building was turned around. His remarks go well in any direction.

Rev. E. Lester Ballard, our neighbor pastor of Mebane, spoke on "Going On." He said the time has not yet come to stop. He has never served us as a pastor, but has been with us in a number of services. We are always glad to have him.

Of the friends of the church, Mr. C. C. Smith of Mebane spoke briefly on the origin and work of the church. Mr. Smith is the only surviving member of the original board of trustees.

Greetings and words of congratulation and encouragement were expressed by members of the other churches on Orange charge, and a number of former members who now live elsewhere.

It was a great pleasure to have these former pastors and friends with us, and their messages and words of encouragement will remain with us as we strive to do greater service for the Master.

We regret that Mr. R. H. Sharpe, our oldest member, was on account of illness unable to attend these services. Our records say that he paid in the first money for the erection of the church. Illness caused Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Taylor to be absent also. We hope they will all be better soon.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville Charge.—On the second Sunday evening at 8 o'clock our pastor, Rev. W. L. Harkey, held his appointment at Clark's Chapel, and as usual, gave us a message that was enjoyed by all.

Just preceding the preaching service the Christian Endeavor society had their service.

An interesting debate was held between the Clark's Chapel and Weaverville M.P. societies on the following subject, "Resolved—That unification is the need of Methodism." The negative side from Clark's Chapel won the decision.

On next Sunday, May 26, Decoration Day will be observed at Clarks' Chapel, with Memorial services at 11 o'clock. An interesting program has been planned.

New Hope, Why Not Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. H. Hill, filled his regular appointment Sunday at 11 o'clock. He preached a very interesting sermon to a large congregation. Nearly every home in the neighborhood was represented, together with several visitors. We are always glad to have visitors in our church, and most especially are we glad to have our own Sunday school boys and girls who have married and live elsewhere come back. The Communion service was observed at this service.

One of our beloved neighbors and faithful church members, Mrs. W. R. Williams, is in St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro, having had an operation for cataract on her eye. They have removed the cataracts from one eye, and reports are that she is getting along fine. We all know how thankful she will be to be able to see so she can go about her home and work as of old, also be able to attend church as she did before she became too blind to get about with ease.

Mr. W. M. Coble, another of our church members, is confined to his bed at this writing with sciatic rheumatism. We hope for him a very speedy recovery.

Our Sunday school enjoyed a picnic trip and dinner to Guilford battleground on last Saturday, coming back by way of the Children's Home and stopped for an hour or so.

They were carried by two trucks. Some 75 or more members enjoyed the trip and all report a very good time.

Any one who reads this report having friends or loved ones buried in the cemetery at this church are requested to be present on next Saturday morning to help clean off the graves.

We are planning for a Children's Day program soon.

MRS. JASPER VON CANNON, Reporter.

Love's Grove, Midland Charge.—We are still pressing forward in the great work here at Love's Grove, striving to do much work for the Kingdom of God.

Our Bible discussion which we have every other Sunday night seems to be of much interest to our church. Last Sunday night we had very good attendance. As each one recited his Bible verse, we seemed to feel that we were a part of the service.

We welcome each and every one to come out to our church for Bible study. We can never learn too much about the Bible. It is our only guide in life.

Sunday, the 26th, is our usual preaching day. Sunday school at 2 o'clock and preaching at 3 o'clock. Our pastor, Rev. J. H. Trolinger, will be with us. We ask for your prayers, Christian people.

Shiloh, Shiloh Charge.—Last Sunday was a wonderful day for us at Shiloh. Our annual home-coming and memorial day proved very good. Our Sunday school attendance was 313. At 11 o'clock Rev. C. E. Ridge filled his regular appointment and preached a wonderful sermon. His subject was "The Christian Race." Text Heb. 12:1. He preached a very forceful sermon from this text, putting much emphasis on the "weights" and "sins" as they exist among people and in our churches today. At the conclusion of the sermon the memorial service was conducted. Four chairs were draped—one for each member who had died since last home-coming—placed in the front of the church. As the secretary called these names a flower girl for each placed a basket of flowers on the chair and paid a tribute to the memory of the deceased. The service was concluded in the cemetery. This seemed to have been the best memorial service we have ever had. The afternoon was devoted to the home-coming address delivered by Rev. H. F. Surratt of Thomasville, and special singing by the Fairgrove quartet of Thomasville. One other event of the afternoon was a history of Shiloh church written and read by Mabel Berrier. We hope that our church may still be able to make even better history from now on.

Our parsonage is now nearing completion. A freewill offering was taken at our afternoon service Sunday, which amounted to $19.65. We thank our friends for this nice contribution.

Mrs. J. M. Shoaf, who has been a patient at the Davidson hospital suffering from a broken leg and ankle, is improving very nicely. She will probably be taken to her home some time this week.

Concord.—Although our reports don't appear so often, we are still existing, and it seems that every organization is making some progress. Mr. and Mrs. Garner are putting forth every effort possible to make this year a success.

The Sunday school under the leadership of Ross Little is going forward in attendance as well as in finances. Two pianos for Sunday school departments have been bought and we are planning to buy another in a short while. The B. and S. class, of which Mrs. Waddell is teacher and Miss Mildred Burris president, at a recent class meeting decided to each make a print dress to be sent to the Children's Home. The young people's class is planning a banquet to be held Thursday night, June 6.

The Layman's Fellowship, which was recently organized by Mr. J. G. Rogers, of Denton, is meeting regularly. C. D. Sides is president of this splendid organization, with Willie Furr as secretary.

The Ladies Aid has recently painted the parsonage outside and several rooms inside. The Woman's auxiliary is very active and have made a good start on their new year's work.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor has elected new officers with Hoyle Winecoff as president and Sarah Little secretary. The Junior Christian Endeavor with Mrs. Garner superintendent is moving on nicely.

As a result of the tithing compaign and the untiring efforts of B. F. Waddell and his board of stewards, the finances are in excellent shape. Our College assessment, Herald subsidy, McCulloch Memorial Fund, are all paid in full, all local expenses paid to date, and all conference claims paid in full except the World Service budget.

Our second quarterly conference was held last Tuesday evening. Fred Helms and L. M. Williams were named nominees for delegate to the Annual Conference.

Beginning April 29 and continuing through May 9, our spring revival was held with Rev. C. G. Isley of Lexington as pulpit help. He brought very interesting and helpful messages. Eleven new members have been received since the close of the meeting.

Mrs. S. H. Teeter continues to improve and is able to sit up a little. Mrs. T. F. Newton and her mother, Mrs. Thomas, who were both injured by falls last week, are not doing so well. Little Leona Cartrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cartrett, underwent a serious operation at the Concord hospital last Thursday night. Some improvement is shown in her condition. The many friends of these sick ones wish for them a speedy recovery,

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Fogleman

Mrs Sallie Holt Fogleman, aged 41 years, a resident of Alamance, died April 16 at St. Leo's hospital in Greensboro, following an illness of a few days. Warren

On the morning of May 1, 1935, Brown Summit community lost one of its prominent citizens and friends, Mr. John P. Warren, as a result of a serious illness of a few days. He passed away in the St. Leo's hospital, Greensboro, leaving his home and community with a deep sense of their loss. He left a splendid family of eleven children and his beloved wife.

For many years Mr. Warren had been prominent as a farmer and as a tobacco warehouseman during the season in Reidsville. That he was popular and greatly respected in his community and elsewhere was indicated by the enormous number of friends that assembled to pay their last respects to him at his funeral. At the time of his death Mr. Warren was a trustee in the Brown Summit M. P. church, of which he had been a member for many years.

The funeral services were conducted at the Brown Summit M. P. church on Thursday, May 2, at 3 o'clock. Rev. Oscar L. Easter, the present pastor, was in charge of the services. He was assisted in the service by Rev. J. L. Trollinger, pastor of the Haw River charge, who was a former pastor of the deceased. Music was rendered by two vocal quartets, one from Greensboro, and the other of Reidsville. The interment took place at the Monticello cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Blanche Faucette, and eleven children — Argus, Addie, Mary Frances, Inez, John P., Jr., Helen, Hardin, Marion, Edward, Lucille, and Jack Warren, all of Brown Summit.

Our deepest sympathy goes with Mrs. Warren and her dear family in their sorrow. We pray the rich blessings of the heavenly Father upon them.

O. L. EASTER.

Andrew

Mrs. Mary Emma Andrew, daughter of the late Himer Fox and Eliza Jane Scotton Fox, was born in Randolph county, May 4, 1862, departed this life April 12, 1935, aged 72 years, 11 months and 8 days. She was a faithful member of Hope M. P. church, but on account of ill health she had not been active in church for several years.

On December 3, 1885, she was united in marriage to Joseph J. Andrew, who passed away August 6, 1934. She is survived by four daughters: Mrs. W. E. Hart, of Siler City, R. F. D.; Mrs. C. L. Forester, Miss Clata Andrew, both of Siler City; Mrs. J. B. Turner, of Lexington; one son, J. P. Andrew, of Durham; one half sister, Mrs. Lydia Siler, of Greensboro; ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. A. Burgess, and the body was laid to rest in Hope cemetery. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved ones. Our comfort is in God.

J. A. BURGESS.

Stainback

Mr. George M. Stainback, son of the late George W. and Mrs Sally P. Stainback, was born July 14, 1849, and died April 11, 1935, being 85 years, 8 months and 27 days old. He had been in declining health for the past ten months, and had been confined to his bed for six months suffering from cancer of the stomach.

December 3, 1869, he was married to Miss Lucy Elizabeth Duke, who has been dead for 12 years. To this union were born nine children, two of whom died in infancy. The surviving are Mrs. Lucy E. Poythress, who had lived with him for the past eight years; J. O. Stainback, Mrs. M. F. Houck, Mrs. W. P. Blanks, Mrs. P. S. Ellis, Mrs. E. B. Moss, and Mrs. L. A. Moss; also 52 grandchildren, 85 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

He was one of Vance county's outstanding citizens, having engaged in farming his entire life.

He joined Mt. Carmel church in early life, later becoming a charter member of Gillburg M. P. church, and was the last charter member of that church. The church and community have truly lost a very dear friend. He had always loved his church, helping it to go onward. He was a lifelong office holder in the church, being an honorary trustee at the time of his death. He will be missed everywhere, but the home will miss him most where patient and loving hands had served him so long. He bore his suffering in patience, trusting in God who knew best in all things. To know him was to love him, everyone saying "He is truly a good man."

Funeral services were conducted from his lifelong residence near Henderson, in charge of Rev. J. D. Cranford, pastor, assisted by Rev. D. D. Broome, and he was laid to rest under a beautiful mound of flowers in the family cemetery nearby.

"He is not dead but sleepeth."

A GRANDDAUGHTER.

Smith

"Sunset and evening star, and one clear call," and the sweet spirit of Mrs. G. W. Smith responded and went home to God.

It was on Friday evening, March 29, 1935, at 7 o'clock, after an illness of one week, that this faithful member of the First M. P. church of Charlotte went home to her reward.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Roberta M. P. church at Harrisburg, N. C. Rev. G. H. Hendry, pastor of First M. P. church, Charlotte, assisted by Rev. Mr. Cook, of Fairview church, conducted the service.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, George W. Smith; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Blackwelder, of Concord, and the following brothers and sisters: Walter Blackwelder, of Concord; Will and Doc Blackwelder, of Kannapolis; Frank Blackwelder, of Charlotte; Mrs. P. M. Linker, Mrs. Clara Carter, Mrs. C. S. Cochrane, and Mrs. James Sutton, of Cabarrus county, and Mrs. Frank Coble, of Kannapolis.

"Blessed are they who die in the Lord,
Precious and true, 'tis found in His Word;
All of their burdens they shall lay down,
And shall receive a harp and a crown."

A FRIEND.

Lineberry

James Lineberry, aged 16 years, died Thursday morning, April 25, at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Lineberry, in the Mt. Pleasant church community. James lived most of his life with his grandmother and uncle, Roy Lineberry.

James attended school up until a few days before he died. He and his school mates had never thought but that he was as healthy as any normal child. But on Easter Monday he complained, and a physician was consulted and discovered that he was suffering from diabetes. He was put to bed that night and died in the early hours of Thursday morning. The funeral service was conducted at Mt. Pleasant church on Friday afternoon, and his body was laid in its final resting place in the church cemetery.

BURLINGTON, FIRST	101
ASHEVILLE	98
GRAHAM	92

Now all of you folks assemble yourselves within good seeing distance of this monster blackboard and take a good look and see who is up at the head of the column, also who is in capital letters this week. Burlington, First is right in the center of the stage, both in the percentage column and in the subscription receipts column. Well, we knew they could do it. And by the way, this 73.75 subscriptions which Burlington sends in is the largest number that this typewriter has ever recorded. Last year the first church at High Point sent in 71, but Burlington First goes ahead of that. The only thing we can do about it is to congratulate everybody that had anything to do with it—the pastor, Dr. Paschall, Mrs. Durham, the agent and T. T. Stafford who sold a good many papers early in the year.

Asheville holds on to second place this week and Graham wins third place over Tabernacle by less than one point. Well, let the good work go on. Shiloh, Lincolnton and Flat Rock all sent in more than one subscription this week. We thank all of them.

The receipts are only $34.00 this week, all on subscriptions. This is the second lowest since early in the year. But some days will be dark and dreary. Now folks, come on and make the receipts next week larger. Our expenses last week were: For printing $77.14, bookkeeping, $4.00 and postage, $2.50, making a total of $83.64. So you see about what we must have each week.

Miss Virginia Jackson, who has been visiting at the Tabernacle parsonage and who is to visit other friends in North Carolina, has returned to Baltimore for a few days. Miss Virginia Curry accompanied her on this trip. The occasion of their going to Baltimore was the inauguration of Mayor Jackson, Miss Jackson's father, for his third term of office as mayor of Baltimore. They are expected back in North Carolina in a few days.

VOLUME XLI GREENSBORO, N. C., MAY 30, 1935 NUMBER 28

Albert Norman Ward, A.M., D.D., LL.D.

Commencement at High Point College

It is not our purpose to write about each feature of the commencement exercises at High Point College, for we were there for only one of the many features, namely, the commencement proper on Monday morning. We presume some one from the college will give us the outstanding events of the other exercises.

But on Monday morning the chapel was filled to overflowing with friends and parents of those who were to graduate. After the devotional services were over, Dr. Humphries, the president, introduced Dr. J. T. Burrus, of High Point, who in turn introduced the speaker of the occasion, Mr. Carl Goerch, editor of the State, at Raleigh, N. C. Mr. Goerch brought a very timely message to the graduating class on the general subject of having the right perspective of things. Mr. Goerch, a native of the state of New York, came to North Carolina some years ago and has quickly grasped the significance of our opportunities, and already he knows how to tell others about the great things we have here. While we cannot give the address in detail, yet we will say that it was packed with great truth and interspersed with some good jokes which served to keep his audience in a frame of mind to listen very carefully to what he was saying.
